1959. Ban on receipt of commissions in connection with loans.

No person who holds office in or is employed by a building society as director, secretary<sup>1</sup>, chief executive<sup>2</sup>, manager<sup>3</sup>, solicitor<sup>4</sup>, surveyor or valuer or in connection with the assessment of the adequacy of securities for loans secured on land<sup>5</sup>, may, in addition to the remuneration prescribed or authorised by the rules or any resolution of the society, accept from any other person any commission<sup>6</sup> for or in connection with any loan made by the society<sup>7</sup>. If such a person accepts a commission in contravention of this provision: (1) he and<sup>8</sup> the person who paid it are liable on summary conviction to a fine<sup>9</sup>; and (2) if, having been convicted of an offence under head (1) above, the person accepting the commission fails to pay over to the society the amount or value of the commission, as and when directed to do so by the court which convicted him, he commits an offence and is liable on summary conviction to imprisonment<sup>10</sup>. The person who paid the commission does not commit the offence unless he paid the commission knowing the circumstances that constituted the offence on the part of the person who accepted it from him<sup>11</sup>.

Where: (a) a charge upon a policy of life assurance<sup>12</sup> is given as additional security for a loan made by a society<sup>13</sup>; or (b) a society makes an additional loan to enable payment to be made of a premium on a policy of insurance<sup>14</sup>; or (c) any policy of insurance is taken out so as to comply with the terms on which a loan is made by a society, whether by way of insuring the property given as security for the loan or otherwise<sup>15</sup>, and the policy is effected through the society, or the society nominates or selects a person by whom the policy is to be issued, it is unlawful for any person who holds office in or is employed by a building society as director, secretary, chief executive, manager, solicitor, surveyor or valuer<sup>16</sup>, in connection with the effecting of the policy, to receive any commission from a person by or through whom the policy is issued<sup>17</sup>. A person who pays, and a person who accepts, any commission which this prohibition makes it unlawful to receive is liable on summary conviction to a fine<sup>18</sup>.

UPDATE

1959 Ban on receipt of commissions in connection with loans

NOTE 4--'Solicitor' now includes any person who, for the purposes of the Legal Services Act 2007, is an authorised person in relation to an activity which constitutes a reserved instrument activity (within the meaning of that Act) (see LEGAL PROFESSIONS vol 65 (2008) PARA 512): Building Societies Act 1986 s 67(7) (definition amended by Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 21 para 71).

Halsbury's Laws of England/FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS (VOLUME 48 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-589; VOLUME 49 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 590-1619; VOLUME 50 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1620-2586)/8. MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(1) BUILDING SOCIETIES/(ii) Management, Meetings and Accounts/A. DIRECTORS AND OFFICERS/(A) In general/1960. Disclosure of related business.

1960. Disclosure of related business.

Where, at any time during a financial year<sup>1</sup> of a building society, a person is both a director or other officer<sup>2</sup> of a building society and is (or is a director of or partner in) a business associate of the society, the following provisions apply, as respects that year, to that person in relation to the business of the business associate<sup>3</sup>. A person is a 'business associate' of a society in any financial year of the society if that person carries on a business which consists of or includes the provision of relevant services, provides relevant services during that year to, or to other persons in connection with loans secured on land<sup>4</sup> made by, the society, and is not a connected undertaking of the society<sup>5</sup>. For these purposes the 'relevant services' provided by a business associate are: (1) conveyancing services<sup>6</sup> provided by a solicitor<sup>7</sup>; (2) surveying and valuing land or other property<sup>8</sup>; (3) accountancy services<sup>9</sup>; (4) arranging for the provision of insurance against loss of or damage to property or on human life<sup>10</sup>; or (5) any other services designated<sup>11</sup> as relevant services<sup>12</sup>.

Where a business associate of a society provides the society with services which are relevant services, any administrative services<sup>13</sup> provided to the society by the business associate are also relevant services<sup>14</sup>. A person who is a director or other officer of the society in relation to the business of the business associate must as respects a financial year of the society furnish the society with the requisite particulars<sup>15</sup> of that business<sup>16</sup>. In order to enable him to furnish the requisite particulars of the business of a business associate of a society the person who is under an obligation to furnish them to the society may require any person who is a member of or partner in, or holds any office or employment with, the business associate to furnish him with such information relating to its business as he may reasonably require for that purpose<sup>17</sup>. Any person who, without reasonable excuse: (a) fails to furnish the requisite particulars or furnishes particulars which are false or misleading in a material particular or, in the case of certain particulars<sup>18</sup>, are not a justified estimate; or (b) fails to furnish any information lawfully required of him to enable the person who is under an obligation to furnish the particulars to do so or furnishes information which is false or misleading in a material particular, is liable on conviction to a fine<sup>19</sup>.

A society must maintain at its principal office<sup>20</sup> a register containing the particulars furnished to it as respects the last financial year and each of the ten financial years preceding that year<sup>21</sup>. However, no particulars of the business of a business associate of a society need be kept in this register as respects any financial year of the society in which the volume of the business<sup>22</sup> of which the requisite particulars are required did not exceed £10,000<sup>23</sup>. A society must make available for inspection by members at its principal office during the period of 15 days expiring with the date of its annual general meeting<sup>24</sup>, and at the annual general meeting, a statement containing the particulars required to be kept in the register as respects the last financial year<sup>25</sup>. Two copies of the statement must be sent by the society to the Financial Services Authority on the date on which the statement is required to be first made available to members, and the Authority must keep one of them in the public file<sup>26</sup> of the society<sup>27</sup>. A copy of the statement must also be sent, on demand and on payment of such fee<sup>28</sup> as the society may from time to time determine, to any member of the society<sup>29</sup>. Provision is made for a society to comply with the requirement to send a copy of the statement by using electronic communications<sup>30</sup>.

2 As to the meaning of 'officer' see PARA 1944.

3 Building Societies Act 1986 s 69(1).

4 As to loans secured on land see PARA 2006.

5 Building Societies Act 1986 s 69(2) (amended by the Building Societies Act 1997 Sch 7 para 27(1)), Building Societies Act 1986 s 69(7), Sch 10 para 10(1). 'Associated' has a corresponding meaning: s 69(2), Sch 10 para 10(1) (s 69(2) as so amended).

6 'Conveyancing services' in relation to:

11 (1) land in England and Wales, means the preparation of transfers, conveyances, contracts and other documents in connection with, and other services ancillary to, the disposition or acquisition of estates or interests in land, and for these purposes (a) 'disposition' does not include a testamentary disposition or any disposition in the case of such a lease as is referred to in the Law of Property Act 1925 s 54(2) (short leases) (see LANDLORD AND TENANT vol 27(1) (2006 Reissue) PARA 101), but subject to that, includes in the case of leases both their grant and their assignment; and (b) 'acquisition' has a corresponding meaning (Building Societies Act 1986 s 69(17)(a) (s 16(17)(a) substituted, and s 16(17)(aa) added, by the Statute Law (Repeals) Act 2004 s 1(2), Sch 12 para 18));

12 (2) land in Northern Ireland has the same meaning as in head (1) above with the modification that 'disposition' does not include any disposition in the case of such a lease as is excepted, by the Landlord and Tenant Law Amendment Act (Ireland) 1860 s 4, from the requirements of that provision (Building Societies Act 1986 s 69(17)(aa) (as so added)); and 13 (3) heritable property in Scotland, includes drafting all writs relating to such property and negotiating and concluding missives for its purchase, sale, transfer, lease and sublease (s 69(17)(b)). Generally Scottish matters are beyond the scope of this work.

7 Building Societies Act 1986 s 69(3)(a). 'Solicitor', in relation to England and Wales, includes licensed conveyancer, that is to say, a person who holds a licence under the Administration of Justice Act 1985 Pt II (ss 11-39) (see LEGAL PROFESSIONS vol 66 (2009) PARA 1319 et seq): Building Societies Act 1986 s 69(17). 8 Building Societies Act 1986 s 69(3)(b).

10 Building Societies Act 1986 s 69(3)(d).

11 The Treasury may by order in a statutory instrument designate as relevant services services of any description specified in the order which are normally provided to building societies, and make such incidental, supplementary or transitional provision as it considers necessary or expedient: Building Societies Act 1986 s 69(5) (amended by SI 2001/2617). Any statutory instrument containing an order made under the Building Societies Act 1986 s 69(5) or s 69(12) (see the text and notes 22-23) is subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament: s 69(16) (amended by SI 2001/2617). As to the Treasury see PARA 3; and CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 512 et seq. At the date at which this volume states the law no order has been made under the Building Societies Act 1986 s 69(5).

12 Building Societies Act 1986 s 69(3)(e).

13 'Administrative services' means services necessary or incidental to the conduct of the society's business: Building Societies Act 1986 s 69(17).

14 Building Societies Act 1986 s 69(4), Sch 10 para 10(1).

15 The requisite particulars of the business of a business associate of a society are: (1) except where an election under head (2) below is in force, those specified in the Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 10 Pt I (paras 1-4) (see heads (a)-(d) below); (2) if a society elects to adopt Sch 10 Pt II (paras 5-8) (see heads (A)-(D) below) for its directors and other officers as respects a financial year, those specified in Sch 10 Pt II; and (3) as regards relevant services designated by an order under s 69(5) (see note 11), such particulars as are specified in the order: s 69(7) (amended by the Building Societies Act 1997 Sch 7 para 27(2)).

The requisite particulars required by the Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 10 Pt I are as follows:

- 14 (a) where the business associate provides conveyancing services the requisite particulars required by Sch 10 para 1 are: (i) the number of cases in which it has provided conveyancing services in respect of a loan secured on land and the purchase of the land both to the society and to the borrower; (ii) the number of cases in which it has provided the society (but not the borrower) with conveyancing services in respect of a loan secured on land; (iii) the aggregate amount of the fees paid to it by the society or by or on behalf of the borrower for the provision of conveyancing services falling within heads (i) and (ii) above; (iv) the aggregate of the amounts paid to it by the society by way of commission for its having introduced investment business to the society; (v) the aggregate amount of any fees paid to it by the society in consideration of the provision of conveyancing services in respect of any land held by the society; and (vi) the aggregate amount of any fees paid to it by the society in consideration of the provision of administrative services to the society (Sch 10 para 1 (amended by the Building Societies Act 1997 Sch 7 para 60(1), (2), Sch 9));
- 15 (b) where the business associate provides the services of surveying and valuing property the requisite particulars required by the Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 10 para 2 are: (i) the number of cases in which, in respect of any land which is to secure a loan, it has surveyed the land or provided a valuation of it on behalf of the society or the borrower or both; (ii) the number of cases in which, on behalf of the society (but not the borrower), it has surveyed any land which is to secure a loan or provided the society with a valuation of it; (iii) the aggregate amount of the fees paid to it by the society or by or on behalf of the borrower for the provision of the services falling within heads (i) and (ii) above; (iv) the aggregate of the amounts paid to it by the society by way of commission for its having introduced investment business to the society; (v) the aggregate amount of any fees paid to it by the society in consideration of the provision of surveying or valuing services in respect of any property held by the society; and (vi) the aggregate amount of any fees paid to it by the society in consideration of the provision of administrative services to the society (Sch 10 para 2 (amended by the Building Societies Act 1997 Sch 7 para 60(1), (2), Sch 9));
- 16 (c) where the business associate provides accountancy services the requisite particulars required by the Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 10 para 3 are: (i) the aggregate amount of the fees paid to it by the society for the provision of accountancy services; and (ii) the aggregate amount of any fees paid to it by the society in consideration of the provision of administrative services to the society (Sch 10 para 3 (amended by the Building Societies Act 1997 Sch 7 para 60(1)));
- 17 (d) where the business associate arranges for the provision of relevant insurance the requisite particulars required by the Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 10 para 4 are: (i) the aggregate of the amounts paid to it by the society or by way of commission by insurers in respect of relevant insurance effected by the society or by borrowers in compliance with the terms on which loans secured on land are made by the society; and (ii) the aggregate amount of any fees paid to it by the society in consideration of the provision of administrative services to the society (Sch 10 para 4 (amended by the Building Societies Act 1997 Sch 7 para 60(1), (3))).

The requisite particulars required by the Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 10 Pt II are as follows:

- 18 (A) where the business associate provides conveyancing services the requisite particulars required by Sch 10 para 5 are: (aa) the prescribed band within which falls the estimated number of cases in which it has provided conveyancing services in respect of a loan secured on land and the purchase of the land both to the society and to the borrower; (bb) the prescribed band within which falls the estimated number of cases in which it has provided the society (but not the borrower) with conveyancing services in respect of a loan secured on land; (cc) the prescribed band within which falls the estimated aggregate amount of the fees paid to it by the society or by or on behalf of the borrower for the provision of conveyancing services falling within heads (aa) and (bb) above; (dd) the prescribed band within which falls the estimated aggregate of the amounts paid to it by the society by way of commission for its having introduced investment business to the society; (ee) the prescribed band within which falls the estimated aggregate amount of any fees paid to it by the society in consideration of the provision of conveyancing services in respect of any land held by the society; and (ff) the prescribed band within which falls the estimated aggregate of any fees paid to it by the society in consideration of the provision of administrative services to the society (Sch 10 para 5 (amended by the Building Societies Act 1997 Sch 7 para 60(1), (2), Sch 9));

- 19 (b) where the business associate provides the services of surveying and valuing property the requisite particulars required by the Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 10 para 6 are: (aa) the prescribed band within which falls the estimated number of cases in which, in respect of any land which is to secure a loan, it has surveyed the land or provided a valuation of it on behalf of the society or the borrower or both; (bb) the prescribed band within which falls the estimated number of cases in which, on behalf of the society (but not the borrower), it has surveyed any land which is to secure a loan or provide the society with a valuation of it; (cc) the prescribed band within which falls the estimated aggregate amount of the fees paid to it by the society or by or on behalf of the borrower for the provision of the services falling within heads (aa) and (bb) above; (dd) the prescribed band within which falls the estimated aggregate of the amounts paid to it by the society by way of commission for its having introduced investment business to the society; (ee) the prescribed band within which falls the estimated aggregate of any fees paid to it by the society in consideration of the provision of surveying or valuing services in respect of any property held by the society; and (ff) the prescribed band within which falls the estimated aggregate amount of any fees paid to it by the society in consideration of the provision of administrative services to the society (Sch 10 para 6 (amended by the Building Societies Act 1997 Sch 7 para 60(1), (2), Sch 9));
- 20 (c) where the business associate provides accountancy services the requisite particulars required by the Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 10 para 7 are: (aa) the prescribed band within which falls the estimated aggregate amount of the fees paid to it by the society for the provision of accountancy services; and (bb) the prescribed band within which falls the estimated aggregate amount of any fees paid to it by the society in consideration of the provision of administrative services to the society (Sch 10 para 7 (amended by the Building Societies Act 1997 Sch 7 para 60(1)));
- 21 (d) where the business associate arranges for the provision of relevant insurance the requisite particulars required by the Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 10 para 8 are: (aa) the prescribed band within which falls the estimated aggregate of the amounts paid to it by the society or by way of commission by insurers in respect of relevant insurance effected by the society or by borrowers in compliance with the terms on which loans secured on land are made by the society; and (bb) the prescribed band within which falls the estimated aggregate amount of any fees paid to it by the society in consideration of the provision of administrative services to the society (Sch 10 para 8 (amended by the Building Societies Act 1997 Sch 7 para 60(1), (3))).

The Treasury may by order prescribe, for the purposes of the Building Societies Act 1986 Pt II series of numbers by reference to limits specified in the order, or series of monetary amounts by reference to limits so specified, and, in any provision of Pt II, 'prescribed band' means, in relation to cases, any series of numbers so prescribed for the purposes of that provision and, in relation to monetary amounts, any series of monetary amounts so prescribed for the purposes of that provision: Sch 10 paras 9(1), 10(1) (Sch 10 para 9(1) amended by SI 2001/2617). This power includes power to prescribe different series of numbers or of monetary amounts for the purposes of different provisions: Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 10 para 9(2). The power to make such an order is exercisable by statutory instrument which is subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament: Sch 10 para 9(3). As to the prescribed bands see the Building Societies (Prescribed Bands for Disclosure) Order 1987, SI 1987/723.

'Financial year' means a financial year of the society with which the business associate is associated: Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 10 para 10(1). 'Relevant insurance' means insurance falling within s 69(3)(d) (see the text to note 10): Sch 10 para 10(1).

An election by a society to adopt Sch 10 Pt II as regards the requisite particulars to be furnished by its directors and other officers must be made in writing to the Financial Services Authority before the beginning of the financial year as respects which it is made and the requisite particulars must be furnished in writing within the period of six weeks beginning with the end of the financial year for which they are required: s 69(8) (amended by the Building Societies Act 1997 Sch 7 para 27(2); and SI 2001/2617). As to the functions of the Financial Services Authority in relation to building societies see PARA 1863. As to the Authority generally see PARAS 4, 6 et seq.

21 Building Societies Act 1986 s 69(11). As to the keeping of records by a society see PARA 1886.

22 'Volume of the business', in relation to any business constituted by the provision of any services referred to in any provision of the Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 10 Pt I or Sch 10 Pt II (see note 15) means: (1) in the case of a paragraph of Sch 10 Pt I, the aggregate of all the fees and commissions which are the subject of the requisite particulars under that paragraph; and (2) in the case of a paragraph of Sch 10 Pt II, the aggregate of the amounts which are specified in orders under Sch 10 para 9 (see note 15) as the upper limits of the prescribed bands within which fall the estimated aggregates of the fees or commissions or other amounts received which are the subject of the requisite particulars under the provisions of that paragraph: Sch 10 para 10(2).

23 Building Societies Act 1986 s 69(12) (amended by SI 2007/860). As regards the £10,000 sum another sum may be substituted for it by order of the Treasury in a statutory instrument: Building Societies Act 1986 s 69(12) (as so amended). See note 11. As to the order made under the Building Societies Act 1986 s 69(12) see the Building Societies Act 1986 (Substitution of Specified Amounts and Modification of the Funding Limit Calculation) Order 2007, SI 2007/860.

30 See the Building Societies Act 1986 s 16(15A), (15B) (added by SI 2003/404). Where a copy of a statement is required to be sent to a member under the Building Societies Act 1986 s 69(15) (see the text to note 29): (1) it may be sent to him electronically only if it is sent to an electronic address notified by the member for the purpose; but (2) the requirement to send it is also treated as satisfied if the conditions set out in s 16(15B) are satisfied: s 16(15A) (as so added). As to the meaning of 'electronic address' see PARA 1883 note 24.

The conditions are satisfied in the case of a statement if: (a) the society and the member have agreed that information that is required to be sent to him may instead be accessed by him on a website; (b) the agreement applies to the statement in question; (c) the member is notified, in a manner agreed between him and the society, of the publication of the statement on a website, the address of that website, and the place on that website where the statement may be accessed, and how it may be accessed; and (d) a copy of the statement continues to be published on that website throughout the period of 21 days beginning with the day on which the society notifies the member in accordance with head (c) above: s 69(15B) (as so added).

1960 Disclosure of related business

NOTE 7--Definition of 'solicitor' amended to correspond with that in the Legal Services Act s 69(17) (see PARA 1959 NOTE 4): Building Societies Act 1986 s 69(17) (amended by Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 21 para 72).

Management, Meetings and Accounts/A. DIRECTORS AND OFFICERS/(A) In general/1961.
Connected persons.

1961. Connected persons.

For the purposes of Part VII of the Building Societies Act 1986<sup>1</sup> a person is connected with a director of a building society if, but only if, not being himself a director of it, he is<sup>2</sup>:

- 384 (1) that director's spouse or civil partner, child or stepchild<sup>3</sup>; or
- 385 (2) a body corporate with which the director is associated<sup>4</sup>; or
- 386 (3) a person acting in his capacity as trustee of any trust the beneficiaries of which include (a) the director, his spouse or civil partner or any children or stepchildren of his<sup>5</sup>; or (b) a body corporate with which he is associated, or of a trust whose terms confer a power on the trustees that may be exercised for the benefit of the director, his spouse or civil partner, or any children or stepchildren of his, or any such body corporate<sup>6</sup>; or
- 387 (4) a person acting in his capacity as partner of that director or of any person who, by virtue of head (1), head (2) or head (3) above is connected with that director<sup>7</sup>; or

NOTE 12--Building Societies Act 1986 s 70(4)(a) amended: SI 2009/1941.

Halsbury's Laws of England/FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS (VOLUME 48 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-589; VOLUME 49 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 590-1619; VOLUME 50 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1620-2586)/8. MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(1) BUILDING SOCIETIES/(ii) Management, Meetings and Accounts/A. DIRECTORS AND OFFICERS/(A) In general/1962. Powers and liabilities in general.

1962. Powers and liabilities in general.

The general powers and duties<sup>1</sup> of the board of directors of building societies are regulated by the same principles as those of the directors of limited companies<sup>2</sup>. Accordingly, they owe a fiduciary duty to the society to act bona fide in what they genuinely believe to be the best interests of the society as a whole<sup>3</sup>. Their duties also include a duty to act for proper purposes<sup>4</sup> and to act with care and skill<sup>5</sup>. As fiduciaries, they are debarred from making any profit from their position or from having a personal interest in any contract or other dealing with the society, except to the extent that they are permitted to do so by the rules<sup>6</sup>.

They are not trustees<sup>7</sup>, but paid confidential agents invested with wide powers to manage the business and affairs of the society<sup>8</sup>. It is not within the competence of a general meeting of the society to interfere with the directors in the exercise of managerial powers entrusted to them by the rules<sup>9</sup>.

If the rules declare that when the directors or managers exercise certain powers the minutes signed by the directors or managers concurring are sufficient authority for such exercise, omission to sign will not invalidate an exercise of the powers otherwise duly authorised<sup>10</sup>. If, however, the directors or managers exceed their powers by doing acts which are neither authorised by the rules<sup>11</sup>, nor for which there is such a potential necessity as to confer an implied power<sup>12</sup>, such acts will not be binding on the society, though the directors or managers may incur personal liability.

They will be personally liable to the society for any loss caused to it by their ultra vires acts<sup>13</sup>, and may be liable to third parties in damages for breach of a warranty of authority<sup>14</sup>.

An indemnity given to the directors or managers by the rules does not extend to acts which are ultra vires and beyond the powers which the society itself could confer upon them<sup>15</sup>.

1 For the special statutory powers and duties see PARAS 1952-1961. For the powers of directors to bind the society see PARAS 2038-2039. The powers and duties of the board of directors are one of the matters that must be covered by the society's rules: see the Building Societies Act 1986 s 5(8), Sch 2 para 3(1), (4), Table item 10 and PARA 1883.

As to the powers and duties of directors of limited companies, including the general law relating to the fiduciary position and duties of company directors see COMPANIES. See in particular the general principle that where the power is entrusted to the board the general meeting cannot interfere: see John Shaw & Sons (Salford) Ltd v Shaw [1935] 2 KB 113; and COMPANIES vol 14 (2009) PARA 541.

5 See (in the context of companies) Re City Equitable Fire Insurance Company Ltd [1925] Ch 407, CA. It should be noted that the relatively ill-defined duty of care and skill which the directors owe to the society under the general law is supplemented by the specific requirements which apply to the discharge of their controlled functions under the Financial Services Authority Handbook of Rules and Guidance: see PARA 1943.

6 For examples in the context of companies see Re George Newman & Company Ltd [1895] 1 Ch 674, CA; Aberdeen Railway Co v Blaikie (1854) 1 Macq 461, 471-72. In practice, the position under the general law will invariably be relaxed by provisions in the rules of a building society authorising the payment of remuneration and, where appropriate, pension benefits to directors (the manner of remunerating directors and the circumstances in which pensions may be awarded to them both being matters that are required to be covered by the society's rules: see the Building Societies Act 1986 s 5(8), Sch 2 para 3(1), (4), Table item 9(c) and (d) and PARA 1883). In addition, the rules will normally permit a director to have a personal interest in contracts or other dealings with the society, though it will be necessary to have regard in this connection to the extensive statutory requirements which apply to transactions in which a director has an interest: see PARAS 1953-1960.

1963. Statutory powers and duties.

The directors of a building society have certain special statutory powers, duties, and liabilities<sup>1</sup>. There are detailed statutory provisions relating to dealings between directors of a society and the society<sup>2</sup>. Where under the Building Societies Act 1986 a contravention by a society of a statutory requirement is made an offence, liability is also frequently attached by the Act to any officer who is in default<sup>3</sup>.

(B) CHIEF EXECUTIVE

1964. Appointment.

Every building society must have a chief executive<sup>1</sup>, appointed by the directors of the society<sup>2</sup>, being a person who is employed by the society and who either alone or jointly with one or more other persons is or will be responsible under the immediate authority of the directors for the conduct of the business of the society<sup>3</sup>. The office of chief executive and secretary<sup>4</sup> may be held by the same person<sup>5</sup>. The directors must take all reasonable steps to secure that the person appointed as chief executive is a person who has the requisite knowledge and experience to discharge the functions of his office<sup>6</sup>. The chief executive may be a director of the society<sup>7</sup>. Where a person becomes or ceases to be the chief executive of a society, the society must give notice<sup>8</sup> of this to the Financial Services Authority<sup>9</sup> within one month, stating the person's full name and address and the date on which he became, or ceased to be, chief executive, and the Authority must record the person's name and the date on which he began to hold, or, as the case may be, ceased to hold office, in the public file<sup>10</sup> of the society<sup>11</sup>. If the office of chief executive is vacant or if for any other reason there is no chief executive capable of acting then anything required or authorised to be done by or to the chief executive may be done by or to any assistant or deputy chief executive, or if there is no assistant or deputy capable of acting, by or to any officer<sup>12</sup> of the society authorised generally or specially for that purpose by the directors<sup>13</sup>.

1965. Duties.

The chief executive is responsible under the immediate authority of the directors for the conduct of the business of the building society<sup>1</sup>. The following are some of the special powers and duties of, and provisions relating to, the chief executive:

- 389 (1) a copy of any prohibition order made by the Financial Services Authority<sup>2</sup> must be served on the chief executive<sup>3</sup>;
- 390 (2) the summary financial statement must be signed by two directors on behalf of the board of directors and by the chief executive of the society<sup>4</sup>; and
- 391 (3) the balance sheet of a society must be signed by two directors on behalf of the board of directors and by the chief executive of the society<sup>5</sup>.

1966. Appointment.

Every building society must have a secretary<sup>1</sup>, appointed by the directors<sup>2</sup>, and the office of secretary and chief executive<sup>3</sup> may be held by the same person<sup>4</sup>. The directors must take all reasonable steps to secure that the person appointed as secretary is a person who has the requisite knowledge and experience to discharge the functions of this office<sup>5</sup>. The secretary may be a director of the society<sup>6</sup>. If the office of secretary is vacant or if for any other reason there is no secretary capable of acting then anything required or authorised to be done by or to the secretary may be done by or to any assistant or deputy secretary, or if there is no assistant or deputy capable of acting, by or to any officer<sup>7</sup> of the society authorised generally or specially for that purpose by the directors<sup>8</sup>.

MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(1) BUILDING SOCIETIES/(ii) Management, Meetings and Accounts/A. DIRECTORS AND OFFICERS/(C) Secretary/1967. Duties and agency of secretary.

1967. Duties and agency of secretary.

The secretary of a building society has special powers and duties. For example, he must receive from the Financial Services Authority<sup>1</sup> a copy of the memorandum<sup>2</sup> and rules of the successor society on the amalgamation of two or more societies<sup>3</sup>. He may certify a printed document as a true copy of the rules or memorandum of the society as registered, in which case it must be received in evidence and, in the absence of any evidence to the contrary, must be deemed a true copy<sup>4</sup>. Any notice, direction or document required or authorised by or under any provision of the Building Societies Act 1986 or by the rules of a society to be served on a society may be served on him<sup>5</sup>. In the case of a society which alters its purpose or powers or its rules, he must sign the copies of a record of the alteration and make the appropriate statutory declaration, and he must receive from the Authority a copy of the record of such alteration where the alteration has been registered<sup>6</sup>.

Even without having been formally appointed agent of the society, the secretary may become its general agent, so as to bind it, with regard to certain matters arising in the ordinary course of its business<sup>7</sup>. If he employs a private clerk to assist him, he will be responsible to the society for the acts of the clerk, notwithstanding that the society knew and approved of such employment<sup>8</sup>. The secretary may also be held to be the general agent of the directors in doing acts ultra vires the society<sup>9</sup>.

(D) LIABILITIES OF OFFICERS

1968. Liability on bills of exchange, etc.

When a bill or note is drawn or accepted by an officer on behalf of a building society, he will be personally responsible unless he uses clear and explicit words to show that this is not the intention<sup>1</sup>; but the giving of a promissory note on which the directors and not the society are liable does not affect the liability of the society for money which has, in fact, been lent to, or deposited with, it<sup>2</sup>.

1 Price v Taylor (1860) 5 H & N 540 at 545 per Martin B and Bramwell B; Allan v Miller (1870) 22 LT 825 at 827 per Channell B. The mere circumstance of his adding to his name 'secretary', 'director', or other description of his official position, will not relieve him of personal liability (Bottomley v Fisher (1862) 1 H & C 211 at 217 per Bramwell B; Allan v Miller above), nor will the circumstance that the promise is to pay money as 'value received for the society' (Allan v Miller). All these cases were decisions relating to unincorporated societies, but it is conceived that they apply equally to incorporated societies. For the general rule with regard to agents see AGENCY vol 1 (2008) PARAS 3, 38, 47, 128. As to bills of exchange generally see PARA 1400 et seq.

See also Chapleo v Brunswick Permanent Building Society (1881) 6 QBD 696, CA, where the society appears to have escaped liability only because its borrowing powers had been exhausted when the loan was made. Both these cases were decisions relating to unincorporated societies, but it is conceived that they apply equally to incorporated societies.

1969. Liability for defaults.

Where under the Building Societies Act 1986 a contravention by a building society of a statutory requirement is made an offence, liability is also frequently attached by the Act to any officer who is in default. Where an offence under any provision of the Act committed by a society is proved to have been committed with the consent or connivance of, or to be attributable to any neglect on the part of, any officer<sup>1</sup> of the society, he, as well as the society, is guilty of that offence and liable to be proceeded against and punished in accordance with that provision<sup>2</sup>. In any proceedings for an offence under the Act it is a defence for a person charged to prove that he took all reasonable precautions and exercised all due diligence to avoid the commission of the offence by himself or any person under his control<sup>3</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'officer' see PARA 1944. As to the exemption of officers from liability for default etc see PARA 1970.

2 Building Societies Act 1986 s 112(1). In addition, where an offence under any provision of the Act committed by a body corporate other than a society is proved to have been committed with the consent or connivance, or to be attributable to any neglect on the part of, any officer of the body corporate, he, as well as the body corporate, is guilty of that offence and liable to be proceeded against and punished accordingly: s 112(3). ### 1970. Avoidance of exemptions from liability.

Subject to the exception set out below, any provision contained in the rules of a building society or in any contract with a society or otherwise, for exempting any director<sup>1</sup> or other officer<sup>2</sup> or person employed by the society as auditor<sup>3</sup>, from, or indemnifying him against, any liability which by virtue of any rule of law would otherwise attach to him in respect of any negligence, default, breach of duty or breach of trust of which he may be guilty in relation to the society, is void<sup>4</sup>. A society may, however, purchase and maintain insurance for a person against any such liability, or indemnify a person against any liability incurred by him in defending any proceedings, whether civil or criminal, in which judgment is given in his favour or in which he is acquitted<sup>5</sup>.

If in any proceeding for negligence, default, breach of duty or breach of trust against a director<sup>1</sup> or other officer<sup>2</sup> of a building society or person employed by a society as auditor<sup>3</sup> it appears to the court hearing the case that that officer or person is or may be liable in respect of that negligence, default, breach of duty or breach of trust, but that he has acted honestly and reasonably, and that, having regard to all the circumstances of the case, including those connected with his appointment, he ought fairly to be excused from the negligence, default, breach of duty, or breach of trust, the court may relieve him, either wholly or partly, from his liability on such terms as the court may think fit<sup>4</sup>. Where any such officer or person has reason to apprehend that any claim will or might be made against him in respect of any negligence, default, breach of duty or breach of trust, he may apply<sup>5</sup> to the court for relief, and the court on any such application has the same power to relieve him as it would have had if it had been a court before which proceedings against that officer or person for negligence, default, breach of duty or breach of trust had been brought<sup>6</sup>.

Where a case under the Companies Act 1985 s 727(1) is being tried by a judge with a jury, the judge, after hearing the evidence, may, if he is satisfied that the defendant ought in pursuance of that provision to be relieved either in whole or in part from the liabilities sought to be enforced against him, withdraw the case in whole or in part from the jury and forthwith direct judgment to be entered for the defendant on such terms as to costs or otherwise as the judge may think proper: Companies Act 1985 s 727(3); applied by the Building Societies Act 1986 s 110(4). See COMPANIES vol 14 (2009) PARA 600. ## B. THE REGISTER OF MEMBERS

1972. Register of members.

Every building society must maintain a register of members showing the names and postal addresses of each member and whether each member is a shareholding member<sup>1</sup> or a borrowing member<sup>2</sup> or both<sup>3</sup>. The register must be kept at its principal office<sup>4</sup> or such other place or places as the directors<sup>5</sup> of the society think fit<sup>6</sup>. It is an offence if a society fails to maintain a register, and the society, and any officer<sup>7</sup> who is also guilty of the offence, is liable on summary conviction to a fine<sup>8</sup>. In the case of joint shareholders and joint borrowers all the names are to be entered in the register but the representative joint holder or representative joint borrower must be indicated as such<sup>9</sup>.

2 As to the meaning of 'borrowing member' see PARA 1894.

3 Building Societies Act 1986 s 5(8), Sch 2 para 13(1) (substituted by the Building Societies Act 1997 Sch 7 para 56(10); and amended by SI 2003/404). As to membership see PARA 1888 et seq.

Where a member has notified to the building society an electronic address for the purpose of receiving notices or documents required to be sent by the society under the Building Societies Act 1986, the register must show: (1) the electronic address in addition to the postal address of the member; and (2) the purposes for which the electronic address has been notified: Sch 2 para 13(1A) (added by SI 2003/404). As to the meaning of 'electronic address' see PARA 1883 note 24.

The 'registered address' of a member means the postal address shown in the register of members or, where the member has requested that communications from the society be sent to some other postal address, that other postal address: Building Societies Act 1986 s 119(1), Sch 2 para 13(4) (amended by SI 2003/404).

MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(1) BUILDING SOCIETIES/(ii) Management, Meetings and Accounts/B. THE REGISTER OF MEMBERS/1973. Right to obtain particulars from register.

1973. Right to obtain particulars from register.

At any time when a building society: (1) has had its permission under Part IV of the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000<sup>1</sup> to accept deposits cancelled<sup>2</sup>; and (2) has not subsequently been granted such permission<sup>3</sup>, a member of the society<sup>4</sup> has the right to obtain from the register of members<sup>5</sup> the names and addresses of members of the society, for the purpose of communicating with them on a subject relating to the affairs of the society<sup>6</sup>. This does not apply unless the member in question: (a) is qualified under the rules of the society to join in a members' requisition for a special meeting<sup>7</sup>, or to join in nominating a person for election as a director<sup>8</sup>; or (b) would be so qualified if any requirements as to length of time a person must have been a shareholding or borrowing member<sup>9</sup> were omitted<sup>10</sup>.

If, at any time not falling within heads (1) and (2) above, a member of a society who is qualified under the rules of the society to join in a members' requisition for a special meeting, or to join in nominating a person for election as a director, makes a written<sup>11</sup> application to the Financial Services Authority<sup>12</sup> for the right to obtain names and addresses from the register, the Authority<sup>13</sup>: (i) if satisfied that the applicant requires that right for the purpose of communicating with members of the society on a subject relating to its affairs, and has not, since making the application, voluntarily ceased to be a member of the society<sup>14</sup>; and (ii) having regard to the interests of the members as a whole and to all the other circumstances<sup>15</sup>, may direct that the applicant has the right to obtain from the register the names and addresses of the members for the purpose of communicating with them on that subject<sup>16</sup>. The Authority may charge a reasonable fee for considering such an application<sup>17</sup>. Any such direction may be given subject to such limitations or conditions as the Authority may think fit<sup>18</sup>. Before giving such a direction, the Authority must give particulars of the application to the society and must afford the society an opportunity of making representations with respect to the application, and if either the society or the applicant so requests, the Authority must give them an opportunity of being heard by it<sup>19</sup>.

A member entitled to obtain the names of members of a society may apply in writing to the society, describing in the application the subject on which he proposes to communicate with other members of the society, and the society must give him all necessary information as to the place or places where the register, or part of it, is kept, and provide reasonable facilities for inspecting it and taking a copy of any names and addresses in the register<sup>20</sup>. A society is not obliged to disclose to a member making an application any particulars contained in the register other than the names and addresses of the members, and the society may construct the register in such a way that it is possible to disclose the names and addresses to inspection without disclosing any other particulars<sup>21</sup>.

In general, information obtained may not be disclosed<sup>22</sup>. Any person who discloses information in contravention of this provision is liable on conviction to a fine<sup>23</sup>.

1977. Annual general meeting.

In the first four months of each financial year<sup>1</sup> every building society must hold a meeting as its annual general meeting in addition to any other meetings held in that year and must specify it as such in the notices calling it<sup>2</sup>. A society need not hold an annual general meeting in the calendar year in which it is incorporated<sup>3</sup>. If default is made in holding an annual general meeting the Financial Services Authority<sup>4</sup> may call it, or direct the calling of it, in that financial year, and may give such ancillary or consequential directions as it thinks expedient<sup>5</sup>. The business which may be dealt with at the annual general meeting includes any resolution whether special or not, notwithstanding anything in the rules of the society<sup>6</sup>. The business of the annual general meeting will also include the taking of a poll to elect the directors of the society<sup>7</sup> or (where they are elected by a postal or electronic ballot) the declaration of the result of the ballot for their election<sup>8</sup>, the appointment of the society's auditors for the period ending with the conclusion of the next annual general meeting<sup>9</sup> and the consideration of the annual accounts for the last financial year<sup>10</sup>.

It is an offence if default is made in holding an annual general meeting in accordance with the statutory requirements or in complying with directions made by the Authority, and the society, and any officer<sup>11</sup> who is also guilty of the offence, is liable on summary conviction to a fine<sup>12</sup>.

MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(1) BUILDING SOCIETIES/(ii) Management, Meetings and Accounts/C. MEETINGS/(B) General Meetings/1978. Special meeting on members' requisition.

1978. Special meeting on members' requisition.

A members' requisition is a requisition of not less than the requisite number of members of the building society (and that number is 500 or such lesser number as may be specified in the rules of the society)<sup>1</sup>. On a members' requisition, a society must: (1) duly call a special meeting, and specify the meeting as such in the notice calling it<sup>2</sup>; and (2) if so required by the requisition, send to each member entitled to receive notice of the meeting a copy of the statement of not more than 500 words with respect to the matters to be dealt with at the meeting<sup>3</sup>. Provision is made for a society to comply with the requirement to send such a copy by using electronic communications<sup>4</sup>. Where a meeting is so called no business is to be conducted at the meeting other than that stated in the notice calling it or, where applicable, a decision on an ordinary resolution as to whether the money deposited by the requisitionists should be applied to defray the whole or any part of the expenses of holding the meeting<sup>5</sup>.

The requisition must state the objects of the meeting, be signed by the requisitionists and be deposited at the society's principal office<sup>6</sup>, and may consist of several documents in like form each signed by one or more requisitionists and each after the first deposited within three months of the date on which the first was deposited<sup>7</sup>. Where the requisition consists of several documents, the date of its deposit is taken to be the date on which the document signed by the requisitionist making up the requisite number is deposited at the society's principal office<sup>8</sup>.

The rules of a society may require a requisitionist:

- 398 (a) to state his full name and address<sup>9</sup>;
- 399 (b) to fulfil one or other of the following conditions, namely: (i) to have been a shareholding member<sup>10</sup> for a specified period<sup>11</sup> and to hold, or to have held at any time during that period, shares in the society<sup>12</sup> to such value (not greater than the prescribed amount<sup>13</sup>) as is specified in the rules<sup>14</sup>; and (ii) to have been a borrowing member<sup>15</sup> for a specified period and to owe to the society, or to have owed to the society at any time during that period, a mortgage debt<sup>16</sup> of such amount (not greater than the prescribed amount) as is specified in the rules<sup>17</sup>; and
- 400 (c) to identify a share or mortgage account with the society which will evidence the fact that he fulfils one or other of those conditions<sup>18</sup>.

No objection may be made by virtue of such rules to the requisition or, where the requisition consists of several documents, to any of those documents unless it is made within 14 days of the requisition or document being deposited at the society's principal office<sup>19</sup>.

The rules of the society may also require a sum of money, not exceeding £50 per requisitionist, to be deposited with the requisition and, where any money is so deposited, it is to be forfeited to the society or returned to the persons who deposited it, as provided by the rules<sup>20</sup>. The rules must not provide for any deposited money to be forfeited to the society except where a quorum is not present within half an hour after the time appointed for the meeting<sup>21</sup>, or where and to the extent that those eligible to vote at the meeting decide by ordinary resolution that the money should be applied to defray the whole or any part of the expenses of holding the meeting<sup>22</sup>.

If the rules of a society so provide, the requirement to call a special meeting<sup>23</sup> does not require the society: (A) to call a special meeting if the only or main object of the meeting is to move a resolution in substantially the same terms as any resolution which has been defeated at a meeting or on a postal or electronic ballot<sup>24</sup> during the period beginning with the third annual general meeting<sup>25</sup> before the date on which the requisition is deposited at the society's principal office<sup>26</sup>; or (B) to call a special meeting to be held during the period of four months beginning one month after the end of its financial year<sup>27</sup>.

The Treasury may by order substitute for the number specified in the Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 2 para 20A(2) or for the sum specified in Sch 2 para 20A(7) (see the text to note 19) such other number or sum as appears to it to be appropriate, and such an order may make such supplementary, transitional and saving provision as appears to the Treasury to be necessary or expedient: Sch 2 para 20A(13) (as so added; and amended by SI 2001/2617). The power to make such an order is exercisable by statutory instrument which is subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament: Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 2 para 20A(14) (as so added). In exercise of the power under Sch 2 para 20A(13) the Building Societies (Members' Requisitions) Order 1999, SI 1999/3031, and the Building Societies Act 1986 (Substitution of Specified Amounts and Modification of the Funding Limit Calculation) Order 2007, SI 2007/860, have been made. As to the Treasury see PARA 3; and CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 512 et seq.

2 Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 2 para 20A(1)(a) (as added: see note 1). As to the meaning of 'notice' see PARA 1866 note 8. As to notice of meetings see PARA 1985. As to transmission of notices of meetings to an electronic address and publication of notices on websites see Sch 2 paras 22A, 22B; and PARA 1985.

3 Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 2 para 20A(1)(b) (as added: see note 1). As to members entitled to receive notice of meetings see PARA 1985.

Schedule 2 para 20A(1)(b) does not require the society to send copies of a statement to members entitled to receive notice of a meeting in any case where:

- 22 (1) publicity for the statement would be likely to diminish substantially the confidence in the society of investing members of the public (Sch 2 para 20A(10)(a) (as so added)); or
- 23 (2) the rights conferred by Sch 2 para 20A(1)(b) are being abused to seek needless publicity for defamatory matter or for frivolous or vexatious purposes (Sch 2 para 20A(10)(b) (as so added)), and Sch 2 para 20A(1)(b) does not confer any rights on members, or impose any duties on a society, in respect of a statement which does not relate directly to the affairs of the society (Sch 2 para 20A(10) (as so added)).

The Financial Services Authority must hear and determine any dispute arising under Sch 2 para 20A(10)(a), whether on the application of the society or of any other person who claims to be aggrieved: Sch 2 para 20A(12) (as so added; and amended by SI 2001/2617). As to the functions of the Financial Services Authority in relation to building societies see PARA 1863. As to the Authority generally see PARAS 4, 6 et seq. As to persons aggrieved see JUDICIAL REVIEW vol 61 (2010) PARA 664.

Where the Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 2 para 20A(1)(b) requires copies of a statement to be sent to members entitled to receive notice of a meeting, the proceedings at the meeting are not invalidated by the accidental omission to send a copy of the statement to a member entitled to receive one, or the non-receipt of such a copy by such a member: Sch 2 para 20A(11) (as so added). See note 4.

4 See the Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 2 para 20A(1A), (1B), (11A) (Sch 2 para 20A as added (see note 1); and Sch 2 para 20A(1A), (1B), (11A) added by SI 2003/404). Where a copy of a statement is required to be sent to a member under the Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 2 para 20A(1)(b) (see the text to note 3): (1) it may be sent to him electronically only if it is sent to an electronic address notified by the member for the purpose; but (2) the requirement to send it is also treated as satisfied if the conditions set out in Sch 2 para 20A(1B) are satisfied: Sch 2 para 20A(1A) (as so added). As to the meaning of 'electronic address' see PARA 1883 note 24.

The conditions mentioned in head (2) above are satisfied in the case of a statement if: (a) the society and that member have agreed that information which is required to be sent to him may instead be accessed by him on a website; (b) the agreement applies to the statement in question; (c) no later than one working day after the statement is first capable of being accessed on a website that person is notified, in a manner agreed between him and the society, of the publication of the statement on a website, the address of that website, the place on that website where the statement may be accessed, and how it may be accessed; and (d) a copy of the statement is published continuously on that website throughout the period beginning (so far as practicable) at the same time as copies of the statement are sent to members in accordance with head (2) in the text, and ending with the conclusion of the meeting: Sch 2 para 20A(1B) (as so added).

Where, in a case in which head (2) above is relied on for compliance with a requirement of Sch 2 para 20A(1)(b) (see head (2) in the text), a statement is published for a part, but not all, of the period mentioned in head (d) above, but the failure to publish it throughout that period is wholly attributable to circumstances which it would not be reasonable to have expected the society to prevent or avoid, the failure does not invalidate the proceedings at the meeting: Sch 2 para 20A(11A) (as so added). See note 3.

The power to make such an order is exercisable by statutory instrument subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament: Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 2 para 36(2). Such an order may contain transitional, consequential or supplementary provision: Sch 2 para 36(3). At the date at which this volume states the law no such order had been made.

1979. Failure to comply with members' requisition.

Where a members' requisition<sup>1</sup> is deposited at a building society's principal office<sup>2</sup> and the society is not relieved<sup>3</sup> of the obligation to call a special meeting<sup>4</sup>, subject to the proviso below, if the society does not within 28 days from the date of the deposit of the requisition duly call a meeting to be held within 63 days from that date<sup>5</sup>: (1) the requisitionists, or any proportion of them exceeding one-half, may themselves call a meeting to be held within five months from that date<sup>6</sup>; and (2) no business is to be conducted at a meeting so called other than that stated in the notice<sup>7</sup> calling it or, where applicable, a decision on an ordinary resolution<sup>8</sup> as to whether the money deposited by the requisitionists should be applied to defray the whole or any part of the expenses of holding the meeting<sup>9</sup>. A meeting so called by requisitionists is to be called in the same manner, as nearly as may be, as that in which meetings are to be called by the society<sup>10</sup>. If (a) the society is required<sup>11</sup> to send to each member entitled to receive notice of the meeting a copy of a statement of not more than 500 words with respect to the matters to be dealt with at the meeting<sup>12</sup>; and (b) subject to the proviso below, that requirement is not complied with within 28 days from the date of the deposit of the requisition<sup>13</sup>, the requisitionists, or any proportion of them exceeding one-half, may themselves send a copy of the statement to each such member<sup>14</sup>.

The proviso is that, if the rules of the society do not require the society to call a special meeting to be held during the period of four months beginning one month after the end of its financial year<sup>15</sup>, then any days falling within that period must be disregarded<sup>16</sup>.

Any reasonable expenses incurred by the requisitionists by reason of the failure of the society to call a meeting, or to send a copy of a statement of not more than 500 words with respect to the matters to be dealt with at the meeting<sup>17</sup>, are to be repaid to the requisitionists by the society<sup>18</sup>. Any sum so repaid is recoverable by the society from such of the directors<sup>19</sup> of the society as were responsible for the failure, whether by the retention of fees or other remuneration in respect of services or otherwise<sup>20</sup>.

(C) TYPES OF RESOLUTIONS

1980. Special resolutions.

A resolution of a building society is a special resolution when it has been passed by not less than three-quarters of the number of the members of the society<sup>1</sup> qualified to vote<sup>2</sup> on a special resolution and voting either<sup>3</sup>: (1) in person or by proxy on a poll<sup>4</sup> on the resolution at a meeting of the society of which notice<sup>5</sup> specifying the intention to move the resolution as a special resolution has been duly given<sup>6</sup>; or (2) in a postal or electronic ballot<sup>7</sup> on the resolution of which notice specifying that the resolution will not be effective unless it is passed as a special resolution has been duly given<sup>8</sup>. No resolution of a society may be passed as a special resolution unless it is required to be so passed by or under any provision of the Building Societies Act 1986 or by the rules of the society<sup>9</sup>. In any rules made by a society on or after 1 October 1960 the expression 'special resolution' means, unless the context otherwise requires, a special resolution as defined above<sup>10</sup>.

1981. Shareholding members' resolutions.

In certain circumstances a shareholding members' resolution is required to be passed<sup>1</sup>.

A resolution of a building society is a shareholding members' resolution when it has been passed by not less than three-quarters of the number of the shareholding members of the society<sup>2</sup>: (1) qualified to vote<sup>3</sup> on a shareholding members' resolution<sup>4</sup>; and (2) voting in person or by proxy on a poll<sup>5</sup> on the resolution at a meeting of the society of which notice<sup>6</sup> specifying the intention to move the resolution as a shareholding members' resolution has been duly given<sup>7</sup>. No resolution of a society may be passed as a shareholding members' resolution unless it is required to be so passed by or under any provision of the Building Societies Act 1986 or by the rules of the society<sup>8</sup>.

1 A shareholding members' resolution is required in the case of an amalgamation (see the Building Societies Act 1986 s 93(2)(c); and PARA 1918), a transfer of engagements (see ss 94(2), (5)(a), 96(4); and PARAS 1920, 1925), and a transfer of business to a commercial company (see s 97(4)(c), Sch 2 para 30; and PARAS 1927, 1936).

MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(1) BUILDING SOCIETIES/(ii) Management, Meetings and Accounts/C. MEETINGS/(C) Types of Resolutions/1982. Borrowing members' resolutions.

1982. Borrowing members' resolutions.

In certain circumstances a borrowing members' resolution is required to be passed<sup>1</sup>.

A resolution of a building society is a borrowing members' resolution when it has been passed by a majority of the borrowing members of the society<sup>2</sup> voting in person or by proxy on a poll<sup>3</sup> on the resolution at a meeting of the society of which notice<sup>4</sup> specifying the intention to move the resolution as a borrowing members' resolution has been duly given<sup>5</sup>. For these purposes<sup>6</sup> an individual who is indebted to a society in respect of a loan fully secured on land<sup>7</sup> is not a borrowing member of the society at any time if at that time the amount of his mortgage debt<sup>8</sup> is less than the prescribed amount<sup>9</sup>. In the case of a borrowing members' resolution approving a transfer of engagements by a society<sup>10</sup>, only those borrowing members whose mortgages are to be transferred are entitled to vote on the resolution<sup>11</sup>.

No resolution of a society may be passed as a borrowing members' resolution unless it is required to be so passed by or under any provision of the Building Societies Act 1986 or by the rules of the society<sup>12</sup>.

In any rules made by a society after 1 January 1987 the expression 'borrowing members' resolution' means, unless the context otherwise requires, a borrowing members' resolution as defined above<sup>13</sup>.

1 A borrowing members' resolution is required in the case of an amalgamation (see the Building Societies Act 1986 s 93(2)(c); and PARA 1918), a transfer of engagements (see ss 94(2), (5)(a), 96(4); and PARAS 1920, 1925), and a transfer of business to a commercial company (see s 97(4)(c), Sch 2 para 30; and PARAS 1927, 1936).

1983. Ordinary resolutions.

'Ordinary resolution' means a resolution which will be effective without being passed as a special resolution<sup>1</sup>, shareholding members' resolution<sup>2</sup> or borrowing members' resolution<sup>3</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'special resolution' see PARA 1980.

2 As to the meaning of 'shareholding members' resolution' see PARA 1981.

MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(1) BUILDING SOCIETIES/(ii) Management, Meetings and Accounts/C. MEETINGS/(D) Right to Vote, Notices, Proxies, Polls, etc/1984. Right to vote.

(D) RIGHT TO VOTE, NOTICES, PROXIES, POLLS, ETC

1984. Right to vote.

- 401 (1) an ordinary resolution<sup>3</sup> or a special resolution<sup>4</sup> if he was, at the end of the last financial year<sup>5</sup> before the voting date<sup>6</sup>, and is, on the voting date, a shareholding or borrowing member<sup>7</sup> of the society<sup>8</sup>;
- 402 (2) a shareholding members' resolution<sup>9</sup> if he was, at the end of that year, and is, on the voting date, a shareholding member of the society<sup>10</sup>; and
- 403 (3) a borrowing members' resolution<sup>11</sup> if he was, at the end of that year, and is, on the voting date, a borrowing member of the society<sup>12</sup>.

Any provision in the rules of a society is void to the extent that it would have the effect of restricting these rights conferred on members to vote, subject to the exceptions below<sup>13</sup>.

If the rules of the society so provide, a shareholding member is not entitled to vote on an ordinary resolution or a special resolution as such a member, or to vote on a shareholding members' resolution if<sup>14</sup>: (a) he did not have a qualifying shareholding at the qualifying shareholding date<sup>15</sup>; or (b) he ceased to hold shares<sup>16</sup> at some time between that date and the voting date<sup>17</sup>. A member has a 'qualifying shareholding' at any time if at that time he holds shares in the society to a value not less than the prescribed amount<sup>18</sup> or such lesser amount as may be specified in the rules<sup>19</sup>. Where a society's rules make such provision as is mentioned in head (a) above, a shareholding member is taken to have had a qualifying shareholding at the qualifying shareholding date if he had such a holding<sup>20</sup>: (i) at the end of the last financial year before the voting date, except where head (ii) below applies<sup>21</sup>; or (ii) in a case where the voting date falls during that part of a financial year which follows the conclusion of the annual general meeting<sup>22</sup> commenced in that year, at the beginning of the period of 56 days immediately preceding the voting date for members voting in person at a meeting or, as the case may be, on a postal or electronic ballot<sup>23</sup>.

1 As to membership see PARA 1888 et seq.

2 Building Societies Act 1986 s 5(8), Sch 2 para 23(1) (substituted by the Building Societies Act 1997 Sch 7 para 57(3)). This is subject to the following exceptions: (1) minors may not vote (see the Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 2 para 5(3)(b); and PARA 1891); (2) only the representative joint holder or representative joint borrower may vote (see Sch 2 paras 7(4), 8(4); and PARA 1889); and (3) in the case of heads (1) and (2) in the text, a shareholding member may not vote to the extent to which the rules of a society restrict the right to vote in accordance with Sch 2 para 23(3) (see notes 14-17).

MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(1) BUILDING SOCIETIES/(ii) Management, Meetings and Accounts/C. MEETINGS/(D) Right to Vote, Notices, Proxies, Polls, etc/1985. Notice of meetings.

1985. Notice of meetings.

Any provision in the rules of a building society is void to the extent that it provides for the calling of a meeting of the society<sup>1</sup> (other than an adjourned meeting) by less than 21 days' notice<sup>2</sup> expiring with the date of the meeting or, if earlier, the date specified by the society, under its rules, as the final date for the receipt of appointments of proxies to vote at the meeting<sup>3</sup>. A meeting of a society may be called by 21 days' notice, unless the rules provide for longer notice to be given<sup>4</sup>, and where notice is given in accordance with this provision, the notice is taken for the purposes of the Building Societies Act 1986 or any other enactment to have been duly given according to the rules of the society<sup>5</sup>.

Notice of a meeting must be given to every member of the society<sup>6</sup> who would be eligible to vote at the meeting if the meeting were held on the date of the notice<sup>7</sup>. Notice of the meeting must also be given to every person<sup>8</sup>: (1) who becomes a shareholding or borrowing member<sup>9</sup> of the society after the date of the notice and before the specified date<sup>10</sup>; or (2) who, being such a member at the date of the notice, attains the age of 18 after that date and on or before the date of the meeting<sup>11</sup>, and who, in either case, would be eligible to vote at the meeting if he remained such a member until the date of the meeting<sup>12</sup>. Provision is made for the transmission of notices of meetings to an electronic address<sup>13</sup> and for the publication of notices on websites<sup>14</sup>.

In relation to any notice, directions or other document required or authorised by or under any provision of the Building Societies Act 1986 or by the rules of a society to be served on any person other than the Financial Services Authority<sup>15</sup> but subject, in the case of notices or other documents to be given or sent to members of a society, to any provision of its rules<sup>16</sup>, any such documents may be served on the person by delivering it to him<sup>17</sup>, by leaving it at his proper address or by sending it by post to him at that address<sup>18</sup>.

A society is not obliged by anything in the Building Societies Act 1986 or its rules to send a notice or other document to a member in whose case the society has reason to believe that communications sent to him at his registered address<sup>19</sup> are unlikely to be received by him<sup>20</sup>. Where the requirement to serve a notice or other document relates to notice of a meeting or postal or electronic ballot<sup>21</sup>, the society must instead advertise the meeting or ballot by displaying a notice in a prominent position in every branch office, or by advertisement in one or more newspapers circulating in the areas in which the members of the society reside, as the rules of the society provide<sup>22</sup>. The notice must be given not later than 21 days before the date of the proposed meeting or, as the case may be, the final date for the receipt of completed ballot papers or for the registration of votes in an electronic ballot<sup>23</sup>, and must state where members may obtain copies of the resolutions and any statements with respect to the matter referred to in a resolution, forms relating to voting by proxy and, in the case of a postal ballot, the ballot papers, or, in the case of an electronic ballot, how members may access electronic voting facilities<sup>24</sup>.

Accidental omission to give notice of a meeting to, or non-receipt of notice of a meeting by, any person entitled to receive notice of the meeting does not invalidate the proceedings at that meeting<sup>25</sup>.

3 Building Societies Act 1986 s 5(8), Sch 2 para 21(1) (amended by SI 2003/404). As to the appointment of proxies see PARA 1986. As to the right to vote see PARA 1984.

8 Ie subject to the Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 2 Pt III.

9 As to the meanings of 'shareholding member' and 'borrowing member' see para 1894.

10 Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 2 para 22(2)(a) (Sch 2 para 22(2) substituted, and Sch 2 para 22(2A) added, by the Building Societies Act 1997 Sch 7 para 57(2)). 'Specified date' means the date specified by the society as the final date for the receipt of appointments of proxies to vote at the meeting; Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 2 para 22(2A) (as so added; and amended by SI 2003/404).

11 Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 2 para 22(2)(b) (as substituted: see note 10).

12 Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 2 para 22(2) (as substituted: see note 10).

13 See the Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 2 para 22A (Sch 2 paras 22A, 22B added by SI 2003/404). Where a notice of a meeting of a society is required to be sent to a person under any provision of the Building Societies Act 1986, the notice may be sent to him electronically only if it is sent to an electronic address notified by him to the society for the purpose: Sch 2 para 22A(1) (as so added). As to the meaning of 'electronic address' see PARA 1883 note 24. In a case in which Sch 2 para 22A is relied on for compliance with a requirement to send a notice, a notice given in accordance with the provision is to be treated as given to a person on the day that the notice is transmitted: Sch 2 para 22A(2) (as so added).

14 See the Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 2 para 22B (as added: see note 13). A requirement under any provision of the Building Societies Act 1986 to send a notice of a meeting of the society to a person is also treated as satisfied if the conditions set out in Sch 2 para 22B(2) are satisfied: Sch 2 para 22B(1) (as so added).

Those conditions are satisfied in the case of a notice of a meeting of a society if: (1) the society and the person have agreed that notices which are required to be sent to him may instead be accessed by him on a website; (2) the agreement applies to the notice in question; (3) that person is notified, in a manner agreed between him and the society for that purpose, of the publication of the notice on a website, the address of that website, and the place on that website where the notice may be accessed, and how it may be accessed; and (4) the notice is published continuously on that website throughout the period beginning with the giving of that notification and ending with the conclusion of the meeting: Sch 2 para 22B(2) (as so added). A notification given for the purposes of head (3) above must: (a) state that it concerns a notice of a meeting of the society served in accordance with the Building Societies Act 1986; (b) specify the place, date and time of the meeting; and (c) state whether the meeting is to be an annual or special general meeting: Sch 2 para 22B(3) (as so added). In a case in which Sch 2 para 22B is relied on for compliance with a requirement to send a notice, a notice given in accordance with Sch 2 para 22B is to be treated as given to a person on the day that person is notified in compliance with head (3) above and heads (a)-(c) above: Sch 2 para 22B(4) (as so added).

Where, in a case in which Sch 2 para 22B is relied on for compliance with a requirement to send a notice of a meeting, a notice is published for a part, but not all, of the period mentioned in head (4) above, but the failure to publish it throughout that period is wholly attributable to circumstances which it would not be reasonable to have expected the society to prevent or avoid, the failure does not invalidate the proceedings of the meeting: Sch 2 para 22B(5) (as so added).

1986. Proxies.

A member of a building society<sup>1</sup> who is entitled to attend and vote at a meeting of the society<sup>2</sup> may appoint another person, whether a member of the society or not, as his proxy, to attend and to vote at the meeting instead of him, and may direct the proxy how to vote at the meeting<sup>3</sup>. A form for the appointment of a proxy may only be sent electronically to a person if it is sent to an electronic address<sup>4</sup> notified by that person to the society for the purpose<sup>5</sup>. The appointment of a proxy may be contained in an electronic communication<sup>6</sup> sent by a member to an electronic address notified by or on behalf of the society for the purpose<sup>7</sup>.

A proxy is only entitled to vote on a poll<sup>8</sup> (unless the rules of the society otherwise provide)<sup>9</sup>. Where the society, under its rules, specifies a final date for the receipt of appointments of proxies to vote at a meeting, a person appointed a proxy by a member who at that date is entitled to attend and vote at the meeting may act as his proxy at the meeting whether or not the member ceases to be so entitled after that date<sup>10</sup>.

Every notice calling a meeting<sup>11</sup> of a society must include, with reasonable prominence, a statement<sup>12</sup>:

- 404 (1) that a member entitled to attend and vote may appoint a proxy (or, where it is allowed, one or more proxies) to attend and vote at the meeting instead of him<sup>13</sup>;
- 405 (2) that the proxy need not be a member of the society<sup>14</sup>; and
- 406 (3) that the member may direct the proxy how to vote at the meeting<sup>15</sup>.

It is an offence if default is made in complying with this provision, and the society, and any officer<sup>16</sup> who is also guilty of the offence, is liable on summary conviction to a fine<sup>17</sup>.

Every form for the appointment of a proxy sent by a society to persons entitled to notice of a meeting of the society<sup>18</sup> must contain provision enabling that person to direct the proxy how to vote at the meeting<sup>19</sup>. It is an offence if default is made in complying with this provision, and the society, and any officer who is also guilty of the offence, is liable on summary conviction to a fine<sup>20</sup>.

Any provision in the rules of a society is void in so far as it would have the effect of requiring the appointment of a proxy, or any document necessary to show the validity of, or otherwise relating to, the appointment of a proxy, to be received by the society or any other person more than seven days before a meeting or adjourned meeting in order that the appointment may be effective at the meeting or adjourned meeting<sup>21</sup>.

The instrument appointing a proxy must contain certain declarations by the member<sup>22</sup>.

1987. Right to demand a poll.

The rules of a building society must provide for the right to demand a poll and the manner in which a poll is to be taken<sup>1</sup>. The rules of a society are void in so far as they would have the effect of either<sup>2</sup>: (1) excluding the right to demand a poll at a meeting of the society on any question other than the election of a chairman of the meeting or the adjournment of the meeting<sup>3</sup>; or (2) making ineffective a demand for a poll on any such question which is made by not less than ten members having the right to vote at the meeting<sup>4</sup>. Voting must be on a poll in the case of a special resolution<sup>5</sup>, a shareholding members' resolution<sup>6</sup>, a borrowing members' resolution<sup>7</sup> or an election of directors<sup>8</sup>. Any appointment of a proxy<sup>9</sup> to vote at a meeting of a society is to be taken to confer authority to demand or join in demanding a poll and for the purposes of counting the members joining in the demand for a poll a demand by a person as a proxy of a member is to be treated as the same as a demand by the member<sup>10</sup>.

A member of a society purporting to exercise his right to vote on a poll at a meeting of the society must, in the voting paper, make certain declarations as to his qualification to vote<sup>11</sup>.

1988. Postal and electronic ballots.

The rules of a building society may provide for the voting<sup>1</sup> in an election of directors<sup>2</sup> or on any resolution of the society (other than a shareholding members' resolution<sup>3</sup> or a borrowing members' resolution<sup>4</sup>) to be conducted in all or any particular circumstances by postal ballot<sup>5</sup>. Such rules may also make provision in relation to the use of electronic communications<sup>6</sup> in the conduct of a postal ballot<sup>7</sup>.

Where, under a society's rules, a postal ballot is to take place, the following provisions must be complied with<sup>8</sup>. Notice<sup>9</sup> of the postal ballot must be given not less than 21 nor more than 56 days before the date which the society specifies as the final date for the receipt of completed ballot papers (the 'voting day')<sup>10</sup>. Notice of a postal ballot must be given to every member of the society<sup>11</sup> who would be entitled to vote in the election or on the resolution if the voting date for the election or the resolution fell on the date of the notice<sup>12</sup>. Notice of the postal ballot must also be given to every person<sup>13</sup>: (1) who becomes a shareholding or borrowing member<sup>14</sup> of the society after the date of the notice<sup>15</sup> and before the voting day<sup>16</sup>; or (2) who, being such a member at the date of that notice, attains the age of 18 after that date and on or before the voting day<sup>17</sup>, and who, in either case, would be eligible to vote in the election or on the resolution if he remained such a member until that day<sup>18</sup>. Provision is made for such notice of a postal ballot to be sent electronically<sup>19</sup>.

Notice of a postal ballot must contain such other notices relating to the election or resolution ('related notices'), and be accompanied by such other documents ('accompanying documents'), as would be required to be given or sent to a member in connection with notice of a meeting<sup>20</sup>, had it been intended to hold the election or vote on the resolution at a meeting instead of by postal ballot, with the exception, however, of any notice relating to voting by proxy at a meeting<sup>21</sup>. Provision is made for the related notices or accompanying documents to be sent electronically<sup>22</sup>.

The accidental omission to give notice of a postal ballot or to send any documents required to accompany the notice to any person entitled to receive it, or non-receipt of the notice or document, does not invalidate the postal ballot<sup>23</sup>.

The postal ballot voting paper must contain certain declarations by the member<sup>24</sup>.

A postal ballot in which electronic communications are used<sup>25</sup> is to be distinguished from an electronic ballot, where the ballot, if and to the extent that the voting is not electronic, is conducted in the same way as a postal ballot<sup>26</sup>.

Where the rules of a building society provide for a postal ballot to be conducted in any circumstances in the case of an election or resolution and those rules do not expressly prohibit the conduct of an electronic ballot in those circumstances, the ballot in the case of that election or resolution may, in those circumstances, be an electronic ballot instead of a postal ballot<sup>27</sup>. A ballot in the case of an election or resolution is an electronic ballot if it is conducted: (a) in accordance with provisions relating to such ballots<sup>28</sup>; and (b) in so far as it is not conducted with those provisions, as if it were a postal ballot<sup>29</sup>. However, voting in the case of an election or resolution may not be conducted by an electronic ballot in which all the voting is electronic voting in accordance with the provisions defining electronic voting<sup>30</sup> unless the rules of the society expressly permit it<sup>31</sup>.

The rules of a building society may provide for voting in the case of an election of directors or a resolution of the society, other than a shareholding members' resolution or a borrowing members' resolution, to be conducted by an electronic ballot in which all the voting is electronic voting in accordance with the provisions defining electronic voting<sup>32</sup>.

Where voting may be conducted by electronic ballot<sup>33</sup> the rules of the society may contain provision supplementing rules relating to postal ballots in so far as it is necessary to provide for the conduct of electronic voting in accordance with the provisions defining electronic voting<sup>34</sup>. Where voting may be conducted by electronic ballot<sup>35</sup> the rules of the society may make provision as to the consequences of any irregularities occurring in the course of a ballot, including (but not restricted to) provision as to the validity of multiple votes cast by a member in the same election or on the same resolution<sup>36</sup>.

In the case of an electronic ballot, the society is not required to send notice of the ballot to any person if: (i) that person has agreed<sup>37</sup> that notices of electronic ballots and a voting facility may be accessed by him on a website<sup>38</sup>; and (ii) the society notifies that person in the appropriate way<sup>39</sup>.

The provisions on notices of a postal ballot<sup>40</sup> apply with appropriate modifications in relation to notices of an electronic ballot<sup>41</sup>.

- 13 Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 2 para 33(5) (substituted by the Building Societies Act 1997 Sch 7 para 57(15)). The Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 2 para 33(5) is expressed to be subject to Sch 2 Pt III.
- 14 As to the meanings of 'shareholding member' and 'borrowing member' see PARA 1894.
- 15 Ie under the Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 2 para 33(4): see the text to notes 11-12.
- 16 Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 2 para 33(5)(a) (as substituted: see note 13).
- 17 Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 2 para 33(5)(b) (as substituted: see note 13).
- 18 Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 2 para 33(5) (as substituted: see note 13).
- 19 See the Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 2 para 33(5A)-(5E) (added by SI 2003/404). Where a notice of a postal ballot is required to be given to a person by the Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 2 para 33(4) or Sch 2 para 33(5) (see the text to notes 11-18), the notice may be sent to him electronically only if it is sent to an electronic address notified by the person to the society for the purpose: Sch 2 para 33(5A) (as so added). As to the meaning of 'electronic address' see PARA 1883 note 24. In a case in which notice of a postal ballot is sent electronically to an electronic address in accordance with Sch 2 para 33(5A), the notice is to be treated as given to a person on the day on which it is transmitted: Sch 2 para 33(5B) (as so added).
- A requirement of Sch 2 para 33(4) or Sch 2 para 33(5) to send a notice of a postal ballot is also treated as satisfied if: (1) the society and the person have agreed that notices which are required to be sent to him may instead be accessed by him on a website; (2) the agreement applies to the notice in question; (3) that person is notified, in a manner agreed between him and the society for that purpose, of the publication of the notice on a website, the address of that website, and the place on that website where the notice may be accessed, and how it may be accessed; and (4) the notice is published continuously on that website throughout the period beginning with the giving of that notification and ending with the voting date (see PARA 1945 note 10): Sch 2 para 33(5C) (as so added).
- In a case in which Sch 2 para 33(5B) is relied on for compliance with a requirement of Sch 2 para 33(4) or Sch 2 para 33(5), a notice of a postal ballot is to be treated as sent to a person on the day when notification is given in accordance with head (4) above: Sch 2 para 33(5D) (as so added). Where, in a case in which heads (1)-(4) above are relied on for compliance with a requirement of Sch 2 para 33(4) or Sch 2 para 33(5), a notice of a postal ballot is published for a part, but not all, of the period mentioned in head (4) above, but the failure to publish it throughout that period is wholly attributable to circumstances which it would not be reasonable to have expected the society to prevent or avoid, the failure does not invalidate the postal ballot: Sch 2 para 33(5E) (as so added).
- 20 As to notice of meetings see PARA 1985.
- 21 Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 2 para 33(6) (amended by SI 2003/404). As to the appointment of proxies see PARA 1986.
- 22 See the Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 2 para 33(6A)-(6C), (7A) (added by SI 2003/404). Where the notice of a postal ballot is required by the Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 2 para 33(6) (see the text to note 21) to contain a related notice or to be accompanied by an accompanying document: (1) in a case where the notice of that ballot is given to a person electronically in accordance with Sch 2 par 33(5A) (see note 19), the related notice or accompanying document may be sent to him electronically only if it is sent to the same electronic address, and at the same time as the notice of the postal ballot; (2) in a case where notice of that ballot is given on a website in accordance with Sch 2 para 33(5C) (see note 19), the requirement to send the related notice or accompanying document to that person is also treated as satisfied if the conditions set out in Sch 2 para 33(6B) are satisfied: Sch 2 para 33(6A) (as so added).
- Those conditions are satisfied in the case of a related notice or accompanying document if: (a) the society and that member have agreed that information which is required to be sent to him may instead be accessed by him on a website; (b) the agreement applies to the related notice or accompanying document in question; (c) at the same time and in the same manner as the society notifies that person of the publication of the notice of the postal ballot, it notifies him of the publication of the related notice or accompanying document on a website, the address of that website, the place on that website where that statement or notification may be accessed, and how it may be accessed; and (d) the related notice or accompanying document is published continuously on that website throughout the period beginning with the giving of that notification in accordance with head (c) above and ending with the voting date (see PARA 1945 note 10): Sch 2 para 33(6B) (as so added).

Where notice of a postal ballot and any related notice or accompanying document is sent to a person electronically, that person may return the completed voting paper to the society either by post or electronically by sending it to an electronic address notified by the society to that person for the purpose, unless the rules of the society make provision to the contrary: Sch 2 para 33(6C) (as so added).

Where, in a case in which head (2) above is relied on for compliance with a requirement of Sch 2 para 33(6), a related notice or accompanying document is published for a part, but not all, of the period mentioned in head (d) above, but the failure to publish it throughout that period is wholly attributable to circumstances which it would not be reasonable to have expected the society to prevent or avoid, the failure does not invalidate the postal ballot: Sch 2 para 33(7A) (as so added).

28 Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 2 para 33A(2)(a) (as added: see note 27). The reference in the text is to the provisions of Sch 2 para 33A(3)-(14): see the text and notes 30-41.

29 Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 2 para 33A(2)(b) (as added: see note 27).

30 See the Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 2 para 33A(8)-(11) (as added: see note 27). The voting of a person in an electronic ballot is electronic if: (1) a person has access on a website to the notice of the electronic ballot, any document which is required to accompany the notice and a facility for registering his vote; (2) that person registers his vote by means of that facility; and (3) the conditions set out in Sch 2 para 33A(9) are satisfied: Sch 2 para 33A(8) (as so added).

Those conditions are satisfied if: (a) the society and the person have agreed that notices of electronic ballots, any document which is required to accompany the notice, and a voting facility may be accessed by him on a website; (b) that agreement applies to the electronic ballot and accompanying documents in question; (c) that person is notified, in a manner agreed for the purpose between him and the society of the publication of the notice and documents and the availability of the voting facility on a website, the address of that website, and the place on that website where the notice, any such documents, and the facility may be accessed, and how they may be accessed; and (d) the notice and each such document continues to be published and the facility continues to be available on that website throughout the period beginning with the giving of that notification and ending with the date which the society specifies as the final date for the registration of votes: Sch 2 para 33A(9) (as so added).

A notice given for the purposes of head (c) above must: (i) state that it concerns a notice of an electronic ballot given in accordance with the Building Societies Act 1986; and (ii) state whether the voting to be conducted by the electronic ballot is in an election or on a resolution or both: Sch 2 para 33A(10) (as so added).

Nothing in Sch 2 para 33A(9) (see heads (a)-(d) above) invalidates an electronic ballot where: (A) any notice or document that is required to be published, and any facility which is required to be made available, for the period mentioned in head (d) above is published or made available for a part, but not all, of that period; but (B) the failure to publish that notice or document, or make that facility available, throughout that period is wholly attributable to circumstances which it would not be reasonable to have expected the society to prevent or avoid: Sch 2 para 33A(11) (as so added).

- 41 See the Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 2 para 33A(12)-(14) (as added: see note 27). The provisions of Sch 2 para 33(3)-(7) (see the text and notes 9-23) apply, with the modification specified in Sch 2 para 33A(13), in relation to notices of an electronic ballot as they apply in relation to notices of a postal ballot: Sch 2 para 33A(12) (as so added). That modification is that Sch 2 para 33(3) (see the text to notes 9-10) has effect as if the reference to the receipt of completed ballot papers included a reference to the registration of votes by means of a voting facility on a website: Sch 2 para 33A(13) (as so added). For the purposes of Sch 2 para 33(3) (as applied to electronic ballots by Sch 2 para 33A(13)), in a case in which a person is notified for the purposes of Sch 2 para 33A(9)(c) (see note 30 head (c)), a notice of an electronic ballot is treated as given to a person on the day when notification is given in accordance with that provision: Sch 2 para 33A(14) (as so added).

MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(1) BUILDING SOCIETIES/(ii) Management, Meetings and Accounts/C. MEETINGS/(D) Right to Vote, Notices, Proxies, Polls, etc/1989. Declarations to be made in proxy and ballot forms.

1989. Declarations to be made in proxy and ballot forms.

A building society must secure that every document issued by it for use as a voting paper<sup>1</sup> and every appointment of a proxy<sup>2</sup> incorporates a form of declaration for completion by the member using it<sup>3</sup>. It is an offence if a society fails to comply with this requirement, and the society, and any officer<sup>4</sup> who is also guilty of the offence, is liable on summary conviction to a fine<sup>5</sup>.

A person making a declaration must:

- 407 (1) declare that he has attained the age of 18 years or will have attained that age on or before the voting date<sup>6</sup> or, where he is voting by proxy, on or before the date of the meeting<sup>7</sup>;
- 408 (2) where the vote is to be cast on a shareholding members' resolution<sup>8</sup>, declare:
(a) that on the voting date he is or, so far as he can reasonably foresee, will be a shareholder of the society<sup>9</sup>; and (b) where the person is not entitled to vote unless he had a qualifying shareholding<sup>10</sup> on the qualifying shareholding date<sup>11</sup>, that he had, or so far as he can reasonably foresee, will have such a shareholding on that date<sup>12</sup>;
- 409 (3) where the vote is to be cast on a borrowing members' resolution<sup>13</sup>, declare that on the voting date he is or, so far as he can reasonably foresee, will be a borrowing member<sup>14</sup> of the society<sup>15</sup>; and
- 410 (4) where the vote is to be cast on an ordinary or special resolution<sup>16</sup>, declare either as mentioned in head (2) above, or as mentioned in head (3) above, or both<sup>17</sup>.

Provision is made for the use of electronic communications in the appointment of proxies and in the conduct of ballots<sup>18</sup>.

If a member of a society who purports to exercise his right:

- 411 (i) to appoint a proxy to vote instead of him at a meeting of the society<sup>19</sup>; or
- 412 (ii) to vote in a postal or electronic ballot<sup>20</sup>; or
- 413 (iii) to vote on a poll at a meeting of the society<sup>21</sup>, fails to make a declaration in accordance with heads (1) to (4) above in the appointment or, as the case may be, on the voting paper, the appointment made or the vote cast by him is invalid<sup>22</sup>.

1 As to voting in a postal or electronic ballot see PARA 1988; and as to voting on a poll at a meeting of the building society see PARA 1987.

2 As to the appointment of proxies see PARA 1986.

13 As to the meaning of 'borrowing members' resolution' see PARA 1982.

14 As to the meaning of 'borrowing member' see PARA 1894.

15 Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 2 para 34(2)(c) (as substituted: see note 7).

16 As to the meaning of 'ordinary resolution' see PARA 1983. As to the meaning of 'special resolution' see PARA 1980.

17 Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 2 para 34(2)(d) (as substituted: see note 7).

18 See the Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 2 para 34(2A)-(2C), (3A) (added by SI 2003/404). Where an appointment of a proxy is contained in an electronic communication sent in accordance with the Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 2 para 24(1B) (see PARA 1986), the requirements of Sch 2 para 34(2) (see heads (1)-(4) in the text) are satisfied only if: (1) the appointment incorporates the terms of the declaration required by Sch 2 para 34(2) (see the text to notes 6-17); and (2) the authenticity and integrity of the appointment is established (whether by an electronic signature or otherwise) in such manner as may have been agreed between the member and the society: Sch 2 para 34(2A) (as so added). This provision refers to Sch 2 para 24(1A)(b), but it is submitted that the reference should be to Sch 2 para 24(1B). As to the meaning of 'electronic communication' see PARA 1868 note 4. 'Authenticity' and 'integrity', with reference to an electronic communication, must be construed in accordance with the Electronic Communications Act 2000 s 15(2) (see CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 11 (2009) PARA 947; TELECOMMUNICATIONS AND BROADCASTING vol 45(1) (2005 Reissue) PARA 616); Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 2 para 34(5) (definitions added by SI 2003/404). As to the meaning of 'electronic signature' see CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 11 (2009) PARA 948; definition applied by virtue of the Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 2 para 34(5) (amended by SI 2003/404).

Where a member voting in a postal ballot returns a completed voting paper electronically as mentioned in the Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 2 para 33(6C) (see PARA 1988 note 22), the requirements of Sch 2 para 34(2) are satisfied only if: (a) the voting paper incorporates the terms of the declaration required by Sch 2 para 34(2); and (b) the authenticity and integrity of the completed paper is established (whether by electronic signature or otherwise) in such manner as may have been agreed between the member and the society: Sch 2 para 34(2B) (as so added). This provision refers to Sch 2 para 33(6E)(b), but it is submitted that the reference should be to Sch 2 para 33(6C).

Where a member registers a vote on a website in accordance Sch 2 para 33A(8)(b) (see PARA 1988 note 30 head (2)), the requirements of Sch 2 para 34(2) are satisfied only if: (i) at the place on the website where the voting facility is accessed, the member has confirmed the terms of the declaration specified by Sch 2 para 34(2); and (ii) the authenticity and integrity of the member's vote is established (whether by electronic signature or otherwise) in such a manner as may have been agreed between the member and the society: Sch 2 para 34(2C) (as so added).

A building society must ensure that: (A) every voting paper sent by it to a member by means of an electronic communication incorporates a declaration in accordance with Sch 2 para 34(2); and (B) every voting facility provided by it on a website is accompanied by such a declaration, for completion or confirmation by the member purporting to exercise his right to vote: Sch 2 para 34(3A) (as so added). MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(1) BUILDING SOCIETIES/(ii) Management, Meetings and Accounts/C. MEETINGS/(D) Right to Vote, Notices, Proxies, Polls, etc/1990. Right to propose and circulate resolutions.

1990. Right to propose and circulate resolutions.

The rules of a building society must provide for the right of members<sup>1</sup> to move resolutions at a meeting<sup>2</sup>. If at least the requisite number<sup>3</sup> of qualified members<sup>4</sup> of a society give notice to the society of their intention to have moved on their behalf a resolution, other than a shareholding members' resolution<sup>5</sup> or a borrowing members' resolution<sup>6</sup>, specified in the notice at an annual general meeting<sup>7</sup> of the society, the society must<sup>8</sup>:

414 (1) include in the notice of the annual general meeting a notice specifying the intention to have the resolution moved on their behalf at the meeting and, where applicable, the intention to move it as a special resolution<sup>9</sup>; and

415 (2) at the request of the members intending to have the resolution moved on their behalf, send to each member entitled to receive notice of the meeting a copy of any statement of not more than 500 words with respect to the matter referred to in the resolution<sup>10</sup>.

It is an offence if a society fails to comply with this requirement where notice is duly given, and the society, and any officer<sup>11</sup> who is also guilty of the offence, is liable on summary conviction to a fine<sup>12</sup>.

This obligation is subject to the following exceptions. The society is not required to send notices of a resolution or copies of a statement to members in any case where<sup>13</sup>: (a) publicity for the resolution or, as the case may be, the statement would be likely to diminish substantially the confidence in the society of investing members of the public<sup>14</sup>; or (b) the rights conferred are being abused to seek needless publicity for defamatory matter or for frivolous or vexatious purposes<sup>15</sup>, and the obligation does not confer any rights on members or impose any duties on a society in respect of a resolution or statement which does not relate directly to the affairs of the society<sup>16</sup>. The Financial Services Authority<sup>17</sup> must hear and determine any dispute arising under head (a) above, whether on the application of the society or of any other person who claims to be aggrieved<sup>18</sup>. If the rules of a society so provide, the obligation does not require notice of a resolution to be given to members of the society if the resolution is in substantially the same terms as any resolution which has been defeated at a meeting or on a postal or electronic ballot<sup>19</sup> during the period beginning with the third annual general meeting before the date on which notice of the resolution is given to the society<sup>20</sup>. A society is not obliged to send copies of a statement with respect to a resolution if, as a result of the exceptions, it is not obliged to give notice of the resolution<sup>21</sup>.

Notice of a members' resolution<sup>22</sup> must be given to the society not later than the last day of the financial year<sup>23</sup> preceding the financial year in which is held the annual general meeting at which it is intended to move the resolution, and any statement to be sent to members under head (2) above must also be notified to the society not later than that day<sup>24</sup>. The society must send to members the notices of a resolution and the copies of the statement in the same manner and (so far as practicable) at the same time as the notice of the annual general meeting at which the resolution is intended to be moved and, where it is not practicable for them to be sent at the same time as the notice, they must be sent as soon as practicable thereafter<sup>25</sup>. Provision is made for the electronic transmission of notices and statements in connection with a member's resolution<sup>26</sup>. The accidental omission to send a notice or copy of a statement to a person entitled to receive one, or the non-receipt of a notice or copy by such a person, does not invalidate the proceedings at a meeting<sup>27</sup>.

1 As to membership see PARA 1888 et seq.

2 See the Building Societies Act 1986 s 5(8), Sch 2 para 3(1), (4), Table item 13(b); and PARAS 1883, 1975. As to resolutions generally see PARA 1980 et seq.

3 The 'requisite number' (1) in the case of a society in relation to which the difference between its total assets as shown in the accounts last prepared by it under the Building Societies Act 1986 s 72A or s 72E (see PARA 1992) immediately before the date on which the members gave notice to the society under Sch 2 para 31(1) and the aggregate of (a) the liquid assets of the society as shown in those accounts in pursuance of regulations under s 72C or s 72G (see PARA 1993) or in accordance with international accounting standards, as appropriate; and (b) the fixed assets of the society as so shown, exceeds £100 million, is 500 or such lesser number as is specified for the purpose in the rules of the society; and (2) in the case of any other society, is 100 or such lesser number as is specified for the purpose in the rules of the society: Sch 2 para 31(2)(a) (amended by SI 1997/2840; SI 1999/3033; and SI 2004/3380). As to the meaning of 'notice' see PARA 1866 note 8. As to the accounts see PARA 1991 et seq. As to the meaning of 'international accounting standards' see PARA 1992 note 4. As to the meanings of 'liquid assets' and 'fixed assets' in the case of societies which produce IAS individual accounts or IAS group accounts see PARA 2008 notes 8, 9; definition applied by virtue of the Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 2 para 31(9) (added by SI 2004/3380). As to IAS individual accounts and IAS group accounts see PARA 1992.

The Treasury may by order vary the definition of 'requisite number' in the Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 2 para 31(2) whether by the addition of any description or other provision or by the substitution or deletion of any definition, description or other provision for the time being specified or contained in Sch 2 para 31: Sch 2 para 32(4) (amended by SI 2001/2617). Such an order must be made by statutory instrument subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament (Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 2 para 32(5)), and may contain transitional, consequential or supplementary provision (Sch 2 para 32(6)). For the orders which have been made under Sch 2 para 32(4) see the Building Societies (Members' Resolutions) Order 1997, SI 1997/2840; and the Building Societies (Members' Resolutions) Order 1999, SI 1999/3033. As to the Treasury see PARA 3; and CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 512 et seq.

4 Every member of a society is a 'qualified member' unless the rules make other provision for the purpose which is not rendered void under the Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 2 para 31(3): Sch 2 para 31(2)(b). Any provision contained in the rules of a society is void to the extent that it would have the effect, for the purposes of Sch 2 para 31(1), of requiring a qualified member: (1) to have been a member for more than two years ending with the qualifying date; or (2) if he claims eligibility as a shareholding member, to hold, or to have held at any time, shares in the society to a value greater than the prescribed amount in force on the qualifying date; or (3) if he claims eligibility as a borrowing member, to owe to the society, or to have owed to the society at any time, a mortgage debt of an amount greater than the prescribed amount in force on the qualifying date: Sch 2 para 31(3) (amended by 1997/2840). See note 3. For this purpose the qualifying date is the date on which the notice is given to the society under the Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 2 para 31(1): Sch 2 para 31(3). As to the meanings of 'shareholding member' and 'borrowing member' see PARA 1894. As to the meaning of 'mortgage debt' see PARA 1946 note 6. As to shares in relation to societies see PARA 1905 et seq. As to the prescribed amount see PARA 1978 note 13.

The Treasury may by order vary: (a) the definition of 'qualified member' in Sch 2 para 31(2); or (b) the descriptions of provisions which are rendered void by Sch 2 para 31(3), whether by the addition of any description or other provision or by the substitution or deletion of any definition, description or other provision for the time being specified or contained in Sch 2 para 31: Sch 2 para 32(4) (as amended: see note 3). For an order which has been made under Sch 2 para 32(4) see the Building Societies (Members' Resolutions) Order 1997, SI 1997/2840.

5 As to the meaning of 'shareholding members' resolution' see PARA 1981.

6 As to the meaning of 'borrowing members' resolution' see PARA 1982.

7 As to annual general meetings see PARA 1977.

26 See the Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 2 para 32(2A)-(2D), (3A) (added by SI 2003/404).

The Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 2 para 32(2B) applies where, in a case in which a society gives notice in accordance with Sch 2 para 22A or Sch 2 para 22B (see PARA 1985) of the annual general meeting at which a resolution is intended to be moved, the notice of the resolution and the copy of a statement in respect of the resolution that are required to be sent to a member under Sch 2 para 31(1)(a) or Sch 2 para 31(1)(b) (see heads (1)-(2) in the text) are not transmitted or published at the same time as the notice: Sch 2 para 32(2A) (as so added).

The requirement of Sch 2 para 32(2) (see the text to note 25) to send a member his notice of the resolution and his copy of a statement in the same manner as the notice of the annual general meeting is satisfied if: (1) a notice of the resolution and a copy of the statement are made available to the member in the same way as the notice; or (2) such a notice and such a copy (without being made available to the member in that way) are sent to the member in a manner set out by the society for the purpose in the notice: Sch 2 para 32(2B) (as so added). Where a notice of a resolution and copy of a statement are sent to a member electronically under Sch 2 para 32(2B), they must be sent to an electronic address notified by the member for the purpose: Sch 2 para 32(2C) (as so added). As to the meaning of 'electronic address' see PARA 1883 note 24.

The requirements of Sch 2 para 32(2) or of head (1) above are satisfied by the publication of a notice of the resolution and a copy of the statement on a website only if: (a) the notice of the annual general meeting at which the resolution is intended to be moved is a notice given to that member by being published on a website; (b) an agreement between the society and the member to his accessing information on a website applies to the notice of a resolution and copy of a statement for the meeting in question; (c) the member is notified, in a manner agreed between the society and the member, of the publication of the notice of a resolution and copy of a statement on a website, the address of that website, the place on that website where the notice and copy may be accessed, and how they may be accessed; (d) the notification for the purposes of head (c) above is given no later than the day after the date on which the notice of a resolution and the copy of a statement are first capable of being accessed on the notified website; (e) that date was the same as the date on which the notice of the annual general meeting was first capable of being accessed on a website or (in a case to which head (1) above applies) was as soon as practicable after that date; (f) the notice of a resolution and copy of a statement are continuously published on the notified website for a period beginning (so far as practicable) at the same time as the notices and statements are sent to members in accordance with Sch 2 para 32(2), and ending with the conclusion of the annual general meeting at which the resolution is moved: Sch 2 para 32(2D) (as so added).

Where, in a case in which Sch 2 para 32(2D) is relied on for compliance with a requirement of Sch 2 para 32(2) or of head (1) above, a notice or copy published for a part, but not all, of the period mentioned in head (f) above, but the failure to publish it throughout that period is wholly attributable to circumstances which it would not be reasonable to have expected the society to prevent or avoid, the failure does not invalidate the proceedings at the meeting: Sch 2 para 32(3A) (as so added).

D. ACCOUNTS

1991. Accounting records.

Accounting records must be kept for every building society<sup>1</sup>. The accounting records of a society must be kept in an orderly manner and must be such as to<sup>2</sup>:

- 416 (1) explain its transactions<sup>3</sup>;
- 417 (2) disclose, with reasonable accuracy and promptness, the state of the business of the society at any time<sup>4</sup>;
- 418 (3) enable the directors properly to discharge the duties imposed on them by or under the Building Societies Act 1986 (and, where applicable, European legislation on international accounting standards<sup>5</sup>) and their functions of direction of the affairs of the society<sup>6</sup>; and

- 419 (4) enable the society properly to discharge the duties imposed on it by or under the Building Societies Act 1986 (and, where applicable, European legislation on international accounting standards)<sup>7</sup>.

In particular the accounting records must contain<sup>8</sup>:

- 420 (a) entries from day to day of all sums received and paid by the society and the matters in respect of which they are received or paid<sup>9</sup>;
- 421 (b) entries from day to day of every transaction entered into by the society which will, or there is a reasonable ground for expecting may, give rise to liabilities or assets of the society other than insignificant assets or liabilities in respect of the management of the society<sup>10</sup>; and
- 422 (c) a record of the assets and liabilities of the society and in particular of assets and liabilities of any class specifically regulated by or under the lending and funding limit provisions of the Building Societies Act 1986<sup>11</sup>.

The accounting records must be kept at the society's principal office<sup>12</sup> or at such other place or places as the directors think fit and must be open to inspection by the directors at all times<sup>13</sup>. Accounting records must be preserved for six years from the date on which they were made<sup>14</sup>. Where the records to be kept by a society are not kept by making entries in a bound book, but by some other means, adequate precautions must be taken for guarding against falsification and facilitating their discovery<sup>15</sup>.

Where a society has connected undertakings<sup>16</sup>, the society must also secure that such accounting records are kept by the society and the connected undertakings as will enable the society to comply with these requirements in relation to the business of the society and the connected undertakings<sup>17</sup>.

MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(1) BUILDING SOCIETIES/(ii) Management, Meetings and Accounts/D. ACCOUNTS/1992. Duty to prepare annual accounts.

1992. Duty to prepare annual accounts.

The directors of every building society<sup>1</sup> must prepare accounts for the society for each of its financial years ('individual accounts')<sup>2</sup>. A society's individual accounts may be prepared either in accordance with the relevant domestic statutory provisions<sup>3</sup> ('Building Societies Act individual accounts') or in accordance with international accounting standards ('IAS individual accounts')<sup>4</sup>. After the first financial year in which the directors of a building society prepare IAS individual accounts (the 'first IAS year'), all subsequent individual accounts of the society must be prepared in accordance with international accounting standards unless there is a relevant change of circumstance<sup>5</sup>. There is a relevant change of circumstance if, at any time during or after the first IAS year, the society ceases to have any securities admitted to trading on a regulated market<sup>6</sup>. Where the directors of a building society prepare IAS individual accounts, they must state in the notes to those accounts that the accounts have been prepared in accordance with international accounting standards<sup>7</sup>.

If at the end of a financial year a building society has subsidiary undertakings, the directors, as well as preparing individual accounts for the year, must prepare group accounts for the year for the society and those undertakings taken as a whole ('group accounts')<sup>8</sup>. The group accounts of certain societies are required<sup>9</sup> to be prepared in accordance with international accounting standards ('IAS group accounts')<sup>10</sup>. Subject to the following provisions, the group accounts of other societies may be prepared in accordance with the relevant domestic statutory provisions<sup>11</sup> ('Building Societies Act group accounts') or in accordance with international accounting standards ('IAS group accounts')<sup>12</sup>. After the first financial year in which the directors of a building society prepare IAS group accounts (the 'first IAS year'), all subsequent group accounts of the society must be prepared in accordance with international accounting standards unless there is a relevant change of circumstance<sup>13</sup>. There is a relevant change of circumstance if, at any time during or after the first IAS year, the society ceases to have any securities admitted to trading on a regulated market<sup>14</sup>. Where the directors of a building society prepare IAS group accounts, they must state in the notes to those accounts that the accounts have been prepared in accordance with international accounting standards<sup>15</sup>.

The directors of a building society that prepares group accounts must secure that the individual accounts of (1) the building society; and (2) each of its subsidiary undertakings, are all prepared using the same financial reporting framework, except to the extent that in their opinion there are good reasons for not doing so<sup>16</sup>. This provision applies only to accounts of subsidiary undertakings which are required to be prepared<sup>17</sup>. The provision does not require accounts of undertakings that are charities to be prepared using the same financial reporting framework as accounts of undertakings which are not charities<sup>18</sup>. Head (1) above does not apply where the directors of a building society prepare IAS group accounts and IAS individual accounts<sup>19</sup>. The directors of a society which has subsidiary undertakings must secure that, except where in their opinion there are good reasons against it, the financial year of each of its subsidiary undertakings coincides with the society's own financial year<sup>20</sup>.

1 As to the office of director see PARAS 1944-1963.

2 Building Societies Act 1986 s 72A(1) (ss 72A, 72D, 72E, 72H, 72I added by SI 2004/3380). See also PARA 1993.

The financial year of building societies established after 25 August 1894 is the period of 12 months ending with 31 December: Building Societies Act 1986 ss 117(1), 119(1). The initial financial year of a society is such period as expires with the end of the calendar year in which it is established and the final financial year of a society is such shorter period than 12 months as expires with the date as at which the society makes up its final accounts: ss 117(2), 119(1).

In the case of a society established before 25 August 1894:

24 (1) if (a) before 1 October 1962 the society had altered its financial year in exercise of the power conferred by the Building Societies Act 1960 s 70(2) (now repealed); or (b) after that date and before 1 January 1987 (ie the commencement date for the Building Societies Act 1986 s 117), the society has exercised the corresponding power conferred by the Building Societies Act 1962 s 128(2) (now repealed), 'financial year', after the date on which the society exercised the power, has the meaning given in the Building Societies Act 1986 s 117 and (so far as may be relevant for the purposes of the Building Societies Act 1986) includes the period for which the society made up its accounts in the exercise of the power (s 120(4), Sch 20 paras 1, 16(a); Building Societies Act 1986 (Commencement No 1) Order 1986, SI 1986/1560, art 3, Sch 2); and

25 (2) subject to head (1) above, 'financial year' means a period of 12 months ending with the time up to which, at 1 January 1987, the accounts of the society were annually made up (Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 20 paras 1, 16(b); Building Societies Act 1986 (Commencement No 1) Order 1986, SI 1986/1560, Sch 2).

A society whose financial year does not, by virtue of the saving provisions of the Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 20, end with 31 December may alter its financial year by making up its accounts for one period of more than 6 months, and not more than 18 months, ending with 31 December; and in relation to a society exercising the power conferred by s 117(3), references in the Building Societies Act 1986 to a financial year of the society include references to that period: ss 117(3), 119(1).

3 The provisions referred to are those in the Building Societies Act 1986 s 72B: see PARA 1993.

4 Building Societies Act 1986 s 72A(2) (as added: see note 2). This is subject to s 72A(3)-(5) (see the text to notes 5-6) and s 72I (see the text to notes 16-20): see s 72A(2) (as so added). 'International accounting standards' means the international accounting standards, within the meaning of European Parliament and Council Regulation 1606/2002 (OJ L243, 11.9.2002, p 1) on the application of international accounting standards, adopted from time to time by the European Commission in accordance with the Regulation: Building Societies Act 1986 s 81B(1) (s 81B added by SI 2004/3380).

5 Building Societies Act 1986 s 72A(3) (as added: see note 2).

6 Building Societies Act 1986 s 72A(4) (as added: see note 2). 'Regulated market' has the meaning given in the Markets in Financial Instruments Directive (ie European Parliament and Council Directive 2004/39 (OJ L145, 30.4.2004, p 1) on markets in financial instruments) art 4.1.14: Building Societies Act 1986 s 81B(1) (definition substituted by SI 2007/126). If, having changed to preparing Building Societies Act individual accounts following a relevant change of circumstance, the directors again prepare IAS individual accounts for the society, the provisions of the Building Societies Act 1986 s 72A(3), (4) apply again as if the first financial year for which such accounts are again prepared were the first IAS year: s 72A(5) (as so added).

MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(1) BUILDING SOCIETIES/(ii) Management, Meetings and Accounts/D. ACCOUNTS/1993. Content and form of annual accounts.

1993. Content and form of annual accounts.

Building Societies Act individual accounts<sup>1</sup> must comprise a balance sheet as at the last day of the financial year, and an income and expenditure account<sup>2</sup>. The balance sheet must give a true and fair view<sup>3</sup> of the state of affairs of the society as at the end of the financial year; and the income and expenditure account must give a true and fair view of the income and expenditure of the society for the financial year<sup>4</sup>. Building Societies Act individual accounts must comply with the requirements of regulations<sup>5</sup> as to the form and content of the balance sheet and income and expenditure account and additional information to be provided by way of notes to the accounts or otherwise<sup>6</sup>. Where compliance with the provisions of those regulations, and the other requirements<sup>7</sup> as to the matters to be included in a society's individual accounts or in notes to those accounts, would not be sufficient to give a true and fair view, the necessary additional information must be given in the accounts or in a note to them<sup>8</sup>. If in special circumstances compliance with any of those provisions is inconsistent with the requirement to give a true and fair view, the directors must depart from that provision to the extent necessary to give a true and fair view<sup>9</sup>. Particulars of any such departure, the reasons for it and its effect must be given in a note to the accounts<sup>10</sup>.

The Treasury<sup>11</sup> may by regulations<sup>12</sup>: (1) add to the classes of documents to be comprised in a society's Building Societies Act individual accounts<sup>13</sup>; (2) make provision as to the matters to be included in any document so added<sup>14</sup>; (3) modify the requirements<sup>15</sup> as to the matters to be stated in any document comprised in the society's Building Societies Act individual accounts<sup>16</sup>; and (4) reduce the classes of documents to be comprised in a society's Building Societies Act individual accounts<sup>17</sup>. The Treasury must by regulations make provision with respect to the form and contents of Building Societies Act individual accounts<sup>18</sup>. The Treasury may by regulations make provision with respect to additional information to be contained in Building Societies Act individual accounts, whether in the form of notes or otherwise<sup>19</sup>.

Building Societies Act group accounts<sup>20</sup> must comprise a balance sheet dealing with the state of affairs of the building society and its subsidiary undertakings and an income and expenditure account showing the income and expenditure for the society and its subsidiary undertakings<sup>21</sup>. Building Societies Act group accounts must give a true and fair view of the state of affairs as at the end of the financial year, and the income and expenditure for the financial year of the society and the subsidiary undertakings included in the group accounts as a whole, so far as concerns members of the society<sup>22</sup>. Building Societies Act group accounts must comply with the requirements of regulations<sup>23</sup> as to the form and content of the group accounts and additional information to be provided by way of notes to the accounts or otherwise<sup>24</sup>. Where compliance with the provisions of those regulations, and the other provisions<sup>25</sup> as to the matters to be included in a society's group accounts or in notes to those accounts, would not be sufficient to give a true and fair view, the necessary additional information must be given in the accounts or in a note to them<sup>26</sup>. If in special circumstances compliance with any of those provisions is inconsistent with the requirement to give a true and fair view, the directors must depart from that provision to the extent necessary to give a true and fair view<sup>27</sup>. Particulars of any such departure, the reasons for it and its effect must be given in a note to the accounts<sup>28</sup>.

The Treasury may by regulations<sup>29</sup>: (a) add to the classes of documents to be comprised in a society's Building Societies Act group accounts<sup>30</sup>; (b) make provision as to the matters to be included in any document so added<sup>31</sup>; (c) modify the requirements<sup>32</sup> as to the matters to be stated in any document comprised in the society's Building Societies Act group accounts<sup>33</sup>; and (d) reduce the classes of documents to be comprised in a society's Building Societies Act group accounts<sup>34</sup>. The Treasury must by regulations make provision with respect to the form and contents of Building Societies Act group accounts<sup>35</sup>. The Treasury may by regulations make provision with respect to additional information to be contained in Building Societies Act group accounts, whether in the form of notes or otherwise<sup>36</sup>.

Certain information relating to emoluments and other benefits of directors and others, to loans and other dealings in favour of directors and connected persons<sup>37</sup>, and to information about the employees of a society<sup>38</sup> must be given in notes to a building society's annual accounts<sup>39</sup>. It is the duty of any director<sup>40</sup> of a society, and any person who is or has at any time in the preceding five years been an officer of the society, to give notice to the society of such matters relating to himself as may be necessary for the purposes of the disclosures relating to emoluments of and dealings with directors and other officers<sup>41</sup>. A person who makes default in complying with that duty commits an offence and is liable on summary conviction to a fine<sup>42</sup>. Certain information concerning related undertakings<sup>43</sup> must be given in notes to a building society's annual accounts<sup>44</sup>.

The directors of a building society<sup>1</sup> must, by reference to the annual accounts<sup>2</sup> and other records and information at their disposal, prepare with respect to each financial year of the society<sup>3</sup> a statement, referred to as the annual business statement, relating to the prescribed aspects<sup>4</sup> of the business of the society during the year<sup>5</sup>. Any director who fails to comply with this requirement is liable on conviction on indictment or on summary conviction to a fine<sup>6</sup>. If the society has connected undertakings<sup>7</sup> the annual business statement must also deal with prescribed aspects of their business during the year to which it relates<sup>8</sup>. The annual business statement must contain such information relating to such aspects of the business of the society and must be in such form as the Treasury<sup>9</sup> prescribes by regulations<sup>10</sup>. The regulations may require the annual business statement to include prescribed information about directors and past directors and persons connected with them and other officers<sup>11</sup> and past officers and persons connected with them and their financial interests<sup>12</sup>. The information comprising the annual business statement must give a true representation of the matters in respect of which it is given<sup>13</sup>. The regulations may prescribe that certain matters contained in the annual business statement need not be the subject of report by the society's auditors<sup>14</sup>.

Every director or other officer of a society is under a duty to give notice<sup>15</sup> to the society of such matters relating to himself or his financial interests as may be necessary for the purposes of compliance with these provisions<sup>16</sup>. Any person who fails to comply with this requirement is liable on summary conviction to a fine<sup>17</sup>.

1994 Duty to prepare annual business statement

TEXT AND NOTE 14--Building Societies Act 1986 s 74(6) amended: SI 2008/1519.

Halsbury's Laws of England/FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS (VOLUME 48 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-589; VOLUME 49 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 590-1619; VOLUME 50 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1620-2586)/8. MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(1) BUILDING SOCIETIES/(ii) Management, Meetings and Accounts/D. ACCOUNTS/1995. Duty to prepare a directors' report.

1995. Duty to prepare a directors' report.

The directors of a building society<sup>1</sup> must prepare for submission to the annual general meeting<sup>2</sup> a report on the business of the society containing<sup>3</sup>:

- 423 (1) a fair review of the business of the society and its connected undertakings<sup>4</sup> (if any), complying with the relevant provisions<sup>5</sup>;
- 424 (2) a description of the principal risks and uncertainties facing the society and its connected undertakings (if any)<sup>6</sup>;

- 425 (3) such information relating to such aspects of the business of the society or of the society and any connected undertakings as may be prescribed by regulations made by the Treasury<sup>7</sup>; and
- 426 (4) a statement containing details of various matters<sup>8</sup>.

If the society has subsidiary undertakings, the report may, where appropriate, give greater emphasis to those matters which are significant to the society and its subsidiary undertakings taken as a whole<sup>9</sup>. If a directors' report does not contain the review, information and statement required under heads (1) to (4) above<sup>10</sup>, each director is liable on conviction on indictment or on summary conviction to a fine<sup>11</sup>.

1 As to the office of director see PARAS 1944-1963.

2 As to annual general meetings see PARA 1977.

3 Building Societies Act 1986 s 75(1).

4 As to the meaning of 'connected undertaking' see PARA 1991 note 16.

5 Building Societies Act 1986 s 75(1)(a) (s 75(1)(a) substituted, and s 75(1)(aa) added, by SI 2004/3380).

The provisions referred to in the text are those of the Building Societies Act 1986 s 75A. The review required for the purposes of s 75(1) is a balanced and comprehensive analysis of: (1) the development and performance of the business of the building society and its connected undertakings (if any) during the financial year; and (2) the position of the building society and its connected undertakings (if any) at the end of that year, consistent with the size and complexity of the business: s 75A(1) (s 75A added by SI 2004/3380). As to the meaning of 'financial year' see PARA 1992 note 2. The review must, to the extent necessary for an understanding of the development, performance or position of the business of the society and its connected undertakings (if any), include: (a) analysis using financial key performance indicators; and (b) where appropriate, analysis using other key performance indicators, including information relating to environmental matters and employee matters: Building Societies Act 1986 s 75A(2) (as so added). 'Key performance indicators' means factors by reference to which the development, performance or position of the business of the society and any connected undertakings it has can be measured most effectively: s 75A(4) (as so added). The review must, where appropriate, include references to and additional explanations of amounts included in the annual accounts of the society: s 75A(3) (as so added). As to the annual accounts of the society see PARAS 1992-1993.

6 Building Societies Act 1986 s 75(1)(aa) (as added: see note 5).

7 Building Societies Act 1986 s 75(1)(b) (amended by the Building Societies Act 1997 Sch 7 para 32(1)(a); and SI 2001/2617). The power to make such regulations is exercisable by statutory instrument which is subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament: Building Societies Act 1986 s 75(3). For the prescribed information see the Building Societies (Accounts and Related Provisions) Regulations 1998, SI 1998/504, reg 8, Sch 8 (amended by SI 2004/3199; SI 2005/2114; SI 2007/859). As to the Treasury see PARA 3; and CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 512 et seq.

8 Building Societies Act 1986 s 75(1)(c) (substituted by the Building Societies Act 1997 Sch 7 para 32(1)(b)). The matters are: (1) whether the society has acquired or established, or allowed a subsidiary undertaking to acquire or establish, a business to which the Building Societies Act 1986 s 92A(3), (4) (see PARA 2041) or, as the case may be, s 92A(5) (see PARA 2041) applied; (2) if the society has acquired or established, or allowed such an undertaking to acquire or establish, such a business, what the business is and whether the society complied with the requirements of s 92A(1) (see PARA 2041); and (3) if the society did not comply with those requirements, why the society nevertheless proceeded, or allowed the undertaking to proceed, with the acquisition or establishment: s 75(1A) (added by the Building Societies Act 1997 Sch 7 para 32(2)). As to the meaning of 'subsidiary undertaking' see PARA 1916 note 9.

9 Building Societies Act 1986 s 75(1B) (added by SI 2004/3380).

10 The Building Societies Act 1986 s 75(4) also refers to the review required for connected undertakings under s 75(2), where applicable, but this provision has been repealed.

11 Building Societies Act 1986 s 75(4) (amended by the Building Societies Act 1997 Sch 7 para 32(4)). The fine must not exceed, on summary conviction, the statutory maximum: Building Societies Act 1986 s 75(4). As to the statutory maximum see PARA 56 note 24.

UPDATE*1995 Duty to prepare a directors' report

NOTE 7--SI 1998/504 Sch 8 amended: SI 2009/1391.

Halsbury's Laws of England/FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS (VOLUME 48 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-589; VOLUME 49 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 590-1619; VOLUME 50 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1620-2586)/8. MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(1) BUILDING SOCIETIES/(ii) Management, Meetings and Accounts/D. ACCOUNTS/1996. Duty to prepare a summary financial statement for members and depositors.

1996. Duty to prepare a summary financial statement for members and depositors.

With respect to each financial year<sup>1</sup>, the directors of a building society<sup>2</sup> must prepare for members<sup>3</sup> and depositors a summary financial statement for that year, which is a statement derived from the annual accounts<sup>4</sup>, annual business statement<sup>5</sup> and directors' report<sup>6</sup>, giving a summary account of the society's financial development during and financial position at the end of the year<sup>7</sup>. If the society has connected undertakings<sup>8</sup> the statement must (so far as they are dealt with in the group accounts<sup>9</sup>) give an account of the financial development and position of the society and its connected undertakings<sup>10</sup>. The Treasury<sup>11</sup> may by regulations make provision with respect to the form of the summary financial statement and the information which must be included in it<sup>12</sup>. The summary financial statement must also include in the prescribed form statements to the effect that<sup>13</sup>:

- 427 (1) it is only a summary of information in the accounts, business statement and directors' report<sup>14</sup>;
- 428 (2) in so far as it summarises the information in the accounts, those accounts have been audited<sup>15</sup>;
- 429 (3) the accounts, business statement and directors' report will be available to members and depositors free of charge on demand at every office of the society after a specified date<sup>16</sup>.

The summary financial statement must include a statement of the auditors'<sup>17</sup> opinion as to its consistency with the accounts, business statement and directors' report and its conformity with the statutory requirements and regulations<sup>18</sup>. The summary financial statement must be signed by two directors on behalf of the board of directors and by the chief executive of the society<sup>19</sup>.

A copy of the summary financial statement (and if the auditors' report includes a qualification of their opinion that the annual accounts give a true and fair view<sup>20</sup>, a copy also of the auditors' report) must be sent by the society, not later than 21 days before the date of the annual general meeting<sup>21</sup> at which the accounts and reports are to be considered, to every member of the society who is entitled to receive notice<sup>22</sup> of the meeting and two copies must be sent to the Financial Services Authority<sup>23</sup>. Provision is made for a copy to be sent to a member electronically<sup>24</sup>. It is an offence if a society fails to comply with the above requirements, and the society, and any officer<sup>25</sup> who is also guilty of the offence, is liable on summary conviction to a fine<sup>26</sup>, and, in the case of a continuing offence, to an additional fine<sup>27</sup> for every day during which the offence continues<sup>28</sup>.

The Authority must keep one of the copies of the summary financial statement in the public file of the society<sup>29</sup>.

A copy of the summary financial statement (and if the auditors' report includes a qualification of their opinion that the annual accounts give a true and fair view<sup>30</sup>, a copy also of the auditors' report) must be given or sent by the society free of charge at any time before the publication of the next summary financial statement to<sup>31</sup>: (a) any individual who for the first time subscribes for shares<sup>32</sup> in the society, on his first subscribing for the shares<sup>33</sup>; and (b) any member of the society who was not sent a copy<sup>34</sup>, within seven days of his making a demand for a copy<sup>35</sup>. Provision is made for a copy to be sent to an individual or a member electronically<sup>36</sup>. It is an offence if a society fails to comply with the above requirements, and the society, and any officer who is also guilty of the offence, is liable on summary conviction to a fine<sup>37</sup>, and, in the case of a continuing offence, to an additional fine<sup>38</sup> for every day during which the offence continues<sup>39</sup>.

Where a copy of the summary financial statement or of the auditors' report is required to be sent to a member under the Building Societies Act 1986 s 76(8) (see the text to notes 20-23): (1) it may be sent to him electronically only if it is sent to an electronic address notified to the society by the member for the purpose; but (2) the requirement to send it is also treated as satisfied if the conditions set out in s 76(8C) are satisfied: s 76(8B) (as so added). As to the meaning of 'electronic address' see PARA 1883 note 24.

The conditions mentioned in head (2) above are satisfied in the case of a copy of a summary financial statement or auditors' report if: (a) the society and the member have agreed that information that is required to be sent to him may instead be accessed by him on a website; (b) the agreement applies to the summary financial statement or auditors' report in question; (c) the member is notified, in a manner agreed between him and the society, of the publication of the summary financial statement and (where applicable) the auditors' report on a website, the address of that website, and the place on that website where the statement and (where applicable) the report may be accessed, and how it may be accessed; (d) the notification given for the purposes of head (c) above is given not less than 21 days before the date of the annual general meeting at which the accounts and reports are to be considered; and (e) a copy of the statement and (where applicable) the report is published on the website throughout a period beginning at least 21 days before the date of meeting: s 76(8C) (as so added).

Where, in a case in which s 76(8C) is relied on for compliance with a requirement of s 76(8), a copy of a summary financial statement or auditors' report is published for a part, but not all, of the period mentioned in head (e) above, and the failure to publish it throughout that period is wholly attributable to circumstances which it would not be reasonable to have expected the society or the officer to prevent or avoid, the failure does not invalidate the proceedings of the meeting at which the accounts and reports are considered, and no offence is committed under s 76(10) (see the text to notes 25-28) by reason of that failure: s 76(8D) (as so added).

25 As to the meaning of 'officer' see PARA 1944.

26 Is not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale: Building Societies Act 1986 s 76(10)(a). As to the standard scale see PARA 27 note 21. See note 24.

32 As to shares in relation to societies see PARA 1905 et seq.

33 Building Societies Act 1986 s 76(9)(a) (substituted by the Building Societies Act 1997 Sch 7 para 33(2)).

34 Is under the Building Societies Act 1986 s 76(8): see the text to notes 20-23.

35 Building Societies Act 1986 s 76(9)(b) (amended by SI 2003/404).

36 See the Building Societies Act 1986 s 76(9A)-(9E) (added by SI 2003/404). Where a copy of the summary financial statement or of the auditors' report is required under the Building Societies Act 1986 s 76(9)(a) (see the text to notes 30-33) to be sent to an individual who for the first time subscribes for shares in the society (a 'new subscriber'): (1) it may be sent to him electronically only if it is sent to an electronic address notified to the society by that new subscriber for the purpose before or at the time when he subscribes for the shares; but (2) the requirement to send it is also treated as satisfied if the conditions set out in s 76(9B) are satisfied: s 76(9A) (as so added).

The conditions mentioned in head (2) above are satisfied in the case of a copy of a summary financial statement or of an auditors' report if: (a) before or at the time when he subscribes for the shares, the society and the new subscriber have agreed that information that is required to be sent to him may instead be accessed by him on a website; (b) the agreement applies to the summary financial statement or to the auditors' report in question; (c) before or at the time when he subscribes for the shares, the new subscriber is notified, in a manner agreed between him and the society, of the publication of the summary financial statement or auditors' report on a website, the address of that website, and the place on that website where that statement or that report may be accessed, and how it may be accessed; and (d) a copy of the summary financial statement or of the auditors' report is published on that website throughout a period beginning on the date on which the new subscriber is notified in accordance with head (c) above and ending no later than the date of the publication of the next summary financial statement: s 76(9B) (as so added).

Where a copy of the summary financial statement or of the auditors' report is required to be sent to a member under s 76(9)(b) (see the text to notes 34-35): (i) it may be sent to him electronically only if it is sent to an electronic address notified to the society by that member for the purpose; but (ii) the requirement to send it is also treated as satisfied if the conditions set out in s 76(9D) are satisfied: s 76(9C) (as so added).

The conditions mentioned in head (ii) above are satisfied in the case of a copy of a summary financial statement or of an auditors' report if: (A) the society and that member have agreed that information that is required to be sent to him may instead be accessed by him on a website; (B) the agreement applies to the summary financial statement or auditors' report in question; (C) within the seven days specified in s 76(9)(b), the member is notified, in a manner agreed between him and the society, of the publication of the summary financial statement or auditors' report on a website, the address of that website, and the place on that website where the statement or report may be accessed, and how it may be accessed; and (D) a copy of the summary financial statement or of the auditors' report is published on that website throughout a period beginning on the date on which the member is notified in accordance with head (c) above and ending no earlier than the date of the publication of the next summary financial statement: s 76(9D) (as so added).

Where, in a case in which head (2) above or head (ii) above is relied on for compliance with a requirement under s 76(9), a copy of a summary financial statement or auditors' report is published for a part, but not all, of the period mentioned in head (d) or head (D) above (as the case may be), but the failure to publish that copy of a statement or report throughout that period is wholly attributable to circumstances which it would not be reasonable to have expected the society or the officer to prevent or avoid, the failure does not prevent the requirements of s 76(9) from being treated as fulfilled in relation to that copy of a statement or report, and no offence is committed under s 76(11) (see the text to notes 37-39) by reason of that failure: s 76(9E) (as so added).

37    le not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale: Building Societies Act 1986 s 76(11)(a). See note 36.

38    le not exceeding £40: Building Societies Act 1986 s 76(11)(b). See note 36.

39    Building Societies Act 1986 s 76(11). See note 36.

MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(1) BUILDING SOCIETIES/(ii) Management, Meetings and Accounts/D. ACCOUNTS/1997. Procedure on completion of accounts.

1997. Procedure on completion of accounts.

The balance sheet of a building society must be signed by two directors<sup>1</sup> on behalf of the board of directors and by the chief executive of the society<sup>2</sup>. The income and expenditure account<sup>3</sup> and the annual business statement<sup>4</sup> must be annexed to the balance sheet, as must any group accounts<sup>5</sup>. These documents must be approved by the board of directors before the balance sheet is signed on their behalf and the date of their approval must be indorsed on the balance sheet<sup>6</sup>. The auditors' report<sup>7</sup> and the directors' report<sup>8</sup> must be attached to the balance sheet<sup>9</sup>. It is an offence if: (1) a balance sheet has not been signed as required, and a copy of it is issued, circulated or published<sup>10</sup>; or (2) any copy of a balance sheet is issued, circulated or published without having annexed to it a copy of the income and expenditure account or a copy of the annual business statement, or without having attached to it a copy of the auditors' report or a copy of the directors' report<sup>11</sup>. On default the society, and any officer<sup>12</sup> who is also guilty of the offence, is liable on summary conviction to a fine<sup>13</sup>.

The directors of a society must lay before the society at the annual general meeting<sup>14</sup> the annual accounts<sup>15</sup> for the last financial year<sup>16</sup>. On default every person who was a director at any time during the relevant period<sup>17</sup> is liable on summary conviction to a fine<sup>18</sup> and, in the case of a continuing offence, to an additional fine<sup>19</sup> for every day during which the offence continues<sup>20</sup>. The directors must send two copies of the annual accounts for the last financial year to the Financial Services Authority<sup>21</sup> not later than 14 days before the annual general meeting at which the accounts are to be considered<sup>22</sup>. On default every person who was a director at any time during the relevant period is liable on summary conviction to a fine<sup>23</sup> and, in the case of a continuing offence, to an additional fine<sup>24</sup> for every day during which the offence continues<sup>25</sup>. The Authority must keep one of the copies of the annual accounts of a society received by it in the public file of the society<sup>26</sup>. A society must make copies of the annual accounts available, as from the date by which at the latest its directors are required to send them to the Authority, free of charge to members<sup>27</sup> of and depositors with the society at every office of the society and, free of charge, must send copies of those documents to any member or depositor who demands it<sup>28</sup>. Provision is made for such copies to be sent electronically<sup>29</sup>. If a society fails to comply with the demand to make available or, as the case may be, within seven days of the demand to send to a person a copy of the annual accounts, the society, and any officer who is also guilty of the offence, is liable on summary conviction to a fine<sup>30</sup> and, in the case of a continuing offence, to an additional fine<sup>31</sup> for every day during which the offence continues<sup>32</sup>.

If a building society publishes<sup>33</sup> any of its statutory accounts<sup>34</sup>, they must be accompanied by the relevant auditors' report<sup>35</sup>. A building society that is required to prepare group accounts for a financial year must not publish its statutory individual accounts for that year without also publishing with them its statutory group accounts<sup>36</sup>.

If a building society publishes non-statutory accounts<sup>37</sup>, it must publish with them a statement indicating: (a) that they are not the society's statutory accounts<sup>38</sup>; (b) whether statutory accounts dealing with any financial year with which the non-statutory accounts purport to deal have been prepared<sup>39</sup>; (c) whether the society's auditors have made an auditors' report<sup>40</sup> on the statutory accounts for any financial year<sup>41</sup>; and (d) whether any such auditors' report: (i) was qualified or unqualified, or included a reference to any matters to which the auditors drew attention by way of emphasis without qualifying the report<sup>42</sup>; or (ii) contained a statement<sup>43</sup> as to the failure to obtain necessary information and explanations<sup>44</sup>. The society must not publish with any such non-statutory accounts any auditors' report required by the Building Societies Act 1986<sup>45</sup>.

A building society which contravenes the above provisions<sup>46</sup>, and any officer of it who is in default, is guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to a fine<sup>47</sup>.

MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(1) BUILDING SOCIETIES/(ii) Management, Meetings and Accounts/E. AUDITORS AND AUDIT OF ACCOUNTS/1998. Appointment of auditors.

E. AUDITORS AND AUDIT OF ACCOUNTS

1998. Appointment of auditors.

Every building society must appoint an auditor or auditors at each annual general meeting<sup>1</sup> to hold office from the conclusion of that meeting until the conclusion of the next annual general meeting<sup>2</sup>. The first auditors of a society may be appointed by the directors<sup>3</sup> at any time before the first general meeting of the society following the end of the society's first financial year<sup>4</sup> and auditors so appointed hold office until the conclusion of that meeting<sup>5</sup>. If the directors fail to exercise such powers, they may be exercised by the society in general meeting<sup>6</sup>. The directors, or the society in general meeting, may fill any casual vacancy in the office of auditor, but while any such vacancy continues, the surviving or continuing auditor or auditors, if any, may act<sup>7</sup>. If at any annual general meeting of a society no auditors are appointed or re-appointed, the Financial Services Authority<sup>8</sup> may appoint a person to fill the vacancy, and, within one week of that power of the Authority becoming exercisable, the society must give it notice<sup>9</sup> of that fact<sup>10</sup>. It is an offence if a society fails to give that notice, and the society, and any officer<sup>11</sup> who is also guilty of the offence, is liable on summary conviction to a fine<sup>12</sup> and, in the case of a continuing offence, to an additional fine<sup>13</sup> for every day during which the offence continues<sup>14</sup>.

Not less than 28 days' notice must be given to the society of the intention to move a resolution at a general meeting of a society<sup>15</sup>:

- 430 (1) appointing as auditor a person other than a retiring auditor<sup>16</sup>; or
- 431 (2) filling a casual vacancy in the office of auditor<sup>17</sup>; or
- 432 (3) re-appointing as auditor a retiring auditor who was appointed by the directors to fill a casual vacancy<sup>18</sup>; or
- 433 (4) removing an auditor before the expiration of his term of office<sup>19</sup>.

A society must give notice of any such resolution to its members<sup>20</sup> at the same time and in the same manner as it gives notice of the meeting, or, if that is not practicable, must give them notice of the resolution, not less than 21 days before the meeting, either by advertisement in a newspaper having an appropriate circulation or in any other way allowed by the rules of the society<sup>21</sup>. On receipt of notice of such an intended resolution the society must forthwith send a copy of it<sup>22</sup>:

- 434 (a) to the person proposed to be appointed or removed, as the case may be<sup>23</sup>;
- 435 (b) in a case within head (1) above, to the retiring auditor<sup>24</sup>; and
- 436 (c) where, in a case within head (2) or head (3) above, the casual vacancy was caused by the resignation of an auditor, to the auditor who resigned<sup>25</sup>.

Where notice is given of such a resolution as is mentioned in head (1) or head (4) above, and the retiring auditor, or, as the case may be, the auditor proposed to be removed, makes with respect to the intended resolution representations in writing to the society, not exceeding a reasonable length, and requests their notification to the members, the society must, unless the representations are received by it too late to do so<sup>26</sup>: (i) in any notice of the resolution given to members, state the fact of the representations having been made<sup>27</sup>; and (ii) send a copy of the representations to every member to whom notice of the meeting is or has been sent<sup>28</sup>. Provision is made for the electronic transmission of such written representations of auditors<sup>29</sup>. It is an offence if a society fails to comply with the above requirements, and the society, and any officer who is also guilty of the offence, is liable on conviction to a fine<sup>30</sup>. If a copy of such representations is not sent out as required because it was received too late or because of the society's default, the auditor may, without prejudice to his right to be heard orally, require that the representations be read out at the meeting<sup>31</sup>.

Within 14 days of the receipt by the society of any such representations, either the society or any person claiming to be aggrieved<sup>32</sup> may apply to the High Court<sup>33</sup> or the Authority for an order that copies of the representations need not or, as the case may be, must not be sent out nor the representations be read out at the meeting<sup>34</sup>. An application to the High Court is made on the ground that the auditor is abusing the rights conferred to secure needless publicity for defamatory matter, and if the court is satisfied that the auditor is so abusing those rights it may by order direct that copies of the representations need not be sent out nor the representations read out at the meeting; and the court may further order the society's costs on the application to be paid in whole or in part by the auditor notwithstanding that he is not a party to the application<sup>35</sup>. An application to the Authority is made on the ground that the sending out of copies of, or the reading out at the meeting of, the representations would be likely to diminish substantially the confidence in the society of investing members of the public, and if the Authority is satisfied that the sending out of copies of the representations or the reading of them would have that effect it must by order direct that copies of the representations must not be sent out nor the representations read at the meeting<sup>36</sup>.

If the High Court or the Authority makes such an order the society must send, within 14 days of the decision, a statement setting out the effect of the order to every member to whom notice of the meeting is or has been sent<sup>37</sup>; and, if not, the society must send a copy of the written representations made or cause the representations to be read out at the meeting<sup>38</sup>. Provision is made for the electronic transmission of such statement or written representations<sup>39</sup>. It is an offence if a society fails to comply with the above requirements, and the society, and any officer who is also guilty of the offence, is liable on conviction to a fine<sup>40</sup>.

- 29 See the Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 11 para 4(9A)-(9C), (10A) (added by SI 2003/404). The provisions of the Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 11 para 4(9B)-(9C) apply where: (1) a copy of representations is required to be sent under Sch 11 para 4(4)(b) (see the text to note 28) or under Sch 11 para 4(9)(b) (see the text to note 38); or (2) a statement is required to be sent under Sch 11 para 4(9)(a) (see the text to note 37): Sch 11 para 4(9A) (as so added).

Where a copy of representations or a statement is required to be sent to a member: (a) it may be sent to him electronically only if it is sent to an electronic address notified by the member for the purpose; but (b) the requirement to send it is also treated as satisfied if the conditions set out in Sch 11 para 4(9C) are satisfied: Sch 11 para 4(9B) (as so added). As to the meaning of 'electronic address' see PARA 1883 note 24.

The conditions mentioned in head (b) above are satisfied in the case of a copy of representations or a statement if: (i) the society and the member have agreed that information that is required to be sent to him may instead be accessed by him on a website; (ii) the agreement applies to the representations or statement in question; (iii) the member is notified, in a manner agreed between him and the society, of the publication of the copy of the representations or the statement on a website, the address of that website, the place on that website where the representations or statement may be accessed, and how it may be accessed, and where the notification concerns the publication of a statement required to be sent by Sch 11 para 4(9)(a), the member is notified within the period specified in that provision; and (iv) the copy of the representations or the statement is published continuously on that website throughout the period beginning with the date on which notification is given in accordance with head (iii) above and ending with the conclusion of the meeting: Sch 11 para 4(9C) (as so added).

Where, in a case in which head (b) above is relied on for compliance with a requirement of Sch 11 para 4(4) or of Sch 11 para 4(9), a copy of representations or a statement is published on a website for a part, but not all, of the period mentioned in head (iv) above, but the failure to publish it throughout that period is wholly attributable to circumstances which it would not be reasonable to have expected the society to prevent or avoid, no offence is committed under Sch 11 para 4(10) (see the text and notes 30, 40) by reason of that failure: Sch 11 para 4(10A) (as so added) (where it is thought that the reference to Sch 11 para 4(9A)(b) is erroneous and that the reference should be to para 4(9B)(b)).

MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(1) BUILDING SOCIETIES/(ii) Management, Meetings and Accounts/E. AUDITORS AND AUDIT OF ACCOUNTS/1999. Qualification and disqualification of auditors.

1999. Qualification and disqualification of auditors.

Until 6 April 2008 the following provisions apply<sup>1</sup>. A person is not qualified for appointment as auditor of a building society unless<sup>2</sup> he is eligible for appointment as a company auditor<sup>3</sup>, or he is a member of a body of accountants, established in the United Kingdom<sup>4</sup> or another member state, which is for the time being designated by order of the Treasury<sup>5</sup>.

The following persons are not qualified for appointment as an auditor of a society<sup>6</sup>:

- 437 (1) a director or employee of the society<sup>7</sup>;
- 438 (2) a person who is a partner of, or in the employment of, or who employs, a director or employee of the society<sup>8</sup>;
- 439 (3) a person who is ineligible<sup>9</sup> for appointment as auditor of a company which is a subsidiary undertaking of the society<sup>10</sup>.

These provisions do not prevent the appointment as auditor of a Scottish firm if none of the partners of the firm is disqualified for appointment as auditor of the society<sup>11</sup>.

No person may act as auditor of a society at a time when he knows that he is disqualified from appointment to that office, and if an auditor of a society to his knowledge becomes so disqualified during his term of office he must vacate his office and give notice<sup>12</sup> to the society that he has vacated it by reason of that disqualification<sup>13</sup>. A person who acts as auditor in contravention of this requirement, or fails without reasonable excuse to give notice of vacating his office as required, is guilty of an offence and liable on conviction to a fine<sup>14</sup>.

1 The Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 11 para 5 is omitted and repealed from 6 April 2008 by SI 2008/948. From that date appointment as an auditor of a building society is an appointment as a statutory auditor to which the provisions of the Companies Act 2006 Pt 42 (ss 1209-1264) (see COMPANIES vol 15 (2009) PARA 957 et seq) apply: see the Building Societies Act 1986 s 77(3) (added by SI 2008/948). MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(1) BUILDING SOCIETIES/(ii) Management, Meetings and Accounts/E. AUDITORS AND AUDIT OF ACCOUNTS/2000. Removal of auditors.

2000. Removal of auditors.

A building society may by resolution in general meeting<sup>1</sup> remove an auditor<sup>2</sup> before the expiration of his term of office, notwithstanding anything in any agreement between it and him<sup>3</sup>. Where a resolution removing an auditor is passed at a general meeting of a society, the society must within 14 days give notice<sup>4</sup> of that fact to the Financial Services Authority<sup>5</sup>. It is an offence if a society fails to give the notice so required, and the society, and every officer<sup>6</sup> who is also guilty of the offence, is liable on conviction to a fine<sup>7</sup>.

The power to remove an auditor does not deprive a person removed under it of compensation or damages payable to him in respect of the termination of his appointment as auditor<sup>8</sup>.

2000 Removal of auditors

TEXT AND NOTES--As to provision for the removal of auditors on improper grounds see the Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 11 para 6A (added by SI 2008/1519).

Halsbury's Laws of England/FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS (VOLUME 48 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-589; VOLUME 49 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 590-1619; VOLUME 50 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1620-2586)/8. MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(1) BUILDING SOCIETIES/(ii) Management, Meetings and Accounts/E. AUDITORS AND AUDIT OF ACCOUNTS/2001. Resignation of auditors.

2001. Resignation of auditors.

An auditor of a building society<sup>1</sup> may resign his office by depositing a notice<sup>2</sup> to that effect at the society's principal office<sup>3</sup>, and any such notice operates to bring his term of office to an end on the date on which the notice is deposited, or on such later date as may be specified in it<sup>4</sup>. An auditor's notice of resignation is not effective unless it contains either<sup>5</sup>: (1) a statement to the effect that there are no circumstances connected with his resignation which he considers should be brought to the notice of the members<sup>6</sup> of, or depositors with, the society<sup>7</sup>; or (2) a statement of any such circumstances as are mentioned above<sup>8</sup>. Where a notice is deposited at a society's principal office, the society must within 14 days send a copy of the notice to the Financial Services Authority<sup>9</sup>; and, if the notice contains a statement under head (2) above, to every person who is statutorily entitled<sup>10</sup> to receive a copy of the summary financial statement<sup>11</sup>. Provision is made for the electronic transmission of such statement or notice<sup>12</sup>. If default is made in complying with the above requirements the society, and any officer<sup>13</sup> who is guilty of the offence, is liable on conviction to a fine<sup>14</sup>.

Within 14 days of the receipt by the society of a notice containing a statement under head (2) above, the society or any person claiming to be aggrieved may apply<sup>15</sup> to the High Court<sup>16</sup> or to the Authority for an order that copies of the notice need not or, as the case may be, must not be sent out<sup>17</sup>. An application to the High Court is made on the ground that the auditor is using the notice to secure needless publicity for defamatory matter, and if the court is satisfied that the auditor is using the notice for that purpose it may by order direct that copies of it need not be sent out, and the court may further order the society's costs on the application to be paid in whole or in part by the auditor, notwithstanding that he is not a party to the application<sup>18</sup>. An application to the Authority is made on the ground that the sending out of the notice would be likely to diminish substantially the confidence in the society of investing members of the public, and if the Authority is satisfied that the sending out of the notice would be likely to have that effect it must by order direct that copies of it must not be sent out<sup>19</sup>.

Within 14 days of the decision of the High Court or of the Authority, the society must send to the persons statutorily entitled to receive copies of the summary financial statement<sup>20</sup>: (a) if the court or the Authority makes such an order, a statement setting out the effect of the order<sup>21</sup>; and (b) if not, a copy of the notice containing the statement under head (2) above<sup>22</sup>. Provision is made for the electronic transmission of such statement or notice<sup>23</sup>. If default is made in complying with the above requirements the society, and any officer who is guilty of the offence, is liable on conviction to a fine<sup>24</sup>.

12 See the Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 11 para 7(7A)-(7C), (8A) (added by SI 2003/404). The provisions of the Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 11 para 7(7B)-(7C) apply where: (1) the reference to a notice containing a statement under Sch 11 para 7(2)(b) (see the text to note 8) is required to be sent to a person under Sch 11 para 7(3)(b) (see the text to note 11) or under Sch 11 para 7(7)(b) (see the text to note 22); or (2) a statement is required to be sent under Sch 11 para 7(7)(a) (see the text to note 21): Sch 11 para 7(7A) (as so added).

Where a notice or a statement is required to be sent to a person, the notice or statement may be sent to him electronically only if: (a) in a case where a person mentioned in Sch 11 para 7(3)(b) has notified the society of an electronic address for the purpose of this provision, it is sent to that address; or (b) in a case where no electronic address has been notified for the purpose of this provision, it is sent to an electronic address notified by him for the purpose of s 76(8B) (electronic address for the reception of summary financial statement for members and depositors) (see PARA 1996): Sch 11 para 7(7B) (as so added). As to the meaning of 'electronic address' see PARA 1883 note 24.

The requirement to send a notice or a statement is also treated as satisfied if: (i) the society and a person mentioned in Sch 11 para 7(3)(b) have agreed that information that is required to be sent to him may instead be accessed by him on a website; (ii) the agreement applies to the notice or statement in question; (iii) in a manner agreed between the society and that person, he is notified of the publication of the notice or statement on a website, the address of that website, and the place on that website where the notice or statement may be accessed, and how it may be accessed; and (iv) the notice or statement is published on the website throughout a period of at least 14 days, beginning with the day on which the person is notified in accordance with head (iii) above: Sch 11 para 7(7C) (as so added).

Where, in a case in which Sch 11 para 7(7C) is relied on for compliance with a requirement under Sch 11 para 7(3) or under Sch 11 para 7(7), a notice or a statement is published for a part, but not all, of the period mentioned in head (iv) above, but the failure to publish it throughout that period is wholly attributable to circumstances which it would not be reasonable to have expected the society to prevent or avoid, no offence is committed under Sch 11 para 7(8) (see the text and notes 14, 24) by reason of that failure: Sch 11 para 7(8A) (as so added).

13 As to the meaning of 'officer' see PARA 1944.

14 Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 11 para 7(8). See note 12. The society and any such officer is liable on conviction on indictment to a fine (Sch 11 para 7(8)(a)), or on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum and, in the case of a continuing offence, to a fine not exceeding one-tenth of the statutory maximum for every day during which the offence continues (Sch 11 para 7(8)(b)). ## UPDATE

2001 Resignation of auditors

TEXT AND NOTES--As to the notifications that must be made where an auditor of a building society ceases to hold office for any reason see the Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 11 paras 8A-8C.

Halsbury's Laws of England/FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS (VOLUME 48 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-589; VOLUME 49 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 590-1619; VOLUME 50 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1620-2586)/8. MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(1) BUILDING SOCIETIES/(ii) Management, Meetings and Accounts/E. AUDITORS AND AUDIT OF ACCOUNTS/2002. Right of resigning auditor to requisition general meeting.

2002. Right of resigning auditor to requisition general meeting.

Where an auditor's<sup>1</sup> notice of resignation contains a statement that there are circumstances connected with his resignation which he considers should be brought to the notice of the members<sup>2</sup> of, or the depositors with, the building society<sup>3</sup>, he may also deposit at the society's principal office<sup>4</sup> a requisition signed by him calling on the directors of the society<sup>5</sup> forthwith duly to convene a special general meeting of the society for the purpose of receiving and considering such explanation of the circumstances connected with his resignation as he may wish to place before the meeting<sup>6</sup>. Where an auditor's notice of resignation contains such a statement, the auditor may request the society to send to its members<sup>7</sup>: (1) before the general meeting at which his term of office would otherwise expire or have expired, as the case may be<sup>8</sup>; or (2) before any general meeting at which it is proposed to fill the vacancy caused by his resignation<sup>9</sup>, a statement in writing, not exceeding a reasonable length, of the circumstances connected with his resignation<sup>10</sup>. In that case, unless the statement is received by the society too late for it to comply, the society must<sup>11</sup>: (a) in any notice of the meeting<sup>12</sup> given to members, state the fact of the statement having been made<sup>13</sup>; and (b) send a copy of the statement to every member to whom notice of the meeting is or has been sent<sup>14</sup>. Provision is made for the electronic transmission of the statement<sup>15</sup>. If the directors of the society do not within 21 days from the date of the deposit of such a requisition proceed duly to convene the meeting for a day not more than 28 days after the date on which the notice convening the meeting is given, every director who failed to take all reasonable steps to secure that a meeting was so convened is guilty of an offence and liable on conviction on indictment or on summary conviction to a fine<sup>16</sup>.

If a copy of the auditor's statement is not sent out as required because it was received too late or because of the society's default, the auditor may, without prejudice to his right to be heard orally, require that the statement be read out at the meeting<sup>17</sup>.

Copies of a statement need not be sent out and the statement need not be read out at the meeting if<sup>18</sup>: (i) on an application made to the High Court<sup>19</sup> by the society or a person aggrieved<sup>20</sup>, the court is satisfied that the rights so conferred are being abused to secure needless publicity for defamatory matter<sup>21</sup>; or (ii) on an application to the Financial Services Authority<sup>22</sup> by the society or a person aggrieved, the Authority is satisfied that the circulating or reading out of the statement would be likely to diminish substantially the confidence in the society of investing members of the public<sup>23</sup>.

An auditor who has resigned his office is entitled to attend any such meeting as is mentioned in head (1) or head (2) above and to receive all notices of, and other communications relating to, any such meeting which any member of the society is entitled to receive, and to be heard at any such meeting which he attends on any part of the business of the meeting which concerns him as former auditor of the society<sup>24</sup>.

MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(1) BUILDING SOCIETIES/(ii) Management, Meetings and Accounts/E. AUDITORS AND AUDIT OF ACCOUNTS/2003. Auditors' report.

2003. Auditors' report.

The auditors of a building society<sup>1</sup> must make a report to the members<sup>2</sup> on the annual accounts<sup>3</sup> which are to be laid before the society at the annual general meeting<sup>4</sup> during their tenure of office<sup>5</sup>. The report must be open to inspection by any member at the annual general meeting of the society<sup>6</sup>.

The auditors' report must include an introduction identifying the annual accounts that are the subject of the audit and the financial reporting framework that has been applied in their preparation, and a description of the scope of the audit identifying the auditing standards in accordance with which the audit was conducted<sup>7</sup>. The report must state clearly whether, in the auditors' opinion, the annual accounts have been properly prepared in accordance with the requirements of the Building Societies Act 1986 (and, where applicable, European legislation on international accounting standards)<sup>8</sup>. The report must state in particular whether the annual accounts give a true and fair view<sup>9</sup> in accordance with the relevant financial reporting framework: (1) in the case of an individual balance sheet<sup>10</sup>, of the state of affairs of the society as at the end of the financial year<sup>11</sup>; (2) in the case of an individual income and expenditure account<sup>12</sup>, of the income and expenditure of the society for the financial year<sup>13</sup>; and (3) in the case of group accounts<sup>14</sup>, of the state of affairs as at the end of the financial year and the income and expenditure for the financial year of the society and the subsidiary undertakings<sup>15</sup> dealt with in the group accounts, so far as concerns members of the society<sup>16</sup>.

The auditors' report must be either unqualified or qualified and must include a reference to any matters to which the statutory auditors wish to draw attention by way of emphasis without qualifying the report<sup>17</sup>. If the auditors' report includes a qualification of their opinion that the annual accounts give a true and fair view of the matters specified in heads (1) to (3) above, the statutory provisions requiring a copy of the summary financial statement to be circulated<sup>18</sup> extend to a copy of the auditors' report<sup>19</sup>.

The auditors' report on the annual accounts must include a report to the members on the annual business statement<sup>20</sup> and the directors' report<sup>21</sup>, stating whether they have been prepared so as to conform to the statutory requirements and regulations<sup>22</sup> and whether, in the opinion of the auditors<sup>23</sup>: (a) the information given in the annual business statement gives a true representation of the matters in respect of which it is given<sup>24</sup>; and (b) the information given in the directors' report is consistent with the accounting records and the annual accounts for the year<sup>25</sup>. The auditors' report on the annual business statement need not deal with any matters to the extent that the regulations provide that such matters are not to be the subject of report by the auditors<sup>26</sup>.

The auditors must examine the statement of particulars of restricted transactions with directors<sup>27</sup> before it is made available to members and make a report to the members on it, and the report must be annexed to the statement before it is made available to members<sup>28</sup>. The auditors' report on the statement must state whether in their opinion the statement contains the required particulars<sup>29</sup>, and where their opinion is that it does not, they must include in their report, so far as they are reasonably able to do so, a statement giving the requisite particulars<sup>30</sup>.

The auditors' report must state the names of the auditors and be signed and dated by them<sup>31</sup>. Every copy of the auditors' report which is laid before the building society at the annual general meeting or which is otherwise circulated, published or issued, must state the names of the auditors<sup>32</sup>. If a copy of the auditors' report is laid before the society or otherwise circulated, published or issued without the required statement of the auditors' names, the society and every officer of it who is in default is guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to a fine<sup>33</sup>.

MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(1) BUILDING SOCIETIES/(ii) Management, Meetings and Accounts/E. AUDITORS AND AUDIT OF ACCOUNTS/2004. Auditors' duties and powers.

2004. Auditors' duties and powers.

It is the duty of the auditors of a building society<sup>1</sup> in preparing their report to the members<sup>2</sup> to carry out such investigations as will enable them to form an opinion as to<sup>3</sup>: (1) whether proper accounting records have been kept<sup>4</sup>; and (2) whether the annual accounts<sup>5</sup> are in agreement with the accounting records<sup>6</sup>. If the auditors are of the opinion that the annual accounts are not in agreement with the accounting records they must state that fact in their report<sup>7</sup>. Every auditor of a society has a right of access at all times to the accounting and other records of the society and all other documents relating to its business, and a right to require from the officers<sup>8</sup> of the society such information and explanations as he thinks necessary for the performance of the duties of the auditors<sup>9</sup>.

Where a society has a connected undertaking then<sup>10</sup>: (a) if the connected undertaking is a body corporate<sup>11</sup> incorporated in any part of the United Kingdom<sup>12</sup>, it is the duty of the connected undertaking and its auditors to give to the society's auditors such information and explanation, and such access to documents, as those auditors may reasonably require for the purposes of their duties as auditors of the society<sup>13</sup>; (b) in any other case, it is the duty of the society, if required by its auditors to do so, to take all such steps as are reasonably open to it to obtain from the connected undertaking such information and explanation and such access as are mentioned above<sup>14</sup>. It is an offence if a society or any other body corporate fails to comply with head (a) or head (b) above, and the society or other body is liable on summary conviction to a fine<sup>15</sup>, and so is any officer of the society or, as the case may be, of the other body who is also guilty of the offence<sup>16</sup>. If an auditor of the other body fails without reasonable excuse to comply with head (a) above he is liable, on summary conviction, to a fine<sup>17</sup>.

If the auditors fail to obtain all the information and explanations and the access to documents which, to the best of their knowledge and belief, are necessary for the purposes of their audit, they must state that fact in their report<sup>18</sup>.

The auditors have the right to attend any general meeting of the society, and to receive all notices of and other communications relating to any general meeting which any member of the society is entitled to receive, and to be heard at any meeting which they attend on any part of the business of the meeting which concerns them as auditors<sup>19</sup>.

An officer of a society or of a body which is a connected undertaking of the society commits an offence if he knowingly or recklessly makes to the auditors of that or another society or body a statement which<sup>20</sup>: (i) conveys or purports to convey any information or explanation which the auditors require, or are entitled to require, as auditors of the society or other body, as the case may be<sup>21</sup>; and (ii) is false or misleading in a material particular<sup>22</sup>. A person guilty of such an offence is liable on conviction to imprisonment or to a fine or to both<sup>23</sup>.

A. INTRODUCTION

2005. In general.

The general law of mortgages applies to mortgages taken by building societies as security for loans made to borrowers<sup>1</sup>. The source of the society's power to make secured loans is its memorandum<sup>2</sup>. The same law also applies to questions which arise incidentally to such mortgages, such as the presumption that a tenant for life who pays off the amount secured by a mortgage intends to keep the charge alive for his own benefit<sup>3</sup>, and the postponement<sup>4</sup> of a legal mortgage to a subsequent security on the ground of negligence in the custody of the title deeds<sup>5</sup>.

In entering into a contract for the provision of a loan to an individual secured by a first mortgage of residential land in the United Kingdom<sup>6</sup>, a building society will frequently be carrying on a regulated activity under the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000<sup>7</sup>. Where that Act does not apply, the agreement under which the loan is made may nonetheless constitute a regulated agreement under the Consumer Credit Act 1974<sup>8</sup>.

Halsbury's Laws of England/FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS (VOLUME 48 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-589; VOLUME 49 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 590-1619; VOLUME 50 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1620-2586)/8. MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(1) BUILDING SOCIETIES/ (iii) Loans Secured on Land/A. INTRODUCTION/2006. Loans secured on land.

2006. Loans secured on land.

For the purposes of the Building Societies Act 1986 a loan<sup>1</sup> is secured on land<sup>2</sup> if it is secured by<sup>3</sup>:

- 440 (1) a mortgage<sup>4</sup> of a legal estate in land in England and Wales or Northern Ireland<sup>5</sup>;
- 441 (2) a heritable security over land in Scotland<sup>6</sup>; or
- 442 (3) a qualifying security<sup>7</sup> over land in an EEA country or territory other than the United Kingdom<sup>8</sup>.

A loan is also secured on land if<sup>9</sup>:

- 443 (a) it is secured by a mortgage of an equitable interest in land in England and Wales or Northern Ireland<sup>10</sup>;
- 444 (b) the equitable interest is an equitable interest in land of a description, and is created in circumstances, prescribed in an order made by the Treasury<sup>11</sup>; and
- 445 (c) any conditions prescribed in the order are complied with<sup>12</sup>.

Such an order may apply in relation to securities held by or on behalf of building societies or connected undertakings<sup>13</sup> of a description specified in the order, or securities held by or on behalf of all such societies or undertakings other than those of a description specified in the order<sup>14</sup>.

The Treasury may by order provide for any provision of the Building Societies Act 1986 to have effect in relation to loans secured on land outside the EEA with such modifications as appear to it to be appropriate<sup>15</sup>.

1 As to the lending limit see PARA 2008.

2 'Land', in the expression 'loan secured on land' means: (1) land in an EEA country or territory; and (2) in so far as land in any other country or territory is, under any provision of the Building Societies Act 1986, land on which loans may be secured, land in that other country or territory: s 6A(8) (s 6A added by the Building Societies Act 1997 s 5), Building Societies Act 1986 s 119(1) (definition added by the Building Societies Act 1997 Sch 7 para 53(1)(i)). For the purposes of the Building Societies Act 1986 s 6A and s 6B (see PARA 2007), 'EEA country or territory' means a country or territory in the European Economic Area: s 6A(7) (as so added). For these purposes, the Channel Islands, the Isle of Man and Gibraltar are treated as included in the European Economic Area: s 6A(7) (as so added). The European Economic Area (the 'EEA') is the area established under the Agreement signed at Oporto on 2 May 1992 (Cm 2073; OJ L1, 3.1.94, p 3), as adjusted by the Protocol signed at Brussels on 17 March 1993 (Cm 2183; OJ L1, 3.1.94, p 572).

4 As to the meaning of 'mortgage' see PARA 1868 note 9. In relation to loans secured on land in Scotland, 'mortgage' means a heritable security, 'mortgagor' and 'mortgagee' mean respectively the debtor and creditor in a heritable security, and connected expressions are to be construed accordingly: Building Societies Act 1986 s 119(2) (amended by the Building Societies Act 1997 Sch 7 para 53(2)). As to the law of mortgages generally see MORTGAGE vol 77 (2010) PARA 101 et seq.

5 Building Societies Act 1986 s 6A(1)(a) (as added: see note 2). A loan is treated as secured by a mortgage of a legal estate in registered land in England and Wales or Northern Ireland notwithstanding that the loan is made before the mortgagor is registered as proprietor of the estate, and a loan is treated as secured by a heritable security over land in Scotland notwithstanding that the loan is made before title to that land has been transferred to the debtor in the heritable security: s 6A(3) (as so added). 'Heritable security' means a security capable of being constituted over any land by disposition or assignation of that interest in security of any debt and of being recorded in the Register of Sasines or, as the case may be, in the Land Register of Scotland and includes a security constituted by a standard security and any other charge enforceable in the same manner as a standard security: s 119(1). Generally Scottish matters are beyond the scope of this work.

6 Building Societies Act 1986 s 6A(1)(b) (as added: see note 2). See note 5.

7 For the purposes of the Building Societies Act 1986 s 6A and s 6B (see PARA 2007), 'qualifying security', in relation to land in an EEA country or territory other than the United Kingdom and a loan, means a security over the land which: (1) acknowledges, and requires repayment of, the loan; and (2) secures repayment of the loan on the land: s 6A(7) (as added: see note 2). As to the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 2 note 3.

8 Building Societies Act 1986 s 6A(1)(c) (as added: see note 2).

9 Building Societies Act 1986 s 6A(2) (as added: see note 2).

10 Building Societies Act 1986 s 6A(2)(a) (as added: see note 2).

11 Building Societies Act 1986 s 6A(2)(b) (as added (see note 2); and amended by SI 2001/2617). An order under the Building Societies Act 1986 s 6A(2) or s 6A(4) (see the text to note 15) may make such incidental, supplementary and transitional provision as appears to the Treasury to be necessary or expedient: s 6A(5) (as so added; and amended by SI 2001/2617). The power to make such an order is exercisable by statutory instrument which is subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament: Building Societies Act 1986 s 6A(6) (as so added). As to the Treasury see PARA 3; and CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 512 et seq.

As to the prescribed types of equitable interest in land which can constitute security for a loan secured on land see the Building Societies (Prescribed Equitable Interests) Order 1997, SI 1997/2693.

12 Building Societies Act 1986 s 6A(2)(c) (as added: see note 2). See note 11.

13 As to the meaning of 'connected undertaking' see PARA 1991 note 16.

14 Building Societies Act 1986 s 6A(2) (as added: see note 2).

15 Building Societies Act 1986 s 6A(4) (as added (see note 2); and amended by SI 2001/2617). At the date at which this volume states the law no such order had been made. See note 11.

MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(1) BUILDING SOCIETIES/ (iii) Loans Secured on Land/A. INTRODUCTION/2007. Loans fully secured on land.

2007. Loans fully secured on land.

For the purposes of the Building Societies Act 1986 a loan<sup>1</sup> which is owed to a building society or a subsidiary undertaking<sup>2</sup> of a society and is secured on residential property<sup>3</sup> or other land is fully secured on the land if<sup>4</sup>: (1) the principal of, and interest accrued on, the loan does not exceed the value of the requisite security<sup>5</sup>; and (2) no, or no more than one, mortgage of the land which has priority over the society's or undertaking's mortgage is outstanding in favour of an outside person<sup>6</sup>. Where a mortgage of the residential property or other land which has priority over the society's or undertaking's mortgage is outstanding, the principal of the loan secured or, in the case of a loan by instalments, intended to be secured by that mortgage is deducted from the value of the requisite security for the purposes of head (1) above<sup>7</sup>. Where the loan is secured on residential property or other land in the United Kingdom, any outstanding charge over the land which<sup>8</sup>: (a) in the case of land in England and Wales, is registered in the appropriate local land charges register<sup>9</sup>; (b) in the case of land in Scotland, is recorded in the Register of Sasines, or registered in the Land Register<sup>10</sup>; (c) in the case of land in Northern Ireland, is registered in the statutory charges register<sup>11</sup>, will be disregarded for these purposes<sup>12</sup>.

Where, on the occasion on which a society or a subsidiary undertaking of a society makes or acquires a loan which is secured on land<sup>13</sup>, the society or undertaking is satisfied that the loan is<sup>14</sup>: (i) a loan which is fully secured on residential property<sup>15</sup>; (ii) a loan which is not so secured but is fully secured on land<sup>16</sup>; or (iii) a loan which is not fully secured on land<sup>17</sup>, the loan must be treated as such a loan for the purposes of the Building Societies Act 1986<sup>18</sup>.

Where at any time, in the case of a loan treated as falling within head (i), head (ii) or head (iii) above, the society or undertaking<sup>19</sup>:

- 446 (A) is satisfied (aa) on a revaluation that the value of the requisite security has changed<sup>20</sup>; (bb) on notice<sup>21</sup> given to it by the borrower that there has been a change in the use of the land<sup>22</sup>; (cc) that so much of the mortgage debt<sup>23</sup> as represents the principal of the loan has changed<sup>24</sup>; (dd) that the principal of the loan secured by a prior mortgage has changed or has been repaid<sup>25</sup>; or (ee) that the relative priority of the mortgage of the land on which the loan is secured has changed<sup>26</sup>; and
- 447 (B) is also satisfied that the change or repayment is such that, if it were to make a loan equal to the mortgage debt at that time, the loan would instead be a loan falling within another of head (i), head (ii) or head (iii) above<sup>27</sup>; and
- 448 (C) in a case falling within head (A)(aa) above, is satisfied on a revaluation that the value of the requisite security has changed, and elects that this provision<sup>28</sup> will apply<sup>29</sup>, the loan is treated as such a loan for the purposes of the Building Societies Act 1986 until such time, if any, as this provision<sup>30</sup> again applies<sup>31</sup>.

1 The question whether a loan is fully secured on land is relevant both in determining whether a person is eligible to be a borrowing member of a building society and in applying the lending limit. As to borrowing membership see PARA 1894. As to the lending limit see PARA 2008.

2 Any reference in the Building Societies Act 1986, however expressed, to loans being owed to a building society or a subsidiary undertaking of a society is a reference to their being so owed either at law or in equity: s 119(3A) (added by the Building Societies Act 1997 Sch 7 para 53(4)). As to the meaning of 'subsidiary undertaking' see PARA 1916 note 9. As to loans owed to a syndicate of which a building society or a connected undertaking of a society is a member see the Building Societies Act 1986 s 6(13); and PARA 2008.

3 As to the meaning of 'residential property' see PARA 1856 note 2.

4 Building Societies Act 1986 s 6B(1) (s 6B added by the Building Societies Act 1997 s 6), Building Societies Act 1986 s 119(1) (definition added by the Building Societies Act 1997 Sch 7 para 53(1)(i)). In the application of the Building Societies Act 1986 s 6B(1), (2), (7) (see the text to notes 7, 19-31) to residential property or other land in Scotland or an EEA country or territory other than the United Kingdom, references to a mortgage of the land must be construed as references to a heritable or, as the case may require, qualifying security over the land: s 6B(9) (as so added). As to the meaning of 'EEA country or territory' see PARA 2006 note 2. As to the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 2 note 3. As to the meaning of 'mortgage' see PARA 1868 note 9. As to the meaning of 'heritable security' see PARA 2006 note 5. As to the meaning of 'qualifying security' see PARA 2006 note 7.

5 Building Societies Act 1986 s 6B(1)(a) (as added: see note 4). 'Requisite security', in relation to a loan secured on residential property or other land, means: (1) the security constituted by the legal estate in, or the heritable or qualifying security over, the land; or (2) in a case where an equitable interest in land in England and Wales or Northern Ireland is or is also taken as security, that constituted by that security or, as the case may be, the combined securities: s 6B(8) (as so added). See note 4.

6 Building Societies Act 1986 s 6B(1)(b) (as added: see note 4). 'Outside person', in relation to a society or a subsidiary undertaking of a society, means any person other than the following, namely: (1) the society; (2) a subsidiary undertaking of the society; (3) a lending syndicate of which the society or such an undertaking is a member; and (4) trustees of a trust under which the society or such an undertaking is a beneficiary: s 6B(8) (as so added). 'Trust' includes arrangements: (a) which have effect under the law of a country or territory outside the United Kingdom; and (b) under which persons acting in a fiduciary capacity hold and administer property on behalf of other persons, and 'beneficiary' and 'trustees', in relation to such arrangements, are to be construed accordingly: s 6B(8) (as so added).

17 Building Societies Act 1986 s 6B(4)(c) (as added: see note 4).

18 Building Societies Act 1986 s 6B(4) (as added: see note 4). The loan must be so treated until such time, if any, as s 6B(7) (see the text to notes 19-31) applies: s 6B(4) (as so added). Section 6B(4) has effect in relation to a loan which the society or undertaking makes by two or more payments on different dates as if: (1) the reference to the occasion on which the society or undertaking makes the loan were a reference to the occasion on which it makes the first of the payments; (2) other references to the loan were references to it in its intended maximum amount; and (3) the value of any security for the loan were its expected maximum value: s 6B(5) (as so added). Where a society or a subsidiary undertaking of a society makes or acquires a loan which is secured on land, the society or undertaking is deemed to be satisfied as mentioned in s 6B(4)(c) (see the text to note 17) until such time, if any, as it is satisfied as mentioned in s 6B(4)(a) (see the text to note 15) or s 6B(4)(b) (see the text to note 16): s 6B(6) (as so added).

MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(1) BUILDING SOCIETIES/ (iii) Loans Secured on Land/A. INTRODUCTION/2008. The lending limit.

2008. The lending limit.

Broadly speaking, the purpose of the lending limit is to ensure that the amount owing to a building society and its subsidiary undertakings in respect of loans fully secured on land accounts for not less than 75 per cent of the trading assets of the society and its subsidiary undertakings. This objective is secured by placing the society under a duty to secure that the difference between the value of X on any quarter day<sup>1</sup>, and the value of Y on that day or the value of Y on the immediately preceding quarter day, whichever is the greater, does not exceed 25 per cent of that value of X<sup>2</sup>. If a society fails to comply with this requirement the powers conferred on the Financial Services Authority to direct the restructuring of the business<sup>3</sup> will become exercisable in relation to the society, but the failure will not affect the validity of any transaction or other act<sup>4</sup>.

For these purposes X equals the difference between the total assets of the society and any subsidiary undertakings<sup>5</sup> of the society as shown in the society's accounts<sup>6</sup> and the aggregate of: (1) the liquid assets of the society and any such undertakings as shown in those accounts<sup>8</sup>; (2) the fixed assets of the society and any such undertakings as so shown<sup>9</sup>; and (3) where any such undertakings are effecting or carrying out contracts of insurance, such of their assets as shown in those accounts as represent long term insurance funds<sup>10</sup>. For these purposes Y equals the principal of, and interest accrued on, loans which are owed to the society or any subsidiary undertaking of the society<sup>11</sup> and are fully secured on residential property<sup>12</sup>. For this purpose the total assets of the society and any subsidiary undertakings of the society will be taken to be increased by the amount of any provision made for bad or doubtful debts of the society or any such undertaking<sup>13</sup>. Any loans owed to the society or any subsidiary undertaking of the society must be disregarded for the purposes of the definition of Y to the extent that they are not included in the total assets of the society and any such undertakings as shown in the society's accounts<sup>14</sup>. The reference to anything being shown in a society's accounts is to be construed<sup>15</sup>: (a) in relation to a quarter day on which a financial year<sup>16</sup> of the society ends, as a reference to its being shown in the accounts prepared by the society for that year<sup>17</sup>; (b) in relation to any other quarter day, as a reference to its being shown in the accounts which would have been prepared by the society for the year ending on that day if that year were a financial year of the society<sup>18</sup>.

Where a loan is owed to a lending syndicate of which a society or connected undertaking<sup>19</sup> of a society is a member, so much of the loan as is referable to the society's or undertaking's participation in the syndicate will be treated<sup>20</sup> as a loan owed to the society or undertaking<sup>21</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'quarter day' see PARA 1916 note 1.

2 Building Societies Act 1986 s 6(1) (s 6 substituted by the Building Societies Act 1997 s 4). The Treasury may by order substitute for the 25% specified, such greater percentage (not greater than 40%) as it appears to it to be appropriate, and such an order may make such supplementary, transitional and saving provision as it appears to the Treasury to be necessary or expedient: Building Societies Act 1986 s 6(6) (as so substituted). The power to make such an order is exercisable by statutory instrument (s 6(9) (as so substituted)), and no such order may be made unless a draft of the order has been laid before and approved by a resolution of each House of Parliament (s 6(10) (as so substituted)). At the date at which this volume states the law no such order had been made. As to the Treasury see PARA 3; and CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 512 et seq.

As to the power to modify certain legislation applying in relation to building societies see the Banking (Special Provisions) Act 2008 s 11; and PARA 1856 note 1.

5 As to the meaning of 'subsidiary undertaking' see PARA 1916 note 9.

6 As to the meaning of 'accounts' see PARA 1916 note 16.

7 Building Societies Act 1986 s 6(2) (as substituted: see note 2). The definition of X in s 6(2) and s 6(12) (see note 10) must be read with the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 s 22, any relevant order under s 22, and Sch 2 (see PARAS 84-85): Building Societies Act 1986 s 6(12A) (added by SI 2001/3649).

8 Building Societies Act 1986 s 6(2)(a) (as substituted (see note 2); and amended by SI 2004/3380). In the case of societies which produce IAS individual accounts or IAS group accounts, 'liquid assets' means: (1) cash and cash equivalents; (2) treasury bills and similar securities; (3) loans and advances to credit institutions; and (4) debt securities and other fixed income securities: Building Societies Act 1986 s 6(16) (added by SI 2004/3380). As to IAS individual accounts and IAS group accounts see PARA 1992.

9 Building Societies Act 1986 s 6(2)(b) (as substituted: see note 2). In the case of societies which produce IAS individual accounts or IAS group accounts, 'fixed assets' means: (1) land and buildings; (2) plant and machinery; (3) equipment, fixtures, fittings and vehicles; (4) payments on account and assets in the course of construction; and (5) intangible fixed assets: s 6(16) (as added: see note 8).

10 Building Societies Act 1986 s 6(2)(c) (as substituted (see note 2); and amended by SI 2001/3649). 'Long term insurance funds', in relation to an undertaking effecting or carrying out contracts of insurance, means funds maintained by it: (1) in accordance with asset identification rules (within the meaning of the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 s 142(2) (see PARA 27)) in respect of its business in effecting or carrying out contracts of long term insurance; or (2) where it is incorporated in a country or territory outside the United Kingdom, under the corresponding provisions of the law of that country or territory: Building Societies Act 1986 s 6(12) (substituted by SI 2001/3649). As to the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 2 note 3. As to insurance generally see INSURANCE.

13 Building Societies Act 1986 s 6(2) (as substituted: see note 2). The Treasury may by order: (1) modify s 6(2) and s 6(3) (see the text to note 14) in their application to assets of subsidiary undertakings; (2) apply s 6(2) and s 6(3) to corresponding assets of associated undertakings; or (3) modify s 6(2) and s 6(3) in their application to such assets: s 6(7) (as so substituted; and amended by SI 2001/2617). Such an order may make different provision for different circumstances, provision for particular assets of undertakings to be disregarded, and such supplementary, transitional and saving provision as appears to the Treasury to be necessary or expedient: Building Societies Act 1986 s 6(8) (as so substituted; and amended by SI 2001/2617). The power to make such an order is exercisable by statutory instrument (Building Societies Act 1986 s 6(9) (as so substituted)), which is subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament (s 6(11) (as so substituted)). As to an order made under s 6(7) see the Building Societies Act 1986 (Modification of the Lending Limit and Funding Limit Calculations) Order 2004, SI 2004/3200 (amended by SI 2006/3221). MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(1) BUILDING SOCIETIES/ (iii) Loans Secured on Land/A. INTRODUCTION/2009. Legal mortgages.

2009. Legal mortgages.

A legal mortgage of land or of an interest in land must be made by deed<sup>1</sup>. Where the mortgage is of a freehold estate in unregistered land, such deed must be either a demise for a term of years absolute, with a proviso for cesser on redemption, or a charge by way of legal mortgage<sup>2</sup>. If the mortgage is of a leasehold estate in unregistered land, the deed must be either a sub-demise for a specified term of years being less than the term vested in the mortgage or a charge by way of legal mortgage<sup>3</sup>.

It is no longer possible to create a legal mortgage of registered land by demise or subdemise<sup>4</sup>. Where the land is registered, a legal mortgage must, therefore, be created by charge by way of legal mortgage.

The legal charge is the more modern form of deed and, in the majority of cases, a building society mortgage will be a legal charge<sup>5</sup>.

5TH EDITION, PARAS 1620-2586)/8. MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(1) BUILDING SOCIETIES/ (iii) Loans Secured on Land/A. INTRODUCTION/2010. Equitable mortgages.

2010. Equitable mortgages.

An equitable mortgage will not vest any legal estate or interest in the mortgagee<sup>1</sup>. As a general rule, any property which can be the subject of a legal mortgage<sup>2</sup> can also be the subject of an equitable mortgage<sup>3</sup>. The Building Societies Act 1986 does not make specific reference to equitable mortgages.

1 See MORTGAGE vol 77 (2010) PARAS 105, 118 et seq.

2 As to legal mortgages see PARA 2009.

3 An equitable mortgage is a contract which creates a charge on the property but does not convey any legal estate or interest to the creditor; it amounts to an 'equitable interest' as defined in the Law of Property Act 1925 s 205(1)(x): see MORTGAGE vol 77 (2010) PARA 105.

Halsbury's Laws of England/FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS (VOLUME 48 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-589; VOLUME 49 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 590-1619; VOLUME 50 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1620-2586)/8. MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(1) BUILDING SOCIETIES/ (iii) Loans Secured on Land/B. TYPES OF BORROWER/2011. In general.

B. TYPES OF BORROWER

2011. In general.

The typical building society borrower will be an adult beneficial owner of residential property with legal capacity to borrow money and to give security for the money borrowed.

A minor is capable of being a member of a building society provided that the society's rules do not stipulate otherwise<sup>1</sup>. However, a minor cannot hold a legal estate in land<sup>2</sup> and cannot, therefore, execute a valid legal mortgage<sup>3</sup>. If a society which has no notice of a borrower's minority advances funds for the purchase of land, the society will be entitled, by subrogation to the vendor's lien for unpaid purchase money, to an equitable charge on the property for the purchase money advanced, with interest<sup>4</sup>. This right will not extend to further advances secured on the land<sup>5</sup>.

A personal representative may raise money for the purposes of the administration of the deceased's personal estate by borrowing from a building society<sup>6</sup>. However, any such mortgage would only secure against the estate the principal sum borrowed, plus fines, interest and other such items and would not secure any liabilities of the personal representative incurred in any other capacity<sup>7</sup>.

Trustees of a charity have a general power to mortgage the land of the charity<sup>8</sup>. The mortgage can be to secure the repayment of a proposed loan or grant<sup>9</sup>; or to secure the discharge of any other proposed obligation<sup>10</sup>. Before the mortgage is executed the trustees must have obtained and considered proper advice in writing on certain relevant matters<sup>11</sup>.

Trustees under the Settled Land Act 1925 who are not also statutory owners are not competent to be mortgagors<sup>12</sup>. Where a society lends money to a tenant for life under the Settled Land Act 1925, or a statutory owner by the direction of the trustees under that Act on the security of a charge by way of legal mortgage, or a legal mortgage by demise, it will enjoy statutory protection<sup>13</sup>. The tenant for life or statutory owner cannot charge the settled estate as security for any of his individual liabilities.

In other cases where land is mortgaged by trustees<sup>14</sup>, the loan should be paid to two or more trustees or to a trust corporation to ensure that the interests of the beneficiaries are overreached and that the society gets a good receipt for the loan<sup>15</sup>.

3 Nottingham Permanent Benefit Building Society v Thurstan [1903] AC 6, HL (where the court held that such a mortgage was void against the minor by virtue of the Infants Relief Act 1874 s 1). The Infants Relief Act 1874 provided that any contract or loan with a minor was absolutely void. The Infants Relief Act 1874 was repealed and replaced by the Minors Contracts Act 1987. Under the common law, loans to minors are still not enforceable, but under the Minors' Contracts Act 1987 s 3 the court has discretion to order a minor to make restitution of property which passed to him under an unenforceable contract: see CHILDREN AND YOUNG PERSONS vol 5(3) (2008 Reissue) PARA 24.

2012. Companies.

The powers of a company to borrow funds and to give security for loans will be contained in its memorandum of association<sup>1</sup>. However, a trading company, whether or not it has an express power to borrow contained in its memorandum, will have an implied power to do so, and to give security for that borrowing<sup>2</sup>. In addition, in favour of someone who deals with the company in good faith, the power of the board of directors to bind the company, or to authorise others to do so, is deemed to be free of any limitation under the company's constitution<sup>3</sup>. A party to a transaction with a company is not bound to inquire as to whether it is permitted by the company's memorandum or as to any limitation on the powers of the board of directors to bind the company or authorise others to do so<sup>4</sup>.

From the date the powers under the Building Societies Act 1997 were adopted by a particular building society<sup>5</sup> no body corporate taking a loan from a society could become a borrowing member<sup>6</sup>. A body corporate which was a borrowing member immediately before such date remains a borrowing member if it continues to meet the requirements<sup>7</sup>.

C. THE MORTGAGE OR CHARGE

2013. Mortgage or charge by way of legal mortgage.

With the exception of the rule that a legal mortgage of land or of an interest in land must be made by way of deed<sup>1</sup>, and the rule that it is no longer possible to create a legal mortgage of registered land by demise or subdemise<sup>2</sup>, there is no statutory prescribed form of mortgage or charge by way of legal mortgage to a building society, and the rules of a society will rarely do more than stipulate that the deed contain certain provisions<sup>3</sup>.

Building societies generally have printed forms of mortgages drafted to cater for the different types of facility which they provide, detailed terms often being incorporated by reference to an offer letter or separate booklet of mortgage conditions. In the absence of express provisions, the common law will imply certain limited terms into the mortgage relationship. If there is no clear and express provision in the security which entitles a society to charge compound interest, it is not entitled to do so<sup>4</sup>; and a mortgage term stipulating that, on default being made in the payment of an instalment, the whole sum will immediately become due, implies a covenant to pay upon which proceedings may be brought<sup>5</sup>, although if there is ambiguity the mortgage deed is construed contra proferentem<sup>6</sup>.

1 See the Law of Property Act 1925 s 52(1); and PARA 2009. As to legal mortgages of land see MORTGAGE vol 77 (2010) PARA 187 et seq.

2 See the Land Registration Act 2002 s 23(1)(a); and LAND REGISTRATION vol 26 (2004 Reissue) PARA 906.

3 A mortgage created by a company in favour of a building society must be registered at the Companies Registry: see the Companies Act 1985 ss 395, 396 (prospectively repealed); and COMPANIES vol 15 (2009) PARA 1279 (as to replacement provisions see the Companies Act 2006 ss 860, 861, 870, 874).

MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(1) BUILDING SOCIETIES/ (iii) Loans Secured on Land/C. THE MORTGAGE OR CHARGE/2014. Incorporation of the rules.

2014. Incorporation of the rules.

A building society mortgage may be worded in such a way as to incorporate the society's rules into its terms, and, in such cases, it is usual for the borrower to covenant to observe, perform and be bound by the society's rules for the time being in force<sup>1</sup>. Where that is the case, the borrower will be bound both by the rules in force at the date of the mortgage itself and by any subsequent valid<sup>2</sup> amendments to those rules, even though such alterations may increase his obligations under the terms of the mortgage<sup>3</sup>. If the property is again mortgaged, then the society's rules will bind a subsequent mortgagee who has notice of them<sup>4</sup>; if a mortgagor transfers the equity of redemption and his shares in the society, he may still remain liable to the society in accordance with the rules unless he has obtained a release from the society<sup>5</sup>.

1 Eg the borrower may covenant to make payments in accordance with the rules. However incorporation of rules in a mortgage is now generally avoided, particularly due to the Unfair Terms in Consumer Contracts Regulations 1999, SI 1999/2083 (see CONTRACT vol 9(1) (Reissue) PARA 790 et seq).

2 A society may only alter its rules by special resolution: see the Building Societies Act 1986 s 5(8), Sch 2 para 4(1); and PARA 1875.

3 See Davies v Second Chatham Permanent Benefit Building Society (1889) 61 LT 680, DC; Pepe v City and Suburban Permanent Building Society [1893] 2 Ch 311. ## D. REDEMPTION, TRANSFER AND DISCHARGE

(A) REDEMPTION OF MORTGAGE

2015. Conditions for redemption in rules.

The rules of a building society must include provisions dealing with the manner in which loans are to be made and repaid, and the conditions on which a borrower may redeem the amount due from him before the end of the period for which the loan was made<sup>1</sup>.

1 Building Societies Act 1986 s 5(8), Sch 2 para 3(4), Table item 5 (amended by the Building Societies Act 1997 Sch 7 para 56(5)(b)). As to all the matters required to be included in the rules see PARA 1883.

Halsbury's Laws of England/FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS (VOLUME 48 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-589; VOLUME 49 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 590-1619; VOLUME 50 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1620-2586)/8. MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(1) BUILDING SOCIETIES/ (iii) Loans Secured on Land/D. REDEMPTION, TRANSFER AND DISCHARGE/(A) Redemption of Mortgage/2016. Control of right to redeem by rules.

2016. Control of right to redeem by rules.

In general, redemption will only be permitted in accordance with the terms of the contract of membership and security as contained in the rules of the society and the mortgage deed. However, the right to redeem cannot be excluded or rendered illusory<sup>1</sup>, and the mortgagee society cannot reserve any rights in the rules or the mortgage deed which would be inconsistent with the borrower's right to redeem<sup>2</sup>. Any collateral advantages forming part of the mortgage transaction will not be valid following redemption<sup>3</sup>.

1 Knightsbridge Estates Trust Ltd v Byrne [1939] Ch 441, [1938] 4 All ER 618, CA; affd [1940] AC 613, [1940] 2 All ER 401, HL.

2 Samuel v Jarrah Timber and Wood Paving Corp Ltd [1904] AC 323, HL.

3 A 'collateral advantage' is a provision giving the mortgagee a benefit over and above the repayment of the advance, with interest. To be invalid, such a benefit must form part of the mortgage transaction: if the advantage arises out of a separate arrangement then it may be enforced even after redemption. Whether a provision giving rise to the collateral advantage is part of the mortgage transaction, or is separate from it, is a question of substance rather than form: see Kreglinger v New Patagonia Meat and Cold Storage Co Ltd [1914] AC 25, HL. Such collateral advantages will only be valid prior to redemption if they are not unfair or unconscionable, are not in the nature of a penalty clogging the equity of redemption, and are not inconsistent with the right to redeem: Kreglinger v New Patagonia Meat and Cold Storage Co Ltd; Multiservice Bookbinding

MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(1) BUILDING SOCIETIES/ (iii) Loans Secured on Land/D. REDEMPTION, TRANSFER AND DISCHARGE/(A) Redemption of Mortgage/2017. Contribution by redeeming member to losses.

2017. Contribution by redeeming member to losses.

The liability at any time of a borrowing member<sup>1</sup> of a building society is limited to the amount which, at that time, is payable under any mortgage<sup>2</sup> or other security by which his indebtedness to the society in respect of the loan is secured<sup>3</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'borrowing member' see PARA 1894.

2 As to the meaning of 'mortgage' see PARA 1868 note 9.

3 Building Societies Act 1986 s 5(8), Sch 2 para 6(2) (Sch 2 para 6 substituted by the Building Societies Act 1997 s 2(3)); and see PARA 1898. See also Brownlie v Russell (1883) 8 App Cas 235, HL (where it was held on the winding up of a society that an advanced member was liable for the full amount remaining payable on his advanced shares, that being the balance of the sum he had borrowed from the society). Note that the practice of allotting advanced shares in a society has now been discontinued. As to the winding up of societies see PARA 2071 et seq.

It may be that, if the mortgage included a term which made a borrowing member liable for a share of any losses incurred by the society, or which incorporated a provision in the rules which made him so liable, any resultant liability for losses (having been made part of the sum payable under the mortgage) could be enforced without contravention of the Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 2 para 6(2): compare Re Albion Mutual Permanent Benefit Building Society (1888) 43 ChD 410n; Re West Riding of Yorkshire Permanent Benefit Building Society (1890) 43 ChD 407. It is, however, extremely unlikely in modern conditions that a building society mortgage would contain a term to that effect. It is also thought that any such term would be vulnerable to challenge as an unfair term under the Unfair Terms in Consumer Contracts Regulations 1999, SI 1999/2083 (as to which see CONTRACT).

It is clear that, following redemption, when a borrowing member has paid all that is due under the terms of the mortgage and the rules and the mortgage has been discharged, he will cease to be a member of the society and cannot be liable for any losses: Re West Riding of Yorkshire Permanent Benefit Building Society, ex p Pullman (1890) 45 ChD 463.

(B) TRANSFER AND DISCHARGE OF MORTGAGE

2019. Transfer of mortgage.

A mortgage in favour of a building society may be transferred to another where the borrower consents<sup>1</sup> and, in certain circumstances, where he directs<sup>2</sup>. If the mortgage deed contains the power to do so<sup>3</sup>, the mortgage debt, and any security for it, can be transferred without the consent of the mortgagor, but not so as to place the transferee in the same position under the mortgage contract as the transferor<sup>4</sup>.

Under statutory provisions<sup>5</sup> a society is, in principle, able to transfer a mortgage without the consent of the borrower and without the relevant power being included in the mortgage document, and such transfer, provided it is in the correct form<sup>6</sup>, would be effective to transfer the mortgage debt, the right to sue on the mortgage covenants and the right to enforce the security, and subject to the right of redemption or cesser all the mortgagee's estate and interest in the mortgaged property<sup>7</sup>.

A society can also acquire mortgages originally made in favour of another society on a merger<sup>8</sup>.

2 See the Law of Property Act 1925 s 95(1); and MORTGAGE vol 77 (2010) PARA 364. The effect of s 95(1) is that, where a mortgagor is entitled to redeem, then, subject to compliance with the terms entitling him to require a reconveyance or surrender, he will be entitled to require the mortgagee to assign the mortgage debt and convey the mortgaged property to any third person.

3 In the case of a mortgage to a consumer, such a provision is subject to the Unfair Terms in Consumer Contracts Regulations 1999, SI 1999/2083: see regs 3(1), 4, 5(5), Sch 2 para 1(p); and CONTRACT.

4 Sun Permanent Building Society v Western Suburban and Harrow Road Permanent Building Society [1921] 2 Ch 438 at 458-459, CA, where Warrington LJ stated that although the mortgage debt and security could be transferred without the consent of the mortgagor, other rights and advantages such as those derived from statute and the society's rules could not be transferred.

5 See the Law of Property Act 1925 s 114(1). See also the Land Registration Act 2002 s 27(3) (in the case of registered land); and LAND REGISTRATION vol 26 (2004 Reissue) PARAS 911, 913. Where it is unregistered land, no contrary intention must have been expressed in the mortgage deed: see the Law of Property Act 1925 s 114(1). Where the land is unregistered s 115(2) means that, if it appears from the receipt that the mortgage money is being paid by a person other than the person entitled to the immediate equity of redemption, the receipt will operate as a transfer of mortgage to that person except in the cases provided in s 115(2): see MORTGAGE vol 77 (2010) PARA 649.

6 Under the Law of Property Act 1925 s 114, the transfer must be by way of deed executed by the lender: see MORTGAGE vol 77 (2010) PARA 365. Under the Land Registration Act 2002 s 27(3), the transfer must be in the appropriate form for registration. See also the Land Registration Rules 2003, SI 2003/1417, r 72; and LAND REGISTRATION vol 26 (2004 Reissue) PARA 915. A disposition of a registered charge must, in the case of a transfer, be in Sch 1 Form TR3, TR4 or AS2 as appropriate: see r 116; and LAND REGISTRATION vol 26 (2004 Reissue) PARA 927. An application to register a transfer, assent or charge of registered land or a transfer, assent or sub-charge of a registered charge must be made on Sch 1 Form AP1 (substituted by SI 2005/1982): see the Land Registration Rules 2003, SI 2003/1417, r 13; and LAND REGISTRATION vol 26 (2004 Reissue) PARA 1076.

7 Under the Law of Property Act 1925 s 114 only the rights and powers specified in that provision can be transferred: see MORTGAGE vol 77 (2010) PARA 365. As to the effects of registration under the Land Registration Act 2002 see ss 28, 30; and LAND REGISTRATION vol 26 (2004 Reissue) PARAS 934, 936.

UPDATE

2019 Transfer of mortgage

NOTE 6--SI 2003/417 r 72 substituted, r 116 amended: SI 2008/1919.

Halsbury's Laws of England/FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS (VOLUME 48 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-589; VOLUME 49 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 590-1619; VOLUME 50 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1620-2586)/8. MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(1) BUILDING SOCIETIES/ (iii) Loans Secured on Land/D. REDEMPTION, TRANSFER AND DISCHARGE/(B) Transfer and Discharge of Mortgage/2020. Receipts and surrenders or reconveyances.

2020. Receipts and surrenders or reconveyances.

There are three statutory powers under which a receipt may be given which will operate as a release of property mortgaged to a building society. These are the general statutory powers conferred by the Law of Property Act 1925<sup>1</sup> (in the case of unregistered land) and the Land Registration Act 2002<sup>2</sup> (in the case of registered land), and the special power conferred by the Building Societies Act 1986<sup>3</sup>.

Under the Law of Property Act 1925, the receipt must state the name of the person paying the money, be executed by the mortgagee or the person in whom the mortgaged property is vested and who is legally entitled to give a receipt for the mortgage money, and should be indorsed on, or written at the foot of, or annexed to, the mortgage document<sup>4</sup>. Provided that the receipt is for all the money secured, the receipt operates as a reconveyance<sup>5</sup> or surrender<sup>6</sup> or release, and discharges the mortgaged property from both the principal debt and the interest secured by the mortgage and from all claims under the mortgage<sup>7</sup>. A receipt under the Law of Property Act 1925 may operate as a transfer of the mortgage where the person stated to have paid the money appears from the receipt not to have been the person entitled to the immediate equity of redemption and the receipt does not state that such transfer will not occur<sup>8</sup>.

Under the Land Registration Act 2002, the alternative procedure to a receipt under the Building Societies Act 1986 is the registration of an instrument of discharge in the required form executed as a deed or authenticated in such other manner as the registrar may approve<sup>9</sup>.

In addition, a society may discharge a mortgage by executing a reconveyance<sup>10</sup> or surrender<sup>11</sup> in favour of the owner of the equity of redemption or the reversion expectant on the determination of the mortgage term<sup>12</sup>.

1 See the Law of Property Act 1925 s 115(1); and the text and notes 4-7.

2 As to charges generally see the Land Registration Act 2002 Pt 5 (ss 48-57); the Land Registration Rules 2003, SI 2003/1417, Pt 9 (rr 101-116); and LAND REGISTRATION vol 26 (2004 Reissue) PARA 943 et seq.

A discharge of a registered charge must be in the prescribed form, as must a release of part of the registered estate in a registered title from a registered charge; any discharge or release in the appropriate prescribed form must be executed as a deed or authenticated in such other manner as the Chief Land Registrar may approve; and an application to register such a discharge or release must be made in the prescribed form: see r 114(1), (2), (5); and LAND REGISTRATION vol 26 (2004 Reissue) PARA 959. An application to register a discharge in Sch 1

Form DS1 must be made in Sch 1 Form AP1 (substituted by SI 2005/1982) or the Land Registration Rules 2003, SI 2003/1417, Sch 1 Form DS2 and an application to register a release in Sch 1 Form DS3 must be made in Sch 1 Form AP1 (as so substituted): see r 114(5).

During the currency of any notice under Sch 2 (see LAND REGISTRATION vol 26 (2004 Reissue) PARA 1077), however, and subject to and in accordance with the limitations contained in that notice, notification of the discharge of a registered charge, or of the release of part of a registered title in a registered title from a registered charge, may be delivered to the registrar in electronic form; and such notification so given is to be regarded as having the same effect as a discharge or a release of part in the appropriate prescribed form executed in accordance with the above requirements by or on behalf of the person who has delivered it to the registrar: see r 115(2). Notwithstanding these provisions, the registrar is entitled to accept and act upon any other proof of satisfaction of a charge that he may regard as sufficient: see r 114(4).

4 Law of Property Act 1925 s 115(1).

5 A reconveyance is to the extent of the interest which is the subject matter of the mortgage and is to the person who, immediately before the execution of the receipt, was entitled to the equity of redemption: Law of Property Act 1925 s 115(1)(b). This applies where the mortgage does not take effect by demise or sub-demise: s 115(1)(b).

6 Where a mortgage takes effect by demise or sub-demise such a receipt takes effect as a surrender of the term which either determines the term or merges it in the reversion immediately expectant upon it: Law of Property Act 1925 s 115(1)(a) (but see the text and note 10).

7 Law of Property Act 1925 s 115(1).

8 Law of Property Act 1925 s 115(2). This will not apply if the mortgage is paid off out of capital money, or other money in the hands of a personal representative or trustee properly applicable for the discharge of the mortgage, and it is not expressly provided that the receipt is to operate as a transfer: s 115(2).

9 See the Land Registration Rules 2003, SI 2003/1417, rr 114-115; and note 2.

2021. Receipt under the Building Societies Act 1986.

When all money intended to be secured by a mortgage<sup>1</sup> given to a building society has been fully paid or discharged, the society may indorse on or annex to the mortgage one or other of<sup>2</sup>:

449 (1) a receipt in the prescribed form<sup>3</sup> signed by any person acting under the authority of the board of directors<sup>4</sup>;

450 (2) a reconveyance of the mortgaged property to the mortgagor<sup>5</sup>;

451 (3) a reconveyance of the mortgaged property to such person of full age, and on such trusts, if any, as the mortgagor may direct<sup>6</sup>.

Except where a charge is a registered charge within the meaning of the Land Registration Act 2002<sup>7</sup>, such receipt will operate as a surrender of the term created by the mortgage, or a reconveyance to the person who immediately before the execution of the receipt was entitled to the equity of redemption<sup>8</sup>.

A statutory receipt is a final discharge and after it has been given no claim can be made by the society in respect of any sum secured by the mortgage, even if receipt was given under a mistake<sup>9</sup>. A statutory receipt may be delivered as an escrow<sup>10</sup>.

1 For these purposes, 'mortgage' includes a further charge: Building Societies Act 1986 s 6C (added by the Building Societies Act 1997 s 7(1)), Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 2A para 1(5) (Sch 2A added by the Building Societies Act 1997 Sch 2).

2 Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 2A para 1(1) (as added: see note 1). Schedule 2A para 1 does not apply to Scotland: Sch 2A para 1(6) (as so added). Generally Scottish matters are beyond the scope of this work. Special provision is made in the application of Sch 2A para 1 to Northern Ireland: see Sch 2A para 2 (as so added).

3 The Treasury may make rules for prescribing anything authorised or required by the Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 2A para 1 to be prescribed: Sch 2A para 3(1) (Sch 2A as added (see note 1); and Sch 2A para 3(1) amended by SI 2001/2617). For these purposes, 'prescribed' means prescribed by rules made under the Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 2A para 3: Sch 2A para 3(1) (as so added). The power to make such rules is exercisable by statutory instrument: Sch 2A para 3(2) (as so added). As to the prescribed forms of receipt see the Building Societies (Prescribed Form of Receipt) Rules 1997, SI 1997/2869. The forms must be strictly followed although a mere clerical error may not be fatal: Spice v Bacon (1877) 2 ExD 463, 466. As to the Treasury see PARA 3; and CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 512 et seq.

The Law of Property Act 1925 s 115(9) (see MORTGAGE vol 77 (2010) PARA 645) does not apply to a receipt in the prescribed form indorsed or annexed by a building society in pursuance of the Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 2A para 1(1) (see the text and notes 1-2), and in the application of the Law of Property Act 1925 s 115(9) to a receipt so indorsed or annexed which is not in that form, the receipt will be taken to be executed in the manner required by the statute relating to the society if it is signed as mentioned in the Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 2A para 1(1): Sch 2A para 1(3) (as so added).

4 Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 2A para 1(1)(a) (as added: see note 1). As to the office of director see PARAS 1944-1963.

5 Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 2A para 1(1)(b) (as added: see note 1). For these purposes, 'mortgagor', in relation to a mortgage, means the person for the time being entitled to the equity of redemption: Sch 2A para 1(5) (as so added).

6 Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 2A para 1(1)(c) (as added: see note 1).

7 See LAND REGISTRATION vol 26 (2004 Reissue) PARA 861.

8 See the Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 2A para 1(2) (as added (see note 1); and amended by the Land Registration Act 2002 Sch 11 para 19(1), (2)). The provision under which the receipt operates is the Law of Property Act 1925 s 115(1), (3), (6), (8): see PARA 2020; and MORTGAGE vol 77 (2010) PARAS 645, 649.

9 Harvey v Municipal Permanent Investment Building Society (1884) 26 ChD 273, CA; London and County United Building Society v Angell (1896) 65 LJQB 194. These cases were, however, decided under the Building Societies Act 1874 s 42, which provided that a receipt would vacate 'the mortgage and further charge or debt'. The position may be different under the Building Societies Act 1986, Sch 2A para 1(1)(a) which operates in accordance with the differently worded Law of Property Act 1925 s 115(1) (see note 8) as a 'discharge of the mortgaged property from all principal money and interest'.

10 Lloyds Bank Ltd v Bullock [1896] 2 Ch 192 (where the mortgage with indorsed receipt was handed to the solicitor of the society to be delivered on payment off, and he, without receiving payment, dealt fraudulently with the property, the legal estate remained with the society).

E. ENFORCEMENT OF MORTGAGE

(A) REMEDIES IN GENERAL

2022. Mortgagee's remedies in general.

Where a building society borrower is in default in payment of the mortgage debt, all or any of the normal remedies of a mortgagee in those circumstances are available to the society; that is to say, the society can sue for payment on the covenant to pay principal and interest, for possession of the mortgaged estate, and for foreclosure, and can combine the claims in the same action<sup>1</sup>. The usual course is for the society, subject to the restrictions imposed by the mortgage or by statute, either to seek possession of the mortgaged property with a view to exercising a power of sale conferred by the mortgage or by statute, or else to appoint a receiver<sup>2</sup>.

2023. Bankruptcy of borrower.

If a borrower becomes bankrupt, the building society must submit a proof of debt to the trustee in bankruptcy<sup>1</sup>. The proof of debt should disclose the society's security<sup>2</sup>.

If a society is a secured creditor<sup>3</sup> and realises its security, it may prove for the balance of its debt, after deducting the amount realised<sup>4</sup>.

1 The proof of debt should be submitted in accordance with the Insolvency Rules 1986, SI 1986/1925: see the Insolvency Act 1986 s 322(1); the Insolvency Rules 1986, SI 1986/1925, rr 6.96-6.114; and BANKRUPTCY AND INDIVIDUAL INSOLVENCY vol 3(2) (2002 Reissue) PARAS 528-539, 542-546, 561, 571.

2 If a secured creditor omits to disclose its security in its proof of debt the security must be surrendered for the general benefit of creditors, unless the court, on application, orders otherwise on the ground that the omission was inadvertent or the result of honest mistake: see the Insolvency Rules 1986, SI 1986/1925, r 6.116(1).

3 As to the meaning of 'secured creditor' see the Insolvency Act 1986 s 383 (prospectively amended); and BANKRUPTCY AND INDIVIDUAL INSOLVENCY vol 3(2) (2002 Reissue) PARA 560.

2024. Insolvency of borrower.

Where a loan secured on land has been made by a building society to a company registered in England and Wales and the company becomes insolvent, the rights of the society will depend upon the nature of its security<sup>1</sup> and the procedure being applied to govern the affairs of the insolvent company<sup>2</sup>. Subject to the statutory restrictions when an application for an administration order is pending or such an order is enforced, a specific legal mortgage or equitable charge given by a company may be enforced in the same manner as similar securities given by an individual<sup>3</sup>.

1    le whether there is a specific legal mortgage or an equitable charge, or whether there is merely a debenture giving no charge on the company's assets. See generally COMPANIES.

2    Under the Insolvency Act 1986 there are four types of procedure which govern the administration of the affairs of insolvent companies: (1) voluntary arrangements under Pt I (ss 1-7B); (2) administrations under Pt II (s 8); (3) receivership under Pt III (ss 28-72H); and (4) winding up under Pt IV (ss 73-219), Pt V (ss 220-229) and Pt VI (ss 230-246): see COMPANY AND PARTNERSHIP INSOLVENCY.

(B) SALE OUT OF COURT

2025. Duty to obtain best price.

Where a building society as lender sells land in exercise of a power of sale under a mortgage it owes the borrower a duty to take reasonable care to obtain a proper price<sup>1</sup>.

A society exercising a power of sale as mortgagee is, therefore, in the position of a fiduciary vendor subject to the qualifications that: (1) it is at liberty to sell at such time as it thinks proper; (2) it has the wide discretion given by statute<sup>2</sup> as to the mode of sale; and (3) it has the benefit of the statutory protection<sup>3</sup> given to mortgagees in that it will not be answerable for any involuntary loss happening in the execution of the power of sale<sup>4</sup>.

The property cannot be sold by the society as mortgagee to the secretary, solicitor or other agent of the society acting in the matter of the sale; any attempt at such a sale will be set aside as invalid<sup>5</sup>.

1    Cuckmere Brick Co Ltd v Mutual Finance Ltd [1971] Ch 949, [1971] 2 All ER 633, CA. A similar duty is owed to any subsequent mortgagee (Downsview Nominees Ltd v First City Corporation Ltd [1993] 3 All ER 626, [1993] AC 295, PC) and to any guarantor of the borrower's payment obligations (Standard Chartered Bank Ltd v Walker [1982] 3 All ER 938, [1982] 1 WLR 1410, CA).

Prior to the Building Societies Act 1997, building societies were unique in being placed under a statutory duty to take reasonable care to ensure that the price at which the land was sold was the best price that could reasonably be obtained: see the Building Societies Act 1986 s 13(7), Sch 4 para 1(1)(a) (now repealed by virtue of the Building Societies Act 1997 ss 12(1), 46(2), Sch 9). A building society's duty now follows the general law under Cuckmere Brick Co Ltd v Mutual Finance Ltd above. To avoid the suggestion that the repeal of the Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 4 para 1(1)(a) might place societies in a better position than other lenders, the Building Societies Act 1997 provides that, in relation to any time after the Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 4 ceases to have effect by virtue of the Building Societies Act 1997 s 12(1), any rule of law requiring a lender to take reasonable care to obtain a proper price or true market value will have effect as if the Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 4 para 1(1)(a) (duty to take reasonable care to ensure best price that can reasonably be obtained), and corresponding earlier enactments, had not been enacted: see the Building Societies Act 1997 s 12(2).

Provided that he complies with any procedure stipulated in the mortgage contract, a mortgagor can sell his interest in the mortgaged property. The building society may release the vendor member and substitute the purchaser as a borrowing member of the society taking the necessary steps to ensure that the purchaser is made liable for the covenants contained in the mortgage<sup>1</sup>, although the vendor member may not always be released from personal liability on his covenants<sup>2</sup>. If the society wishes to release him, a formal release should be effected<sup>3</sup>.

2027. Application of proceeds of sale.

Following the exercise of a power of sale, a building society is entitled to retain from the proceeds of such sale all instalments payable up to the time of completion of the sale, together with the outstanding balance of the principal sum remaining at that time unpaid and any costs reasonably incurred by the society in enforcing its security<sup>1</sup>. Whether the society will be entitled to retain any other amounts will depend on the terms of the contract contained in the mortgage and the rules<sup>2</sup>. Any surplus sale money must be paid to the mortgagor<sup>3</sup>.

If a society has notice of a subsequent mortgage and sells the mortgaged property, or joins with the mortgagor in a sale, it will be responsible to the subsequent mortgagee for the surplus proceeds of sale<sup>4</sup>.

In considering the validity of a term which entitled the society to retain future interest, it would now be necessary to have regard to the Unfair Terms in Consumer Contracts Regulations 1999, SI 1999/2083 (as to which see CONTRACT). Where the power of sale is exercised following a default by the borrower, it would also be necessary to consider the impact of the law relating to penalties: compare Lordsvale Finance plc v Bank of Zambia [1996] QB 752, [1996] 3 All ER 156, [1996] 3 WLR 688.

3 See the Law of Property Act 1925 s 105; and MORTGAGE vol 77 (2010) PARA 472. This applies after discharge of any prior incumbrances to which the sale is not made subject; and s 105 stipulates the order in which the proceeds of sale should be applied.

(C) APPOINTMENT OF RECEIVER

2028. Appointment of a receiver by a society.

Like other mortgagees, a building society is entitled to appoint a receiver of the income of the mortgaged property or any part of it<sup>1</sup>. This power is only exercisable when the mortgagee has become entitled to exercise his statutory power of sale, and then the appointment may be made by writing under hand<sup>2</sup>. Although the receiver appointed under the statutory power is deemed to be the agent of the mortgagor, who is solely responsible for the receiver's acts or defaults unless the mortgage deed provides otherwise<sup>3</sup>, he must nevertheless account to the mortgagee for all money received by him<sup>4</sup>.

1 See the Law of Property Act 1925 s 101(1)(iii); and MORTGAGE vol 77 (2010) PARA 476. The power applies only if and so far as a contrary intention is not expressed in the mortgage deed, and has effect subject to the terms of that deed: s 101(4). As to the power to appoint a receiver see further MORTGAGE vol 77 (2010) PARA 469 et seq.

2029. Appointment of a receiver by the court.

Where there has been a breach by a borrower of his obligations under the mortgage, or where the security is otherwise in jeopardy, the building society can obtain an order for the appointment of a receiver by the court, if the circumstances render it just and convenient<sup>1</sup>. However, because the society has the statutory power to appoint a receiver<sup>2</sup> it is not usually necessary for a society to apply to the court for such an order<sup>3</sup>.

(D) ACTION, FORECLOSURE AND POSSESSION

2030. Action by building society.

Where a borrower is in default in making repayment of principal, payments of interest, or of instalments due under the mortgage deed, the building society may take action against him under the covenant contained in the mortgage deed<sup>1</sup>. An action to recover any principal sum is barred 12 years after the right to receive the money accrued<sup>2</sup>, and an action to recover arrears of interest is normally barred after six years from the date on which the interest became due<sup>3</sup>.

An action to enforce the security (typically by claiming possession of the mortgaged property) will usually be taken against the borrower, who will generally be the person who has legal title to the property. Consequently, problems will arise if there are persons who are not named in the legal title but who are entitled to a beneficial interest in the property<sup>4</sup>.

1 See MORTGAGE vol 77 (2010) PARA 514 et seq. Action is now generally to be commenced in the county court: see the County Courts Act 1984 s 15; CPR 55.2, 55.3(1); and CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 11 (2009) PARA 116; COURTS vol 10 (Reissue) PARAS 712, 722. In appropriate cases it may be justified to start a claim in the High Court: see CPR 55.2, 55.3(2), (3); Practice Direction--Possession Claims PD 55 para 1; and CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 11 (2009) PARA 116. As to the allocation of business between the High Court and county courts see the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 1; the High Court and County Courts Jurisdiction Order 1991, SI 1991/724; and COURTS vol 10 (Reissue) PARA 579.

2 See the Limitation Act 1980 s 20(1); and LIMITATION PERIODS vol 68 (2008) PARA 1105. Where the property subject to the mortgage or charge comprises any future interest or life assurance policy and it is a term of the mortgage or charge that arrears of interest are to be treated as part of the principal sum of money secured by the mortgage or charge, interest will not be treated as becoming due before the right to recover the principal sum of money has accrued or is treated as having accrued: see s 20(7); and LIMITATION PERIODS vol 68 (2008) PARA 1117.

3 See the Limitation Act 1980 s 20(5); and LIMITATION PERIODS vol 68 (2008) PARA 1111.

4 Eg a tenant: see PARA 2032. This situation will also arise where the property is in the sole name of a husband, and the wife is entitled to a beneficial interest through her contribution to the purchase price. If the wife's beneficial interest arises after the creation of the mortgage or at about the same time (such as where the advance is used for completion of the purchase of the property) the wife's beneficial interest will be subject to the society's mortgage. If the interest predates the society's mortgage the wife will be bound by the mortgage only if the society had no notice (actual or constructive) of her interest at the date of the mortgage, in the case of unregistered land; and in the case of registered land the wife will have an overriding interest unless the society made prior inquiries of her and that interest was not disclosed: Caunce v Caunce [1969] 1 All ER 722, [1969] 1 WLR 286; Williams & Glyn's Bank Ltd v Boland [1981] AC 487, [1980] 2 All ER 408, HL; Abbey National Building Society v Cann [1991] 1 AC 56, [1990] 1 All ER 1085, HL; Lloyds Bank plc v Rosset [1991] 1 AC 107, [1990] 1 All ER 1111, HL. These cases refer to an overriding interest under the Land Registration Act 1925 s 70(1)(g), but this provision has been repealed: see now the Land Registration Act 2002 ss 11, 12, Sch 1 para 2, Sch 3 para 2; and LAND REGISTRATION vol 26 (2004 Reissue) PARA 866. MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(1) BUILDING SOCIETIES/ (iii) Loans Secured on Land/E. ENFORCEMENT OF MORTGAGE/(D) Action, Foreclosure and Possession/2031. Foreclosure and sale.

2031. Foreclosure and sale.

Like any other mortgagee, a building society is entitled to a decree for foreclosure<sup>1</sup>. Where the sum actually owing is less than the county court limit, although the mortgage is expressed to secure a loan of a larger amount, the proceedings may be taken in the county court<sup>2</sup>.

A society is entitled to add the costs of foreclosure proceedings to its security<sup>3</sup>, unless its conduct has been unreasonable or improper, in which case it may be deprived of its costs and may also be charged with interest on the balance, if any, in its hands<sup>4</sup>.

In foreclosure proceedings the court may direct a sale of the mortgaged property<sup>5</sup>.

MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(1) BUILDING SOCIETIES/ (iii) Loans Secured on Land/E. ENFORCEMENT OF MORTGAGE/(D) Action, Foreclosure and Possession/2032. Tenancies binding on building society as mortgagee.

2032. Tenancies binding on building society as mortgagee.

Tenancies created before the mortgage, or created by the mortgagor after the mortgage under an express or statutory power, are binding on the building society as mortgagee<sup>1</sup>, and the tenant under such a tenancy is entitled as against the society to such statutory protection by way of security of tenure as may be available to him<sup>2</sup>. In building society mortgages, the mortgagor's statutory powers of leasing<sup>3</sup> are usually excluded or exercisable only with the written consent of the mortgagee.

If the mortgagor has no statutory or express power of leasing which can be so exercised as to bind the society, a lease by the mortgagor (during the term of the mortgage) which the society has not recognised will confer only a precarious tenancy, good against the mortgagor but ineffective against the society if it asserts its paramount title<sup>4</sup>. What amounts to recognition of the tenancy by the society depends upon the circumstances of each particular case<sup>5</sup>. Failure by the society to evict the tenant of the mortgagor as a trespasser within a short period after it had obtained knowledge of the letting does not itself amount to such recognition<sup>6</sup>, even though the rent from the tenant is collected by a person who is acting both as the agent of the mortgagor and as the agent, but not as an officer, of the society and who deducts the mortgage repayments from the money received as rent<sup>7</sup>.

1 On going into possession the society is entitled to receive the rents and profits of the tenancies: see MORTGAGE vol 77 (2010) PARA 101 et seq.

2 See LANDLORD AND TENANT vol 27(1) (2006 Reissue) PARA 34. In proceedings taken by a society for possession it may be advisable to sue all occupiers of the premises who are known to claim to have the right to remain in possession as against the society. Other occupiers may be given notice of the proceedings so that they may, if they think fit, apply to be joined as defendants: see Leicester Permanent Building Society v Shearley [1951] Ch 90, [1950] 2 All ER 738. A wife with no immediate prospect of paying off a mortgage on the matrimonial home has no right to be joined in the mortgagee's possession claim against the husband: see Hastings and Thanet Building Society v Goddard [1970] 3 All ER 954, [1970] 1 WLR 1544, CA.

2033. Right to possession of mortgaged property.

A building society, as mortgagee under a legal mortgage, has the right to immediate possession of the mortgaged property, or to receipt of the rent and profits, where no provision is made for retention of possession by the mortgagor<sup>1</sup>, subject to certain statutory restrictions<sup>2</sup>. Under the most common form of building society mortgage, however, the principal, as well as interest, is paid by the mortgagor by periodical instalments, and the society precludes itself from going into possession so long as the periodical payments are punctually made<sup>3</sup>. Where under the terms of such a mortgage the whole of the loan becomes due on default in payment of an instalment, the society, where such default has been made, is entitled<sup>4</sup> to an order for possession of the mortgaged property<sup>5</sup>.

MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(1) BUILDING SOCIETIES/ (iii) Loans Secured on Land/E. ENFORCEMENT OF MORTGAGE/(D) Action, Foreclosure and Possession/2034. Court's power to adjourn, or stay execution in, proceedings for possession of dwelling house.

2034. Court's power to adjourn, or stay execution in, proceedings for possession of dwelling house.

In proceedings for possession of mortgaged property which consists of or includes a dwelling house<sup>1</sup> the court has power to adjourn the proceedings, stay or suspend execution of any judgment or order for possession or postpone the date for delivery of possession for such period as it thinks reasonable where it appears to the court that, if the power is exercised, the borrower is likely within a reasonable period to pay any sum due under the mortgage or to remedy the breach of any other of his obligations under the mortgage<sup>2</sup>.

1 For this purpose 'dwelling house' includes any building or part thereof which is used as a dwelling: Administration of Justice Act 1970 s 39(1). The fact that part of the premises comprised in a dwelling house is used as a shop or office or for business, trade or professional purposes, does not prevent the dwelling house from being a dwelling house: s 39(2).

2 See the Administration of Justice Act 1970 s 36(1), (2). Any adjournment, stay, suspension or postponement may be made subject to such conditions as to payment by the mortgagor of any sum secured by the mortgage or the remedying of any default as the court thinks fit: s 36(3). Such conditions may be varied or revoked by the court: s 36(4). Where a mortgagor is permitted to pay the principal sum by instalments but provision is made for earlier payment in the event of any default by the mortgagor a court may treat as due under the mortgage only such amounts of principal and interest as the mortgagor would have expected to be required to pay if there had been no such provision for earlier payment: see the Administration of Justice Act 1973 s 8(1). See Cheltenham and Gloucester Building Society v Norgan [1996] 1 All ER 449, [1996] 1 WLR 343, CA; and MORTGAGE vol 77 (2010) PARA 556. As to the exercise of the court's powers in a case where a claim for possession is combined with a claim for payment of the mortgage debt, see Cheltenham & Gloucester Building Society v Grattidge (1998) 30 HLR 250.

(iv) Powers of Building Societies

2035. Powers of building societies.

Although a building society incorporated under the Building Societies Act 1986<sup>1</sup> is a body corporate<sup>2</sup>, it does not have all the powers of a corporation at common law<sup>3</sup>. The powers of a society are limited to: (1) those expressly given by the Building Societies Act 1986; (2) those which are incidental to it being a statutory corporation; (3) those expressly given by its memorandum; and (4) those incidental to the powers so given<sup>4</sup>.

Moreover, a society is subject to the common law and to statutory provisions which affect the conduct of its affairs or business, like any other person<sup>5</sup>.

1 As to the incorporation of societies see PARAS 1865-1866.

2 See PARA 1856. As to bodies corporate see generally COMPANIES; CORPORATIONS.

Subject to the provisions of the Building Societies Act 1986, a society has the powers conferred on it by its memorandum: see s 5(5); and PARA 1865. As to the express powers of a society set out in its memorandum see PARAS 1873-1874. A society's capacity is not limited by its memorandum: see PARA 2037. In so far as a society is carrying on any activity comprised in the provision of a banking service, it must be treated for all purposes (1) as a bank and a banker; and (2) as carrying on the business of banking or a banking undertaking, whether or not it would be otherwise so treated: Building Societies Act 1997 s 12(3).

2036. Meaning of 'ultra vires'.

The term 'ultra vires' in its proper sense denotes some act or transaction on the part of a corporation which, although not unlawful or contrary to public policy if done by an individual, is yet beyond the corporation's legitimate powers as defined by the statute under which it is formed, or the statutes which are applicable to it, or by constitution. The doctrine in this sense is no longer applicable to building societies<sup>1</sup>. The term 'ultra vires' is, however, still sometimes used to refer to acts which, while within the corporate capacity of the society, are ultra vires the directors in the sense of being beyond the powers conferred on them by the society or its constitution<sup>2</sup>. The directors are also sometimes described as acting ultra vires where they exercise their powers for an improper purpose<sup>3</sup>.

1 See PARA 2037.

2 The term was also used in two different ways in relation exclusively to the powers of a company in Rolled Steel Products (Holdings) Ltd v British Steel Corp [1982] Ch 478, [1982] 3 All ER 1057 at 1076-1077 per Vinelott J. On appeal, however, the Court of Appeal considered that such use of the term could lead to confusion and that the term should be confined rigidly to 'describing acts which are beyond the corporate capacity of a company': see [1986] Ch 246 at 297, [1985] 3 All ER 52 at 87, CA, per Slade LJ, and at 303 and 91 per Browne-Wilkinson LJ. MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(1) BUILDING SOCIETIES/(iv) Powers of Building Societies/2037. Society's capacity not limited by its memorandum.

2037. Society's capacity not limited by its memorandum.

The validity of an act done by a building society may not be called into question on the ground of lack of capacity by reason of anything included in the society's memorandum<sup>1</sup>. A member of a society<sup>2</sup> may bring proceedings to restrain the doing of an act which would otherwise be beyond the society's capacity; but no such proceedings lie in respect of an act to be done in fulfilment of a legal obligation arising from a previous act of the society<sup>3</sup>. It remains the duty of the directors<sup>4</sup> to observe any limitations on their powers flowing from the society's memorandum; and action by the directors which would otherwise be beyond the society's capacity may only be ratified by the society by special resolution<sup>5</sup>. A resolution ratifying such action does not affect any liability incurred by the directors or any other person; and relief from any such liability must be agreed to separately by special resolution<sup>6</sup>.

MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(1) BUILDING SOCIETIES/(iv) Powers of Building Societies/2038. Powers of directors to bind the society.

2038. Powers of directors to bind the society.

In favour of a person dealing with a building society in good faith, the power of the board of directors<sup>1</sup> to bind the society, or authorise others to do so, is not limited by reason of anything included in the society's constitution<sup>2</sup>, that is to say, its memorandum<sup>3</sup> and rules<sup>4</sup>. For this purpose: (1) a person deals with a society if he is a party to any transaction or other act to which the society is a party<sup>5</sup>; (2) a person is not regarded as acting in bad faith by reason only of his knowing that an act is beyond the powers of the directors under the society's constitution<sup>6</sup>; and (3) a person is presumed to have acted in good faith unless the contrary is proved<sup>7</sup>. The references to limitations on the directors' powers under a society's constitution include limitations deriving from a resolution of the society passed at a general meeting or special meeting<sup>8</sup> or on a postal or electronic ballot<sup>9</sup>, or from any agreement between the members of the society<sup>10</sup>.

This provision<sup>11</sup> does not affect: (a) any right of a member of the society to bring proceedings to restrain the doing of an act which is beyond the powers of the directors, but no such proceedings lie in respect of an act to be done in fulfilment of a legal obligation arising from a previous act of the society<sup>12</sup>; and (b) any liability incurred by the directors, or any other person, by reason of the directors' exceeding their powers<sup>13</sup>.

MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(1) BUILDING SOCIETIES/(iv) Powers of Building Societies/2040. Restrictions on certain transactions.

2040. Restrictions on certain transactions.

Subject to the exceptions mentioned below, a building society must not (and must secure that each of its subsidiary undertakings<sup>1</sup> does not)<sup>2</sup>:

- 452 (1) act as a market maker<sup>3</sup> in securities<sup>4</sup>, commodities<sup>5</sup> or currencies<sup>6</sup>;
- 453 (2) trade in commodities or currencies<sup>7</sup>; and
- 454 (3) enter into any transaction involving derivative investments<sup>8</sup>.

However, a contravention of this rule does not invalidate any transaction or other act<sup>9</sup>.

No transaction entered into by a society, or a subsidiary undertaking of a society, will be taken into account for the purposes of head (1) above if it relates only to securities or currencies or both and the amount or value of the consideration given by the society or undertaking does not exceed £100,000, or it is entered into in the society's or undertaking's capacity as the manager of a collective investment scheme<sup>10</sup>.

No transaction so entered into will be taken into account for the purposes of head (2) above if it relates only to currencies and the amount or value of the consideration given by the society or undertaking does not exceed £100,000, or it is ancillary or incidental to another transaction entered into by the society or undertaking<sup>11</sup>.

The above monetary limits<sup>12</sup> refer to the time when the transaction is entered into, and where the amount or value of the consideration there referred to is not in sterling, it will be converted at the rate of exchange prevailing at that time<sup>13</sup>. For these purposes<sup>14</sup>, two or more transactions which form part of a larger transaction or series of transactions will be treated as a single transaction<sup>15</sup>.

Nothing in head (3) above applies in relation to any transaction entered into by a society, or a subsidiary undertaking of a society, if<sup>16</sup>: (a) it is entered into in the society's or undertaking's capacity as the manager of the collective investment scheme<sup>17</sup>; (b) it is entered into for the purpose of limiting the extent to which the society, or a connected undertaking<sup>18</sup> of the society, will be affected by changes in any of the following factors, namely, interest rates, exchange rates, any index of retail prices, any index of residential property prices, any index of the prices of securities, and the ability or willingness of one or more persons to pay or repay a sum or sums owing at law or in equity to the society or a connected undertaking of the society<sup>19</sup>; or (c) it involves a contract for difference<sup>20</sup> and it is entered into for the purpose of limiting the extent to which any person will be affected by changes in any interest or exchange rate applicable to a loan owed by him to, shares held by him in, or a deposit<sup>21</sup> of his with, the society, or a connected undertaking of the society<sup>22</sup>.

Nothing in head (3) above applies in relation to any transaction entered into by a subsidiary undertaking of a society, if it is entered into in the undertaking's capacity<sup>23</sup>: (i) as a person who has permission under Part IV of the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000<sup>24</sup> to effect or carry out contracts of long-term insurance<sup>25</sup>; or (ii) as an EEA firm<sup>26</sup>, which has permission<sup>27</sup> (as a result of qualifying for authorisation<sup>28</sup>) to effect or carry out contracts of long-term insurance<sup>29</sup>.

A society must also do all that is reasonably practicable to secure that neither it nor any of its subsidiary undertakings, either alone or with any or any others of those undertakings<sup>30</sup>: (A) holds at any time more than five per cent of the issued share capital<sup>31</sup>; or (B) is at any time entitled to exercise, or to control the exercise of, more than five per cent of the voting power at any general meeting<sup>32</sup>, of an undertaking which is, at that time, doing any of the things which the society is prohibited from doing<sup>33</sup>, or an undertaking whose subsidiary undertaking is, at that time, doing any of those things<sup>34</sup>.

The Treasury<sup>35</sup> may by order vary the provisions described above<sup>36</sup> by adding to or deleting from them any provision or by varying any provision contained in them<sup>37</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'subsidiary undertaking' see PARA 1916 note 9.

2 Building Societies Act 1986 s 9A(1) (s 9A added by the Building Societies Act 1997 s 10) (which is expressed to be subject to the Building Societies Act 1986 s 9A(2)-(4): see the text and notes 10-11, 16-22).

As to the power to modify certain legislation applying in relation to building societies see the Banking (Special Provisions) Act 2008 s 11; and PARA 1856 note 1.

3 'Market maker' means, subject to the Building Societies Act 1986 s 9A(10), a person who holds himself out as willing at all normal times to buy or sell at a price specified by him securities, commodities or currencies of a particular description: s 9A(9) (as added: see note 2). A society, or subsidiary undertaking of a society, is not by reason of holding itself out as willing to issue its own securities to be regarded as acting as a market maker in such securities for the purposes of s 9A: s 9A(10) (as so added). See notes 4-5.

4 'Securities' means shares, stock, debentures, debenture stock, loan stock, bonds, units of a collective investment scheme and other securities of any description: Building Societies Act 1986 s 9A(9) (as added: see note 2). As to collective investment schemes see the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 Pt XVII (ss 235-284); and PARAS 601 et seq, 672 et seq.

5 'Commodity' means any produce of agriculture, forestry or fisheries, or any mineral, either in its natural state or having undergone only such processes as are necessary or customary to prepare the produce or mineral for the market: Building Societies Act 1986 s 9A(9) (as added: see note 2).

An order under the Building Societies Act 1986 s 9A(11) or s 9A(12) may make different provision for different cases or purposes, and such supplementary, transitional and saving provision as appears to the Treasury to be necessary or expedient, and the power to make such an order is exercisable by statutory instrument: s 9A(13) (as so added; and amended by SI 2001/2617). No order may be made under the Building Societies Act 1986 s 9A(11) unless a draft of the order has been laid before and approved by a resolution of each House of Parliament: s 9A(14) (as so added). A statutory instrument containing an order under s 9A(12) is subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament: s 9A(15) (as so added). MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(1) BUILDING SOCIETIES/(iv) Powers of Building Societies/2041. Acquisition or establishment of a business.

2041. Acquisition or establishment of a business.

A building society must pass an ordinary resolution<sup>1</sup> in order to<sup>2</sup> acquire or allow a subsidiary undertaking<sup>3</sup> to acquire a business if<sup>4</sup>: (1) in the opinion of the board of directors of the society<sup>5</sup> the greater part of the income of the business is or will be derived from activities having no connection with loans secured on residential property<sup>6</sup>, or the greater part of the resources of the business are or will be devoted to such activities, or the greater part of the business consists or will consist of such activities<sup>7</sup>; (2) X is not less than 15 per cent of Y, where X is the amount or value of the consideration to be given for the shares, voting rights or assets proposed to be acquired, and Y is the amount of the society's own funds<sup>8</sup> as at the relevant date<sup>9</sup>.

A building society must also pass an ordinary resolution in order to establish or allow such an undertaking to establish a business if<sup>10</sup>: (a) in the opinion of the board of directors of the society the greater part of the income of the business is or will be derived from activities having no connection with loans secured on residential property, or the greater part of the resources of the business are or will be devoted to such activities, or the greater part of the business consists or will consist of such activities<sup>11</sup>; (b) X is not less than 15 per cent of Y, where X is the aggregate of the following as estimated by the society<sup>12</sup>: (i) the cost of acquiring, developing, adapting or repairing any premises required for the purposes of the business<sup>13</sup>; (ii) the initial<sup>14</sup> cost of acquiring any plant or equipment, or any intellectual property<sup>15</sup>, so required<sup>16</sup>; (iii) the initial cost of employing or training staff so required<sup>17</sup>; (iv) the cost of obtaining any professional advice required in connection with the establishment of the business<sup>18</sup>; (v) any other non-recurring items of expenditure to be incurred in that connection<sup>19</sup>; and (vi) in the case of a business proposed to be established by a subsidiary undertaking, the amount of any capital to be provided by the society which will not be used for defraying items of expenditure falling within heads (i) to (v) above<sup>20</sup>, and Y is the amount of the society's own funds as at the relevant date<sup>21</sup>.

A failure to comply with the requirements described above does not invalidate any transaction or other act<sup>22</sup>.

In order to be effective for the purposes described above, an ordinary resolution of a society must be passed by a majority of the members of the society entitled to vote<sup>23</sup> on such a resolution and voting either<sup>24</sup> in person or by proxy on a poll<sup>25</sup> on the resolution at a meeting of the society<sup>26</sup>, or in a postal or electronic ballot on the resolution<sup>27</sup>.

The provisions described above do not apply in relation to a society in so far as it undertakes<sup>28</sup> to fulfil engagements transferred to it of another society<sup>29</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'ordinary resolution' see PARA 1983.

2 Building Societies Act 1986 s 92A(1) (s 92A added by the Building Societies Act 1997 s 29).

3 As to the meaning of 'subsidiary undertaking' see PARA 1916 note 9.

4 Building Societies Act 1986 s 92A(1)(a) (as added: see note 2). For the purposes of s 92A(1)(a) and s 92A(4) (see the text to notes 8-9), two or more proposed acquisitions by a society or subsidiary undertaking which will form part of a larger acquisition or series of acquisitions are treated as a single acquisition: s 92A(7) (as so added).

5 As to the office of director see PARAS 1944-1963.

6 As to the meaning of 'residential property' see PARA 1856 note 2.

7 Building Societies Act 1986 s 92A(3) (as added: see note 2).

8 As to the meaning of 'own funds' see PARA 1916 note 15.

9 Building Societies Act 1986 s 92A(4) (as added: see note 2). 'Relevant date' in relation to a building society means: (1) the date of the end of its last financial year or, failing that, the date of its establishment; or (2) where it has been involved in a transfer of engagements, the date of that transfer, whichever is the later: s 92A(9) (as so added). The Treasury may by order vary s 92A(9): see note 12. As to the Treasury see PARA 3; and CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 512 et seq. As to the meaning of 'financial year' see PARA 1992 note 2. As to the transfer of engagements see PARA 1918 et seq.

11 Building Societies Act 1986 s 92A(3) (as added: see note 2).

12 Building Societies Act 1986 s 92A(5) (as added: see note 2). The Treasury may by order substitute for the percentage specified in s 92A(4) (see the text to notes 8-9) or s 92A(5) such other percentage as appears to it to be appropriate, and such order may make such supplementary, transitional and saving provision as appears to the Treasury to be necessary or expedient: s 92A(10) (as so added; and amended by SI 2001/2617). The Treasury may by order vary the Building Societies Act 1986 s 92A(5) and s 92A(9) (see notes 9, 14-15) by adding to or deleting from them any provision or by varying any provision contained in them, and such order may make different provisions for different cases or purposes, and such supplementary, transitional and saving provision as appears to the Treasury to be necessary or expedient: s 92A(11) (as so added; and amended by SI 2001/2617). The power to make an order under the Building Societies Act 1986 s 92A(10) or s 92A(11) is exercisable by statutory instrument which is subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament: s 92A(12) (as so added). At the date at which this volume states the law no such order had been made.

14 'Initial', in relation to any cost, means incurred, or likely in the directors' opinion to be incurred, not later than 12 months after the establishment of the business: Building Societies Act 1986 s 92A(9) (as added: see note 2). The Treasury may by order vary s 92A(9): see note 12.

15 'Intellectual property' includes: (1) any patent, know-how, trade mark, service mark, registered design, copyright or design right; and (2) any licence under or in respect of any such right: Building Societies Act 1986 s 92A(9) (as added: see note 2). The Treasury may by order vary s 92A(9): see note 12. 21 Building Societies Act 1986 s 92A(5) (as added: see note 2).

22 Building Societies Act 1986 s 92A(1) (as added: see note 2). Where a business is proposed to be acquired or established by a syndicate whose members include a society or subsidiary undertaking: (1) s 92A(1) has effect as if the business were proposed to be acquired or, as the case may be, established by the society; and (2) whichever of s 92A(4) (see the text to notes 8-9) and s 92A(5) (see the text to notes 12-21) is applicable has effect as if X were only so much of X as is referable to participation in the syndicate by the society or undertaking: s 92A(6) (as so added).

24 Building Societies Act 1986 s 92A(2) (as added: see note 2).

25 As to the appointment of proxies see PARA 1986; and as to the right to demand a poll see PARA 1987.

26 Building Societies Act 1986 s 92A(2)(a) (as added: see note 2). In a case falling within s 92A(2)(a), a form for the appointment of a proxy must be sent to each person entitled to notice of the meeting: s 92A(2) (as so added). As to the meaning of 'notice' see PARA 1866 note 8. As to persons entitled to receive notice of meetings see PARA 1985. As to meetings and resolutions generally see PARA 1974 et seq.

MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(1) BUILDING SOCIETIES/(iv) Powers of Building Societies/2042. Restriction on the creation of floating charges.

2042. Restriction on the creation of floating charges.

A building society must not create a floating charge<sup>1</sup> on the whole or part of its undertaking or property<sup>2</sup>. A floating charge created in contravention of this prohibition is void<sup>3</sup>.

2 Building Societies Act 1986 s 9B(1) (s 9B added by the Building Societies Act 1997 s 11).

Halsbury's Laws of England/FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS (VOLUME 48 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-589; VOLUME 49 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 590-1619; VOLUME 50 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1620-2586)/8. MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(1) BUILDING SOCIETIES/(iv) Powers of Building Societies/2043. Liabilities of associated bodies.

2043. Liabilities of associated bodies.

If a body corporate is linked by resolution<sup>1</sup> with a building society or is a subsidiary of the society, then the society is under an obligation to discharge certain liabilities<sup>2</sup> of that associated body<sup>3</sup> in so far as that body is unable to discharge them out of its own assets<sup>4</sup>. This obligation does not extend to liabilities of the body to its members other than the building society with which it is associated<sup>5</sup>.

1 For these purposes, a body corporate is 'linked by resolution' to a building society if the board of directors of the society has passed a resolution making the power to support the body exercisable in relation to that body and the resolution is in force: Building Societies Act 1986 s 18(9); definition applied by s 22(3) (repealed subject to savings: see note 2).

2 Although the Building Societies Act 1986 s 22 has been repealed by the Deregulation (Building Societies) Order 1995, SI 1995/3233, art 5(1), it continues to have effect in relation to any liability which: (1) is incurred before 11 June 1996 (ie the day the Deregulation (Building Societies) Order 1995 SI 1995/3233, art 5 came into force: see art 1); or (2) arises out of an obligation entered into before that date; or (3) in the case of a liability in tort or delict, is referable to an act or omission occurring before that date: art 5(2). See also the Building Societies Act 1997 ss 12(1), 46(2), Sch 9.

3 For these purposes, 'associated body', in relation to a building society, means a body as respects which any of the following conditions is satisfied: (1) the body is one in which the society holds shares or corresponding membership rights; or (2) the body is one to which the society is linked by resolution; or (3) the body is one in which shares or corresponding membership rights are held by a body within head (1) or head (2) above (the body not being one whose objects enable it to carry on activities outside the powers of the society and the investment or support being made or given with the consent of the Financial Services Authority and subject to any conditions specified in the consent): Building Societies Act 1986 s 18(8)(b), (17); definition applied by s 22(3) (repealed subject to savings: see note 2). However note that s 22(1) (repealed subject to savings) only applies to a body corporate linked by resolution or a subsidiary, not to all associated bodies. As to the Financial Services Authority see PARA 1863. As to the Authority generally see PARAS 4, 6 et seq.

5 Building Societies Act 1986 s 22(2) (repealed subject to savings: see note 2). See further the Building Societies (Transfer of Business) Regulations 1998, SI 1998/212, reg 8; and PARA 1938 note 5.

MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(1) BUILDING SOCIETIES/(iv) Powers of Building Societies/2044. Tying-in arrangements.

2044. Tying-in arrangements.

As from a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect<sup>1</sup>. A person (the 'lender') may not provide a residential property loan<sup>2</sup> together with one or more controlled services<sup>3</sup> to another person (the 'borrower') unless certain conditions are complied with before a relevant step<sup>4</sup> is taken with respect to any of those services or the loan<sup>5</sup>. The conditions are that the lender:

- 455 (1) informs the borrower by notice<sup>6</sup> that the residential property loan and each of the controlled services in question are separate services<sup>7</sup>;
- 456 (2) informs the borrower by notice whether the terms and conditions of the residential property loan will be capable of being varied by the lender after it is made<sup>8</sup>;
- 457 (3) provides the borrower with a statement of<sup>9</sup>: (a) the price<sup>10</sup> which will be payable by the borrower for each of the controlled services if they are all provided in accordance with the terms proposed by the lender<sup>11</sup>; and (b) the extent to which, if at all, the terms and conditions of the residential property loan would differ if it were to be provided by the lender without the controlled services in question being provided by the lender<sup>12</sup>; and
- 458 (4) informs the borrower by notice that, if the borrower declines to take from the lender any of the controlled services in question, the lender will not on that account refuse to provide the residential property loan<sup>13</sup>.

These conditions do not apply to the provision of a controlled service if the lender proves that the provision of that service was not connected with the transaction in respect of which the borrower required the residential property loan in question, or, where it was so connected, that he did not know, and had no reasonable cause to know, that it was<sup>14</sup>.

A person who (i) in the course of his business provides, or makes arrangements for the provision of, controlled services together with residential property loans<sup>15</sup>; and (ii) advertises or in any other manner promotes the provision of any controlled service or any residential property loan, or the making by him of any such arrangements<sup>16</sup>, must comply with such requirements as to the information to be given, or which may not be given, in any such advertisement or promotion, as regulations made by the Secretary of State may impose<sup>17</sup>.

For these purposes: (A) where a lender is a member of a group of companies<sup>18</sup>, the lender and all the other members of the group are treated as one<sup>19</sup>; and (B) where the lender derives any financial benefit from the provision of a controlled service by any other person, the lender is treated as providing that service<sup>20</sup>.

1 The Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 ss 104-107 (see also para 2045) are to be brought into force by order made by the Lord Chancellor or by the Secretary of State or by both acting jointly under s 124(3) as from a day to be appointed under s 124(3). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed. As to the Lord Chancellor see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 477 et seq. As to the Secretary of State see PARA 3.

2 'Residential property loan' means any loan which is secured on land in the United Kingdom and is made to an individual in respect of the acquisition of land which is for his residential use or the residential use of a dependant of his: Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 104(1). As to the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 2 note 3. The Secretary of State may by order specify the circumstances in which land is to be treated as being for a person's residential use and who are to be treated as a person's dependants: s 105(3). At the date at which this volume states the law no such order had been made.

Before making any order or regulations under s 104 or under s 105 the Secretary of State must consult the Office of Fair Trading and such other persons as he considers appropriate: s 105(10) (amended by the Enterprise Act 2002 Sch 25 para 23(1), (7)). As to the Office of Fair Trading see COMPETITION vol 18 (2009) PARA 6 et seq. See note 1.

3 'Controlled services' means any services of a description prescribed by order made by the Secretary of State: Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 105(1). The order may prescribe any description of: (1) banking, insurance, investment, trusteeship, executorship or other financial services; (2) services relating to the acquisition, valuation, surveying or disposal of property; (3) conveyancing services; or (4) removal services: s 105(2). See notes 1, 2. At the date at which this volume states the law no such order had been made. 'Conveyancing services' means the preparation of transfers, conveyances, contracts and other documents in connection with, and other services ancillary to, the disposition or acquisition of estates or interests in land: s 119(1).

4 'Relevant step', in relation to any controlled service or residential property loan, means such step as may be prescribed by order made by the Secretary of State in relation to that service or loan (taken by such person as may be so prescribed): Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 105(8). See notes 1, 2. At the date at which this volume states the law no such order had been made.

5 Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 104(2). Section 104(2) does not apply in relation to the provision of a controlled service if the lender proves: (1) that the provision of that service was not connected with the transaction in respect of which the borrower required the residential property loan in question; or (2) where it was so connected, that the lender did not know, and had no reasonable cause to know, that it was: s 105(4). See note 1.

6 'Notice' means a notice in writing given in the form prescribed by regulations made by the Secretary of State: Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 105(8). See notes 1, 2. At the date at which this volume states the law no such regulations had been made.

8 Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 104(3)(b). See note 1.

9 Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 104(3)(c). 'Statement' means a statement in writing given in the form prescribed by regulations made by the Secretary of State: s 105(8). See notes 1, 2. At the date at which this volume states the law no such regulations had been made.

10 'Price' has the meaning given by order made by the Secretary of State: Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 105(8). See notes 1, 2. At the date at which this volume states the law no such order had been made.

11 Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 104(3)(c)(i). See note 1.

12 Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 104(3)(c)(ii). See note 1.

14 Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 105(4). See note 1.

16 Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 104(4)(b). See note 1.

17 Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 104(4). See notes 1, 2. At the date at which this volume states the law no such regulations had been made.

18 'Group of companies' means a holding company and its subsidiaries within the meaning of the Companies Act 1985 s 736 (prospectively repealed) (see COMPANIES vol 14 (2009) PARA 25) (as to the replacement provision see the Companies Act 2006 s 1159): Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 105(6). See note 1.

19 Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 105(5)(a). The Secretary of State may by order provide that, in such cases or for such purposes as may be prescribed by the order, s 105(5)(a) or s 105(5)(b) (see the text to note 20) is not to have effect: s 105(7). See notes 1, 2. At the date at which this volume states the law no such order had been made.

2044 Tying-in arrangements

NOTE 18--In definition of 'group of companies' reference to Companies Act 1985 s 736 now to Companies Act 2006 s 1159: Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 105(6) (amended by SI 2009/1941).

5TH EDITION, PARAS 1620-2586)/8. MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(1) BUILDING SOCIETIES/(iv) Powers of Building Societies/2045. Offences and enforcement.

2045. Offences and enforcement.

As from a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect<sup>1</sup>. Contravention of the tying-in provisions<sup>2</sup> is an offence<sup>3</sup>. The lender also commits an offence if he refuses to provide the borrower with the residential property loan<sup>4</sup> or refuses to provide it to him on the terms applicable if it were provided together with the controlled services<sup>5</sup>, or where they differ, on terms which are compatible with the statement required by the tying-in provisions<sup>6</sup>, unless he proves that his reason for so refusing was unconnected with the borrower's having declined to take from the lender one or more of the controlled services<sup>7</sup>. This applies where the lender has, in relation to the proposed residential property loan together with one or more controlled services, complied with the statutory conditions<sup>8</sup>, and the borrower has declined to take from the lender one or more of the controlled services<sup>9</sup>. Any person guilty of such an offence is liable on summary conviction or on conviction on indictment to a fine<sup>10</sup>. If the offence is proved to have been committed with the consent or connivance of, or to be attributable to any neglect on the part of, any director, secretary or other similar officer of a body corporate or any person who was purporting to act in any such capacity, he, as well as the body corporate, is guilty of the offence and liable to be proceeded against and punished accordingly<sup>11</sup>. The fact that a person has committed an offence under this provision in connection with any agreement does not make the agreement void or unenforceable, in whole or in part, or otherwise affect its validity or give rise to any cause of action for breach of statutory duty<sup>12</sup>.

Every local weights and measures authority (an 'authority'), and the Office of Fair Trading, has the duty of enforcing the tying-in provisions<sup>13</sup> and any regulations made under them<sup>14</sup>. Where an authority proposes to institute proceedings it must give the Office of Fair Trading notice of the intended proceedings and a summary of the relevant facts<sup>15</sup>. The authority must not institute proceedings until the end of the period of 28 days beginning with the date on which it gave the required notice and summary, or, if earlier, the date on which the Office of Fair Trading notifies it of receipt of the notice and summary<sup>16</sup>. Every authority must, whenever the Office of Fair Trading requires, report to it in such form and with such particulars as it requires on the exercise of its functions under this provision<sup>17</sup>. A duly authorised officer of the Office of Fair Trading or of an authority (an 'authorised officer') who has reasonable cause to suspect that an offence may have been committed<sup>18</sup> may, at any reasonable time<sup>19</sup>:

- 459 (1) enter any premises which are not used solely as a dwelling<sup>20</sup>;
- 460 (2) require any officer, agent or other competent person on the premises who is, or may be, in possession of information relevant to an investigation in connection with the provision made<sup>21</sup> to provide such information<sup>22</sup>;
- 461 (3) require the production<sup>23</sup> of any document<sup>24</sup> which may be relevant to such an investigation<sup>25</sup>;
- 462 (4) take copies, or extracts, of any such documents<sup>26</sup>;
- 463 (5) seize and retain any document which he has reason to believe may be required as evidence in proceedings for an offence<sup>27</sup>.

Any authorised officer exercising any such power must, if asked to do so, produce evidence that he is such an officer<sup>28</sup>. A justice of the peace may issue a warrant if satisfied, on information on oath given by an authorised officer, that there is reasonable cause to believe that an offence may have been committed and that<sup>29</sup>: (a) entry to the premises concerned, or production of any documents which may be relevant to an investigation in connection with the tying-in provisions<sup>30</sup>, has been or is likely to be refused to the authorised officer<sup>31</sup>; or (b) there is reasonable cause to believe that, if production of any such document were to be required by the authorised officer without such a warrant having been issued, the document would not be produced but would be removed from the premises or hidden, tampered with or destroyed<sup>32</sup>.

A person commits an offence if he:

- 464 (i) intentionally obstructs an authorised officer in the exercise of any power under this provision<sup>33</sup>;
- 465 (ii) intentionally fails to comply with any requirement properly imposed on him by an authorised officer in the exercise of any such power<sup>34</sup>;
- 466 (iii) fails, without reasonable excuse, to give to an authorised officer any assistance or information which he may reasonably require of him for the purpose of exercising any such power<sup>35</sup>; or
- 467 (iv) in giving to an authorised officer any information which he has been required to give to an authorised officer exercising any such power, makes any statement which he knows to be false or misleading in a material particular<sup>36</sup>.

A person guilty of such an offence is liable on summary conviction to a fine<sup>37</sup>. However, a person is not required to answer any question put to him by an authorised officer, or to give any information to an authorised officer, if to do so might incriminate him<sup>38</sup>.

1 The Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 ss 104-107 (see also para 2044) are to be brought into force by order made by the Lord Chancellor or by the Secretary of State or by both acting jointly under s 124(3) as from a day to be appointed under s 124(3). ### A. AUTHORISATION

2046. Initial authorisation by the Financial Services Authority.

No person<sup>1</sup> may carry on a regulated activity in the United Kingdom<sup>2</sup>, or purport to do so, unless he is an authorised person<sup>3</sup>, or an exempt person<sup>4</sup>. This prohibition is referred to as the 'general prohibition'<sup>5</sup>. An activity is a regulated activity for these purposes if it is an activity of a specified kind<sup>6</sup> which is carried on by way of business and relates to an investment<sup>7</sup> of a specified kind or, in the case of an activity of a kind which is also specified for this purpose, is carried on in relation to property of any kind<sup>8</sup>. As accepting deposits and entering into regulated mortgage contracts as lender constitute regulated activities, building societies are required to be authorised by obtaining a Part IV permission under the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 to carry on these activities<sup>9</sup>.

A building society which, immediately before 1 December 2001<sup>10</sup>, was authorised or treated as authorised for the purposes of the Building Societies Act 1986 is treated as having been given, on 1 December 2001, a Part IV permission to carry on any regulated activities which, immediately before 1 December 2001, it was by reason of that authorisation able to carry on in the United Kingdom without contravening the Building Societies Act 1986<sup>11</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'person' see PARA 2035 note 5.

2 As to the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 2 note 3.

3 As to the meaning of 'authorised person' see PARA 314 note 8. The following persons are authorised for these purposes: (1) a person who has a Part IV permission to carry on one or more regulated activities; (2) an EEA firm qualifying for authorisation under the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 Sch 3; (3) a Treaty firm qualifying for authorisation under Sch 4; (4) a person who is otherwise authorised by a provision of, or made under, the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000: see s 31(1); and PARA 226. A Part IV permission under the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 is a permission given by the Financial Services Authority under Pt IV (ss 40-55) (see PARA 348 et seq) or having effect as if so given: see s 40(4); and PARA 348. As to the meaning of 'EEA firm' see PARA 315 note 1. As to the meaning of 'Treaty firm' see PARA 319 note 1. As to the functions of the Financial Services Authority in relation to building societies see PARA 1863. As to the Authority generally see PARAS 4, 6 et seq.

4 See the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 s 19(1); and PARA 80. As to the meaning of 'exempt person' see PARA 80 note 4.

5 See the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 s 19(2); and PARA 80.

6 As to the meaning of 'specified' see PARA 84 note 1. As to the specified activities and investments for the purposes of the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 see the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 (Regulated Activities) Order 2001, SI 2001/544; and PARA 88 et seq.

7 As to the meaning of 'investment' see PARA 84 note 2. See also note 6.

8 See the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 s 22(1); and PARA 84. As to the regulated activities see s 22(2), (3), Sch 2; and PARAS 84-85.

9 See the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 (Regulated Activities) Order 2001, SI 2001/544, Pt II Ch II (arts 5-9AA) (see PARA 89 et seq), Pt II Ch XV (arts 61-63A) (see PARA 203 et seq). As defined in art 61(3)(a), a 'regulated mortgage contract' includes most contracts for the provision of credit to an individual on the security of a first mortgage of residential property in the United Kingdom: see PARA 203 note 1. See also Pt II Ch XVA (arts 63B-63E) (regulated home reversion plans) (see PARA 209 et seq) and Pt II Ch XVB (arts 63F-63I) (regulated home purchase plans) (see PARA 215 et seq). Accepting deposits is a regulated activity from 1 December 2001, and entering into a regulated mortgage contract as lender or administering a regulated mortgage contract are both regulated activities from 31 October 2004 (ie a day specified by the Treasury): see art 2(1), (2)(b) (amended by SI 2002/1777); and the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 (Commencement No 7) Order 2001, SI 2001/3538, art 2(1). Any day so specified must be notified at least one week in advance by publication in the London, Edinburgh and Belfast Gazettes: see the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 (Regulated Activities) Order 2001, SI 2001/544, art 2(3) (added by SI 2002/1777): see the London Gazette, 14 July 2003.

10 In the commencement of the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 s 19: see the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 (Transitional Provisions) (Authorised Persons etc) Order 2001, SI 2001/2636, art 2(1)(b); and the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 (Commencement No 7) Order 2001, SI 2001/3538, art 2(1).

11 See the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 (Transitional Provisions) (Authorised Persons etc) Order 2001, SI 2001/2636, art 22 (amended by SI 2001/3650). The text refers to contravention of the Building Societies Act 1986 s 9(1) (now repealed), which provided for the initial authorisation of societies by the Building Societies Commission under the Building Societies Act 1986. Transitional provisions provide that where immediately before 1 December 2001 a society was subject to a condition on its authorisation or subject to a direction then the condition or direction has effect after 1 December 2001 as if it were a requirement imposed on the society under the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 s 43: see the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 (Transitional Provisions) (Authorised Persons etc) Order 2001, SI 2001/2636, art 50.

2046 Initial authorisation by the Financial Services Authority

NOTE 9--See also SI 2001/544 Pt II Ch XVC (arts 63J-63M) (regulated sale and rent back agreements) (PARA 220A).

Halsbury's Laws of England/FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS (VOLUME 48 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-589; VOLUME 49 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 590-1619; VOLUME 50 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1620-2586)/8. MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(1) BUILDING SOCIETIES/(v) The Financial Services Authority's Powers of Control/A. AUTHORISATION/2047. Power to direct restructuring of business.

2047. Power to direct restructuring of business.

Where a building society has failed to comply with the relevant statutory requirements<sup>1</sup>, certain powers become exercisable by the Financial Services Authority<sup>2</sup> in relation to the society<sup>3</sup>. The Authority may give the society a direction<sup>4</sup>:

- 468 (1) requiring the society, within a specified period, to submit for its approval a restructuring plan designed to secure that<sup>5</sup>: (a) the society will, by the end of a specified period, comply with the relevant statutory requirements as applied at the last day of that period<sup>6</sup>; and (b) it will not thereafter fail to comply with those requirements<sup>7</sup>;
- 469 (2) requiring the society, within a specified period, to submit to its members<sup>8</sup> for their approval at a meeting the requisite transfer resolutions<sup>9</sup> for a transfer of the business of the society to a company<sup>10</sup>, and to notify<sup>11</sup> the Authority of the result of the meeting<sup>12</sup>; or
- 470 (3) requiring the society, at its option, within a specified period to submit for approval a restructuring plan or to submit to its members for their approval at a meeting the requisite transfer resolutions for a transfer of the business of the society to a company<sup>13</sup>, and to notify the Authority, within a specified period, of the option it has decided to pursue<sup>14</sup>.

Where the Authority gives a direction under head (1), head (2) or head (3) above, it may also give a direction<sup>15</sup>:

- 471 (i) imposing limitations on the issue of shares<sup>16</sup>, the acceptance of deposits<sup>17</sup> or the making of loans<sup>18</sup>;
- 472 (ii) requiring the society within a specified period to take certain steps, or to refrain from adopting or pursuing a particular course of action, or to restrict the scope of its business in a particular way<sup>19</sup>;
- 473 (iii) requiring the society within a specified period to take steps with regard to the conduct of the business of any connected undertaking<sup>20</sup> of the society<sup>21</sup>;
- 474 (iv) requiring within a specified period the removal of any director or other officer<sup>22</sup>.

Where a restructuring plan is submitted by a society to the Authority under head (1) or head (3) above then if it appears to the Authority that the plan is reasonably likely to secure its purposes, the Authority must approve it and direct the society to carry it out, or if it appears to the Authority that the plan is, with modifications, likely to secure its purposes and the Authority and the society agree on appropriate modifications within the period of 21 days from the date on which the Authority notifies the society of the modifications it proposes for the society's agreement, the Authority must approve the plan as modified and direct the society to carry it out, but otherwise the Authority must reject the plan<sup>23</sup>.

Where a meeting is held in pursuance of a direction under head (2) or head (3) above for the purpose of voting on the requisite transfer resolutions, then if the resolutions are agreed to and the confirmation<sup>24</sup> of the transfer by the Authority is obtained, the society must proceed<sup>25</sup> to transfer its business to a successor company, or if either resolution is disagreed to, the society must notify the Authority of that fact as soon as it is practicable to do so<sup>26</sup>.

The Authority may, if it thinks fit, extend or further extend any period during which a society is to take any steps required of it<sup>27</sup> and may do so whether or not application is made to it before the expiry of the period in question<sup>28</sup>.

If a society which has been directed<sup>29</sup> to carry out a restructuring plan fails, within the period allowed to it, to secure the purpose of the plan specified in head (a) above, the powers conferred on the Authority to make prohibition orders<sup>30</sup> become exercisable in relation to the society<sup>31</sup>.

If a society fails, within the period allowed to it:

- 475 (A) where it has been so directed, to submit a restructuring plan<sup>32</sup>;
- 476 (B) where it has been so directed, to submit to members the requisite transfer resolutions<sup>33</sup>;
- 477 (C) where it has been so directed, to either submit a restructuring plan or submit to members the requisite transfer resolutions<sup>34</sup>;
- 478 (D) where it has been given a direction under heads (i) to (iv) above, to comply with any requirement imposed by the direction<sup>35</sup>;
- 479 (E) where it has been directed to carry out a restructuring plan, to secure the purpose of the plan specified in head (a) above<sup>36</sup>;
- 480 (F) to agree to the requisite transfer resolutions submitted to the members<sup>37</sup>; or
- 481 (G) where it has agreed to the requisite transfer resolutions, to proceed<sup>38</sup> to transfer its business to the successor company<sup>39</sup>, or if the Authority rejects a restructuring plan, the powers conferred on the Authority to petition to the High Court for the winding up of the society<sup>40</sup> become exercisable in relation to the society<sup>41</sup>.

The provisions described above do not imply that it is improper for the Authority to give to a society or societies generally an indication of the action it might or might not take in relation to any proposed activity<sup>42</sup>.

1 The 'relevant statutory requirements' are: (1) the requirement imposed by the Building Societies Act 1986 s 5(1)(a) or s 5(1)(b) (purpose or principal purpose and principal office) (see PARA 1856); (2) the requirement imposed by s 6(1) (the lending limit) (see PARA 2008); or (3) the requirement imposed by s 7(1) (the funding limit) (see PARA 1916): s 36(1) (s 36 substituted by the Building Societies Act 1997 s 13(1)).

2 As to the functions of the Financial Services Authority in relation to building societies see PARA 1863. As to the Authority generally see PARAS 4, 6 et seq.

3 Building Societies Act 1986 s 36(1) (as substituted (see note 1); and s 36(1)-(13), (16) amended by SI 2001/2617).

MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(1) BUILDING SOCIETIES/(v) The Financial Services Authority's Powers of Control/A. AUTHORISATION/2048. Power to make prohibition orders.

2048. Power to make prohibition orders.

If a building society which has been directed to carry out a restructuring plan<sup>1</sup> fails within the period allowed to it<sup>2</sup> to secure the purpose of the plan<sup>3</sup> the Financial Services Authority<sup>4</sup> may issue a prohibition order directed to the society<sup>5</sup>. A prohibition order is an order: (1) prohibiting, subject to the saving or transitional provisions of the order<sup>6</sup>, the continuance or, as the case may be, the carrying on of the activity specified in the order after a date so specified, either absolutely or unless conditions so specified are complied with<sup>7</sup>; and (2) requiring, subject to the saving or transitional provisions of the order, the disposal within a period specified in the order of all assets acquired or otherwise in its possession by virtue of the activity<sup>8</sup>. A disposal of assets in pursuance of a prohibition order vests the assets in the transferee but without prejudice to any claim against the society by a person who had an interest in the assets<sup>9</sup>.

If the Authority proposes to issue a prohibition order it must give the society a warning notice<sup>10</sup>. If the Authority then decides to issue a prohibition order it must give the society a decision notice, and may issue the order at the same time as or after giving the decision notice<sup>11</sup>. A warning notice or decision notice about a prohibition order must set out the terms of the order which the Authority proposes, or has decided, to make, including any saving or transitional provisions to be included in it<sup>12</sup>.

If the Authority issues a prohibition order it must serve the order on the society and must keep a copy of the order in the public file of the society<sup>13</sup>. A copy of the order must also be served on each director and on the chief executive of the society<sup>14</sup>. A prohibition order takes effect on the date specified in the order<sup>15</sup> and remains in force until revoked by the Authority<sup>16</sup>. The Authority may suspend or revoke a prohibition order so far as it relates to an asset the disposal of which appears to it, on the application of the society, to be impracticable<sup>17</sup>.

If a society contravenes a prohibition order issued against it the power conferred on the Authority to present a petition to the High Court<sup>18</sup> for the winding up of the society<sup>19</sup> becomes exercisable in relation to the society, and the Authority may exercise that power or certify the contravention in writing<sup>20</sup> to the High Court, or do both of those things, but the contravention does not invalidate any transaction or other act<sup>21</sup>. On receiving such a certification, the High Court may inquire into the case and after hearing any witnesses who may be produced against or on behalf of the society and after hearing any statement which may be offered in defence, may punish the society in like manner as if it had been guilty of contempt of the court<sup>22</sup>. Where a contravention of a prohibition order which is so certified is proved to have been committed with the consent or connivance of, or to be attributable to any neglect on the part of, any officer<sup>23</sup> of the society he, as well as the society, may be punished in like manner as if he had been guilty of contempt of the court<sup>24</sup>.

MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(1) BUILDING SOCIETIES/(v) The Financial Services Authority's Powers of Control/A. AUTHORISATION/2049. Power to petition for winding up etc.

2049. Power to petition for winding up etc.

Where (1) a building society is in breach of certain statutory provisions<sup>1</sup>; (2) it contravenes a prohibition order<sup>2</sup>; or (3) the Financial Services Authority<sup>3</sup> has reason to believe that the purpose or principal purpose of the society has ceased to be that required for the establishment of a society under the Building Societies Act 1986<sup>4</sup>, the Authority may present a petition to the High Court<sup>5</sup> for the winding up of the society under the applicable winding up legislation<sup>6</sup>. In a case falling within head (1) above, the Authority may instead make an application to the High Court for an order giving directions to the society<sup>7</sup>. The power to present a petition or to make an application for such an order is available to the Authority whether or not it has previously presented a petition or made an application for such an order, as the case may be<sup>8</sup>.

The order in response to an application for an order giving directions to the society is an order directing the society to comply with the relevant direction<sup>9</sup> as directed in the order, or to carry out a restructuring plan as directed in the order<sup>10</sup>. Where the High Court makes such an order, the Authority must keep a copy of the order in the public file of the society<sup>11</sup>. The High Court must not make an order winding up the society on an application under head (3) above unless it is satisfied that the purpose or principal purpose of the society has ceased to be that required for the establishment of a society under the Building Societies Act 1986<sup>12</sup>.

MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(1) BUILDING SOCIETIES/(v) The Financial Services Authority's Powers of Control/A. AUTHORISATION/2050. Power to direct transfers of engagements or business.

2050. Power to direct transfers of engagements or business.

If, with respect to a building society which has a permission under Part IV of the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 to accept deposits<sup>1</sup>, the Financial Services Authority<sup>2</sup> considers it expedient to do so in order to protect the investments of shareholders or depositors<sup>3</sup>, it may either direct the society, within a specified period<sup>4</sup>: (1) to transfer all its engagements to one or more other societies<sup>5</sup>; or (2) to transfer its business to an existing company<sup>6</sup>. If it appears to the Authority that a society has failed to comply with such a direction, the Authority may exercise its power to vary or cancel a Part IV permission on its own initiative under the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000<sup>7</sup> in relation to the society<sup>8</sup>.

Where the Authority gives a society a direction under head (1) above, or does not give a society such a direction solely because the society is already seeking to transfer all its engagements to one or more other societies, the Authority may, if it considers it expedient to do so in order to protect the investments of shareholders or depositors, direct that, instead of resolving to transfer its engagements by the two resolutions required by statute<sup>9</sup>, the society may resolve to do so by a resolution of the board of directors<sup>10</sup>. Where the Authority gives a society a direction under head (2) above, or does not give a society such a direction solely because the society is already seeking to transfer its business to an existing company, the Authority may, if it considers it expedient to do so in order to protect the investments of shareholders or depositors, direct that, instead of approving the transfer and the terms of the transfer by the two resolutions required by statute<sup>11</sup>, the society may approve the transfer and those terms by a resolution of the board of directors<sup>12</sup>. Such a direction must be in writing<sup>13</sup>, may be given subject to such limitations or conditions as the Authority may think fit and, unless renewed by a further direction, ceases to have effect at the end of the period of 90 days beginning with the day on which it is given<sup>14</sup>.

The Financial Services Authority<sup>1</sup> must give a building society a warning notice<sup>2</sup> if it proposes<sup>3</sup>: (1) to give certain directions to a society relating to the restructuring of the business<sup>4</sup>; or (2) to give a direction to a society to transfer all its engagements to one or more other societies or to transfer its business to an existing company, other than a direction varying a previous direction with the agreement of the society concerned<sup>5</sup>. The warning notice must set out the terms of the direction which the Authority proposes to give<sup>6</sup>.

If the Authority decides to give a direction to a society of the kind mentioned in head (1) above or give a direction to a society of the kind mentioned in head (2) above, other than a direction varying a previous direction with the agreement of the society concerned, it must give the society a decision notice<sup>7</sup>, and such notice must set out the terms of the direction which the Authority has decided to give<sup>8</sup>. A society to whom a decision notice is given may refer the matter to the Financial Services and Markets Tribunal<sup>9</sup>.

Part XXVI of the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000<sup>10</sup> is to be treated as applying in respect of warning notices and decision notices given under the provisions described above as it applies in respect of warning notices and decision notices given under that Act<sup>11</sup>.

MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(1) BUILDING SOCIETIES/(v) The Financial Services Authority's Powers of Control/B. INFORMATION, INSPECTIONS AND INVESTIGATIONS/2053. Power to obtain information and documents.

B. INFORMATION, INSPECTIONS AND INVESTIGATIONS

2053. Power to obtain information and documents.

The power to obtain information and documents applies to information, documents or other material, or explanations of matters, which relate to the business of a building society or its plans for future development, and where a society has connected undertakings<sup>1</sup> the power also applies to information, documents or other material, or explanations of matters, which relate to, or also relate to, the business, or the plans for future development, of every such connected undertaking<sup>2</sup>. However, no requirement in relation to information, documents or other material may be imposed on a connected undertaking of a society unless that undertaking carries on business in the United Kingdom<sup>3</sup>, but a requirement may be imposed on a society in relation to information, documents or other material in the possession or control of a connected undertaking outside the United Kingdom<sup>4</sup>.

In connection with the exercise of its supervisory functions<sup>5</sup>, the Financial Services Authority<sup>6</sup> may, by notice<sup>7</sup> to a society or a connected undertaking of a society, require the society or undertaking to which it is addressed to<sup>8</sup>:

- 482 (1) furnish to it, within a specified<sup>9</sup> period or at a specified time or times, such specified information as the Authority considers it needs for the purposes of its supervisory functions<sup>10</sup>;
- 483 (2) produce to it, at a specified time and place, such specified documents or other material as the Authority considers it needs for the purposes of its supervisory functions<sup>11</sup>;
- 484 (3) provide to it, within a specified period, such explanations of specified matters as the Authority considers it needs for the purposes of its supervisory functions<sup>12</sup>;
- 485 (4) furnish to it a report by an approved<sup>13</sup> accountant or other person with relevant professional skill on, or on specified aspects of, information or documents or other material furnished or produced to the Authority<sup>14</sup>.

Any person authorised for the purpose by the Authority (an 'authorised officer') may, on producing evidence of his authority, require a society or connected undertaking to<sup>15</sup>:

- 486 (a) furnish to him forthwith such specified information as the Authority considers it needs for the purposes of its supervisory functions<sup>16</sup>;
- 487 (b) produce to him forthwith such documents or other material as the Authority considers it needs for those purposes<sup>17</sup>;
- 488 (c) provide to him forthwith such explanations of specified matters as the Authority considers it needs for those purposes<sup>18</sup>.

Where by virtue of heads (1) to (3) or heads (a) to (c) above the Authority or an authorised officer has power to require the furnishing of any information, the production of any document or material or the provision of any explanation, by a society or connected undertaking, the Authority or authorised officer has the like power as regards any person who<sup>19</sup>: (i) is or has been an officer<sup>20</sup> or employee or agent<sup>21</sup> of the society or undertaking<sup>22</sup>; or (ii) in the case of documents or material, appears to the Authority or authorised officer to have the document or material in his possession or under his control<sup>23</sup>. Where any person from whom production of a document or material is so required claims a lien on the document or material, the production of it is without prejudice to the lien<sup>24</sup>.

The provisions described above do not compel the production by a barrister, solicitor or advocate of a document or material containing a privileged communication made by him or to him in that capacity or the furnishing of information contained in a privileged communication so made<sup>25</sup>.

The Authority or authorised officer may, if the documents or material are produced, take copies of or extracts from them and require the person who produced them, or any other person who is a present or past director<sup>26</sup> or officer of, or is or was at any time employed by, the society or connected undertaking concerned, to provide an explanation of the documents or material, and if the documents or material are not produced, require the person who was required to produce the documents or material to state, to the best of his knowledge and belief, where the documents or material are<sup>27</sup>.

Any person who fails without reasonable excuse to furnish any information or accountant's report, to produce any documents or material, or to provide any explanation or make any statement is liable on summary conviction to a fine<sup>28</sup> and, in the case of a continuing offence, to an additional fine<sup>29</sup> for every day during which the offence continues<sup>30</sup>. Any society which furnishes any information, provides any explanation or makes any statement which is false or misleading in a material particular is liable, on conviction on indictment or on summary conviction to a fine<sup>31</sup>. Any person who knowingly or recklessly furnishes any information, provides any explanation or makes any statement which is false or misleading in a material particular is liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment or to a fine or to both, and on summary conviction to a fine<sup>32</sup>.

2057. Investigations on behalf of the Financial Services Authority.

If it appears to the Financial Services Authority<sup>1</sup> desirable to do so for the purposes of its supervisory functions in relation to a building society<sup>2</sup> it may appoint one or more competent persons to investigate and report to it on the state and conduct of the business of the society concerned, or any particular aspect of that business<sup>3</sup>. If an appointed person considers it necessary for the purposes of his investigation, he may also investigate the business of any body corporate<sup>4</sup> which is, or has at any relevant time been, a connected undertaking<sup>5</sup> of the society under investigation<sup>6</sup>. During an investigation, it is the duty of every officer<sup>7</sup>, employee and agent of a society<sup>8</sup> or other body which is under investigation<sup>9</sup>:

- 491 (1) to produce to the appointed person all records, books and papers relating to the body concerned which are in his custody or power<sup>10</sup>;
- 492 (2) to attend before such appointed persons when required to do so<sup>11</sup>; and
- 493 (3) otherwise to give to such appointed persons all assistance in connection with the investigation which he is reasonably able to give<sup>12</sup>.

Any officer, employee or agent of a society or other body who fails without reasonable excuse to<sup>13</sup>:

- 494 (a) produce any records, books or papers which it is his duty to produce<sup>14</sup>; or
- 495 (b) attend before the appointed person when required to do so<sup>15</sup>; or
- 496 (c) answer any question which is put to him by appointed persons with respect to any society or other body corporate which is under investigation<sup>16</sup>, is liable on summary conviction to a fine<sup>17</sup>.

Any officer, employee or agent of a society or other body who knowingly or recklessly furnishes to any appointed person any information which is false or misleading in a material particular is liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment or to a fine or to both, and on summary conviction to a fine<sup>18</sup>.

5TH EDITION, PARAS 1620-2586)/8. MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(1) BUILDING SOCIETIES/(v) The Financial Services Authority's Powers of Control/B. INFORMATION, INSPECTIONS AND INVESTIGATIONS/2058. Inspections and special meetings.

2058. Inspections and special meetings.

On the application of the requisite number of members of a building society<sup>1</sup>, or where no such application is made but the Financial Services Authority<sup>2</sup> is of the opinion that an investigation should be held into the affairs of the society, or that the affairs of the society call for consideration by a meeting of its members<sup>3</sup>, the Authority may<sup>4</sup>:

- 497 (1) appoint one or more competent inspectors to investigate and report on the affairs of the society<sup>5</sup>; or
- 498 (2) call a special meeting of a society to consider its affairs<sup>6</sup>; or
- 499 (3) either on the same or on different occasions, both appoint an inspector or inspectors and call a special meeting for those purposes<sup>7</sup>.

The investigation or consideration may extend to any body corporate which is or at any relevant time has been a connected undertaking of the society<sup>8</sup>.

Where an application has been made by the requisite number of members of a society:

- 500 (a) it must be supported by such evidence as the Authority may require in order to show that the applicants have good reason for requiring an investigation by inspectors or consideration by a special meeting, as the case may be, and that the applicants are not actuated by malicious, frivolous, vexatious or scandalous motives in making the application<sup>9</sup>;
- 501 (b) the Authority must require the applicants to give security for payment of the costs of the investigation or meeting before the inspector is appointed or the meeting is called subject, in the case of the costs of an investigation, to an amount not exceeding the corresponding Companies Act limit<sup>10</sup>;
- 502 (c) such notice<sup>11</sup> of the application must be given to the society and, in a case where the investigation is to extend to its affairs also, to the society's connected undertaking, as the Authority may direct<sup>12</sup>; and
- 503 (d) as regards the expenses of or incidental to the investigation or meeting (i) in the case of an investigation, in whichever way instituted, the expenses must be defrayed in the first instance by the Authority but without prejudice to its rights to contribution<sup>13</sup>; (ii) in the case of a meeting, the expenses must be defrayed by the applicants, or out of the funds of the society, or by the members or officers or former members or officers of the society, in such proportions as the Authority may direct<sup>14</sup>.

Where the Authority acts of its own volition, it must in advance of taking action inform the society of the action which it proposes to take and the grounds for that action, and the society may, within 14 days of receiving the information, give the Authority an explanatory statement in writing<sup>15</sup> by way of a reply<sup>16</sup>.

If a special meeting is called, the Authority may direct<sup>17</sup> at what time and place it is to be held, and what matters are to be discussed and determined, and may give such other directions as it thinks fit with respect to the calling, holding and conduct of the meeting<sup>18</sup>, and may appoint a person to be chairman at the meeting<sup>19</sup>. Such a meeting has all the powers of a meeting called according to the rules of the society<sup>20</sup>.

When inspectors have been appointed it is the duty of all officers and agents<sup>21</sup> of the body under investigation<sup>22</sup> to produce to the inspectors all documents and material of or relating to the body under investigation which are in their custody or power, to attend before the inspectors when required to do so, and otherwise to give the inspectors all assistance in connection with the investigation which they are reasonably able to give<sup>23</sup>. If the inspectors consider that a person other than an officer or agent of the body under investigation is or may be in possession of information concerning its affairs, they may require that person to produce to them any documents or material in his custody or power relating to the body under investigation, to attend before them and otherwise to give them all assistance in connection with the investigation which he is reasonably able to give; and it is that person's duty to comply with the requirement<sup>24</sup>.

The inspectors may examine on oath the officers and agents of the body under investigation, and such other person as may be in possession of relevant information, in relation to the affairs of the body under investigation, and may administer an oath accordingly<sup>25</sup>.

The inspectors may, and if so directed by the Authority must, make interim reports to the Authority, but they may at any time in the course of the investigation, without making an interim report, inform the Authority of matters coming to their knowledge as a result of the investigation tending to show that an offence has been committed<sup>26</sup>. The Authority may, if it thinks fit<sup>27</sup>:

- 504 (A) send a copy of any report made by the inspectors to the body whose affairs are or were the subject of the investigation<sup>28</sup>;
- 505 (B) furnish a copy of any such report on request to any member of the body whose affairs are or were the subject of the investigation, the auditors of that body, any person whose conduct is referred to in the report, and any other person whose financial interests appear to the Authority to be affected by matters dealt with in the report, whether as creditor or otherwise<sup>29</sup>; and
- 506 (C) cause the report to be printed and published<sup>30</sup>.

A copy of the inspectors' report, certified by the Authority to be a true copy, is admissible in any legal proceedings as evidence of the opinion of the inspectors in relation to any matter contained in the report; and a document purporting to be such a certificate must be received in evidence and is deemed to be such a certificate, unless the contrary is proved<sup>31</sup>.

1 Building Societies Act 1986 s 56(2)(a). The requisite number of members in the case of a society having more than 1,000 members is 100, and in the case of any other society is one-tenth of the whole number of members of the society: s 56(5). As to membership see PARA 1888 et seq.

2 As to the functions of the Financial Services Authority in relation to building societies see PARA 1863. As to the Authority generally see PARAS 4, 6 et seq.

3 Building Societies Act 1986 s 56(2)(b) (ss 56(1), (2)(b), (6)(a), (c), (d), (7), (10), 57(7), (8), (9), (10) amended by SI 2001/2617).

4 Building Societies Act 1986 s 56(1) (as amended: see note 3).

5 Building Societies Act 1986 ss 56(1)(a), 57(1). Inspectors appointed under s 56, in addition to having the powers which are necessary for or incidental to the discharge of their functions under s 56, have the powers specified in s 57 (see the text and notes 21-31): s 56(9).

6 Building Societies Act 1986 s 56(1)(b).

7 Building Societies Act 1986 s 56(1)(c).

8 Building Societies Act 1986 s 56(1) (amended by the Building Societies Act 1997 Sch 7 para 22(1)). The powers conferred by the Building Societies Act 1986 s 56(1) may be exercised in relation also to a connected undertaking of a society either: (1) where the application referred to in s 56(2)(a) (see the text to note 1) so requests; or (2) where the application contains no such request but the Authority is of the opinion that it is necessary for the purposes of the investigation into or consideration of the affairs of the society that the affairs of the connected undertaking should also be investigated or considered: s 56(3) (s 56(3), (4) amended by the Building Societies Act 1997 Sch 7 para 22(2); and SI 2001/2617). As to the meaning of 'connected undertaking' see PARA 1991 note 16. Where the inspectors are of the opinion mentioned in head (2) above in relation to a connected undertaking of a society they may, with the consent of the Authority, extend their investigation to the affairs of the connected undertaking and make their report accordingly: Building Societies Act 1986 s 56(4) (as so amended).

9 Building Societies Act 1986 s 56(6)(a) (as amended: see note 3).

10 Building Societies Act 1986 s 56(6)(c) (as amended: see note 3). 'The corresponding Companies Act limit', in relation to security for the payment of the costs of an investigation, is £5,000 or such other sum as is specified for the time being in an order under the Companies Act 1985 s 431(4) for the purposes of s 431 (see COMPANIES vol 15 (2009) PARA 1541): Building Societies Act 1986 s 56(11).

11 As to the meaning of 'notice' see PARA 1866 note 8.

12 Building Societies Act 1986 s 56(6)(b) (s 56(6)(b), (8) amended by the Building Societies Act 1997 Sch 7 para 22(3); and SI 2001/2617).

13 Building Societies Act 1986 s 56(6)(d)(i) (as amended: see note 3). The Authority is entitled to be repaid the expenses of the investigation defrayed by it as follows: (1) by the applicants for the investigation, to such extent, if any, as the Authority may direct; (2) by any body whose affairs were the subject of the investigation, to such extent, if any, as the Authority may direct; (3) by any person convicted of an offence in proceedings instituted as a result of the investigation, to such extent, if any, as the court by or before which he was convicted may order: s 57(10) (as amended: see note 3). A person liable under any one of heads (1)-(3) above is entitled to contribution from any other person liable under the same head, according to the amount of their respective liabilities under it: s 57(10) (as so amended).

14 Building Societies Act 1986 s 56(6)(d)(ii) (as amended: see note 3). As to the meaning of 'officer' see PARA 1944.

15 As to the meaning of 'writing' see PARA 1064 note 2.

16 Building Societies Act 1986 s 56(7) (as amended: see note 3). Where the Authority considers that it is necessary to investigate or consider the affairs of a connected undertaking under s 56(3)(b) (see note 8 head (2)), the notice procedure in s 56(7) applies in relation to the connected undertaking in the same way as it applies in relation to the society: s 56(8) (as amended: see note 12).

17 The provisions of the Building Societies Act 1986 s 56(10) and any direction given under them have effect notwithstanding anything in the rules of the society: s 56(10).

18 Building Societies Act 1986 s 56(10)(a) (as amended: see note 3). See note 17.

19 Building Societies Act 1986 s 56(10)(b) (as amended: see note 3). In default of such an appointment, the meeting may appoint its own chairman: s 56(10)(b). See note 17.

20 Building Societies Act 1986 s 56(10)(c). See note 17.

21 References to officers or to agents include past, as well as present, officers or agents, as the case may be; and 'agents' in relation to a society or any connected undertaking of a society includes its bankers, its accountants and solicitors and its auditors: Building Societies Act 1986 s 57(1) (amended by the Building Societies Act 1997 Sch 7 para 23).

22 'Body under investigation' means the society whose affairs or, as the case may be, the society whose affairs, and each connected undertaking of the society whose affairs, are the subject of the investigation: Building Societies Act 1986 s 57(1) (as amended: see note 21).

23 Building Societies Act 1986 s 57(2). If an officer or agent of the body under investigation or such other person as may be in possession of relevant information: (1) refuses to produce any document or material which it is his duty to produce; or (2) refuses to attend before the inspectors when required to do so; or (3) refuses to answer any question put to him by the inspectors with respect to the affairs of the body under investigation, the inspectors may certify the refusal in writing to the High Court: s 57(6). The court may then inquire into the case and, after hearing any witnesses who may be produced against or on behalf of the alleged offender and after hearing any statement which may be offered in defence, may punish the offender as if he had been guilty of contempt of the court: s 57(6). As to the meaning of 'High Court' see PARA 1866 note 10. If the principal office of the society is in Scotland any reference to the High Court is to be read as a reference to the Court of Session: s

57(11). Generally Scottish matters are beyond the scope of this work. As to the requirements for principal offices see PARA 1872. As to the power of courts to punish contempt see CONTEMPT OF COURT vol 9(1) (Reissue) PARA 502 et seq.

24 Building Societies Act 1986 s 57(3). See note 23.

25 Building Societies Act 1986 s 57(4). An answer given by a person to a question put to him under s 57(1)-(4) (see the text and notes 21-24) may be used in evidence against him: see s 57(5). However, in criminal proceedings in which that person is charged with an offence to which s 57(5A) applies (1) no evidence relating to the answer may be adduced; and (2) no question relating to it may be asked, by or on behalf of the prosecution, unless evidence relating to it is adduced, or a question relating to it is asked, in the proceedings by or on behalf of that person: s 57(5A) (s 57(5A), (5B) added by the Youth Justice and Criminal Evidence Act 1999 Sch 3 para 9). The Building Societies Act 1986 s 57(5A) applies to any offence other than: (a) an offence under the Perjury Act 1911 s 2 or s 5 (false statements made on oath otherwise than in judicial proceedings or made otherwise than on oath) (see CRIMINAL LAW, EVIDENCE AND PROCEDURE vol 11(2) (2006 Reissue) PARAS 716-717); (b) an offence under the Criminal Law (Consolidation) (Scotland) Act 1995 s 44(1) or s 44(2) (false statements made on oath or otherwise than on oath); or (c) an offence under the Perjury (Northern Ireland) Order 1979, SI 1979/1714 (NI 19), art 7 or art 10 (false statements made on oath otherwise than in judicial proceedings or made otherwise than on oath): Building Societies Act 1986 s 57(5B) (as so added).

27 Building Societies Act 1986 s 57(8) (as amended: see note 3).

28 Building Societies Act 1986 s 57(8)(a).

29 Building Societies Act 1986 s 57(8)(b) (amended by SI 2001/2617). The Authority may charge a reasonable fee for furnishing to any person a copy of a report under the Building Societies Act 1986 s 57(8)(b): s 57(8A) (added by SI 2001/2617).

C. RESTRICTION ON USE OF NAMES AND DESCRIPTIONS

2059. Control of names and descriptions.

No person carrying on in the United Kingdom<sup>1</sup> a business of any description may, unless that person is a building society, use any name or in any other way so describe himself or hold himself out so as to indicate, or reasonably be understood to indicate that<sup>2</sup>: (1) he is a building society<sup>3</sup>; (2) he, or his business, is connected with one or more building societies<sup>4</sup>; or (3) he, or his business, is connected with building societies generally<sup>5</sup>. This does not prohibit an institution<sup>6</sup> carrying on the business of taking deposits<sup>7</sup> and making loans secured on land which has its principal place of business in a country or territory outside the United Kingdom from using the name under which it carries on business in that country or territory if<sup>8</sup>: (a) the name is used in immediate conjunction with a description distinguishing the institution from a society and the description has been and remains approved for these purposes by the Financial Services Authority<sup>9</sup>; and (b) where the name appears in writing<sup>10</sup>, the description is sufficiently prominent to secure that a person who reads the name will also read the description<sup>11</sup>. For a description to distinguish an institution from a society it must distinguish it by reference to all or any of the following matters as the Authority determines in its case, but need not indicate any other distinction<sup>12</sup>: (i) the situation of its principal place of business<sup>13</sup>; (ii) its legal status or constitution<sup>14</sup>; and (iii) the law, if any, which authorises it to take deposits in the United Kingdom<sup>15</sup>.

The prohibition does not prevent a person from carrying on a business under a name which indicates a connection between him or his business and one or more societies, or between him or his business and societies generally, if the name has been and remains approved by the Authority<sup>16</sup>. In considering whether to approve a name, the Authority must have regard to the true connection (if any) in fact existing between the persons using, or proposing to use the name, and the particular society or societies in question or with societies generally, as the case may be, and where the connection is with a particular society or societies, the respective natures of the business of that person and the society or societies in question, and must be satisfied that the connection indicated by the name is not misleading<sup>17</sup>. The Authority must not approve the use of the name where the name indicates investment or other financial support by the society unless it is satisfied that the name indicates no more investment or support than is the case and than is, in the Authority's opinion, within the financial capacity of the society to provide<sup>18</sup>.

The Authority may direct the form in which an application for approval must be made and the information or evidence it requires generally or in the particular case<sup>19</sup>. The Authority has the power to revoke any approval of a distinguishing description or a name<sup>20</sup>. The grounds for revocation of approval are: (A) in the case of a distinguishing description, that, by reason of any change in the matters by reference to which a distinction is made, the description does not or does not any longer distinguish the institution as required<sup>21</sup>; or (B) in the case of a name, that the name has proved to be misleading to the public, that the approval has been obtained by fraud or mistake, or that there has been a change in the facts to which the Authority had regard in giving its approval<sup>22</sup>. Before any approval is revoked, the person to whom it was first given must be given an opportunity to make representations as to the proposed revocation<sup>23</sup>.

The prohibition does not prevent a person from using a description (other than his name) which, or from holding himself out in a way that, indicates a connection between himself or his business and one or more societies if and to the extent that he has been authorised to do so in writing by the society or societies in question<sup>24</sup>. Neither is a person prohibited from using a description (other than his name) which, or holding himself out in a way that, indicates a connection between himself or his business and societies generally where the connection indicated is not misleading<sup>25</sup>.

Where on an application for the first registration of a company, or the registration of a company by a new name, by the Registrar of Companies<sup>26</sup>, or approval by the Secretary of State<sup>27</sup> of words or expressions for inclusion in a business name<sup>28</sup>, or in relation to Northern Ireland approval by the Department of Enterprise, Trade and Investment<sup>29</sup> of words or descriptions for inclusion in a business name<sup>30</sup>, it appears to the Registrar, the Secretary of State or the Department, as the case may be, that the use of the name or the words or description by the person seeking to register with it would contravene the prohibition, the registration must not be made nor the approval given<sup>31</sup>.

Any person who contravenes the prohibition is liable on summary conviction to a fine<sup>32</sup>, and if the contravention involves a public display or exhibition of the offending name, description or other matter, there is a fresh contravention of the prohibition on each day during which that person causes or permits the display or exhibition to continue for which that person is liable on summary conviction to a fine<sup>33</sup>.

D. COMMENCEMENT OF PROCEEDINGS

2060. Time limit for commencement of proceedings.

Notwithstanding any limitation on the time for taking proceedings contained in any Act, summary proceedings for any offence under the Building Societies Act 1986 may be commenced by the Financial Services Authority<sup>1</sup> at any time within the period of one year beginning with the date on which sufficient evidence to justify prosecution, in the Authority's opinion, came to its knowledge<sup>2</sup>. However, this does not authorise the commencement of proceedings for any offence at a time more than three years after the date on which the offence was committed<sup>3</sup>.

1 As to the functions of the Financial Services Authority in relation to building societies see PARA 1863. As to the Authority generally see PARAS 4, 6 et seq.

2 Building Societies Act 1986 s 111(1) (s 111(1), (3), (4) amended by SI 2001/2617). A certificate, purporting to be signed by or on behalf of the Authority, as to the date on which such evidence came to its knowledge, is conclusive evidence of that date: Building Societies Act 1986 s 111(3) (as so amended). In the application of s 111 to Scotland, in s 111(1) the words 'by the Authority' are omitted, and all references to the Authority are to be read as references to the Lord Advocate (s 111(4) (as so amended)), and the Criminal Procedure (Scotland) Act 1995 applies (Building Societies Act 1986 s 111(5) (amended by the Criminal Procedure (Consequential Provisions) (Scotland) Act 1995 Sch 4 para 65)). ## (vi) Disputes

2061. Settling disputes.

Disputes between a building society and a member of the society<sup>1</sup> in his capacity as a member, or between a society and a representative of such a member in that capacity, in respect of any rights or obligations arising from the rules of the society or any provision of the Building Societies Act 1986 or any statutory instrument under it<sup>2</sup> may be determined only by the High Court<sup>3</sup>. Except in certain cases, no such disputes may be referred to arbitration<sup>4</sup>. The court must not hear and determine any dispute which is required to be referred to arbitration<sup>5</sup> or which is referred to the Financial Services Authority<sup>6</sup>, except that the court may hear and determine such a dispute in any case where, on the application of any person concerned, it appears to the court that application has been made by either party to the dispute to the other party for the purpose of having the dispute settled by arbitration, and that either arbitrators have not been appointed within 40 days of that application or the arbitrators have refused, or have neglected for a period of 21 days, to proceed with the reference or make an award<sup>7</sup>. The court may not hear and determine a dispute regarding a claim that publicity for a director's election address or revised director's election address<sup>8</sup>, or a statement to members with respect to matters to be dealt with at a special meeting called on a requisition of members<sup>9</sup>, or a resolution proposed to be moved by members or a statement relating to such a resolution<sup>10</sup>, would be likely to diminish substantially the confidence in the society of investing members of the public<sup>11</sup>.

Nothing in the provisions regarding arbitration<sup>12</sup> affects the jurisdiction of any court to hear and determine disputes which arise out of a mortgage or any contract other than the rules of the society<sup>13</sup>.

2062. Role of the Financial Services Authority.

Any dispute as to the rights of a member of a building society<sup>1</sup> to obtain particulars from the register of members<sup>2</sup> must be referred to the Financial Services Authority<sup>3</sup>.

1 le under the Building Societies Act 1986 s 5(8), Sch 2 para 15: see PARA 1973. As to membership see PARA 1888 et seq.

2 As to the register of members see PARAS 1972-1973.

3 Building Societies Act 1986 s 85(1), Sch 14 para 6(1) (Sch 14 para 6 amended by SI 2001/2617). Such a dispute is heard by the Authority as on a reference to arbitration, and its award has the same effect as that of an arbitrator acting in a reference under the Building Societies Act 1986 Sch 14 para 4(1) (see PARA 2063): Sch 14 para 6(2) (as so amended). As to the functions of the Financial Services Authority in relation to building societies see PARA 1863. As to the Authority generally see PARAS 4, 6 et seq.

2063. Arbitration.

If the rules of a building society so provide, a dispute between a member<sup>1</sup> and the society in relation to a refusal by the society to send to its members copies of an election address or a revised election address of a director of the society<sup>2</sup>, or a statement with respect to the matters to be dealt with at a special meeting called on a requisition of members<sup>3</sup>, or a notice or a statement relating to a resolution intended to be moved by members<sup>4</sup>, is to be referred to arbitration<sup>5</sup>. This does not apply if the refusal by the society was on the grounds either that publicity for the document would be likely to diminish substantially the confidence in the society of investing members of the public, or that the rights conferred were being abused to seek needless publicity for defamatory matter<sup>6</sup>. If the rules of a society so provide, any dispute in respect of a refusal by the society to call a special meeting<sup>7</sup> is to be referred to arbitration<sup>8</sup>.

One or more arbitrators must be appointed in the manner provided for by the rules of the society, and so must another arbitrator if an appointed arbitrator dies or refuses to act<sup>9</sup>. No arbitrator acting on a reference may be beneficially interested, whether directly or indirectly, in the funds of the society<sup>10</sup>.

If the rules of the society do provide for disputes to be referred to arbitration then the rules will be treated as an arbitration agreement<sup>11</sup>. The rules may provide for the procedure to be followed on a reference to arbitration<sup>12</sup>. The award of the arbitrator, or of the majority of them if there is more than one, is final and binding<sup>13</sup>.

Nothing in the provisions regarding arbitration<sup>14</sup> affects the jurisdiction of any court to hear and determine disputes which arise out of a mortgage or any contract other than the rules of the society<sup>15</sup>.

1 The reference is to the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 Pt XVI (ss 225-234A). As to the ombudsman scheme see PARA 575 et seq. ### A. DISSOLUTION BY CONSENT

2066. Instrument of dissolution.

A building society may be dissolved by an instrument of dissolution with the consent of three-quarters of the members of the society<sup>1</sup>, holding not less than two-thirds of the number of shares in the society<sup>2</sup>; their consent is testified by their signatures to an instrument of dissolution<sup>3</sup>. The instrument of dissolution is binding on all members of the society as from the date on which a copy of it is placed in the public file of the society<sup>4</sup>, and must set out:

- 508 (2) the number of members, and the amount standing to their credit in the accounting records of the society<sup>6</sup>;
- 509 (3) the claims of depositors and other creditors, and the provision to be made for their payment<sup>7</sup>;
- 510 (4) the intended appropriation or division of the funds and property of the society<sup>8</sup>; and
- 511 (5) the names of one or more persons to be appointed trustees for the purposes of the dissolution, and their remuneration<sup>9</sup>.

Where shares are held jointly only the representative joint holder is treated for these purposes as the holder of the shares<sup>10</sup>. Members who are minors<sup>11</sup> and members who have given notice of withdrawal and have not been paid<sup>12</sup> may consent to a dissolution and must be taken into account in calculating the number of members of the society. The duly authorised agent of a member may sign the instrument on behalf of his principal<sup>13</sup>.

Except with the consent of the Financial Services Authority<sup>1</sup>, no instrument of dissolution<sup>2</sup>, or alteration of such an instrument, has any effect if the purpose of the proposed dissolution or alteration is to effect or facilitate the transfer of a building society's engagements to any other society<sup>3</sup> or the transfer of its business to a company<sup>4</sup>. Any provision in a resolution or document that members of the society<sup>5</sup> proposed to be dissolved must accept, in or towards satisfaction of their rights in the dissolution, investments (whether in shares, deposits or any other form) in a company or another society is conclusive evidence of such a purpose<sup>6</sup>.

2068. Position during progress of dissolution.

During the progress of dissolution of a building society in pursuance of an instrument of dissolution<sup>1</sup>, the Building Societies Act 1986 continues to apply as if the trustees under the instrument of dissolution were the board of directors of the society<sup>2</sup>.

Withdrawing members entitled to priority under the rules whose notices have matured before the date of the dissolution retain their priority in a winding up under an instrument of dissolution<sup>3</sup>. The representatives of deceased members have priority over withdrawing members<sup>4</sup>.

The rights of members under the rules cannot be altered by the instrument of dissolution, unless the alteration has been previously sanctioned so as to be effective as an alteration of rules<sup>5</sup>.

Where at any time a society is being wound up or dissolved by consent, a borrowing member<sup>6</sup> is not liable to pay any amount other than one which, at that time, is payable under the mortgage<sup>7</sup> or other security by which his indebtedness to the society in respect of the loan is secured<sup>8</sup>.

1 As to instruments of dissolution see PARA 2066.

2069. Returns to the Financial Services Authority.

Within 28 days from the termination of the dissolution the trustees must give notice to the Authority of the fact and the date of the termination, enclosing an account and balance sheet signed and certified by them as correct, showing the assets and liabilities of the society at the commencement of the dissolution, and the way in which those assets and liabilities have been applied and discharged<sup>8</sup>. Failure to comply with this requirement renders them liable on summary conviction to a fine<sup>9</sup> and, in the case of a continuing offence to an additional fine<sup>10</sup> for every day during which the offence continues<sup>11</sup>.

The Authority must keep any notice or other document received by it under the provisions described above in the public file of the society<sup>12</sup> and must record in that file the date on which the notice or document is placed in it<sup>13</sup>.

MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(1) BUILDING SOCIETIES/(vii) Dissolution and Winding Up/B. WINDING UP/2071. Voluntary winding up.

B. WINDING UP

2071. Voluntary winding up.

If a building society resolves by special resolution<sup>1</sup> that it be wound up voluntarily, then it may be wound up voluntarily under the applicable winding up legislation<sup>2</sup>. The society must send a copy of any such special resolution to the Financial Services Authority<sup>3</sup> within 15 days after it is passed<sup>4</sup> and the Authority must keep a copy in the public file of the society<sup>5</sup>. A copy of the special resolution must also be annexed to every copy of the society's memorandum or rules issued after the resolution has been passed<sup>6</sup>, and failure to comply with either of these requirements renders the society, and any officer<sup>7</sup>, including a liquidator<sup>8</sup>, of the society who is also guilty of the offence, liable on summary conviction to a fine<sup>9</sup>.

Subject to the provisions of Part IV of the Insolvency Act 1986 relating to preferential payments<sup>10</sup>, a society's property in a voluntary winding up must be applied in satisfaction of the society's liabilities to creditors pari passu and, subject to that application, in accordance with the rules of the society<sup>11</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'special resolution' see PARA 1980.

2 Building Societies Act 1986 ss 86(1)(b), 88(1). For the purposes of s 37 (see PARA 2049), s 88, s 89 (see PARA 2072) and s 103 (see PARA 2076), the 'applicable winding up legislation' means the companies winding up legislation (ie the Insolvency Act 1986 Pt IV (ss 73-219), Pt VI (ss 230-246), Pt VII (ss 247-251), Pt XII (ss 386-387), Pt XIII (ss 388-398) and, in so far as they relate to offences under any such enactment, ss 430, 432, Sch 10 (see COMPANY AND PARTNERSHIP INSOLVENCY), and equivalent Northern Ireland provisions), as modified by the provisions of the Building Societies Act 1986 s 90(2), Sch 15: ss 90(1), (2), (3), 119(1), Sch 15 para 1 (amended by the Companies Act 1989 s 211(2); and SI 1989/2405). See generally COMPANY AND PARTNERSHIP INSOLVENCY; COMPANIES.

As to the application of other companies insolvency legislation to building societies see the Building Societies Act 1986 s 90A, Sch 15A; and PARA 2079. ### 2071 Voluntary winding up

TEXT AND NOTES 1, 2--However, a resolution may not be passed if the conditions in the Building Societies Act 1986 s 90D are not satisfied, or the society is in building society insolvency or building society special administration (see PARA 2079): s 88(1) (amended by the Building Societies (Insolvency and Special Administration) Order 2009, SI 2009/805).

MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(1) BUILDING SOCIETIES/(vii) Dissolution and Winding Up/B. WINDING UP/2072. Grounds for winding up by the court.

2072. Grounds for winding up by the court.

A building society may be wound up by the court<sup>1</sup> under the applicable winding up legislation<sup>2</sup> if<sup>3</sup>:

- 512 (1) it has passed a special resolution<sup>4</sup> that it be wound up by the court<sup>5</sup>;
- 513 (2) the number of members is reduced below ten<sup>6</sup>;
- 514 (3) the number of directors is reduced below two<sup>7</sup>;
- 515 (4) being registered as a society<sup>8</sup>, the society has not been given permission under Part IV of the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 to accept deposits<sup>9</sup>, and more than three years has expired since it was so registered<sup>10</sup>;
- 516 (5) its permission under Part IV of the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 to accept deposits has been cancelled, and no such permission has subsequently been granted to it<sup>11</sup>;
- 517 (6) it exists for an illegal purpose<sup>12</sup>;
- 518 (7) it is unable to pay its debts<sup>13</sup>; or
- 519 (8) in the opinion of the court it is just and equitable that it should be wound up<sup>14</sup>.

In addition, the society may be wound up by the court when certain powers of the Financial Services Authority<sup>15</sup> become exercisable in relation to the society<sup>16</sup>.

The jurisdiction is vested in the High Court and the county courts. If the capital of the society paid up or credited as paid up exceeds £120,000, the proceedings must be in the High Court<sup>17</sup>; and if the paid up, or credited as paid up, capital does not exceed that sum, the county court of the district in which the society's principal office is situated has concurrent jurisdiction with the High Court to wind up the society<sup>18</sup>.

A society which is in the course of dissolution by consent, or is being wound up voluntarily, may be wound up by the court<sup>19</sup>.

On hearing a petition to wind up a society the court may dismiss it, or adjourn the hearing conditionally or unconditionally, or make an interim order or any other order that it thinks fit<sup>20</sup>. The conditions the court may impose include conditions for securing that the society be dissolved by consent of its members<sup>21</sup>, or the society amalgamates with, or transfers its engagements to, another society<sup>22</sup>, or the society transfers its business to a company<sup>23</sup>, or any default which occasioned the petition is made good, and that the costs of the proceedings on the petition are met by those responsible for the default<sup>24</sup>.

At any time after the presentation of a winding-up petition, and before a winding-up order has been made, the society or any creditor or contributory may, where any action or proceeding against the society is pending in the High Court or Court of Appeal, apply to the court for a stay of those proceedings, and where any other action or proceeding is pending against the society, apply to the court having jurisdiction to wind up the society to restrain any further such proceedings. The court may stay or restrain the proceedings on such terms as it thinks fit<sup>25</sup>. It has similar powers to impose conditions upon staying winding-up proceedings as it has when adjourning the petition<sup>26</sup>. If, before the presentation of a petition for the winding up by the court of the society, an instrument of dissolution<sup>27</sup> is placed in the society's public file, the winding up of the society is deemed to have commenced on the date on which the instrument is so placed, and unless the court, on proof of fraud or mistake, directs otherwise, all proceedings in the course of the dissolution are deemed to have been validly taken<sup>28</sup>.

If a winding-up order is made in respect of a society, the society must give notice of the order within 15 days to the Authority, which must keep the notice on the public file of the society<sup>29</sup>. It is an offence if a society fails to give such notice, and the society, and any officer<sup>30</sup> also guilty of the offence, is liable on summary conviction to a fine<sup>31</sup>.

The court must adjust the rights of the contributories amongst themselves and distribute any surplus in accordance with the society's rules<sup>32</sup>.

MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(1) BUILDING SOCIETIES/(vii) Dissolution and Winding Up/B. WINDING UP/2073. Petitioners.

2073. Petitioners.

A petition for the winding up of a building society may be presented by the Financial Services Authority<sup>1</sup>, the society or its directors<sup>2</sup>, any creditor or creditors (including any contingent or prospective creditor), or any contributory<sup>3</sup> or contributories, either together or separately<sup>4</sup>. A petition may only be presented by any contributory if the number of members<sup>5</sup> is reduced below ten, or the share in respect of which he is a contributory has been held, either by him or, if it has devolved to him on the death of a former holder, between them, for at least six months before the commencement of the winding up<sup>6</sup>.

1 As to the functions of the Financial Services Authority in relation to building societies see PARA 1863. As to the Authority generally see PARAS 4, 6 et seq.

2 As to the office of director see PARAS 1944-1963.

3 'Contributory' means every person liable to contribute to the assets of the society in the event of its being wound up, and includes any person alleged to be a contributory for the purposes of all proceedings for determining, and all proceedings prior to the determination of, the persons who are deemed to be contributories, and also includes persons who are liable to pay or contribute to the payment of: (1) any debt or liability of the society being wound up; or (2) any sum for the adjustment of rights of members among themselves; or (3) the expenses of winding up, but does not include persons liable to contribute by virtue of the declaration by the court under the Insolvency Act 1986 s 213 (or, in the case of Northern Ireland, under the Insolvency (Northern Ireland) Order 1989, SI 1989/2405 (NI 19), art 177) (imputed responsibility for fraudulent trading) or under the Insolvency Act 1986 s 214 (or, in the case of Northern Ireland, under the Insolvency (Northern Ireland) Order 1989, SI 1989/2405 (NI 19), art 178) (wrongful trading) (see COMPANY AND PARTNERSHIP INSOLVENCY vol 7(3) (2004 Reissue) PARAS 911, 914); Building Societies Act 1986 s 89(5), Sch 15 paras 9(2), 37; and see PARA 2071 note 2. The extent of the liability of a member of a building society in a winding up does not exceed the extent of his liability under Sch 2 para 6(2): see Sch 15 paras 7(4), 35(4); and PARA 2078.

As to the power to modify certain legislation applying in relation to building societies see the Banking (Special Provisions) Act 2008 s 11; and PARA 1856 note 1.

4 Building Societies Act 1986 s 89(2) (amended by SI 2001/2617). The Authority also has the power to present a winding-up petition in the event of certain of its powers becoming exercisable in relation to a society: see the Building Societies Act 1986 s 37, s 89(1), (2); and PARAS 2049, 2072. Section 89(2) is also subject to the 'applicable winding up legislation' (see PARA 2071 note 2): see s 89(2).

2074. Dissolution of a society which has been wound up.

Where a building society has been wound up voluntarily, it is dissolved three months after the return of the final meetings of the society and its creditors made by the liquidator is placed in the public file<sup>1</sup> of the society<sup>2</sup>, or at any later date that the court thinks fit. Where a society has been wound up by the court, it is dissolved three months after the liquidator's notice of the final meeting, or the notice of the completion of the winding up from the official receiver is placed in the public file of the society, or on such later date as the Financial Services Authority<sup>3</sup> may, subject to appeal, direct<sup>4</sup>.

When a society is dissolved by consent or following a winding up, all property and rights vested in it or held on trust for it, excluding property held by it on trust for another person, are deemed to be bona vacantia, subject to the power of the court to declare the dissolution void<sup>5</sup>.

2075. Power of court to declare dissolution of building society void.

Where a building society has been dissolved by consent<sup>1</sup> or following a winding up<sup>2</sup>, the High Court<sup>3</sup> may, on an application by the trustees appointed for the purposes of the dissolution by consent<sup>4</sup> or by the liquidator or by any other person appearing to the court to be interested<sup>5</sup>, within 12 years after the date on which the society was dissolved, make an order on such terms as the court thinks fit declaring the dissolution to have been void<sup>6</sup>. When an order is made, such proceedings may be taken as might have been taken if the society had not been dissolved<sup>7</sup>. Within seven days of the order being made, or such further time as the court allows, the applicant must provide the Financial Services Authority<sup>8</sup> with a copy of the order, which the Authority must keep in the public file<sup>9</sup> of the society<sup>10</sup>. Failure to do so renders the applicant liable on summary conviction to a fine<sup>11</sup> and, in the case of a continuing offence, to an additional fine<sup>12</sup> for every day during which the offence continues<sup>13</sup>.

2076. Cancellation of registration.

The Financial Services Authority<sup>1</sup> may cancel the registration of a building society if it is satisfied that<sup>2</sup>: (1) the certificate of incorporation has been obtained for the society by fraud or mistake and that the society does not have permission under Part IV of the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000<sup>3</sup> to accept deposits<sup>4</sup>; or (2) the society has ceased to exist<sup>5</sup>. Before cancelling the registration of a society under these provisions, the Authority must give the society not less than two months' notice<sup>6</sup>, specifying briefly the grounds of the proposed cancellation<sup>7</sup>. The society may appeal against cancellation in these circumstances to the High Court<sup>8</sup>, where its principal office<sup>9</sup> is situated in England and Wales or in Northern Ireland, or to the Court of Session where that office is situated in Scotland, and the court, if it thinks it just to do so, may set aside the cancellation<sup>10</sup>. The Authority may in any event, if it thinks fit, cancel the registration of a society at the request of the society, evidenced in such manner as the Authority may direct<sup>11</sup>.

The Authority must cancel the registration of a society where it is satisfied that a society has been dissolved following an amalgamation<sup>12</sup>, a transfer of its engagements<sup>13</sup> or a transfer of its business<sup>14</sup>, or wound up under the applicable winding up legislation<sup>15</sup> and dissolved<sup>16</sup>.

2077. Notice and effect of cancellation.

As soon as practicable after the cancellation of registration of a building society<sup>1</sup> the Financial Services Authority<sup>2</sup> must cause a notice of the cancellation to be published in the London Gazette, the Edinburgh Gazette or the Belfast Gazette according to the situation of the society's principal office<sup>3</sup> and, if it thinks fit, in one or more newspapers<sup>4</sup>.

If registration is cancelled<sup>5</sup> otherwise than following a dissolution, then the society may continue to exist, but, subject to the right to appeal<sup>6</sup>, it ceases to be an incorporated society under the Building Societies Act 1986 and accordingly ceases to be a building society within the meaning of the Act<sup>7</sup>. This is without prejudice to any liability actually incurred by the society, and any such liability may be enforced against the society as if the cancellation had not taken place<sup>8</sup>. The society may still be ordered to be wound up<sup>9</sup>.

MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(1) BUILDING SOCIETIES/(vii) Dissolution and Winding Up/B. WINDING UP/2078. Liabilities of members.

2078. Liabilities of members.

Where at any time a building society is being wound up or dissolved by consent, a borrowing member<sup>1</sup> is not liable to pay any amount other than one which, at that time, is payable under the mortgage<sup>2</sup> or other security by which his indebtedness to the society in respect of the loan is secured<sup>3</sup>. He can redeem on payment of the full amount owing under the mortgage<sup>4</sup> but he cannot be put on the list of contributories<sup>5</sup>. The liability at any time of a shareholding member<sup>6</sup> of a society is limited to the amount which, at that time, has been actually paid, or is in arrear, on his shares in the society<sup>7</sup>. The liability at any time of a borrowing member of a society is limited to the amount which, at that time, is payable under the mortgage or other security by which his indebtedness to the society in respect of the loan is secured<sup>8</sup>. An investing member who has withdrawn and been paid the amount of his shares, although within a year of the commencement of the winding up of a society, is under no liability, being a past member<sup>9</sup>.

In the case of a transfer of shares in a society after a compulsory winding-up order, the transferee is not entitled to be registered as owner of the shares without the sanction of the court. The court has power to order the rectification of the register of members by the insertion of the transferee's name, but the exercise of the power is discretionary and an order will not be made except on strong grounds<sup>10</sup>.

As from a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect<sup>1</sup>. The Treasury may by order<sup>2</sup> make provision for the purpose of ensuring that, on the winding up<sup>3</sup>, or dissolution by consent<sup>4</sup>, of a building society, any assets available for satisfying the society's liabilities to creditors or to shareholders are applied in satisfying those liabilities pari passu<sup>5</sup>.

Liabilities to creditors do not include: (1) liabilities in respect of subordinated deposits<sup>6</sup>; (2) liabilities in respect of preferential debts<sup>7</sup>; (3) any other category of liability which the Treasury specifies in the order for these purposes<sup>8</sup>. Liabilities to shareholders do not include liabilities in respect of deferred shares<sup>9</sup>.

The net effect of any such order would be that ordinary and non-deferred shareholders rank equally in a winding up or dissolution.

1 The Building Societies (Funding) and Mutual Societies (Transfers) Act 2007 s 2 comes into force on such day as the Treasury may by order made by statutory instrument appoint, and different days may be appointed for different purposes: see s 6. As to the Treasury see PARA 3; and CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 512 et seq. At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

2 An order under the Building Societies Act 1986 s 90B may (1) make amendments of the Building Societies Act 1986; (2) make different provision for different purposes; (3) make such consequential, supplementary, transitional and saving provision as appears to the Treasury to be necessary or expedient: s 90B(5) (s 90B prospectively added by the Building Societies (Funding) and Mutual Societies (Transfers) Act 2007 s 2). See note 1. The power to make an order under the Building Societies Act 1986 s 90B is exercisable by statutory instrument but no such order may be made unless a draft of it has been laid before and approved by a resolution of each House of Parliament: s 90B(6) (as so prospectively added).

(i) Introduction

A. IN GENERAL

(A) SCOPE

2081. Scope.

This section of the title gives an account of the law governing societies of two principal types:

- 520 (1) societies registered under the Friendly Societies Act 1974<sup>1</sup>; and
- 521 (2) friendly societies registered and incorporated under the Friendly Societies Act 1992<sup>2</sup>.

In addition, coverage is given of such law as there is relating to unregistered friendly societies<sup>3</sup>.

Of the societies falling within head (1) above, by far the most important are registered friendly societies, but there are a number of other types of society which fall within this head<sup>4</sup>. New societies may no longer be registered under the Friendly Societies Act 1974<sup>5</sup>, and certain provisions of that Act are consequently no longer in force, but many remain for the purpose of regulating the conduct of existing registered societies<sup>6</sup>.

Registered friendly societies (as distinct from other registered societies) are subject to regulation under both the Friendly Societies Act 1974 and the Friendly Societies Act 1992. Some provisions of the Friendly Societies Act 1974<sup>7</sup> no longer apply to registered friendly societies, but are replaced, only in relation to registered friendly societies<sup>8</sup>, by equivalent provisions in the Friendly Societies Act 1992<sup>9</sup>, much of which applies to friendly societies whether they are registered under the Friendly Societies Act 1974 or registered and incorporated under the Friendly Societies Act 1992<sup>10</sup>.

In summary:

- 522 (a) registered societies which are friendly societies are regulated partly by the Friendly Societies Act 1974 and partly by the Friendly Societies Act 1992; accordingly, in this section of the title, the relevant law may be found with the law relating to registered societies<sup>11</sup>, or that relating to friendly societies generally<sup>12</sup>, as the case may be;
- 523 (b) existing registered friendly societies may, and each new friendly society must, be registered and incorporated under the Friendly Societies Act 1992, and upon that event are governed solely by that Act<sup>13</sup>;
- 524 (c) registered societies other than friendly societies are regulated, for registration and allied purposes, solely by the Friendly Societies Act 1974<sup>14</sup>.

In addition to the legislation relating solely to friendly societies mentioned above, friendly societies carrying out activities that are regulated under the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 require permission from the Financial Services Authority to carry out those activities<sup>15</sup>.

MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(2) FRIENDLY SOCIETIES/(i) Introduction/A. IN GENERAL/(A) Scope/2082. Terminology.

2082. Terminology.

It is important to distinguish between the following terms in their use throughout the coverage of friendly societies:

525 (1) 'registered society', that is to say any society, including a friendly society<sup>1</sup>, registered<sup>2</sup> under the Friendly Societies Act 1974<sup>3</sup>;

526 (2) 'registered friendly society', that is to say a friendly society registered under that Act<sup>4</sup>;

527 (3) 'incorporated friendly society', or 'incorporated society', that is to say a friendly society registered<sup>5</sup> and incorporated under the Friendly Societies Act 1992<sup>6</sup>.

In the provisions of the Friendly Societies Act 1974 describing the kinds of society which may be or remain registered under that Act<sup>7</sup>, 'friendly society' means a society providing by voluntary subscriptions of its members, with or without the aid of donations, for any of the purposes specified by statute<sup>8</sup>.

In the Friendly Societies Act 1992, 'friendly society', without further qualification, means an incorporated friendly society or a registered friendly society<sup>9</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'friendly society' see further the text and notes 7-9.

2 'Registered' in the Friendly Societies Act 1974 means registered under that Act or any other Act (whether similar in extent or not) which at any time before 1 April 1975 made similar provision for registration: s 111(1).

3 See the Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 111(1). As to the prohibition on registration of new societies under the Friendly Societies Act 1974 see PARA 2149. As to the registration of branches of societies under that Act see PARAS 2151-2153. See also note 5. Societies and branches formerly registered under equivalent Northern Ireland provisions are treated as registered under the Friendly Societies Act 1974: see PARA 2095 note 2.

4 See the Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 7(2)(a); the Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 116; and PARAS 2084, 2087, 2149.

5 Registration under the Friendly Societies Act 1992, which is a part of the process of, and a necessary prerequisite to, incorporation, is to be distinguished from registration under the Friendly Societies Act 1974, which is the event and condition on which a society became and remains entitled to the privileges conferred and subject to the liabilities imposed by that Act. Accordingly, since no society can be incorporated under the Friendly Societies Act 1992 without first being registered under it, the definition here given includes the words 'registered and' before 'incorporated' even though they are not in s 116.

7 See the Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 7(1): see PARA 2089.

(B) FRIENDLY SOCIETIES

2083. Societies which are friendly societies.

A friendly society is a voluntary association of individuals, unincorporated or incorporated, subscribing for provident benefits. Friendly societies form part of a main group of voluntary benefit thrift and provident societies<sup>1</sup>. In recent years the benefits of friendly societies have been provided primarily in the form of long term life insurance, but also include provision for sickness and unemployment benefits, and funeral expenses. In addition, friendly societies may carry on social or benevolent activities, particularly for members in financial difficulties, on either a contractual or a discretionary basis. There is a close affinity in the early history and legislation of friendly societies, co-operative societies, building societies and trade unions<sup>2</sup>.

A friendly society may: (1) be registered under the Friendly Societies Act 1974<sup>3</sup> as an unincorporated association of individuals (a 'registered friendly society')<sup>4</sup>; (2) be registered and incorporated under the Friendly Societies Act 1992 (an 'incorporated friendly society')<sup>5</sup>; or (3) be unregistered<sup>6</sup>.

1 The others are building societies (see PARA 1856 et seq), co-operative societies (see PARA 2394 et seq) and trade unions (see PARA 2100 note 1; and EMPLOYMENT vol 40 (2009) PARA 846 et seq). As to societies of the same general nature, and subject to much of the same legislation, see PARA 2089.

2 For an account of the origin, early history, governing legislation and characteristics of friendly societies and other benefit or thrift associations see Beveridge Voluntary Action (1948) and Gosden Self-Help: Voluntary Associations in nineteenth-century Britain (1973).

3 Since 1 February 1993 (ie the commencement date of the Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 93), no new society can be registered under the Friendly Societies Act 1974 (see the Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 93(1)); any new society seeking registration must now be registered and incorporated under the Friendly Societies Act 1992. As to the meaning of 'incorporated friendly society' see PARA 2082.

4 See PARA 2149 et seq.

5 See PARA 2085.

6 See PARAS 2098-2104.

MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(2) FRIENDLY SOCIETIES/(i) Introduction/A. IN GENERAL/(B) Friendly Societies/2084. Registered and unregistered friendly societies.

2084. Registered and unregistered friendly societies.

Friendly societies<sup>1</sup> may be incorporated<sup>2</sup>, registered<sup>3</sup> or unregistered<sup>4</sup>. While the permitted purposes of an incorporated or registered friendly society are defined by statute<sup>5</sup>, there is no equivalent legal definition of unregistered friendly society. Unlike registered or incorporated friendly societies, unregistered friendly societies are not capable of meeting the conditions for the grant of permission by the Financial Services Authority under Part IV of the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000<sup>6</sup> to carry on the regulated activities of effecting or carrying out contracts of insurance<sup>7</sup>.

Where legislation refers expressly to unregistered friendly societies or where mention is made of friendly societies without reference to registration, an unregistered friendly society is a society the purposes of which are substantially the same as those necessary for registration under the Friendly Societies Act 1974 or incorporation under the Friendly Societies Act 1992<sup>8</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'friendly society' see PARA 2082.

2 See PARA 2110 et seq.

3 See PARA 2149 et seq.

4 See PARA 2098 et seq.

5 See PARA 2109.

6 Ie the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 Pt IV (ss 40-55): see PARA 84 et seq. As to the Financial Services Authority see PARA 2105, and also PARAS 4, 6 et seq.

7 See the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 s 41, Sch 6 para 1(1); and PARA 351. As to activities regulated under the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 see PARA 84 et seq. Unregistered societies commonly give death benefits, but there has been no direct decision on what constitutes carrying on life assurance business by such societies. A co-operative society which provided in its rules for payment of a sum on the death of a member or his wife proportionate to the amount of his purchases was held not to carry on such business, as no policy was issued or premiums paid, there was no obligation to appropriate any sum to an insurance fund, and the society might in general meeting at any time terminate the arrangement: Hampton v

2085. Incorporated friendly societies.

Institutions which provide long term life insurance are prohibited by European Union insurance legislation from engaging directly in other activities, although they may offer other services through separately controlled and financed subsidiaries<sup>1</sup>. Under the Friendly Societies Act 1974, friendly societies<sup>2</sup> were prohibited from owning subsidiaries. However, under the Friendly Societies Act 1992, registered friendly societies<sup>3</sup> are now capable of being incorporated and acquiring legal personality<sup>4</sup>. The consequences of such incorporation are that friendly societies may own their assets and establish subsidiaries or, together with other societies, jointly control other bodies in order to offer a wider range of financial services<sup>5</sup>. Further, an incorporated society<sup>6</sup> has the power to invest funds and provide financial assistance to subsidiaries and jointly controlled bodies, as well as offer the traditional providential benefits of friendly societies<sup>7</sup>.

2086. When a friendly society is a charity.

If, under the rules of a friendly society, poverty is a necessary qualification for participation in the benefits of the society, the society may be a charity in the legal sense and may enjoy some of the privileges of charitable institutions<sup>1</sup>, but not otherwise<sup>2</sup>. A friendly society does not become charitable because it receives donations and subscriptions<sup>3</sup>. The word 'benevolent' includes purposes that do not come within the technical meaning of charitable purposes<sup>4</sup>. Registered friendly societies and branches<sup>5</sup> which are charities are not required to be registered under the Charities Act 1993 as they are exempt charities<sup>6</sup>, although they will no longer be exempt under the Charities Act 2006<sup>7</sup>.

2087. Types of registered friendly societies.

There are several distinct types of registered friendly societies<sup>1</sup>. Some friendly societies may accumulate their funds by the contributions or levies paid by members and interest on investments, and use them only for the payment of benefits. Others, which are known as dividing societies and include slate clubs and tontine<sup>2</sup> societies, periodically, and generally annually, divide in cash among their members the balance of the funds remaining after all claims have been paid and provided for<sup>3</sup>. In another form of dividing society there is no actual division, but at the end of the year shares in the balance remaining in the benefit fund are appropriated to members' accounts. The accumulations of these shares and interest are paid on death or on the attainment of a certain age or, subject generally to forfeiture of one or more of the yearly accumulations, on previous withdrawal. There is also the deposit society, in which the member's contribution goes in part to a common fund and in part to a personal account from which he may withdraw<sup>4</sup>. The sick benefit is paid partly from the common fund and partly from the members' deposits, and its extent is dependent on the amount a member has in his deposit account when he becomes ill. The money in the personal account is payable on death or in other events, as in the last-mentioned example. A society may have funds of one or more of these types<sup>5</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'registered friendly society' see PARA 2082.

2 'Tontine' means an annuity with benefit of survivorship among several persons.

3 See the Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 9(1), which allows a society (other than a benevolent society or working men's club) to register provided the rules of the society make provision for meeting all existing claims before the division of funds. As to the meanings of 'benevolent society' and 'working men's club' see PARA 2089.

4 See the Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 63, which allows rules to provide for accumulating at interest any surplus of a member's contributions above what is required for providing assurance and for withdrawal of the accumulations; and see PARA 2156.

5 Some of the larger registered friendly societies and branches now use more than one of these systems.

MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(2) FRIENDLY SOCIETIES/(i) Introduction/A. IN GENERAL/(B) Friendly Societies/2088. Collecting societies.

2088. Collecting societies.

Friendly societies may employ collectors to collect contributions at the homes of members. Where these collected contributions have been paid for death benefit or other assurances on life the societies, in common with industrial assurance companies, have been subject to special legislation since 1875<sup>1</sup>. The main Acts governing the carrying on of industrial assurance business were the Industrial Assurance Act 1923 and the Industrial Assurance and Friendly Societies Act 1948<sup>2</sup>. Both those Acts have been repealed<sup>3</sup> but continue to have modified effect in relation to policies effected before 1 December 2001<sup>4</sup>. Under those Acts, with certain exceptions<sup>5</sup>, business qualifies as industrial assurance business<sup>6</sup> if, when carried on before 1 December 2001, it consisted of effecting assurances on human life, the premiums in respect of which were received by means of collectors and if, when carried on after that day, it consists of the carrying out of such assurances the premiums in respect of which either continue to be received by means of collectors or are received by other means pursuant to an agreement agreed in writing with the owner of the policy<sup>7</sup>. Friendly societies which carry on such business are known as collecting societies<sup>8</sup>.

1 The legislation was separated with the enactment of the Friendly Societies Act 1896 and the Collecting Societies and Industrial Assurance Companies Act 1896 (both now repealed).

2 See also the Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 116(2), Sch 10 para 6(2); and the Reserve and Auxiliary Forces (Protection of Civil Interests) Act 1951 Pt VI (ss 54-59) (see PARAS 2375-2379), which refers to the Industrial Assurance Act 1923 s 23 notwithstanding its repeal. See also the Industrial Assurance and Friendly Societies Act 1948 (repealed with savings).

4 Ie by virtue of the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 (Consequential Amendments and Savings) (Industrial Assurance) Order 2001, SI 2001/3647.

5 Ie where such business does not include: (1) assurances the premiums in respect of which were payable before 1 December 2001 at intervals of two months or more; (2) assurances effected by a society or company established before 1 January 1924 which at that date had no assurances outstanding, the premiums on which were payable at intervals of less than one month, so long as the society or company did not effect any such assurances between 1 January 1924 and 1 December 2001; (3) assurances effected before 1 January 1924, premiums in respect of which are payable at intervals of one month or upwards, and which had up to such date been treated as part of the business transacted by a branch other than the industrial branch of the society or company; (4) assurances for £25 or upwards effected after 1 January 1924, premiums in respect of which are payable at intervals of one month or upwards, and which were treated before 1 December 2001 as part of the business transacted by a branch other than the industrial branch of the society or company, in cases where the relevant authority had certified before that day that the terms and conditions of such assurances were on the whole not less favourable to the assured than those imposed by the Industrial Assurances Act 1923: s 1(2) provisos (a)-(d) (amended by SI 2001/3647). 'Relevant authority' means, in relation to a time before the commencement of the Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 100, Sch 19 (now repealed), the Chief Registrar, and in relation to a period after that time, the Friendly Societies Commission: Industrial Assurance Act 1923 s 45(1) (definition added by the Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 19 para 12). The Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 19 has been repealed; and the office of Chief Registrar and the Friendly Societies Commission have ceased to exist and all assets, rights and liabilities attached to that office or the Commission have been transferred to the Treasury: see the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 (Mutual Societies) Order 2001, SI 2001/2617, art 12; and PARA 2105. As to the Treasury see PARA 3; and CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 512 et seq.

7 le in accordance with the Industrial Assurance Act 1923 s 1A (added by SI 2001/3647).

8 For these purposes, 'collecting society' means an incorporated friendly society or registered friendly society which carried on industrial assurance business immediately before 1 December 2001 and is subject to an existing liability or a liability which may accrue under any policy effected in the course of that business: Industrial Assurance Act 1923 s 1(1A) (added by the Companies Act 1967 Sch 6 Pt II; substituted by the Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 19 para 2(1); and amended by SI 2001/3647). 'Friendly society' and 'registered friendly society' have the same meanings as in the Friendly Societies Act 1992 (see PARA 2082): Industrial Assurance Act 1923 s 45(1) (definition added by the Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 19 para 12).

2089. Other societies which may remain registered.

Five classes of societies, other than friendly societies<sup>1</sup>, may also remain registered societies<sup>2</sup> under the Friendly Societies Act 1974<sup>3</sup>. Those classes are:

- 528 (1) cattle insurance societies, for the purpose of insurance to any amount against loss of cattle, sheep, lambs, swine, horses and other animals by death from disease or otherwise<sup>4</sup>;
- 529 (2) benevolent societies, for any benevolent or charitable purpose<sup>5</sup>;
- 530 (3) working men's clubs, for purposes of social intercourse, mutual helpfulness, mental and moral improvement and rational recreation<sup>6</sup>;
- 531 (4) old people's home societies, for the purpose of providing homes for the members and others at any age after 50<sup>7</sup>; and
- 532 (5) specially authorised societies, which are societies registered for any purpose which the Treasury may authorise as a purpose to which some or all of the provisions of the Friendly Societies Act 1974 ought to be extended<sup>8</sup>.

Registration under the companies legislation<sup>9</sup> is not necessary in the case of a specially authorised society<sup>10</sup>.

5 Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 7(1)(c). The point whether benevolent societies might be established for purposes of general benevolence, as distinguished from specified purposes, has not been decided by the courts. As 'benevolent' includes purposes which are not exclusively charitable (see PARA 2086), benevolent societies and branches will not normally be charities within the meaning of the Charities Act 1993: see ss 96, 97; and CHARITIES vol 8 (2010) PARA 1. Any such society or branch which is a charity within the meaning of that Act is exempt from registration under it if registered under the Friendly Societies Act 1974: see the Charities Act 1993 s 3(5)(a), Sch 2 (see PARA 2086 notes 6, 7); and see CHARITIES vol 8 (2010) PARA 315.

In the case of specially authorised societies<sup>1</sup> the Treasury may limit the application of the Friendly Societies Act 1974 to such of its provisions as are specified in the special authority<sup>2</sup>. Apart from such limitations, specially authorised societies are subject to all the provisions relating to registered societies<sup>3</sup>. A specially authorised loan society<sup>4</sup> registered under the Friendly Societies Act 1974<sup>5</sup> has power, if its rules contain certain provisions, to receive deposits and borrow from non-members as well as from members<sup>6</sup>.

2 Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 7(1)(f). As to the Treasury see PARA 3; and CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 512 et seq. Where provisions of the Friendly Societies Act 1974 are specified, only those provisions extend to a specially authorised society which has been registered by virtue of the authority: s 7(4). As to the special authorities see PARA 2089 text and note 8. The limitations usually exclude such privileges as exemption from stamp duty. The acknowledgment of registration usually specifies the provisions of the Friendly Societies Act 1974 which are extended to the society, and those which are not. See PARA 2149 text and note 3.

3 As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2082.

4 By Special Authority No 2 of 10 June 1976, the Treasury authorised as a purpose, inter alia, the creation of funds by monthly or other subscription to be lent to or invested for members or for their benefit, known as 'specially authorised loan societies', and restricted to societies registered before 15 August 1917. See PARA 2089 text and note 8. As to the requirement of a separate loan fund see PARA 2194.

(D) BRANCHES OF SOCIETIES

2091. Branches and registered branches.

The Friendly Societies Act 1974 and the Friendly Societies Act 1992 both contemplate the existence of branches of societies, but to different effect. In each case, however, the term has an artificial and specific meaning. The Friendly Societies Act 1974 defines 'branch', in relation to a registered society<sup>1</sup>, as any number of the members of the society, under the control of a central body, having a separate fund administered by themselves or by a committee or officers appointed by themselves, and bound to contribute to a fund under the control of the central body<sup>2</sup>. The Friendly Societies Act 1992 defines 'registered branch' as a branch of a registered friendly society which is separately registered<sup>3</sup> within the meaning of the Friendly Societies Act 1974<sup>4</sup>.

For purposes relating to the effect of incorporation on registered societies with branches<sup>5</sup>, 'branch' is defined by the Friendly Societies Act 1992 as follows. In relation to a registered friendly society<sup>6</sup> it means any registered or unregistered branch of the society, and in relation to an incorporated friendly society<sup>7</sup> it means a group of members, provided for by the rules of the society, which:

- 533 (1) is under the control, and bound to contribute to the funds, of the society; and
- 534 (2) has its own funds and other property vested in trustees and administered, in accordance with its rules, by the members of the group themselves, or through its own committee or other officers<sup>8</sup>.

The affairs of registered branches are administered by their own appointed committee and officers<sup>9</sup> and their investments are controlled by their committee or members<sup>10</sup>. The contributions and benefits provided by registered branches in the same society may and often do vary. Subject to the conditions contained in the society's rules, branches of a registered society have the right to secede from the society<sup>11</sup>, but may only be dissolved with the consent of the central body of the society or in accordance with the society's general rules<sup>12</sup>. The composition and powers of the central body of a society with branches are determined by the society's rules<sup>13</sup>.

Societies with branches are commonly called orders, and branches of friendly societies are commonly called lodges, courts or tents.

The rules of registered societies may provide for their branches to be grouped as branches of district branches. A district branch may itself be registrable as a branch if it falls within the definition of branch given above<sup>14</sup>.

An incorporated friendly society is a single corporate entity and cannot, therefore, have separately registered branches. On the incorporation of a registered society with registered or unregistered branches, all the property held immediately before incorporation by any person in trust for any branch of the society, and all rights and liabilities to which any such branch was then entitled or subject, become<sup>15</sup> the property, rights and liabilities of the society<sup>16</sup>. A registered society may<sup>17</sup> make a scheme identifying any property, rights or liabilities of any branch of the society which are not to be transferred to the society on its incorporation<sup>18</sup>. On the incorporation of a registered friendly society, its registration under the Friendly Societies Act 1974 and that of any branch of the society is cancelled by the Financial Services Authority<sup>19</sup>.

The rules of a registered friendly society<sup>1</sup> with branches<sup>2</sup> must make provision for the conditions under which branches may secede<sup>3</sup>, and rules also generally provide for the circumstances under which a branch may be expelled and the manner of expulsion. A secession is invalid where the rules of the society have not been complied with<sup>4</sup>.

A body which, having been a branch of a society, has wholly seceded or been expelled from that society, may not thereafter use the name of that society or any name implying that it is a branch of that society, nor the number by which it was designated as such a branch<sup>5</sup>. An officer or member of the branch who uses any such name or number is guilty of an offence<sup>6</sup>.

2093. Effect of expulsion or secession.

When a branch<sup>1</sup> is expelled from a registered friendly society<sup>2</sup> all the members of the branch are similarly expelled, and if one of the rules is that only members of the society are entitled to death benefit, they all lose the right to such benefit<sup>3</sup>.

Notice of a proposed secession need not be given to members joining a branch after a resolution to secede<sup>4</sup>. In settling accounts on the secession of a branch, the funds are not to be divided as in a winding up<sup>5</sup>.

A seceded or expelled branch of a registered friendly society becomes an unregistered friendly society without any of the advantages of a registered friendly society<sup>6</sup>. A seceded or expelled branch of any other society registered under the Friendly Societies Act 1974<sup>7</sup> becomes an unregistered association, and its legality as such depends on whether its objects and purposes are those in respect of which an association is required by law to be so registered<sup>8</sup>.

(E) THE LEGISLATION

2094. Purpose and history of legislation.

The purpose of friendly society legislation, which began at the end of the eighteenth century, was to encourage the promotion of thrift, the better management of friendly societies and the protection of their funds. Under the earliest Acts the rules of friendly societies were allowed by justices of the peace and enrolled at quarter sessions. Later a barrister was appointed to examine and certify rules before enrolment; he was afterwards constituted the Registrar of Friendly Societies<sup>1</sup>, and took charge of rules which had been enrolled with the clerk of the peace in each county. In 1875 the Registry of Friendly Societies was established<sup>2</sup> and since then all previously existing enrolled and certified friendly societies have been deemed to be registered<sup>3</sup>.

The Friendly Societies Act 1974 consolidated the Friendly Societies Acts 1896 to 1971 and certain other enactments relating to the societies to which these Acts applied.

The Friendly Societies Act 1992 introduced a substantially new legislative framework for friendly societies<sup>4</sup>, setting them apart from the other kinds of registered societies with which they had been grouped up to that time<sup>5</sup>. It established a Friendly Societies Commission<sup>6</sup> whose functions have since been transferred to the Financial Services Authority<sup>7</sup>. For the first time, the legislation enabled the incorporation of friendly societies, permitting existing friendly societies to incorporate and providing for all newly registered friendly societies to become incorporated on registration<sup>8</sup>. The limits placed on friendly societies business under the Friendly Societies Act 1974 were expanded; incorporated friendly societies were given power under the Friendly Societies Act 1992 to have subsidiaries and jointly to control other bodies corporate for certain purposes<sup>9</sup>. The Friendly Societies Act 1992 also introduced a system of authorisation in relation to all societies' insurance or other business<sup>10</sup>.

The regulatory controls imposed on friendly societies have been brought into line with other financial institutions and are now carried out by the Authority<sup>11</sup>.

1 See the Friendly Societies Act 1846 s 10 (repealed).

2 See the Friendly Societies Act 1875 s 10 (repealed).

3 Between 1896 and 1974 the principal Act governing friendly societies was the Friendly Societies Act 1896, which consolidated previous legislation. That Act applied to societies and branches subsisting at its commencement on 1 January 1897 (see s 108 (repealed)) which, or the rules of which, had been registered, enrolled or certified under any Act relating to friendly societies or to cattle insurance societies as if they had been registered under the Friendly Societies Act 1896 (s 101(1) (repealed)). The Friendly Societies Act 1974 applies to any society or branch to which, immediately before the passing of that Act on 31 July 1974, the Friendly Societies Act 1896 applied by virtue only of s 101(1) (repealed): Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 116(2), Sch 10 para 7(a). As to the meaning of 'registered' in the Friendly Societies Act 1974, and of 'registered friendly society' in the Friendly Societies Act 1992, see PARA 2082. As to branches of societies see PARA 2091.

4 The Friendly Societies Act 1992 was preceded by a Green Paper (Cm 919) in January 1990 entitled 'Friendly Societies: A New Framework' on which there was extensive consultation. The Act received the Royal Assent on 16 March 1992.

2095. Territorial scope of the legislation.

The previous legislation relating to friendly and other registered societies generally applied to England and Wales, the Isle of Man and the Channel Islands, but not to Northern Ireland<sup>1</sup>. The Friendly Societies Act 1974, as originally enacted, expressly excluded Northern Ireland from its application but has since been extended to include Northern Ireland<sup>2</sup>. Similarly the Friendly Societies Act 1992 extends to Northern Ireland<sup>3</sup>. In their application to the Isle of Man and to the Channel Islands, the Friendly Societies Act 1974 and the Friendly Societies Act 1992 have effect subject to such adaptations and modifications as may be specified<sup>4</sup>. Both Acts apply to Scotland.

1 See the Friendly Societies Act 1896 s 103 (repealed); the Industrial Assurance and Friendly Societies Act 1948 s 24(1), (2) (repealed); and the Friendly Societies Act 1955 s 1(4) (repealed).

2 Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 117(3) (amended by the Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 16 paras 1, 50, Sch 22); Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 96(1). In consequence, the previous Northern Ireland legislation, namely the Friendly Societies Act (Northern Ireland) 1970, is repealed; and societies and branches registered thereunder are treated as registered under the Friendly Societies Act 1974: Friendly Societies Act 1992 ss 96(2)-(4), 120(2), Sch 22 Pt II. See also the Friendly Societies Act 1992 (Commencement No 7 and Transitional Provisions and Savings) Order 1993, SI 1993/3226, arts 3, 4, 8.

4 The Friendly Societies Act 1974 has been extended to the Channel Islands and the Isle of Man: see ss 112(1), 113(1); the Friendly Societies (Channel Islands) Order 1975, SI 1975/419; and the Friendly Societies (Isle of Man) Order 1975, SI 1975/420. Certain provisions of the Friendly Societies Act 1992 have been extended to the Channel Islands: see s 125(1); and the Friendly Societies Act 1992 (Industrial Assurance) (Channel Islands) Order 2001, SI 2001/3677. In relation to the Friendly Societies Act 1974, any Order in Council specifying adaptations and modifications may be varied or revoked by a subsequent Order in Council: ss 112(2), 113(2).

B. PURPOSES OF REGISTERED AND INCORPORATED FRIENDLY SOCIETIES

2096. Purposes of a registered or incorporated friendly society.

Friendly societies<sup>1</sup> may remain registered<sup>2</sup> under the Friendly Societies Act 1974 for the purposes of providing, by voluntary<sup>3</sup> subscriptions of the members, with or without the aid of donations, for any purposes within the provisions of the Friendly Societies Act 1992<sup>4</sup>.

The purposes of an incorporated friendly society are those provided for by the society's memorandum<sup>5</sup>. The purposes for which an incorporated friendly society may exist are:

1. (a) any business of any description falling within a class specified in head A or head B of Schedule 2 to the Friendly Societies Act 1992 or within head C of that Schedule<sup>7</sup>; or
2. (b) any activity falling within head D of Schedule 2 to the Friendly Societies Act 1992<sup>8</sup>; and

536 (2) the carrying on, in addition to any business or activity falling within head (1) above, any of the following, namely:

27

3. (a) social or benevolent activities<sup>9</sup>;
4. (b) group insurance business<sup>10</sup>;
5. (c) reinsurance<sup>11</sup> of risks insured by other friendly societies;
6. (d) control or joint control of bodies corporate<sup>12</sup>.

28

The memorandum may confer power to carry out additional activities permitted by the Friendly Societies Act 1992<sup>13</sup>.

Business under head C of Schedule 2 to the Friendly Societies Act 1992 is business, not falling within the descriptions of insurance business in head A or head B of that Schedule, consisting of the effecting and carrying out of contracts in accordance with which benefits are provided for the relief or maintenance of any persons during sickness or when in distressed circumstances, or to meet the funeral expenses of any persons<sup>24</sup>.

Activities under head D of Schedule 2 to the Friendly Societies Act 1992 are activities, carried out in accordance with the society's rules, or with arrangements made under the rules, whereby discretionary benefits are provided: (i) for the education of any persons; (ii) for the relief or maintenance of any persons during sickness, when out of employment or when in distressed circumstances; or (iii) for the funeral expenses of any persons<sup>25</sup>.

The Treasury may by order vary the list of purposes by adding or deleting, or by varying the description of, any activity for the time being specified<sup>26</sup>.

For the purposes of the Friendly Societies Act 1992, the effecting and carrying out of a contract whose principal object is within one class of insurance business<sup>27</sup>, but which contains related and subsidiary provisions in another class, is taken to be business of the former, and no other<sup>28</sup>, if:

- 537 (A) the principal object falls within any class in head A of Schedule 2 to the Friendly Societies Act 1992 and the subsidiary provisions fall within class 1 or 2 of head B of that Schedule<sup>29</sup>, and the society is authorised to carry on long term business of class I in head A of that Schedule<sup>30</sup>; or
- 538 (B) the principal object is within one of the classes of head B of Schedule 2 to the Friendly Societies Act 1992 and the subsidiary provisions fall within another of those classes<sup>31</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'friendly society' see PARA 2082.

2 No new society may be registered under the Friendly Societies Act 1974 after 1 February 1993: see PARAS 2083, 2149. Subject to s 7, a society registered under the Friendly Societies Act 1974 immediately before 1 February 1993 continues as a registered society in accordance with that Act: Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 93(2).

3 It is not compulsory. It is conceived that the word 'voluntary' used in connection with subscriptions to friendly societies cannot be used in the legal sense as meaning 'without consideration', as members of such societies gain the benefit of insurance. It was held in Battersea Metropolitan Borough Council v British Iron and Steel Research Association [1949] 1 KB 434, [1949] 1 All ER 21, CA, that contributions which carried with them advantages incidental to membership might be 'voluntary contributions' within the meaning of that expression in the Scientific Societies Act 1843 s 1 (repealed).

4 Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 7(1)(a) (amended by the Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 16 paras 1, 4), which provides that the specified purposes are those listed in the Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 2 (see the text and notes 14-25).

13 Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 7(2). The additional activities are those set out in Sch 5: see PARA 2097.

14 It is effecting and carrying out contracts of insurance on human life or contracts to pay annuities on human life, but excluding, in each case, contracts within the Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 2 head A class III (see the text and note 16): Sch 2 head A class I.

15 It is effecting and carrying out contracts of insurance to provide a sum on marriage or on the formation of a civil partnership or on the birth of a child, being contracts expressed to be in effect for a period of more than one year: Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 2 head A class II (amended by the Civil Partnership Act 2004 Sch 27 para 143).

16    le effecting and carrying out contracts of insurance on human life or contracts to pay annuities on human life where the benefits are wholly or partly to be determined by reference to the value of, or the income from, property of any description (whether or not specified in the contracts) or by reference to fluctuation in, or in an index of, the value of the property of any description (whether or not so specified): Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 2 head A class III.

17    le effecting and carrying out contracts of insurance providing specified benefits against risks of persons becoming incapacitated in consequence of sustaining injury as a result of an accident or of an accident of a specified class or of sickness or infirmity, being contracts that: (1) are expressed to be in effect for a period of not less than five years, or until the normal retirement age for the persons concerned, or without limit of time; and (2) either are not expressed to be terminable by the insurer, or are expressed to be so terminable only in special circumstances mentioned in the contract: Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 2 head A class IV.

18    le effecting and carrying out tontines: Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 2 head A class V. As to the meaning of 'tontine' see PARA 2087 note 2.

19    le effecting and carrying out capital redemption contracts: Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 2 head A class VI.

20    le effecting and carrying out: (1) contracts to manage the investments of pension funds; or (2) contracts of the kind mentioned in head (1) above that are combined with contracts of insurance covering either conservation of capital or payment of a minimum interest: Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 2 head A class VII.

21    le effecting and carrying out contracts of insurance providing fixed pecuniary benefits or benefits in the nature of indemnity (or a combination of both) against risks of the person insured:

2       (1)   sustaining injury as the result of an accident or of an accident of a specified class;

3       (2)   dying as a result of an accident or of an accident of a specified class; or

4       (3)   becoming incapacitated in consequence of disease or of a disease of a specified class, inclusive of contracts relating to industrial injury and occupational disease but exclusive of contracts falling within the Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 2 head B class 2 (see the text and note 22) or within Sch 2 head A class IV (see the text and note 17): Sch 2 head B class 1.

22    le effecting and carrying out contracts of insurance providing fixed pecuniary benefits or benefits in the nature of indemnity (or a combination of the two) against risks of loss to the persons insured attributable to sickness or infirmity, but exclusive of contracts falling within the Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 2 head A class IV (see the text and note 17): Sch 2 head B class 2.

23    le effecting and carrying out contracts of insurance against any of the following risks, namely: (1) risks of loss to the persons insured attributable to their being unemployed; (2) risks of loss to the persons insured attributable to their being in distressed circumstances; or (3) risks of loss to the persons insured attributable to sickness or infirmity, but in each case exclusive of contracts falling within the Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 2 head B class 2 (see the text and note 22) or Sch 2 head A class IV (see the text and note 17): Sch 2 head B class 3.

2097. Additional purposes of an incorporated friendly society.

The memorandum of an incorporated friendly society<sup>1</sup> may empower it to do anything falling within Schedule 5 to the Friendly Societies Act 1992 in the manner directed by the society's rules<sup>2</sup>. The memorandum of an incorporated friendly society may confer on it any other power<sup>3</sup>, but no such power may be exercised except for carrying out the society's purposes<sup>4</sup>. An incorporated friendly society will, subject to the provisions of the Friendly Societies Act 1992, its memorandum and its rules, have any other power which is incidental or conducive to the carrying out of its purposes<sup>5</sup>.

An incorporated friendly society may<sup>6</sup>, out of any separate loan fund to be formed by contributions or deposits from its members, make loans to members on their personal security, with or without sureties<sup>7</sup>. A loan may not at any time be made out of money contributed otherwise than for the purpose of the loan fund<sup>8</sup>. The society may not:

- 539 (1) make any loan to a member on personal security beyond the amount fixed by the rules, or make any loan which, together with any money owing by a member to the society, exceeds £200<sup>9</sup>; or
- 540 (2) hold at any one time on deposit from its members any money beyond the amount fixed by the rules, and the amount so fixed may not exceed two-thirds of the total sums owing to the society by the members who have borrowed from the loan fund<sup>10</sup>.

A society may set up and administer a fund for the purchase, on behalf of members contributing thereto, of Defence Bonds, National Savings Certificates, Ulster Savings Certificates or such other securities of Her Majesty's government as the Financial Services Authority may prescribe<sup>11</sup>. A society may allow persons to become members of the society for the purpose only of contributing to a fund set up by virtue of these provisions<sup>12</sup>.

A society may invest funds of the society in subscribing for any of the share or loan capital of a housing association<sup>13</sup> other than shares or debentures not fully paid up at the time of issue<sup>14</sup>. A society may accumulate at interest, for the use of any member, any surplus of his contributions to the funds of the society which may remain after providing for any assurance in respect of which they are paid and for the withdrawal of the accumulations<sup>15</sup>. A society may subscribe out of its funds to any hospital, infirmary, charitable or provident institution, any annual or other sum which may be necessary to secure to members of the society, and their families, the benefits of that institution<sup>16</sup>. A society may contribute to the funds and take part in the government of any other friendly society<sup>17</sup>.

A society may include among its purposes the carrying on of any social or benevolent activity<sup>18</sup> which is not inconsistent with its other purposes<sup>19</sup>.

Although the enactments relating to friendly societies have no direct application to unregistered friendly societies<sup>1</sup>, their existence is recognised by some of those enactments and in other legislation, and they are not without some statutory privileges<sup>2</sup>. An unregistered friendly society is an unincorporated association of individuals. The members for the time being are jointly entitled beneficially to its property and funds. The property of such a society is commonly vested in trustees<sup>3</sup>.

1 As to the interpretation of references in enactments to unregistered friendly societies see PARA 2084.

2 See PARA 2099. As to interests of members of societies serving in the reserve or auxiliary forces of the Crown see also PARAS 2375-2379.

3 Cf the Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 54 (see PARA 2185), which provides for the vesting of a registered society's property in its trustees; and cf CLUBS vol 13 (2009) PARAS 204, 211. As to the number of trustees in whom land of an unregistered society may be vested cf PARA 2185 (which is concerned with the position where the society is a registered society; the enactments cited there do not directly govern the position where the society is unregistered, as to which there is no decided authority). As to joint tenants of land generally see REAL PROPERTY vol 39(2) (Reissue) PARA 190 et seq. As to proceedings by or against unregistered societies see PARA 2104.

An unregistered friendly society is exempt from income tax and corporation tax, whether on income or on chargeable gains, if its income does not exceed a specified sum<sup>1</sup>.

An unregistered friendly society may not carry on insurance business in the United Kingdom<sup>2</sup>.

No person can be appointed a physician, surgeon or other medical officer of an unregistered friendly society unless he is a fully registered medical practitioner<sup>3</sup>.

1 See the Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 459; and INCOME TAXATION vol 23(2) (Reissue) PARA 1221. The specified sum is £160 a year: see s 459; and INCOME TAXATION vol 23(2) (Reissue) PARA 1221.

2100. Effect of society's purposes being in restraint of trade.

Trade friendly societies which restrict membership to persons engaged in a particular trade or industry<sup>1</sup> may become illegal associations if their rules contain provisions in restraint of trade. If their purposes are mainly legal, they are not necessarily illegal associations if their rules contain some provisions in restraint of trade made for the purpose of protecting funds against certain claims, provided such provisions go no further than is reasonable or necessary for the purpose<sup>2</sup>. If the main purposes are in restraint of trade, an unregistered friendly society is an illegal association<sup>3</sup>.

1 Since the introduction of trade union legislation these societies have almost ceased to exist. The first Act passed was the Trade Union Act 1871. As to the effect where the purposes of a trade union or employers' association are in restraint of trade see the Trade Union and Labour Relations (Consolidation) Act 1992 s 128(1), (2); and EMPLOYMENT vol 40 (2009) PARA 1030. As to the prohibition against a trade union being registered under the Friendly Societies Act 1974 see the Trade Union and Labour Relations (Consolidation) Act 1992 s 10(3); and EMPLOYMENT vol 40 (2009) PARA 852.

2101. Illegality for want of incorporation.

An association of people contributing to a fund to provide themselves with benefits of a friendly society<sup>1</sup> nature, such as sickness benefits, and dividing the balance of the funds periodically<sup>2</sup>, is not an illegal association for want of registration under the legislation governing companies<sup>3</sup>.

An unregistered association, the purposes of which may be construed as being for the acquisition of gain by the association or individual members<sup>4</sup>, would be illegal for want of such registration, and it is conceived that a society having this purpose, even though it may provide benefits of a friendly society nature, could not be regarded as an unregistered friendly society within the meaning of the Friendly Societies Act 1974<sup>5</sup>. Questions on this point arise in connection with the enforcement of contracts entered into with societies and rights of members, and also with regard to the winding up of their affairs<sup>6</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'friendly society' see PARA 2082.

2 As to dividing societies see PARA 2087.

In Marrs v Thompson (1902) 86 LT 759, DC, Channell J excluded an unregistered friendly society from the necessity of registration under the Companies Acts on the ground that the society came within the exception of a company formed under another Act, as unregistered societies were mentioned in certain provisions of the Friendly Societies Act 1896 (now repealed).

2102. Rights of members of unregistered societies.

If the rules of an unregistered friendly society contain no provision for their amendment, it would seem that any amendments cannot affect existing rights of a member without his consent<sup>1</sup>. In the absence of any provision in the rules, a member can resign his membership at any time. The resignation is effective without the need for acceptance by the society, and therefore cannot be withdrawn after it has been received<sup>2</sup>. The provisions relating to nominations in the Friendly Societies Act 1974<sup>3</sup> do not apply to unregistered friendly societies. If a member makes a nomination under provisions contained in rules, in the absence of a provision on that happening, the nomination is not revoked by his subsequent marriage<sup>4</sup>. A provision in the rules of an unregistered society for payment of death benefit to certain named relatives at the committee's discretion, unless otherwise bequeathed by will, does not make the benefit the property of a member during his life, and in the absence of a will the benefit forms no part of his estate, and payment by the committee in terms of the rules discharges the society from further claim<sup>5</sup>. The payment of that benefit to the nominee of a deceased member, made in accordance with provisions in the rules, would also be a sufficient discharge to the society against a claim by the administrator of the deceased member's estate; but it is probable that, in the absence of any evidence of a contrary intention, the nomination gives only a title to collect the benefit for which the nominee must account to the administrator<sup>6</sup>. This would also be the case if the rules provided for a nomination and the member made a nomination which was invalid under the rules, and the rules gave a discretion to the committee as to who should be paid the money in the absence of a nomination<sup>7</sup>.

The decision of a majority of the members to register an unregistered friendly society has been held binding on the minority<sup>8</sup>.

An association which is a non-trading concern, and which exists only for the purpose of providing benefits of a friendly society<sup>1</sup> nature for its members, may be wound up as an unregistered company<sup>2</sup> under the Insolvency Act 1986<sup>3</sup>. The High Court has inherent jurisdiction to wind up an unregistered association<sup>4</sup>. Further, an unregistered friendly society will be regarded as terminated, so that its assets become distributable: (1) on the happening of an event for which the rules prescribe dissolution or termination; (2) where all interested parties agree; and (3) where the substratum on which the society was founded has ceased to exist<sup>5</sup>.

An unregistered society cannot sue or be sued in its own name nor can the secretary or any other officer of the society sue or be sued on behalf of the society, even if the rules purport to give him power to sue and provide for his being sued<sup>1</sup>.

A claim may be brought by or against trustees of an unregistered society in their capacity as such without adding as parties any persons who have a beneficial interest in the trust; and any judgment or order given or made in the claim is binding on those persons unless the court in the same or other proceedings otherwise orders<sup>2</sup>.

Where several members of an unregistered society have the same interest in a claim, the claim may be begun, or the court may order that the claim be continued, by or against one or more of the persons who have the same interest as representatives of any other persons who have that interest<sup>3</sup>.

2105. Transfer of functions to the Financial Services Authority and the Treasury.

For the purposes of the Friendly Societies Acts 1974 and 1992 a body corporate of Commissioners was established by the Friendly Societies Act 1992 called the Friendly Societies Commission with the general functions of promoting the financial stability of friendly societies, securing their conformity with the Friendly Societies Act 1992 and administering the system of regulation of their activities<sup>1</sup>. The registration and incorporation of friendly societies remained the duty of the Registry of Friendly Societies under the Chief Registrar<sup>2</sup>. On 1 December 2001, the Commission and the Registry ceased to exist and the majority of their functions were transferred to the Financial Services Authority<sup>3</sup> with certain powers to make legislative provision being transferred to the Treasury<sup>4</sup>. All assets, rights and liabilities which at that time attached to the Registry or the Commission (including records maintained or held by, and any other assets, rights and liabilities of, the central office) were transferred to the Treasury<sup>5</sup>.

Introduction/D. REGULATION OF FRIENDLY SOCIETIES/2106. Functions of the Financial Services Authority in relation to friendly societies.

2106. Functions of the Financial Services Authority in relation to friendly societies.

The Financial Services Authority<sup>1</sup> has the following functions in relation to friendly societies<sup>2</sup>:

- 541 (1) to secure that the purposes of each friendly society are in conformity with the Friendly Societies Act 1992 and with any other enactment regulating the purposes of friendly societies<sup>3</sup>;
- 542 (2) to administer the system of regulation of the activities of friendly societies<sup>4</sup>; and
- 543 (3) to advise and make recommendations to the Treasury and other government departments on any matter relating to friendly societies<sup>5</sup>.

The Authority also has, in relation to such societies, the other functions conferred on it by or under the Friendly Societies Act 1992 or any other enactment<sup>6</sup>.

2107. Power to make regulations, orders and directions, and to charge fees.

Under the Friendly Societies Act 1974 the Treasury has the power to make regulations<sup>1</sup> with respect to:

- 544 (1) the seal to be used by the Financial Services Authority for the registration of any society or document (including any amendment to any document) under the Friendly Societies Act 1974, the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965, the Building Societies Act 1986 or the Friendly Societies Act 1992, or otherwise for sealing any document for the purposes of any of those Acts<sup>2</sup>;
- 545 (2) the duties and functions of the Financial Services Authority under the Friendly Societies Act 1974<sup>3</sup>;
- 546 (3) the inspection of documents kept by the Financial Services Authority under the Friendly Societies Act 1974<sup>4</sup>, and generally for carrying the Friendly Societies Act 1974 into effect<sup>5</sup>.

Before the Authority allows any person to inspect any document held by it in connection with the Friendly Societies Act 1974, or provides any person with a copy of any such document (or part of such document), it may charge that person a reasonable fee<sup>6</sup>.

Under the Friendly Societies Act 1992, the Authority may, by directions<sup>7</sup>, make provision with respect to the form of any document to be sent to it under the Friendly Societies Act 1992 or the Friendly Societies Act 1974, the particulars to be included in any such document and the procedure to be followed in sending any such document<sup>8</sup>.

The Treasury has power to make orders modifying provisions of the Friendly Societies Act 1992 for the purpose of assimilating the law relating to friendly societies to that relating to companies or insurance business<sup>9</sup>.

Further regulations and orders may be made by the Treasury in relation to auditors and valuations under certain provisions of the Friendly Societies Act 1974<sup>10</sup>, and by the Treasury and the Authority in relation to a range of matters under provisions of the Friendly Societies Act 1992<sup>11</sup>.

1 As to the Treasury see PARA 3; and CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 512 et seq.

Any power of the Treasury or the Secretary of State to make regulations under the Friendly Societies Act 1974 is exercisable by statutory instrument and a statutory instrument made in exercise of any such power is subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament: s 109(2) (amended by SI 2001/2617). As to the Secretary of State see PARA 3.

7 le by directions made under the Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 114. The directions have effect subject to any other provision of or made under the Friendly Societies Act 1992: s 114(2) (s 114 substituted by SI 2001/3649).

9 See the Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 102; and PARA 2381.

Any power of the Treasury to make regulations or orders under the Friendly Societies Act 1992 is exercisable by statutory instrument: s 121(1) (amended by SI 2001/2617). Any statutory instrument containing such regulations or such orders other than an order under the Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 5 (see PARA 2110 et seq), s 69J (see PARA 2328), s 69K (see PARA 2329) or s 126 (commencement) is subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament: s 121(2) (amended by SI 2005/2211). Any power to make regulations or orders conferred by the Friendly Societies Act 1992 includes power to make different provision for different cases, and to make transitional, consequential or supplementary provision: s 121(3).

10 See the Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 31(5) (obligation to appoint auditors) (see PARA 2206); s 40(1) (remuneration of qualified auditors) (see PARA 2208); s 42 (regulation and directions relating to valuations) (see PARA 2203). See note 1.

Friendly societies, like all providers of financial services, are subject to the regulatory system established by the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000<sup>1</sup>. That Act contains a general prohibition, which prohibits a person from carrying on a regulated activity<sup>2</sup> in the United Kingdom<sup>3</sup> unless he is either an authorised person<sup>4</sup> or an exempt person<sup>5</sup>. Friendly societies must apply to the Financial Services Authority<sup>6</sup> for permission to carry out activities regulated by the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000<sup>7</sup>. Friendly societies must also comply with the numerous rules and other guidance issued by the Financial Services Authority, most of which are contained in the Financial Services Authority's Handbook of Rules and Guidance<sup>8</sup>.

A friendly society (whether newly established or already in existence as a registered friendly society<sup>1</sup>) is incorporated by virtue of registration under the Friendly Societies Act 1992 and is incorporated from the date of its registration by the Financial Services Authority<sup>2</sup>. Incorporated friendly societies are corporate bodies but not companies registered under the Companies Acts. The liability of a member is limited to the amount of any subscription<sup>3</sup> to the society which is outstanding<sup>4</sup> and no subscription is recoverable at law except on the winding up of the society<sup>5</sup>.

1 For the establishment of a new society see PARA 2111. As to the meaning of 'registered friendly society' see PARA 2082.

2 Friendly Societies Act 1992 ss 5(3), 6(1) (both amended by SI 2001/2617). As to the Financial Services Authority see PARA 2105, and see also PARAS 4, 6 et seq.

2111. Establishment.

No friendly society<sup>1</sup> may now be registered under the Friendly Societies Act 1974<sup>2</sup> and any new friendly societies must now be registered and incorporated under the Friendly Societies Act 1992<sup>3</sup>. A society may be established under the Friendly Societies Act 1992 if, under its proposed memorandum<sup>4</sup>: (1) its purposes are to include the carrying on of one or more of the activities falling within head A, B, C or D<sup>5</sup> of the list of permitted activities<sup>6</sup>; (2) any such activity is to be carried on by the society with a view to providing insurance and other benefits for its members and such connected persons as are prescribed in the rules of the society<sup>7</sup>; and (3) any other purposes which the society is to have are within the permitted capacity of incorporated friendly societies<sup>8</sup> under the Act<sup>9</sup>.

A society established under the Friendly Societies Act 1992 is incorporated as from the date of its registration by the Financial Services Authority<sup>10</sup>.

(C) REGISTRATION AND INCORPORATION

(a) New Societies

2112. Requirements for establishment and incorporation.

Any seven or more persons may establish a society under the Friendly Societies Act 1992 by:

- 547 (1) agreeing upon the purposes of the society and upon the extent of its powers in a memorandum<sup>1</sup>;
- 548 (2) agreeing upon rules for the regulation of the society<sup>2</sup>; and
- 549 (3) sending to the Financial Services Authority<sup>3</sup> three copies of the memorandum and rules, each copy signed by at least seven of those persons<sup>4</sup> and, unless the secretary is to be elected, by the intended secretary<sup>5</sup>.

Where two or more friendly societies<sup>6</sup> propose to amalgamate<sup>7</sup> they must establish their successor society by:

- 550 (a) agreeing upon the purposes of their successor and upon the extent of its powers in a memorandum<sup>8</sup>;
- 551 (b) agreeing upon rules for the regulation of their successor<sup>9</sup>;
- 552 (c) each approving the memorandum and rules by special resolution<sup>10</sup>; and
- 553 (d) sending to the Authority three copies of the rules and memorandum, each copy signed by the secretary of each of the societies participating in the amalgamation<sup>11</sup>.

Where copies of the memorandum and rules are sent to the Authority as required, the Authority must, if satisfied that the memorandum and rules are in conformity with the Friendly Societies Act 1992, and the intended name of the society is not, in its opinion, undesirable, register the society and issue it with a certificate of incorporation<sup>12</sup>.

The Authority may not register a society as the successor society to any friendly society proposing an amalgamation unless it has confirmed<sup>13</sup> the proposed amalgamation<sup>14</sup>; nor may it register a society which, if it were registered, would be a society carrying out certain types of insurance business<sup>15</sup> if the Authority is satisfied that the principal place of business of the society is to be situated outside the United Kingdom<sup>16</sup>.

1 Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 5(6), Sch 3 para 1(1)(a). The provisions of the memorandum must comply with the requirements of Sch 3: Sch 3 para 1(1)(a). As to the memorandum see PARA 2119.

2 Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 3 para 1(1)(b). The rules must comply with the requirements of Sch 3: Sch 3 para 1(1)(b).

3 As to the Financial Services Authority see PARA 2105, and also PARAS 4, 6 et seq.

4 If there are only seven persons, each copy must be signed by all of them: Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 3 para 1(1)(c) (amended by SI 2001/2617).

14 Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 3 para 1(4) (amended by SI 2001/2617).

15 le a society to which the Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 37(2) or (3) applies.

Section 37(2) applies to a friendly society which carries on long term business (see PARA 2138):

5 (1) if its rules do not contain provision for calling up additional contributions, for reducing benefits or for claiming assistance from other persons who have undertaken to provide it; or

6 (2) if its annual contribution income from long term business exceeded 500,000 ECU for three consecutive years and it is not the subject of a direction under s 37(5), and, for the purposes of head (2) above, years ending before 1 January 1985 are to be disregarded: s 37(2).

Section 37(3) applies to a friendly society which carries on general business (see PARA 2138):

7 (a) if its rules do not contain provision for calling up additional contributions or for reducing benefits; or

8 (b) if its annual contribution income from general business in any previous year exceeded 1,000,000 ECU and it is not the subject of a direction under s 37(5), and, for the purposes of head (b) above, years ending before 1 January 1993 are to be disregarded: s 37(3).

'Annual contribution income' means, in relation to a friendly society's long term business, the income of the society in a financial year without any deduction for reinsurance cessions: s 117(1). In s 37(2), (3) a reference to a year, in relation to annual contribution income, is a reference to any financial year of a society for which, at the relevant time, accounts have been or ought to have been prepared: s 37(4).

The Authority may, if it is satisfied that it is consistent with the international obligations of the United Kingdom to do so, direct that a friendly society: (i) which is, by virtue only of head (2) above, a society to which s 37(2) applies; or (ii) which is, by virtue only of head (b) above, a society to which s 37(3) applies must, unless the direction is revoked, be treated as not being a society to which s 37(2) or, as the case may be, s 37(3) applies: s 37(5) (s 37(5)-(7) amended by SI 2001/2617). If the Authority has given a direction under the Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 37(5) in relation to a society such as is mentioned in head (i) above and the society's annual contribution income from long term business exceeds 500,000 ECU for three consecutive years ending after a date specified in the direction, the Authority must revoke the direction: s 37(6) (as so amended). If the Authority has given a direction in relation to a society such as is mentioned in head (ii) above and the society's annual contribution income from general business in a year ending after a date specified in the direction exceeded 1,000,000 ECU, the Authority must revoke the direction: s 37(7) (as so amended).

(b) Registered Friendly Societies

2113. Incorporation of registered friendly societies.

A registered friendly society<sup>1</sup> may be registered and incorporated under the Friendly Societies Act 1992 if it satisfies specified conditions in relation to its purposes<sup>2</sup>, and complies with specified applicable provisions as to its registration under the Act<sup>3</sup>. In order for a registered friendly society to become registered and incorporated under the Friendly Societies Act 1992, the following steps must be taken:

- 554 (1) the proposal to apply for incorporation must be submitted to the members of the society for their consent by the procedure required for a proposal to amend the rules<sup>4</sup> or, in the case of a society with branches, the general rules, of the society<sup>5</sup>;
- 555 (2) consent to the application must be given in accordance with that procedure<sup>6</sup>;
- 556 (3) the society must agree, in accordance with that procedure, upon the purposes<sup>7</sup> of the society after incorporation and upon the extent of its powers in a memorandum<sup>8</sup>, and upon the rules for the regulation of the society after incorporation<sup>9</sup>;
- 557 (4) there must be sent to the Financial Services Authority<sup>10</sup> three copies of the memorandum and rules, each signed by at least seven members and the secretary of the society, and a statutory declaration by the secretary of the society that the steps mentioned in heads (1) and (2) above were taken<sup>11</sup>.

Where copies of the memorandum, the rules and the statutory declaration have been duly sent to the Authority as required, and it is satisfied:

- 558 (a) that the steps mentioned in heads (1) and (2) above were taken;
- 559 (b) that the provisions of the memorandum and rules are in conformity with the Friendly Societies Act 1992;
- 560 (c) that the name proposed for the society after incorporation is not, in its opinion, undesirable; and
- 561 (d) in the case of certain societies carrying out insurance business<sup>12</sup>, that the principal place of business of the society is situated in the United Kingdom<sup>13</sup>, the Authority must register the society and issue it with a certificate of incorporation<sup>14</sup>.

On registering a society the Authority must: (i) retain and register one copy of the memorandum and of the rules; (ii) return another copy to the secretary of the society, together with a certificate of registration; and (iii) keep another copy, a copy of the certificate of incorporation, and a copy of the certificate of registration of the memorandum and the rules, in the public file of the society<sup>15</sup>.

- 2 Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 6(1)(a). The conditions specified in s 5(2) (see PARA 2111) must be satisfied by reference to the society's proposed memorandum: s 6(1)(a). As to the memorandum see PARA 2119.

(c) Registered Friendly Societies with Branches

2114. Incorporation of registered friendly societies with branches.

Under the Friendly Societies Act 1974 branches may be separately registered and have separately owned funds<sup>1</sup>. On the incorporation of a registered friendly society<sup>2</sup>, its registration under the Friendly Societies Act 1974, and that of any registered branch<sup>3</sup>, is cancelled by the Financial Services Authority<sup>4</sup>. On the incorporation of a registered friendly society with registered or unregistered branches, all the property held immediately before incorporation, by any person, in trust for any branch of the society, and all rights and liabilities to which any branch was then entitled or subject, become<sup>5</sup> the property, rights or liabilities of the society<sup>6</sup>.

A registered friendly society may<sup>7</sup> make a scheme identifying any property, rights or liabilities of any branch of the society which are not to be transferred to the society on its incorporation, and any such property, rights or liabilities are excluded from transfer<sup>8</sup>. A scheme may deal with property, rights and liabilities of one or more branches of the registered society and may, instead of specifying any property, rights and liabilities of the branch of the registered society, refer to all the property, rights and liabilities which are referable to such parts of its activities as are specified in the scheme<sup>9</sup>. On making a scheme the registered society must send to the Authority<sup>10</sup>:

- 562 (1) four copies of the scheme, each signed by the secretary<sup>11</sup>;
- 563 (2) a statutory declaration by the secretary that the scheme was duly approved by the society<sup>12</sup>;
- 564 (3) in the case of a scheme identifying any property, rights or liabilities of a branch which was, immediately prior to incorporation, carrying on any insurance or non-insurance business, a certificate from the appropriate actuary that the incorporated society will, on incorporation, possess sufficient assets to meet such of the liabilities to be transferred to the society from that branch as are referable to that business<sup>13</sup>.

On receiving copies of a scheme, the Authority must, if satisfied that the society has duly approved the scheme:

- 565 (a) retain and register one copy of the scheme;
- 566 (b) return another copy to the secretary of the registered society, together with a certificate of registration;
- 567 (c) keep another copy in the public file<sup>14</sup> of the registered society and, after incorporation, in the public file of the incorporated society<sup>15</sup>, and the Authority may not register the incorporated society under the Friendly Societies Act 1992 until after it has registered the scheme<sup>16</sup>.

8 Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 6(5). Schedule 4 para 2 applies to a registered friendly society with branches which proposes: (1) that the incorporated society will have branches; and (2) that any of those branches is to be treated as a continuation of a branch of the registered society: Sch 4 para 2(1). The registered society may, by the procedure required to amend the rules of the society, approve a scheme under s 6(5) identifying property, rights and liabilities of a branch which are to continue to be property, rights and liabilities of the branch (as a branch of the incorporated society) and so are to be excluded from transfer under s 6(4): Sch 4 para 2(2). A scheme may not identify for exclusion from transfer under s 6(4) any property, rights or liabilities of a branch of the registered friendly society which are referable only to an activity of the branch which a branch of the incorporated society would, by virtue of s 7(5) (see PARA 2121), be unable to carry out on its own behalf: Sch 4 para 2(4).

(D) EFFECT OF INCORPORATION

2115. Effect of incorporation on a registered friendly society.

Subject to the provisions of the Friendly Societies Act 1992, on the incorporation of a registered friendly society<sup>1</sup> the incorporated friendly society<sup>2</sup> is treated as the same person as the registered friendly society<sup>3</sup>. After its incorporation the society continues to be entitled to all rights and subject to all rights and liabilities to which it was entitled or subject immediately before incorporation<sup>4</sup>. Any property held immediately before incorporation by any person in trust for the society becomes the property of the society on incorporation<sup>5</sup>. Any agreement made, transaction effected or other thing done by, to or in relation to the registered society<sup>6</sup> which is in force or effective immediately before incorporation has effect as if made, effected or done by, to or in relation to the incorporated society<sup>7</sup>. Thus any reference to the society:

- 568 (1) in any agreement;
- 569 (2) in any process or other document issued, prepared or employed for the purposes of any proceedings before any court or other tribunal or authority; and
- 570 (3) in any other document whatsoever, other than an enactment, relating to or affecting any property, right or liability of the society, is to be taken as a reference to the incorporated society<sup>8</sup>.

On incorporation of a registered friendly society:

- 571 (a) a person who was a member of the society immediately before incorporation becomes a member of the incorporated society<sup>9</sup>;
- 572 (b) any appointment as a trustee or treasurer of the registered friendly society determines<sup>10</sup>;
- 573 (c) all other persons who were officers<sup>11</sup> of the registered friendly society become officers, holding corresponding offices, of the incorporated society<sup>12</sup>.

Any agreement made by a registered friendly society which is in force immediately before the society's incorporation under the Friendly Societies Act 1992 has effect as if:

- 574 (i) for references to members of the registered society there were substituted references to members of the incorporated society<sup>13</sup>;
- 575 (ii) for references to officers of the registered society, other than its trustees or treasurer, there were substituted references to the corresponding officers of the incorporated society<sup>14</sup>;
- 576 (iii) for references to the trustees of the registered friendly society there were substituted references to the incorporated society<sup>15</sup>; and
- 577 (iv) for references to the treasurer of the registered friendly society there were substituted references to such person as the incorporated society may appoint or, in default of appointment, to the officer of that society who corresponds as nearly as may be to the treasurer<sup>16</sup>.

Any contract of employment with the registered society in force immediately before incorporation is merely modified by the substitution of the name of the incorporated society as the employer and is not terminated or varied in any other way<sup>17</sup>. Any period of employment with the registered society counts for all purposes as a period of employment with the incorporated society<sup>18</sup>.

The final financial year of the registered friendly society is the period not exceeding 12 months expiring immediately before its incorporation<sup>19</sup>. Anything which, if the society had not been incorporated, would be required to be done by the registered society at a time after its incorporation is to be done by the incorporated society<sup>20</sup>.

2116. Effect of incorporation on the branches of a registered friendly society.

Where, on the incorporation of a registered society, the property, rights and liabilities of a branch of the registered society<sup>1</sup> are all transferred to the incorporated society<sup>2</sup>, the provisions relating to the effect of incorporation of a registered friendly society<sup>3</sup> apply in relation to branches of the society as they apply in relation to the registered society with modifications<sup>4</sup>. Where the property, rights and liabilities of a branch of a registered society are all excluded by virtue of a scheme from the transfer to the incorporated society<sup>5</sup>, the property, rights and liabilities of the branch continue as the property, rights and liabilities of the branch, as a branch of the incorporated society<sup>6</sup>. The branch of the incorporated society must be treated as a continuation of the branch of the registered society and on incorporation:

578 (1) any member of the branch continues as a member<sup>7</sup>; and

but heads (1) and (2) above are without prejudice to anything done after incorporation as respects the membership and officers of the branch<sup>9</sup>.

Where on the incorporation of a registered society some of the property, rights and liabilities of a branch of the registered society are transferred<sup>10</sup> to the incorporated society and some are excluded from the transfer by virtue of a scheme<sup>11</sup>, the provisions relating to the effect of incorporation of a registered friendly society<sup>12</sup> as respects property, rights and liabilities transferred from the branch to the incorporated society apply in relation to the branch as they apply in relation to the registered society, with modifications<sup>13</sup>. On incorporation of the registered society, the property, rights and liabilities of the branch which are excluded from transfer continue as property, rights and liabilities of the branch, as a branch of the incorporated society<sup>14</sup>. As respects the property, rights and liabilities so excluded, the branch must, after incorporation of the registered society, be treated as a continuation of the branch of the registered society and on incorporation:

581 (b) any trustee, treasurer or other officer of the branch continues in office<sup>16</sup>, but heads (a) and (b) above are without prejudice to anything done after incorporation as respects membership and officers of the branch<sup>17</sup>.

2117. Consequences of transfer.

A transfer<sup>1</sup> does not give rise to any liability to stamp duty<sup>2</sup>. The persons who were the trustees and treasurer of the registered friendly society<sup>3</sup> immediately before its incorporation must deliver to the incorporated society any property of the society held by them and any documents relating to the property, rights and liabilities of the registered friendly society or its financial affairs<sup>4</sup>. The persons who were the trustees and treasurer of any branch of a registered friendly society immediately before its incorporation must deliver to the incorporated society any property, formerly property of the branch, which is transferred to the society<sup>5</sup>, and any documents relating to such of the property, rights and liabilities of the branch as are transferred<sup>6</sup>.

If the Public Trustee<sup>7</sup> held property on trust for the registered society immediately before its incorporation, he must deliver to the incorporated society any property so held by him and any documents relating to it<sup>8</sup>.

The action mentioned in these provisions must be taken not later than the end of 90 days beginning with the day on which the registered society is incorporated<sup>9</sup>. Nothing in the Friendly Societies Act 1992 has effect to relieve the former trustees or treasurer of a registered society or branch or the Public Trustee from any liability arising from acts or omissions before the incorporation of the society<sup>10</sup>.

2118. Making of contracts and execution of documents.

A contract may be made:

582 (1)    by an incorporated friendly society<sup>1</sup>, by writing under its common seal<sup>2</sup>; or

583 (2) on behalf of an incorporated friendly society, by any person acting under its authority, express or implied, and any formalities required by law in the case of a contract made by an individual also apply, unless a contrary intention appears, to a contract made by or on behalf of an incorporated friendly society<sup>3</sup>.

The following provisions have effect with respect to the execution of documents by an incorporated friendly society<sup>4</sup>. A document is sealed by an incorporated friendly society by affixing its common seal, if it has one<sup>5</sup>. A document signed by a member of the committee of management<sup>6</sup> and the secretary<sup>7</sup> of an incorporated friendly society, or by two members of the committee of management, and expressed, in whatever form of words, to be executed by the society has the same effect as if executed under the common seal of the society<sup>8</sup>. A document executed by a society which makes it clear on its face that it is intended by the person or persons making it to be a deed has effect, upon delivery, as a deed; and it is presumed, unless a contrary intention is proved, to be delivered upon its being so executed<sup>9</sup>. In favour of a purchaser<sup>10</sup> a document is deemed to have been duly executed by a society if it purports to be signed by a member of the committee of management and the secretary of the society, or by two members of the committee of management; and, where it makes it clear on its face that it is intended by the person or persons making it to be a deed, it is deemed to have been delivered upon its being executed<sup>11</sup>.

(A) THE MEMORANDUM

2119. The memorandum.

The memorandum<sup>1</sup> of an incorporated friendly society must: (1) specify the name of the society<sup>2</sup>; (2) state whether the registered office of the society is to be situated in England and Wales, or in Scotland, or in Northern Ireland<sup>3</sup>; (3) specify the address of its registered office<sup>4</sup>; (4) state the purposes of the society and the extent of its powers<sup>5</sup>; and (5) if any of those purposes are to include the carrying on of any business outside the United Kingdom<sup>6</sup>, state with respect to those purposes that such is the case<sup>7</sup>.

1 In relation to an incorporated friendly society, 'memorandum' means the memorandum registered under the Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 5(6), Sch 3 para 3 (see PARA 2113), including the record of any alteration under Sch 3 para 6 (see PARA 2123): Sch 3 para 4(3). ## 2120. Effect of the memorandum.

The provisions of the memorandum<sup>1</sup> of an incorporated friendly society<sup>2</sup> are binding upon each of the members and officers<sup>3</sup> of the society, and all persons claiming on account of a member or under its rules<sup>4</sup>. Any other person who is a party to a transaction<sup>5</sup> with an incorporated friendly society which is within the permitted capacity of an incorporated friendly society<sup>6</sup> is not bound to inquire as to whether the transaction is within the capacity of the society in question<sup>7</sup>.

If such other person gives valuable consideration for an act<sup>8</sup> and does not know that the act is beyond the capacity of the society, the act is deemed to be one which is within the capacity of the society to enter into, notwithstanding the provisions of its memorandum<sup>9</sup>. This provision does not affect:

584 (1) the right of a member of an incorporated friendly society to bring proceedings to restrain the doing of an act (other than an act done in fulfilment of a legal obligation arising from a previous act of the society) which is beyond the capacity of the society<sup>10</sup>;

585 (2) the duty of the committee of management<sup>11</sup> to observe any limitation on its powers flowing from the society's memorandum<sup>12</sup>; or 586 (3) any liability incurred by any person by reason of the society acting beyond its capacity<sup>13</sup>.

Where an incorporated friendly society purports to transfer or grant an interest in property, the fact that the act was beyond the capacity of the society does not affect the title of a person who in good faith subsequently acquired the property or an interest in it for valuable consideration and without actual notice of the circumstances affecting the validity of the society's act<sup>14</sup>.

In any proceedings arising out of these provisions<sup>15</sup>, the burden of proving that a person knew that an act was beyond the capacity of the society in question lies on the person making the allegation<sup>16</sup>.

(B) THE RULES

2121. The rules.

The rules of an incorporated friendly society<sup>1</sup> must provide for the following matters<sup>2</sup>:

- 587 (1) the terms of admission of members and the manner in which membership is to cease<sup>3</sup>;
 588 (2) if the terms on which a benefit is provided are not in the rules, the manner in which they are to be determined<sup>4</sup>;
 589 (3) any forfeitures which may be imposed on any member<sup>5</sup>;
 590 (4) the consequences of non-payment of any subscription<sup>6</sup>;
 591 (5) the manner of remunerating the auditors<sup>7</sup>;
 592 (6) as respects officers<sup>8</sup>:

7. (a) the manner of their election or appointment and their removal;
 8. (b) the manner of remunerating them; and
 9. (c) the circumstances in which pensions may be awarded to persons by virtue of their office and the method of determining the terms of such pensions<sup>9</sup>;

- 593 (7) the powers and duties of the committee of management<sup>10</sup>;
 594 (8) the investment of the funds of the society<sup>11</sup>;
 595 (9) the manner in which disputes are to be settled<sup>12</sup>;
 596 (10) if the society has a common seal, the form, custody and use of the seal<sup>13</sup>;
 597 (11) the calling and holding of meetings, and in particular:

10. (a) the right to requisition meetings;
 11. (b) the right to move resolutions at meetings;
 12. (c) the manner in which notice<sup>14</sup> of meetings, and of any resolutions to be moved at meetings, is to be given;
 13. (d) the procedure to be observed at meetings;
 14. (e) the form of notice for the convening of a meeting;
 15. (f) the voting rights of members, the right to demand a poll and the manner in which a poll is to be taken<sup>15</sup>;

32

- 598 (12) the entitlement of members to participate in the distribution of any surplus assets after payments to creditors, on the winding up, or dissolution by consent, of the society<sup>16</sup>;
 599 (13) the procedure for altering the society's memorandum<sup>17</sup> and rules<sup>18</sup>.

Nothing in the Friendly Societies Act 1992 prevents the society from providing in its rules:

- 600 (i) for such system of representation of members in the making of decisions by the society as the society thinks fit<sup>19</sup>;
 601 (ii) for the division of members into groups under the control of the society and bound to contribute to the funds of the society but, subject to that, having funds and property of their own vested in trustees and administered by themselves or through their own trustees, officers or committees and in accordance with their own rules<sup>20</sup>;
 602 (iii) for the delegation of authority to any such group (or its committee or officers) to act, within such limits as the society may set, on the society's behalf<sup>21</sup>, but no such group may do anything on its own account which is not a social or benevolent activity<sup>22</sup> or which does not fall within head D of the permitted purposes<sup>23</sup>, or the additional purposes of incorporated friendly societies<sup>24</sup>.

MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(2) FRIENDLY SOCIETIES/(ii) Incorporated Friendly Societies/B. STATUTORY DOCUMENTS/(B) The Rules/2122. The effect of the rules.

2122. The effect of the rules.

The provisions of the rules<sup>1</sup> of an incorporated friendly society<sup>2</sup> are binding upon each of the members and officers<sup>3</sup> of the society and all persons claiming on account of a member or under its rules<sup>4</sup>. Any other person who is a party to a transaction<sup>5</sup> with an incorporated friendly society is not bound to inquire as to any limitation on the powers of the committee of management<sup>6</sup> to bind the society<sup>7</sup>.

In favour of any other person who gives valuable consideration for an act<sup>8</sup> and does not know that the act is beyond the powers of the committee of management, the power of the committee of management to bind the society will be deemed free of any limitation in the society's constitution<sup>9</sup>.

This provision does not affect:

- 603 (1) the right of a member of an incorporated friendly society to bring proceedings to restrain the doing of any act, other than an act done in fulfilment of a legal obligation arising from a previous act of the society, which is beyond the powers of the committee of management<sup>10</sup>;
- 604 (2) the duty of the committee of management to act within its powers under the constitution of the society<sup>11</sup>;
- 605 (3) any liability incurred by any person by reason of the committee of management exceeding its powers<sup>12</sup>.

Where an incorporated friendly society purports to transfer or grant an interest in property, the fact that the committee of management acted beyond its powers under the society's constitution does not affect the title of a person who in good faith subsequently acquires the property or interest in it for valuable consideration and without actual notice of the circumstances, if any, affecting the validity of the society's act<sup>13</sup>.

In any proceedings arising out of these provisions the burden of proving that a person knew that any act was beyond the powers of the committee of management lies on the person making the allegation<sup>14</sup>. These provisions do not affect the application, in relation to an incorporated friendly society, of any rule of law relating to the validity of acts which are within the capacity of a body corporate but may have been affected by defects arising from its internal management under its constitution<sup>15</sup>.

9 Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 9(4). For these purposes, references to limitations on the committee's powers under the constitution of the society include limitations deriving from a resolution of the society in general meeting or any agreement between the members of the society: s 9(8)(a).

(C) ALTERATION OF THE MEMORANDUM OR RULES

2123. Alteration of the memorandum or rules.

An incorporated friendly society<sup>1</sup> may, in the manner prescribed by its rules, alter its memorandum<sup>2</sup> and rules<sup>3</sup> by the addition, rescission or variation of any provision<sup>4</sup>. It is not necessary to alter the memorandum or rules of an incorporated friendly society by reason only that its name or registered office is changed<sup>5</sup>. Where a society makes an alteration of its memorandum or rules under these provisions, it must send to the Financial Services Authority<sup>6</sup>: (1) three copies of a record of the alteration signed by the secretary<sup>7</sup>; and (2) a statutory declaration by the secretary that the alteration was made in accordance with the procedure prescribed by the society's rules<sup>8</sup>. Where copies of a record of an alteration of a society's memorandum or rules are sent to the Authority, and the Authority is satisfied that the alteration is in conformity with the Friendly Societies Act 1992, it must: (a) retain and register one of the copies; (b) return another to the secretary of the society together with a certificate of registration of the alteration; and (c) keep another copy, together with a copy of the certificate of registration of the alteration, in the public file of the society<sup>9</sup>. On making an alteration of its memorandum or rules under these provisions the society must determine the date on which it intends the alteration to take effect, and the record of the alteration must specify that date<sup>10</sup>. An alteration of the memorandum or rules of a society under these provisions does not take effect until the specified date or, if the alteration is registered on a later date, the date on which the certificate of registration is issued<sup>11</sup>.

If an incorporated friendly society arranges for the publication in consolidated form of its memorandum or rules as altered for the time being: (i) it must send a copy to the Authority; and (ii) the Authority must keep the copy in the public file of the society, but may not register the copy<sup>12</sup>. If an incorporated friendly society fails to send the documents mentioned in heads (1) and (2) above to the Authority, within the period of three months beginning with the date on which an alteration to its memorandum or rules is made, the society is guilty of an offence<sup>13</sup>.

The rules of every society are required to provide for their alteration: see PARA 2121 head (13).

5 Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 3 para 6(3). An alteration to the name or registered office of an incorporated friendly society will, instead of being effected under Sch 3 para 6, be effected under Sch 3 para 9 (see PARA 2125) or Sch 3 para 12 (see PARA 2127).

An incorporated friendly society<sup>1</sup> must, on demand, give a copy of its statutory documents<sup>2</sup> free of charge to any member of the society to whom a copy of those documents has not previously been given<sup>3</sup>. It must give such a copy on demand to any other person on payment of such fee as the society may require, not exceeding the prescribed amount<sup>4</sup>. If the society fails to comply with this requirement it is guilty of an offence<sup>5</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'incorporated friendly society' see PARA 2082.

2 I.e: (1) a printed copy of the society's rules for the time being, with a copy of the certificate of incorporation of the society annexed to it; and (2) a printed copy of the memorandum of the society for the time being: Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 5(6), Sch 3 para 13(2). MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(2) FRIENDLY SOCIETIES/(ii) Incorporated Friendly Societies/C. REGISTERED NAME AND OFFICE/2125. Registered name.

C. REGISTERED NAME AND OFFICE

2125. Registered name.

The name of an incorporated friendly society<sup>1</sup> must have 'Limited' as its last word, except that, if the society is to be registered with a memorandum<sup>2</sup> stating that its registered office is to be situated in Wales, the name may have 'cyfyngedig', the Welsh equivalent of 'Limited', as its last word<sup>3</sup>.

Every incorporated friendly society must have its name mentioned in legible characters in: (1) all its business letters, notices and other official publications; (2) all its bills of parcels, invoices, receipts and letters of credit; and (3) all bills of exchange, promissory notes, indorsements, cheques and orders for money or goods purporting to be signed by or on behalf of the society<sup>4</sup>. Where the name of an incorporated friendly society does not include the words 'friendly society', the fact that it is an incorporated friendly society must be shown in legible characters in all such documents as are mentioned in heads (1) to (3) above<sup>5</sup>. If an incorporated friendly society fails to comply with these provisions it is guilty of an offence<sup>6</sup>.

If the society has a common seal, it must bear the registered name of the society<sup>7</sup>.

An incorporated friendly society may change its name by a resolution of the society in general meeting after giving such notice<sup>8</sup> as is required for a special resolution<sup>9</sup>. Where a society changes its name under these provisions, notice of the change must be sent to the Financial Services Authority<sup>10</sup> and, unless it is of the opinion that the changed name is undesirable, the Authority must: (a) register the notice of the change of name; (b) issue the society with a certificate of registration; and (c) keep a copy of the certificate of registration in the public file<sup>11</sup> of the society<sup>12</sup>. If an incorporated friendly society fails, within three months beginning with the date on which a resolution changing its name is passed, to send to the Authority such notice, the society will be guilty of an offence<sup>13</sup>.

A change of name does not take effect until the date on which the certificate of registration is issued or such later date as may be specified in the certificate<sup>14</sup>. A change of name does not affect the rights and obligations of the society, of any of its members or of any other person concerned<sup>15</sup>.

If an officer<sup>1</sup> of an incorporated friendly society<sup>2</sup> or a person on its behalf:

- 606 (1) issues or authorises the issue of any business letter, notice or other official publication of the society or any bill of parcels, invoice, receipt or letter of credit of the society in which the society's name is not mentioned<sup>3</sup>; or
- 607 (2) signs or authorises to be signed on behalf of the society any bill of exchange, promissory note, indorsement, cheque or order for money or goods in which the society's name is not so mentioned<sup>4</sup>, he is guilty of an offence<sup>5</sup>, and in the case of the conduct mentioned in head (2) above, he is further personally liable to the holder of the bill of exchange, promissory note, cheque or order for money or goods for the amount of it, unless it is duly paid by the society<sup>6</sup>.

If an officer of an incorporated friendly society whose name does not include the words 'friendly society' or a person on its behalf:

- 608 (a) issues or authorises the issue of any such document as is mentioned in head (1) above, and the fact that it is an incorporated friendly society is not shown in legible characters in the document<sup>7</sup>; or
- 609 (b) signs or authorises to be signed on behalf of the society any such document as is mentioned in head (2) above, and the fact that it is an incorporated friendly society is not shown in legible characters in the document<sup>8</sup>, he is guilty of an offence<sup>9</sup>, and in the case of the conduct mentioned in head (b) above, he is further personally liable to the holder of the bill of exchange, promissory note, cheque or order for money or goods for the amount of it, unless it is duly paid by the society<sup>10</sup>.

2127. Registered office.

The memorandum<sup>1</sup> of an incorporated friendly society<sup>2</sup> must specify the address of its registered office<sup>3</sup>. An incorporated friendly society may change its registered office in such manner as its rules<sup>4</sup> prescribe or, if the rules do not provide for that matter, by a resolution of the society in general meeting after the giving of such notice<sup>5</sup> as is required for a special resolution<sup>6</sup>. Notice of any such change must be sent to the Financial Services Authority<sup>7</sup>, which must: (1) register the notice of the change of registered office; (2) issue the society with a certificate of registration; and (3) keep a copy of the certificate of registration in the public file<sup>8</sup> of the society<sup>9</sup>.

A change of registered office will not take effect until the date on which the certificate of registration is issued or such later date as may be specified in the certificate<sup>10</sup>.

If an incorporated friendly society fails, within the period of three months beginning with the date on which a resolution changing its registered office is passed, to send to the Authority the required notice, the society is guilty of an offence<sup>11</sup>.

2128. Admission of members.

The terms of admission of members of incorporated friendly societies<sup>1</sup>, and the manner in which membership is to cease, are matters which are required to be covered in the rules<sup>2</sup>. There is no limitation on the maximum number of members unless it is fixed by rule. A new friendly society must have at least seven members<sup>3</sup>. There is no statutory provision that a friendly society loses its right to remain registered<sup>4</sup> if its membership is reduced below seven members, but a society may in that event be wound up by the court<sup>5</sup>. If the Financial Services Authority<sup>6</sup> is satisfied that a society has ceased to exist it may cancel the society's registration<sup>7</sup>.

MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(2) FRIENDLY SOCIETIES/(ii) Incorporated Friendly Societies/D. MEMBERS AND MEMBERSHIP/2131. Register of members.

Every incorporated friendly society<sup>1</sup> must maintain a register of the names and addresses of the members of the society<sup>2</sup>, to be kept at the registered office of the society or at such other place or places as the committee of management<sup>3</sup> thinks fit<sup>4</sup>. Failure to maintain the register is an offence<sup>5</sup>.

An incorporated friendly society which was previously a registered friendly society<sup>6</sup> need not enter in the register the address of a member who became a member before its incorporation while the society has no address for him and while his whereabouts are unknown<sup>7</sup>. If it appears that a member's registered address<sup>8</sup> is no longer current, the society may remove it and need not enter an address for that member in the register while it has no address for him and his whereabouts remain unknown<sup>9</sup>.

A member, or a person having an interest in the funds of an incorporated friendly society, may inspect the records at all reasonable hours at the registered office of the society, or at any other place where they are kept<sup>10</sup>. However, a member or such a person, unless he is an officer of the society or is specially authorised by resolution of the society to do so, does not have the right to inspect the loan account of any other member without his written consent<sup>11</sup>.

The right of a member of an incorporated friendly society<sup>1</sup> to withdraw from membership, and the power of a society to expel a member, are not matters for which statutory provision is made, but are generally matters for the rules of individual societies. There are a number of cases in this regard decided in relation to registered societies<sup>2</sup>, but it is conceived that they are applicable also in relation to incorporated societies<sup>3</sup>.

2133. Control of subsidiaries and other bodies corporate.

An incorporated friendly society<sup>1</sup> may, subject to certain provisions<sup>2</sup>, include among its purposes<sup>3</sup> any of the following activities<sup>4</sup>:

- 610 (1) forming subsidiaries<sup>5</sup>;
- 611 (2) taking part with others in forming bodies corporate to be jointly controlled by it<sup>6</sup>; and
- 612 (3) otherwise acquiring, or keeping, control or joint control of bodies corporate<sup>7</sup>.

Any alteration of the memorandum<sup>8</sup> of an incorporated friendly society to include among its purposes and powers the carrying on of any activity such as is mentioned in heads (1) to (3) above, or any amendment of a provision in its memorandum which permits it to do so, must be adopted by a special resolution<sup>9</sup> of the society in general meeting<sup>10</sup>.

A registered friendly society<sup>11</sup> may not include in a memorandum adopted under the Friendly Societies Act 1992<sup>12</sup> any provision enabling it on incorporation to carry on any of the activities mentioned in heads (1) to (3) above, unless its inclusion has been authorised by a special resolution of the society in general meeting<sup>13</sup>.

MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(2) FRIENDLY SOCIETIES/(ii) Incorporated Friendly Societies/E. SUBSIDIARIES AND JOINTLY CONTROLLED BODIES/2134. Meanings of 'control', 'subsidiary' and 'joint control'.

2134. Meanings of 'control', 'subsidiary' and 'joint control'.

For the purposes of the Friendly Societies Act 1992, an incorporated friendly society<sup>1</sup> has control of a body corporate if the society:

- 613 (1) holds a majority of the voting rights in it<sup>2</sup>;
- 614 (2) is a member of it and has the right to appoint or remove a majority of its board of directors<sup>3</sup>; or
- 615 (3) is a member of it and controls alone, pursuant to an agreement with other shareholders or members, a majority of the voting rights in it<sup>4</sup>.

An incorporated friendly society also has control of a body corporate if the body corporate is itself a body controlled in one of the ways mentioned in head (1), (2) or (3) above by a body corporate of which the society has control<sup>5</sup>.

A body corporate is a subsidiary of an incorporated friendly society if the society has control of it<sup>6</sup>.

An incorporated friendly society has joint control of a body corporate<sup>7</sup> if, in pursuance of an agreement or other arrangement between them, the society and another person:

- 616 (a) hold a majority of the voting rights in that body<sup>8</sup>;
- 617 (b) are members of it and together have the right to appoint or remove a majority of its board of directors<sup>9</sup>; or
- 618 (c) are members of it and alone control, pursuant to an agreement with other shareholders or members, a majority of the voting rights in it<sup>10</sup>.

An incorporated friendly society also has joint control of a body corporate if:

- 619 (i) a subsidiary of the society has joint control of the body corporate in a way mentioned in head (a), (b) or (c) above<sup>11</sup>;
- 620 (ii) a body corporate of which the society has joint control has joint control of the body corporate in such a way<sup>12</sup>; or
- 621 (iii) the body corporate is controlled in a way mentioned in head (1), (2) or (3) above by a body corporate of which the society has joint control<sup>13</sup>.

A society acquires joint control whenever any of the conditions mentioned in heads (a) to (c) above or in heads (i) to (iii) above are satisfied with respect to a body corporate, notwithstanding that it may already be a subsidiary of the society<sup>14</sup>.

Rights which are exercisable only in certain circumstances will be taken into account only when the circumstances have arisen, and for so long as they continue to obtain, or when the circumstances are within the control of the person having the rights; and rights which are normally exercisable but are temporarily incapable of exercise will continue to be taken into account<sup>15</sup>.

The voting rights in a body corporate are reduced by any rights held by the body itself<sup>16</sup>. Rights held by a person as nominee for another are treated as held by the other and rights are regarded as held as nominee for another if they are exercisable only on his instructions or with his consent or concurrence<sup>17</sup>. Rights attached to shares held by way of security are treated as held by the person providing the security: (A) where apart from the right to exercise them for the purpose of preserving the value of the security, or of realising it, the rights are exercisable only in accordance with his instructions; (B) where the shares are held in connection with the granting of loans as part of normal business activities and apart from the right to exercise them for the purpose of preserving the value of the security, or of realising it, the rights are exercisable only in his interests<sup>18</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'incorporated friendly society' see PARA 2082.

2 Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 13(9)(a)(i). References in s 13(9)(a) and (c) to the voting rights in a body corporate are to the rights conferred on shareholders in respect of their shares or, in the case of a body corporate not having a share capital, on members, to vote at general meetings of the body corporate on all, or substantially all, matters: s 13(10), Sch 8 para 2.

3 Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 13(9)(a)(ii). The reference to the right to appoint or remove a majority of the board is a reference to the right to appoint or remove directors holding a majority of the voting rights at board meetings on all, or substantially all, matters: Sch 8 para 3(1). A body is to be treated for the purposes of s 13(9) as having the right to appoint to a directorship if: (1) a person's appointment to the directorship follows necessarily from his appointment as an officer of that body; or (2) the directorship is held by the body itself: Sch 8 para 3A(1) (Sch 8 para 3A added by the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 Sch 18 para 14(1), (3)). A body ('B') and some other person ('P') together are to be treated, for the purposes of the Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 13(9), as having the right to appoint to a directorship if: (a) P is a body corporate which has directors and a person's appointment to the directorship follows necessarily from his appointment both as an officer of B and a director of P; (b) P is a body corporate which does not have directors and a person's appointment to the directorship follows necessarily from his appointment both as an officer of B and as a member of P's managing body; or (c) the directorship is held jointly by B and P: Sch 8 para 3A(2) (as so added). For the purposes of s 13(9), a right to appoint (or remove) which is exercisable only with the consent or agreement of another person must be left out of account unless no other person has a right to appoint (or remove) in relation to that directorship: Sch 8 para 3A(3) (as so added). Nothing in Sch 8 para 3A is to be read as restricting the effect of s 13(9): Sch 8 para 3A(4) (as so added).

2135. Assistance to subsidiaries and jointly controlled bodies.

An incorporated friendly society<sup>1</sup> may provide its subsidiaries or bodies jointly controlled<sup>2</sup> by it with any of the following services<sup>3</sup>:

- 622 (1) loans of money, with or without security and whether or not at interest<sup>4</sup>;
- 623 (2) the use of services or property, whether or not for payment<sup>5</sup>;
- 624 (3) grants of money, whether or not repayable<sup>6</sup>; and
- 625 (4) guarantees of the discharge of their liabilities<sup>7</sup>.

An incorporated friendly society may make payments towards the discharge of the liabilities of any of its subsidiaries<sup>8</sup>.

F. INVESTMENT OF FUNDS AND HOLDING OF LAND

2136. Investment of funds.

An incorporated friendly society<sup>1</sup> may invest its funds:

- 626 (1) in the purchase of land, or in the erection of offices or other buildings on it<sup>2</sup>;
- 627 (2) upon any other security expressly directed by the rules<sup>3</sup> of the society, other than personal security, but without prejudice to any provision of the Friendly Societies Act 1992 relating to loans<sup>4</sup>; or
- 628 (3) in any other investment of a kind which trustees are for the time being authorised by law to make<sup>5</sup>.

An incorporated friendly society may also invest its funds in any other manner authorised by its constitution<sup>6</sup> if:

- 629 (a) it is a society to which rules in respect of margins of solvency apply<sup>7</sup>; and
- 630 (b) it maintains the margin of solvency which it is required to maintain by virtue of such rules<sup>8</sup>.

Once a society falls within heads (a) and (b) above, it is to be treated as continuing to do so for purposes of its investment powers unless the Financial Services Authority<sup>9</sup> serves a notice on the society stating that it appears to the Financial Services Authority that the society has ceased to fall within those heads<sup>10</sup>. If such a notice is served, the powers of investment of the society are accordingly limited, until the notice is revoked, to investments falling under heads (1) to (3) above<sup>11</sup>. The Financial Services Authority may, by a subsequent notice to the society, revoke such notice at any time when it appears to it that the society again falls within heads (a) and (b) above<sup>12</sup>. The Financial Services Authority must keep a copy of any notice served on a society<sup>13</sup> in the public file of the society<sup>14</sup>.

G. GROUP INSURANCE AND REINSURANCE BUSINESS

2138. Group insurance business.

An incorporated friendly society<sup>1</sup> may include among its purposes<sup>2</sup> the carrying on of any group insurance business<sup>3</sup>. 'Group insurance business' means business carried on in accordance with the society's rules<sup>4</sup> which: (1) is of a description falling within either long term business<sup>5</sup> or general business<sup>6</sup>; and (2) is carried on as the business of providing benefits, in pursuance of a contract with a qualifying person<sup>7</sup>, for or in respect of the members of a group scheme<sup>8</sup>. Group insurance business may be carried on by an incorporated friendly society whether or not members of the group scheme are, or are required by the society to be, members of the society<sup>9</sup>. Where an incorporated friendly society carries on any group insurance business and the rules of the society so provide, any qualifying person with whom the society contracts, or his nominee, may be accorded the rights of a member of the society, including any right to vote, for the purpose of participating in the affairs of the society in the interests of the members of the group scheme with which he is concerned<sup>10</sup>. A person who is accorded the rights of a member of a society by virtue of the above provision is, for the purposes of any power conferred by the Friendly Societies Act 1992 on the Financial Services Authority<sup>11</sup> which is exercisable in the interests of members of the society, to be treated as if he were a member of the society<sup>12</sup>.

The rules of an incorporated friendly society may not prevent a person from being a member of the society in his private capacity by reason only of the fact that he has been accorded the rights of a member by the above provisions<sup>13</sup>.

The Treasury may make regulations specifying the manner in which group insurance business may be carried on by incorporated friendly societies<sup>14</sup>. Such regulations may in particular include limitations or requirements relating to the contracts in pursuance of which group insurance business may be carried on<sup>15</sup>, or the persons with whom, or the groups of persons for whose benefit, such contracts may be made<sup>16</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'incorporated friendly society' see PARA 2082.

2 As to the purposes of an incorporated friendly society see PARAS 2096-2097.

3 Friendly Societies Act 1992 ss 7(2)(b)(ii), 11(1).

4 As to the rules see PARA 2121.

5 'Long term business' means insurance business of any of the classes specified in the Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 7, Sch 2 head A (see PARA 2096): s 117(1). 'Insurance business' means long term business and general business (see note 6) but, except for the purposes of ss 87, 88 (see PARAS 2354-2355), does not include the operations of a society whose benefits vary according to the resources available and which require each of its members to contribute on a flat-rate basis: s 117(1) (definition amended by SI 2001/2617).

6 'General business' means insurance business of any of the classes specified in the Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 2 head B (see PARA 2096): s 117(1).

7 For these purposes, 'qualifying person' means a person who has established or is otherwise responsible for the operation of a group scheme or a trustee of such a scheme; 'group scheme' means a scheme or other arrangement under which benefits are to be provided for or in respect of persons who are members of the scheme and who qualify for membership by virtue of being employees of a particular employer, or being members of some other group of persons of a prescribed description (see the text and notes 14-16); and 'member', in relation to a group scheme, includes any person for or in respect of whom benefits are to be provided under the scheme, whatever the terms in which such persons are described in the scheme: Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 11(3).

By a drafting error there are two provisions numbered s 11(3); that containing the definitions set out above is the first of them, the second is set out in the text and note 9.

9 Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 11(3). As to numbering of this provision see note 7.

MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(2) FRIENDLY SOCIETIES/(ii) Incorporated Friendly Societies/G. GROUP INSURANCE AND REINSURANCE BUSINESS/2139. Reinsurance.

2139. Reinsurance.

An incorporated friendly society<sup>1</sup> may include among its purposes<sup>2</sup> the carrying on of the kinds of reinsurance business<sup>3</sup> described below, to such extent or in such circumstances as may from time to time be approved by the appropriate actuary<sup>4</sup>. These provisions apply to business consisting of the effecting and carrying out of contracts of reinsurance of risks which: (1) are insured, or to be insured, by any other friendly society, whether incorporated or not<sup>5</sup>; and (2) are of a class, or part of a class, of insurance business which the society carrying on the reinsurance business itself carries on<sup>6</sup>.

An incorporated friendly society which carries on any insurance business may provide in its rules<sup>7</sup> for the reinsurance to such extent as may from time to time be approved by the appropriate actuary of any risks against which persons are, or are to be, insured by the society<sup>8</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'incorporated friendly society' see PARA 2082.

3 'Reinsurance business' means the effecting and carrying out of contracts of reinsurance: Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 117(2).

4 Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 12(1). 'Actuary' means an actuary possessing such qualifications, if any, as may be specified in rules made by the Financial Services Authority under the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 s 340 (and the provisions of s 340(3)-(6) apply in relation to an actuary appointed by virtue of any provision of the Friendly Societies Act 1992 as they apply in relation to an actuary appointed in compliance with such rules); 'appropriate actuary' means: (1) if the society is under a duty imposed by rules made by the Authority under the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 s 340, the society's appointed actuary; and (2) if it is not under such a duty, an actuary appointed to perform the function in question; and 'appointed actuary' means the actuary appointed in accordance with rules made under s 340: Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 119(1) (definitions amended by SI 2001/2617). As to rules in relation to actuaries made by the Authority under the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 s 340 see PARA 764. ### 2140. Loans to assured members.

An incorporated friendly society<sup>1</sup> may advance to a member of at least one full year's standing any sum not exceeding one-half of the amount of an assurance of his life, on the written security of himself and two satisfactory sureties for repayment<sup>2</sup>. The amount advanced, with all interest on it, may be deducted from the sum assured, without prejudice in the meantime to the operation of the security<sup>3</sup>. A person's membership of a registered friendly society<sup>4</sup> before the society's incorporation is to be taken into account in calculating his standing for these purposes<sup>5</sup>.

2141. Benefit terms.

The terms on which an incorporated friendly society<sup>1</sup> provides any benefit must be specified in its rules<sup>2</sup> or be determined in a manner specified in its rules<sup>3</sup>. If the terms on which a benefit is provided are not specified in the society's rules, the society must make copies of them available free of charge to members of the society at every office of the society, and must send copies of them free of charge to any member of the society who demands them<sup>4</sup>. If, on such demand made of it, a society fails to make available or, as the case may be, to send a copy of those terms within seven days of the demand, the society is guilty of an offence<sup>5</sup>.

Incorporated Friendly Societies/H. LOANS, BENEFIT TERMS AND NOMINATIONS/2142.
Nominations by members.

2142. Nominations by members.

A member of an incorporated friendly society<sup>1</sup> who is not under the age of 16 years may<sup>2</sup> nominate<sup>3</sup> a person or persons to whom any sum of money payable by the society on the death of that member, or any specified amount of money so payable, is to be paid at his death<sup>4</sup>. The total amount which may be nominated must not exceed the relevant maximum<sup>5</sup>, or such higher amount as may for the time being apply<sup>6</sup>. The sum payable on the death of a member by an incorporated friendly society must include sums of money contributed to or deposited in the separate loan fund, together with interest on them, and any sum of money accumulated for the use of the member, together with interest<sup>7</sup>. The person nominated under these provisions must not, at the date of nomination, be an officer<sup>8</sup> or employee of the society unless he is the husband, wife, father, mother, child, brother, sister, nephew or niece of the nominator<sup>9</sup>.

Nominations so made may be revoked or varied by any similar document<sup>10</sup>. The marriage of a member of the society operates as a revocation of any nomination previously made by that member<sup>11</sup>. Where a society has paid money to a nominee in ignorance of a marriage subsequent to the nomination, the receipt of the nominee is a valid discharge to the society<sup>12</sup>.

On receiving satisfactory proof of the death of a nominator, an incorporated friendly society must<sup>13</sup> pay to his nominee or nominees the amount due to the deceased or, as the case may be, the amount specified in the nomination<sup>14</sup>. The total amount paid by an incorporated friendly society by virtue of a nomination, whether in favour of one nominee or more, may not exceed the relevant maximum<sup>15</sup>. The receipt of a nominee over 16 years of age for any amount paid in accordance with these provisions will be valid<sup>16</sup>.

If any member of an incorporated friendly society entitled from its funds to a sum not exceeding the relevant maximum dies without having made any nomination of that sum then subsisting, the society may, without letters of administration or probate of any will, distribute the sum among such persons as appear to the society, upon such evidence as the society may deem satisfactory, to be entitled by law to receive that sum<sup>17</sup>. A payment by an incorporated friendly society under these provisions is valid and effectual against any demand made upon the society by any other person, but the next of kin or personal representatives of the deceased member have a remedy for recovery of the money paid against the person who has received the money<sup>18</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'incorporated friendly society' see PARA 2082.

2 This is subject to the provisions set out in the text and notes 3-12: Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 18(4), Sch 9 para 1(1).

It is thought that there should also be a reference here to 'civil partner' and that when the Civil Partnerships Act 2004 was passed, the need to amend this provision to refer to the spouse or civil partner of the nominator, rather than his or her husband or wife, seems to have been overlooked: cf the Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 66(5), an exactly comparable provision to which such an amendment has been made, discussed at PARA 2234. See also the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965, s 23(2), a similar provision similarly amended, and PARA 2504.

(A) MODES OF DISSOLUTION AND WINDING UP

2143. Modes of dissolution and winding up.

An incorporated friendly society<sup>1</sup> may be dissolved by consent of the members or may be wound up voluntarily or by the court<sup>2</sup> in accordance with the Friendly Societies Act 1992<sup>3</sup>. With three exceptions, an incorporated friendly society may not be dissolved or wound up in any other manner<sup>4</sup>.

The three exceptions are as follows<sup>5</sup>: (1) following an amalgamation of two or more societies, each of the amalgamating societies is dissolved by operation of law on the transfer date<sup>6</sup>; (2) where a society has transferred all its engagements to another friendly society, it is dissolved by operation of law on the transfer date<sup>7</sup>; and (3) where the Financial Services Authority<sup>8</sup> has directed the transfer of all the engagements of a society, it is dissolved by operation of law on the transfer date<sup>9</sup>.

An incorporated friendly society which is in the course of dissolution by consent, or is being wound up voluntarily, may be wound up by the court<sup>10</sup>.

- 1 As to the meaning of 'incorporated friendly society' see PARA 2082.
- 2 'Court', in relation to the winding up of an incorporated friendly society, means the court which has jurisdiction under the applicable winding up legislation to wind up the society; in any other case it means the county court for the district in which the registered office of the incorporated friendly society is situated: Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 119(1). 'Applicable winding up legislation' is not defined for the purposes of the Act generally, but see s 23; and PARA 2145 note 3.
- 3 See the Friendly Societies Act 1992 Pt II (ss 5-26).
- 4 Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 19(1). Notwithstanding s 19(1), an incorporated friendly society may (like a registered friendly society) be wound up on the application of the Financial Services Authority under s 52: see PARA 2310. See note 8.

- 6 See the Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 85(4); and PARA 2352.

(B) DISSOLUTION BY CONSENT

2144. Dissolution by consent.

An incorporated friendly society<sup>1</sup> may be dissolved by an instrument of dissolution<sup>2</sup>. An instrument of dissolution has effect only if it is approved by special resolution<sup>3</sup>.

An instrument of dissolution must set out:

- 631 (1) the liabilities and assets of the society in detail<sup>4</sup>;
- 632 (2) the number of members and the nature of their interests in the society<sup>5</sup>;
- 633 (3) the claims of creditors, and the provision to be made for their payment<sup>6</sup>;
- 634 (4) the intended appropriation or division of the funds and property of the society<sup>7</sup>;
- 635 (5) the names of one or more persons to be appointed as trustees for the purposes of the dissolution, and their remuneration<sup>8</sup>.

An instrument of dissolution may be altered, but the alteration has effect only if it is approved by special resolution<sup>9</sup>.

The Friendly Societies Act 1992 continues to apply to an incorporated friendly society as if the trustees appointed under the instrument of dissolution were the committee of management of the society<sup>10</sup>. Within 15 days of the passing of a special resolution approving an instrument of dissolution, the trustees must give notice of the fact to the Financial Services Authority<sup>11</sup> and of the date of commencement of the dissolution, enclosing a copy of the instrument<sup>12</sup>. Within 15 days of the passing of the special resolution approving an alteration of such an instrument, the trustees must give notice of the fact to the Authority, enclosing a copy of the altered instrument<sup>13</sup>. If the trustees fail to comply with these provisions, they are each guilty of an offence<sup>14</sup>. An instrument of dissolution, or an alteration to it, is binding on all members of the society as from the date the copy of the instrument or altered instrument, as the case may be, is placed on the public file of the society<sup>15</sup>.

The trustees must, within 28 days from the termination of the dissolution, give notice to the Financial Services Authority of the fact and the date of the termination, enclosing an account and balance sheet signed and certified by them as correct, showing the assets and liabilities of the society at the commencement of the dissolution, and the way in which those assets and liabilities have been applied and discharged<sup>16</sup>. If the trustees fail to comply with this provision they are each guilty of an offence<sup>17</sup>.

Except with the consent of the Authority, no instrument of dissolution or alteration to such instrument is of any effect if the purpose of the proposed dissolution or alteration is to effect or facilitate the transfer of the society's engagements to any other friendly society or to a company<sup>18</sup>. Any provision in a resolution or document that members of an incorporated friendly society proposed to be dissolved are to accept membership of some other body in or towards satisfaction of their rights in the dissolution will be conclusive evidence of such a purpose<sup>19</sup>.

Where an incorporated friendly society has been dissolved, the court<sup>20</sup> may, at any time within 12 years after the date on which the society was dissolved, make an order<sup>21</sup> declaring the dissolution to be void<sup>22</sup>. When such an order is made, such proceedings may be taken as might have been taken if the society had not been dissolved<sup>23</sup>.

20 For this purpose, 'court' means, in relation to a society whose registered office is in England and Wales, the High Court: Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 25(6).

21 Such an order may be made on such terms as the court thinks fit; an order may be made on an application by the trustees appointed for the dissolution, the liquidator or any other person appearing to the court to be interested: Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 25(2). The applicant must, within seven days of the making of the order or such further time as the court may allow, furnish the Authority with a copy of the order, and the Financial Services Authority must keep a copy in the public file of the society: s 25(4) (amended by SI 2001/2617). Failure to comply with the Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 25(4) is an offence punishable on summary conviction with a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale and, in the case of a continuing offence, an additional fine not exceeding one-tenth of that level for every day during which the offence continues: s 25(5).

(C) VOLUNTARY WINDING UP

2145. Voluntary winding up.

An incorporated friendly society<sup>1</sup> may, if it resolves by special resolution<sup>2</sup> that it be wound up voluntarily, be so wound up voluntarily under the applicable winding up legislation<sup>3</sup>. A copy of any special resolution passed for the voluntary winding up of an incorporated friendly society must be sent by the society to the Financial Services Authority<sup>4</sup> within 15 days after it is passed, and the Authority must keep the copy in the public file<sup>5</sup> of the society<sup>6</sup>. A copy of any such resolution must be annexed to every copy of the society's memorandum<sup>7</sup> or rules<sup>8</sup> issued after the passing of the resolution<sup>9</sup>. If an incorporated friendly society fails to comply with these provisions the society is guilty of an offence<sup>10</sup>. For these purposes, a liquidator of the society is to be treated as an officer of it<sup>11</sup>.

Where an incorporated friendly society has been wound up voluntarily, it is dissolved as from three months from the date of the placing in the public file of the society of the return of the final meetings of the society and its creditors made by the liquidator<sup>12</sup>.

Where an incorporated society has been dissolved following a winding up, the court may within 12 years make an order declaring the dissolution void<sup>13</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'incorporated friendly society' see PARA 2082.

2 As to special resolutions see PARA 2306.

3 Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 21(1). In its application to the winding up of an incorporated friendly society, by virtue of s 21(1) or s 22(1) (see PARA 2146), the companies winding up legislation has effect with the modifications effected by s 23, Sch 10 Pts I-III: s 23(2). The supplementary provisions of Sch 10 Pt IV also have effect in relation to such a winding up and in relation to dissolution by consent: s 23(2). For the purposes of ss 21, 22 (both as amended), 'the applicable winding up legislation' means the companies winding up legislation as so modified: s 23(3). Under the above provisions 'the companies winding up legislation' means the enactments applicable in relation to England and Wales, Scotland and Northern Ireland which are specified in Sch 10 para 1, including any enactment which creates an offence by any person arising out of acts or omissions occurring before the commencement of the winding up: s 23(1). The enactments which comprise the companies winding up legislation are the provisions of the Insolvency Act 1986 Pt IV (ss 73-219), Pt VI (ss 230-246), Pt VII (ss 247-251), Pt XII (ss 386, 387) and Pt XIII (ss 388-398), and ss 430, 432 (see COMPANY AND PARTNERSHIP INSOLVENCY vol 7(3) (2004 Reissue) PARA 432 et seq), and equivalent Northern Ireland legislation: Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 10 para 1. Those provisions are applied generally to the winding up of an incorporated friendly society as they apply to the winding up of a company, subject to modifications: Sch 10 para 2. The following general modifications are made:

- 13 (1) references to 'company', 'directors', 'the registrar of companies' (or 'registrar'), and 'the articles' are replaced, respectively, by references to 'incorporated friendly society', 'committee of management', 'the Financial Services Authority', and 'the rules' (Sch 10 para 3(1) (amended by SI 2001/2617));
- 14 (2) references to officers or an officer of a company take effect as references to the corresponding officers or officer of the incorporated friendly society (Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 10 para 3(2)(a));
- 15 (3) references to a director of a company have effect as references to a member of the committee of management (Sch 10 para 3(2)(b));
- 16 (4) references to an administrator, administration order, administrative receiver, shadow director or voluntary arrangement are omitted (Sch 10 para 3(2)(c));
- 17 (5) provisions as modified which have the effect of requiring notice to be sent to the Financial Services Authority take effect as including a requirement that the Authority keep a copy on the public file of the society and record the date on which it was placed there, and references to the date of registration of notice or documents have effect as references to the date of placing it on the public file (Sch 10 para 4 (amended by SI 2001/2617));
- 18 (6) provisions specifying sums which are subject to alteration by order take effect with any alteration so made (Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 10 para 5).

The modifications made by Sch 10 Pt II (paras 6-36) (amended by SI 2001/2617; and SI 2007/2194) affect the following provisions of the Insolvency Act 1986: ss 74, 75-78, 79, 83, 84, 88, 89, 90, 95, 96, 101, 107, 110, 111, 117, 122, 124, 125, 126, 129, 130, 140, 141, 142, 147, 154, 165, 187, 201, 202-204, 205, 216, 217, 218, 219, 387: see COMPANY AND PARTNERSHIP INSOLVENCY vol 7(3) (2004 Reissue) PARA 432 et seq.

(D) WINDING UP BY THE COURT

2146. Winding up by the court: grounds and petitioners.

An incorporated friendly society<sup>1</sup> may be wound up by the court<sup>2</sup> under the applicable winding up legislation<sup>3</sup> on any of the following grounds, that is, if<sup>4</sup>:

- 636 (1) the society has by special resolution<sup>5</sup> resolved that it be wound up by the court<sup>6</sup>;
- 637 (2) the number of members is reduced below seven<sup>7</sup>;
- 638 (3) the number of members of the committee of management is reduced below two<sup>8</sup>;
- 639 (4) the society has not commenced business within a year from its incorporation or has suspended its business for a whole year<sup>9</sup>;
- 640 (5) the society exists for an illegal purpose<sup>10</sup>;
- 641 (6) the society is unable to pay its debts<sup>11</sup>; or
- 642 (7) the court is of the opinion that it is just and equitable that the society should be wound up<sup>12</sup>.

A contributory<sup>13</sup> may not present a petition unless the number of members is reduced below seven, or he has been a contributory for at least six months before the winding up<sup>14</sup>. Otherwise, except as the applicable winding up legislation provides, a petition for the winding up of an incorporated friendly society may be presented by: (a) the Financial Services Authority<sup>15</sup>; (b) the society or its committee of management; (c) any creditor or creditors, including any contingent or prospective creditor; or (d) any contributory or contributories; or by all or any of those parties, together or separately<sup>16</sup>.

Where an incorporated friendly society has been wound up by the court, it is dissolved as from three months from the date of the placing in the public file of the society of the liquidator's notice<sup>17</sup>.

Where an incorporated society has been dissolved following a winding up, the court may within 12 years make an order declaring the dissolution void<sup>18</sup>.

2147. Continuation of long term business.

In relation to the winding up of an incorporated friendly society<sup>1</sup> which carries on long term business<sup>2</sup>, including any reinsurance business<sup>3</sup>, the liquidator must, unless the court<sup>4</sup> otherwise orders, carry on the long term business of the society with a view to its being transferred as a going concern under the Friendly Societies Act 1992<sup>5</sup>. In carrying on that business, the liquidator may agree to the variation of any contracts of insurance<sup>6</sup> in existence when the winding up order is made but may not effect any new contracts of insurance<sup>7</sup>.

If the liquidator is satisfied that the interests of creditors, in respect of liabilities of the society attributable to its long term business, require the appointment of a special manager of that business, he may apply to the court; the court may on such application appoint a special manager of that business to act during such time as it may direct, with such powers, including any of the powers of a receiver or manager, as may be entrusted to him by the court<sup>8</sup>. The court may, if it thinks fit and subject to such conditions, if any, as it may determine, reduce the amount of the contracts made by the society in the course of carrying on its long term business<sup>9</sup>.

The court may, on the application of the liquidator, a special manager or the Financial Services Authority<sup>10</sup>, appoint an independent actuary<sup>11</sup> to investigate the long term business of the society and to report to the liquidator, the special manager or the Authority, as the case may be, on the desirability or otherwise of that business being continued and on any reduction in the contracts made in the course of that business that may be necessary for its successful continuation<sup>12</sup>.

Incorporated Friendly Societies/I. DISSOLUTION, WINDING UP AND CANCELLATION OF REGISTRATION/(E) Cancellation of Registration/2148. Cancellation of registration.

2148. Cancellation of registration.

Where the Financial Services Authority<sup>1</sup> is satisfied that an incorporated friendly society<sup>2</sup> has been dissolved under an instrument of dissolution<sup>3</sup> or following a winding up<sup>4</sup>, it must cancel the society's registration under the Friendly Societies Act 1992<sup>5</sup>.

Where the Authority is satisfied, with respect to an incorporated friendly society, that a certificate of incorporation<sup>6</sup> has been obtained by fraud or mistake, that the society has ceased to exist or, in the case of certain societies carrying out insurance business<sup>7</sup>, that the principal place of business of the society is outside the United Kingdom<sup>8</sup>, it may cancel the society's registration<sup>9</sup>. The Authority may, if it thinks fit, cancel the registration of an incorporated friendly society at the request of the society evidenced in such manner as the Authority may direct<sup>10</sup>. Before cancelling the society's registration, the Authority must give the society not less than two months' previous notice<sup>11</sup>, specifying briefly the grounds of the proposed cancellation<sup>12</sup>.

Where the registration of an incorporated friendly society is cancelled, the society may appeal to the High Court and, on any such appeal, the court may, if it thinks it just to do so, set aside the cancellation<sup>13</sup>.

Where the registration of a society is cancelled under these provisions then, subject to the right of appeal, the society, so far as it continues to exist, ceases to be a society incorporated under the Friendly Societies Act 1992<sup>14</sup>; but this does not affect any liability actually incurred by an incorporated friendly society, and any such liability may be enforced against the society as if the cancellation had not taken place<sup>15</sup>.

Any cancellation of the registration of an incorporated friendly society under these provisions must be effected by written notice given by the Authority to the society<sup>16</sup>. As soon as practicable after the cancellation of the registration of an incorporated friendly society the Authority must cause notice of it to be published in the London, Edinburgh or Belfast Gazette, according to the situation of the society's registered office, and, if it thinks fit, in one or more newspapers<sup>17</sup>.

(iii) Registered Societies

A. REGISTRATION

2149. Prohibition on registration of new societies under the Friendly Societies Act 1974.

Since 1 February 1993 it is no longer possible to register a society under the Friendly Societies Act 1974<sup>1</sup>. An existing society<sup>2</sup> continues as a registered society in accordance with the provisions of that Act<sup>3</sup>. An existing friendly society is not prevented by anything in the Friendly Societies Act 1992 from performing any contract which was in force immediately before that date, or from carrying on any social or benevolent activity which is not inconsistent with its other activities<sup>4</sup>.

1 Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 93(1), which was brought into force on 1 February 1993: Friendly Societies Act 1992 (Commencement No 3 and Transitional Provisions) Order 1993, SI 1993/16, art 2, Sch 3. This does not apply to branches of societies: see PARA 2151.

2 An 'existing society' is one registered under the Friendly Societies Act 1974 immediately before 1 February 1993 (see note 1): Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 93(2).

3 Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 93(2). It follows that there is no longer any provision for the acknowledgment of registration of a society. The Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 15(1), which provided, in relation to both societies and branches, for the registrar to issue such acknowledgment, and s 15(2), which provided that acknowledgment constitutes conclusive evidence of registration (unless it is proved that the society's registration has been suspended or cancelled), are replaced by s 15A (see PARA 2152), which makes similar provision applicable only to branches of existing societies. This replacement does not, however, affect the operation of s 15(2) in relation to acknowledgments issued under s 15(1): Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 95, Sch 16 paras 1, 6(3).

4 Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 93(4).

Registered Societies/A. REGISTRATION/2150. Obligation of registered friendly society to amend rules: the transitional period.

2150. Obligation of registered friendly society to amend rules: the transitional period.

Before the end of a transitional period<sup>1</sup> each existing friendly society<sup>2</sup>, and each registered branch<sup>3</sup> of an existing friendly society, must by special resolution<sup>4</sup> agree upon the alterations which are to be made to its rules<sup>5</sup> so that they conform to the provisions of both the Friendly Societies Act 1974 and the Friendly Societies Act 1992<sup>6</sup>. The society or branch must send to the Financial Services Authority three copies of the rules as altered, each signed by the secretary and accompanied by a statutory declaration by him that the agreement was effected by a resolution passed as a special resolution<sup>7</sup>. If the Authority is satisfied that the rules as altered are in conformity with the Friendly Societies Act 1974 and the Friendly Societies Act 1992, it must retain and register a copy of the altered rules<sup>8</sup>. On registering a copy of the altered rules, the Authority must: (1) return another copy to the secretary of the society or branch with a certificate of registration; and (2) keep another copy with a record of the date on which the alterations are to take effect<sup>9</sup>, and a copy of the certificate of registration, in the public file of the society<sup>10</sup>.

If the Authority has not, before the end of the transitional period, received copies of altered rules from a society or branch, the society or branch is treated as having agreed on such alteration of its rules as the Authority directs<sup>11</sup>. Where the Authority proposes to give such a direction it must serve on the society or branch a notice of that proposal and consider any representations made by the society or branch within such period (not less than 14 days) from the date on which the notice is served as the Authority may allow, and the Authority must give the society or branch an opportunity of being heard within that period if the society so requests<sup>12</sup>.

Where a society or branch is treated as having agreed upon altered rules, the Authority must prepare three copies of the rules for the society or branch, and must:

- 643 (a) retain and register one copy;
- 644 (b) send another to the secretary of the society, together with a certificate of registration; and
- 645 (c) keep another copy, together with a copy of that certificate, in the public file of the society or branch, and the rules so registered are for all purposes the rules of the society or branch until amended under the Friendly Societies Act 1974<sup>13</sup>.

1 'Transitional period' means the period beginning with the commencement date for the Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 93 and ending with such day as the Treasury prescribes by order: s 93(14) (amended by SI 2001/2617). The commencement dates for the Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 93 were 1 February 1993 and 1 January 1994: see the Friendly Societies Act 1992 (Commencement No 3 and Transitional Provisions) Order 1993, SI 1993/16; and the Friendly Societies Act 1992 (Commencement No 6 and Transitional Provisions) Order 1993, SI 1993/2213. At the date at which this volume states the law, no order had been made prescribing a date for the end of the transitional period. As to the Treasury see PARA 3; and CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 512 et seq.

3 As to the meaning of 'registered branch' see PARA 2091.

4 As to special resolutions see PARA 2218.

5 On agreeing upon any such alterations to its rules the society or branch must determine the date on which the alteration is to take effect, and any alteration sent to the Financial Services Authority must be accompanied by a record of that date: Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 93(6), (15) (s 93(6) amended by SI 2001/2617). However, no date may be specified which falls more than six months after the date of the meeting at which the alteration was agreed: Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 93(7). MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(2) FRIENDLY SOCIETIES/(iii) Registered Societies/A. REGISTRATION/2151. Registration of branches of existing societies.

2151. Registration of branches of existing societies.

The prohibition on registering a new society under the Friendly Societies Act 1974<sup>1</sup> does not extend to the registration of a branch<sup>2</sup> of an existing society<sup>3</sup>, which continues to be registrable<sup>4</sup>. However, a body which has been registered as a branch of a registered society<sup>5</sup> may no longer be registered as a society under the Friendly Societies Act 1974<sup>6</sup>: any new society is registrable only under the Friendly Societies Act 1992<sup>7</sup>.

When a registered society establishes a new branch, the secretary of the registered friendly society must send to the Financial Services Authority<sup>8</sup>:

- 646 (1) notice of the establishment of the branch<sup>9</sup>;
- 647 (2) notice of the place where its registered office, to which all communications and notices may be addressed, is to be situated<sup>10</sup>;
- 648 (3) if the branch is to have trustees<sup>11</sup> or other officers<sup>12</sup> authorised to sue and be sued on its behalf, other than the trustees or officers authorised to sue or be sued on behalf of the society, a list of the names of those trustees or officers<sup>13</sup>; and
- 649 (4) two copies of the rules of the branch<sup>14</sup>.

The society is not entitled to any of the privileges of the Friendly Societies Act 1974 with respect to a branch until the branch has been registered<sup>15</sup>.

MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(2) FRIENDLY SOCIETIES/(iii) Registered Societies/A. REGISTRATION/2152. Acknowledgment of registration of branches of existing societies.

2152. Acknowledgment of registration of branches of existing societies.

On being satisfied that a branch of an existing society<sup>1</sup> has complied with the provisions of the Friendly Societies Act 1974 as to registration<sup>2</sup>, the Financial Services Authority<sup>3</sup> must issue to that branch an acknowledgment of registration<sup>4</sup>. Such acknowledgment is conclusive evidence that the branch is duly registered, unless it is proved that the registration of the society of which it is a branch has been suspended or cancelled<sup>5</sup>. Acknowledgment is also conclusive evidence of the rules<sup>6</sup>.

1 As to branches generally see PARA 2091. As to the meaning of 'existing society' see PARA 2149 note 2. As to the power to register a branch of an existing society see PARA 2151.

4 Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 15A(1) (added by the Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 16 paras 1, 6(1); and amended by SI 2001/2617). The Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 15A replaces s 15, which applied to both branches and societies; but this does not affect the operation of s 15(2) in relation to an acknowledgment issued under s 15(1) (see PARA 2149 note 3); Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 16 para 6(3).

2153. Appeal from refusal to register branch.

If the Financial Services Authority<sup>1</sup> refuses to register a branch<sup>2</sup>, the branch may appeal to the High Court<sup>3</sup>. If that refusal is overruled on appeal, the Financial Services Authority must give an acknowledgment of registration<sup>4</sup> to the branch<sup>5</sup>.

MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(2) FRIENDLY SOCIETIES/(iii) Registered Societies/A. REGISTRATION/2154. Provisions as to dividing societies.

2154. Provisions as to dividing societies.

A society (other than a benevolent society or working men's club<sup>1</sup>) is not disentitled to registration<sup>2</sup> under the Friendly Societies Act 1974 by reason of any rule for, or practice of, dividing any part of its funds, if the rules of the society contain distinct provision for meeting all claims on the society existing at the time of the division, before any division takes place<sup>3</sup>.

- 1 As to benevolent societies, working men's clubs and other registered societies (including, but not confined to, friendly societies) see PARAS 2081, 2089.
- 2 Since no new society may be registered under the Friendly Societies Act 1974 (see PARA 2149), this provision must be read as referring to branches of existing societies, which are still registrable: see PARA 2151.
- 3 Friendly Societies Act 1974 ss 7(2)(a), 9(1), Sch 2 para 10. Members may be restrained by injunction from an illegal division of the funds of a society: Scott v Peel (1895) Diprose & Gammon 277. Registered Societies/A. REGISTRATION/2155. Carrying on business in another registration area.

2155. Carrying on business in another registration area.

A society may not be registered<sup>1</sup> under the Friendly Societies Act 1974 unless its registered office is to be situated in the United Kingdom<sup>2</sup>, the Channel Islands or the Isle of Man<sup>3</sup>. However, a society having a fund under the control of a central body to which every branch is bound to contribute may be registered as a single society<sup>4</sup>.

1 No new society may be registered under the Friendly Societies Act 1974: see PARA 2149. The precise effect of this provision is consequently unclear. It may simply be that the registered office of a new branch must be situated in the United Kingdom, the Channel Islands or the Isle of Man for the branch to be registrable (see PARA 2151); or it may be that the registered office of an existing registered society must remain in those areas for the society to be entitled to remain registered; finally it may be that the provision has effect to determine whether an existing registered society, at the time of its registration, was entitled to be registered. As to changes in the situation of the registered office see PARA 2160 text and note 4. The registration of a society may be cancelled for contravention of the Friendly Societies Act 1974, or where it is found that acknowledgment of registration was obtained by fraud or mistake: see PARA 2258.

B. RULES

(A) CONTENT OF RULES

2156. Contents.

The rules of a registered society<sup>1</sup> must contain provisions in respect of the following matters<sup>2</sup>:

- 650 (1) the name of the society<sup>3</sup>;
- 651 (2) the place which is to be its registered office, to which all communications and notices may be addressed<sup>4</sup>;
- 652 (3) the whole of the objects for which the society is to be established, the purposes for which the funds are to be applicable, the terms of admission of members, the conditions under which a member is entitled to a benefit, any forfeitures to be imposed on any member and the consequences of non-payment of any subscription<sup>5</sup>;
- 653 (4) the mode of holding meetings, the right of voting and the manner of making, altering or rescinding rules<sup>6</sup>;
- 654 (5) the manner of appointing and removing a committee of management (by whatever name), a treasurer and other officers and trustees, and, in the case of a

- society with branches, the composition and powers of the central body and the conditions under which a branch may secede from the society<sup>7</sup>;
- 655 (6) the investment of the funds, keeping of the accounts and annual audit of the accounts<sup>8</sup>;
- 656 (7) except in relation to registered friendly societies, the sending to the Financial Services Authority of an annual return relating to the society's affairs and the number of its members<sup>9</sup>;
- 657 (8) the inspection of the society's books by every person having an interest in its funds<sup>10</sup>;
- 658 (9) the manner in which disputes are to be settled<sup>11</sup>;
- 659 (10) where the society is to divide its funds, provision for meeting all claims upon the society existing at the time of division before any such division takes place<sup>12</sup>;
- 660 (11) in the case of a registered friendly society or cattle insurance society, the voluntary dissolution of the society<sup>13</sup>;
- 661 (12) in the case only of a registered friendly society, such periodic valuations as the law requires from time to time, in respect of the whole of its business or any particular business or businesses<sup>14</sup>;
- 662 (13) in the case only of a cattle insurance society, the keeping of proper accounts and the keeping of a separate account of management expenses and all contributions and other money which may be applied to those expenses<sup>15</sup>;
- 663 (14) in the case only of a cattle insurance society, the right of the specified number of members to apply to the Authority for an investigation of the affairs of the society or for winding it up<sup>16</sup>.

The rules of a registered society or branch may provide for: (a) the reinsurance of risks of any class against which persons are, or are to be, insured by that society or branch, to such an extent as is approved from time to time by a qualified actuary<sup>17</sup>; (b) accumulating at interest, for a member's use, any surplus of his contributions to the funds of the society or branch which may remain after providing for the assurance for which they are paid, and for the withdrawal of the accumulations<sup>18</sup>; (c) the admission of minors as members<sup>19</sup>.

The rules of a registered friendly society may provide for the carrying on of reinsurance business<sup>20</sup>, to such an extent or in such circumstances as are approved from time to time by the appropriate actuary<sup>21</sup>.

The rules of a specially authorised society which satisfies certain conditions<sup>22</sup> may provide that the society may receive deposits and borrow money at interest from its members or other persons, and on registration of the rule it is valid<sup>23</sup>.

The rules of a registered cattle insurance society or branch, and of such specially authorised societies or branches as the Treasury may determine, bind the society or branch and members, and all persons claiming through them<sup>24</sup>, to the same extent as if each member had executed them as a deed and covenanted to conform to them, subject to the provisions of the Friendly Societies Act 1974<sup>25</sup>.

A copy of the rules of a registered society or branch must be delivered to any person, on demand, on payment of a reasonable fee<sup>26</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2082.

2 Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 7(2)(a). These matters are relevant to the continued registration of societies and to the new registration of branches of existing societies: see PARAS 2149-2151. It is important to avoid inconsistency between provisions in the rules of a registered society and its branches, and also to make clear whether or not the rules of a branch are to be affected on any matters by alterations in the rules of the registered society or any branch: Dixon v Thompson (1891) Diprose & Gammon 46, DC.

3 Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 7(2)(a), Sch 2 para 1.

4 Friendly Societies Act 1974 Sch 2 para 2.

5 Friendly Societies Act 1974 Sch 2 para 3(1) (amended by the Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 16 paras 1, 51, Sch 22 Pt I). Nothing in head (3) in the text:

19 (1) requires tables to be included in the rules relating to the benefits payable to or in respect of any members of the society in pursuance of group insurance business (Friendly Societies Act 1974 Sch 2 para 3(2) (amended by SI 2001/2617));

20 (2) prevents a registered friendly society from specifying in its rules the manner in which the conditions are to be determined, under which any member may become entitled to any benefit assured by the society, instead of specifying the conditions themselves (Friendly Societies Act 1974 Sch 2 para 3(3) (added by the Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 16 para 51));

21 (3) requires the rules of a society to contain tables if the rules of the society provide that no further obligations may be undertaken or (as the case may be) no further policies may be issued in accordance with any such tables (Friendly Societies Act 1974 Sch 2 para 11(1)).

Subject to head (3) above, the tables which the rules of a society are required to contain under head (3) in the text, and any tables contained in the rules of a branch must, in the case of a society or branch which proposes to carry on long term business, have been certified by a qualified actuary, in so far as they relate to that business: Sch 2 para 11(2) (amended by SI 2001/3649). This does not apply to a society first registered before 26 July 1968 or to a branch of such a society or to a society formed by the amalgamation of two or more such societies: Friendly Societies Act 1974 Sch 2 para 11(3). As to the meaning of 'long term business' see PARA 2138 note 5; definition applied by Sch 2 para 11(2A) (added by SI 2001/3649).

22 The conditions are: (1) that the society has for its object the creation of funds to be lent out to members or for their benefit; and (2) it has in its rules provision that: (a) no part of its funds is to be divided by way of profit, bonus, dividend or otherwise among its members; and (b) that all money lent to members is to be applied to such purpose as the society or its committee may approve: Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 23(3).

If action not permitted by the rules<sup>1</sup> of a registered friendly society<sup>2</sup> or registered branch<sup>3</sup> is taken by or on behalf of the society or branch, the action is valid<sup>4</sup> if all the members<sup>5</sup> of the society or branch either signified their agreement to it in writing before it was taken, or signified their approval of it in writing before the end of the period of 28 days commencing with the day on which it was taken<sup>6</sup>.

If a contract between a registered friendly society or branch and its members purports to create rights and obligations, as to which the rules of the society or branch do not permit rights and obligations to be created, the contract is valid and binds all members of the society or branch if all the members of the society or branch are parties to it<sup>7</sup>.

However, the taking of any action, or any term in a contract, is not validated unless the matter falls within the capacity<sup>8</sup> of a registered friendly society or branch<sup>9</sup>.

MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(2) FRIENDLY SOCIETIES/(iii) Registered Societies/B. RULES/(C) Amendment of Rules/2160. Method of amendment.

(C) AMENDMENT OF RULES

2160. Method of amendment.

There is no statutory provision regulating generally the manner in which the rules of registered societies<sup>1</sup> and their branches<sup>2</sup> are amended, but the rules of all registered societies must contain a provision for the manner in which the rules of a society or branch can be amended or rescinded<sup>3</sup>.

Notice of any change in the situation of the registered office of a registered society or branch must be sent to the Financial Services Authority<sup>4</sup>. In the case of a branch, the notice must be sent through an officer of the society of which it is a branch, appointed for that purpose<sup>5</sup>. Such a notice is registered as if it were an amendment of rules<sup>6</sup>.

A registered society may change its name by an amendment of its rules and in no other way, but no such amendment may be registered unless the change has the written approval of the Authority<sup>7</sup>. The change of name does not affect any right or obligation of the society or of any member and any pending legal proceedings may be continued by or against the trustees of the society or any other officer who may sue or be sued on behalf of the society, notwithstanding its new name<sup>8</sup>.

The extent to which the acknowledgment of registration of an amendment is conclusive as to its validity is considered elsewhere in this title<sup>9</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2082.

2 As to branches of societies see PARA 2091; and as to the contents of rules see PARA 2156.

3 See the Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 7(2)(a), Sch 2 para 4; and PARA 2156. Before 1876, certified societies, as they were then called, could amend their rules in the manner in which their own rules provided or they could amend them in the manner provided by statute (see the Friendly Societies Act 1896 s 101(1) (repealed); and the Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 116(2), Sch 10 para 7(a)). The statutory method of amending rules (see the Friendly Societies Act 1855 s 27 (repealed), which provided that rules could be altered at a special meeting called for that purpose) was repealed as from 1 January 1876 (see the Friendly Societies Act 1875 s 5, Sch 1 (repealed)). If rules certified before that date contained no provision for their amendment, the society cannot rely on the statutory provision which has been repealed, and the rules can be amended only with the assent of all the members whose interests are affected: Souter v Davies (1895) 39 Sol Jo 264.

MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(2) FRIENDLY SOCIETIES/(iii) Registered Societies/B. RULES/(C) Amendment of Rules/2161. Consequences of amendment.

2161. Consequences of amendment.

The contract between the members and a registered society<sup>1</sup> or branch<sup>2</sup> is contained in its rules<sup>3</sup>. If the rules are the only form of contract between a member and a registered society or branch, and there is power to amend them, a member is bound by any such amendment within that power, whatever the extent of the amendment may be and without any express assent or concurrence on the part of a particular member<sup>4</sup>. A member cannot be deprived of payment of a benefit due and payable to him under the rules as they existed before the amendment becomes effective, but the amendment can affect any benefit which may become due or payable afterwards<sup>5</sup>. If there is a secondary contract, such as a policy or certificate of membership, it may be that the member's assent would be necessary to an amendment of rules affecting that contract unless it is expressly stated to be made subject to an amendment of rules<sup>6</sup>. The society's power to amend its rules does not prevent a contract to pay death benefits which is contained in those rules from being a contract of assurance<sup>7</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2082.

2 As to branches of societies see PARA 2091; and as to the contents of rules see PARA 2156.

3 See eg Smith v Galloway [1898] 1 QB 71, DC. It seems that the rules are a contract between the member and the society or branch in its registered capacity and not merely a contract between the members among themselves: cf Bonsor v Musicians' Union [1956] AC 104, [1955] 3 All ER 518, HL (where the majority of the House of Lords was of the opinion that rules of a registered trade union constituted a contract between a member and the union).

4 Smith v Galloway [1898] 1 QB 71, DC; Dixon v Thompson (1891) Diprose & Gammon 46, DC. An alteration is also binding on the guarantors of a member: Birmingham and Midland Money Society Ltd v King (1907) 124 LT Jo 181. An amendment may not be binding, however, if it goes beyond what was within the reasonable contemplation of the parties when the original rules took effect: Hole v Garnsey [1930] AC 472 at 493, HL, per Viscount Sumner, and at 500 per Lord Tomlin.

5 Smith v Galloway [1898] 1 QB 71, DC. An alteration of a rule as to the manner of determining disputes made after an application to determine a dispute would not affect the applicant's rights under existing rules: Ritson v Dobson (1911) 104 LT 808. Rules which can be altered may be altered to the prejudice of officers appointed under those rules: Page v Liverpool Victoria Friendly Society (1927) 43 TLR 712, CA; applied in Yeo v Stewart [1947] 2 All ER 28.

MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(2) FRIENDLY SOCIETIES/(iii) Registered Societies/B. RULES/(C) Amendment of Rules/2163. Registration of amendment.

2163. Registration of amendment.

On being satisfied that any amendment of the registered rules<sup>1</sup> of a registered society<sup>2</sup> or branch<sup>3</sup> is not contrary to the provisions of the Friendly Societies Act 1974, the Financial Services Authority<sup>4</sup> must issue to the society or branch an acknowledgment of registration of the amendment, which is conclusive evidence that the amendment is duly registered<sup>5</sup>. The Authority's function is to consider whether or not the amendments are bad for non-conformity with the statutory provisions. It cannot refuse to register because it disapproves of them or regards them as bad in substance<sup>6</sup>. It can refuse to register if it is satisfied that an amendment has not been duly made<sup>7</sup>.

If the Authority refuses to register an amendment of a rule of a registered society or branch, the society or branch may appeal to the High Court<sup>8</sup>. If a refusal to register an amendment of a rule is overruled on appeal, the Authority must give an acknowledgment of registration<sup>9</sup> to the society or branch<sup>10</sup>.

2164. Effect of acknowledgment of registration of amendment.

The acknowledgment of registration of an amendment of rules of a registered society<sup>1</sup> or branch<sup>2</sup>, given by the Financial Services Authority<sup>3</sup>, is conclusive that everything antecedent to the registration has been duly carried out, and when the certificate has been issued it is incompetent for anybody to raise any objection of procedure or details with reference to matters antecedent to the registration<sup>4</sup>. The acknowledgment is not, however, conclusive as to the legality of rules or amendments or of the power to make amendments<sup>5</sup>.

MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(2) FRIENDLY SOCIETIES/(iii) Registered Societies/C. MEMBERS AND MEMBERSHIP/2165. Admission of members.

C. MEMBERS AND MEMBERSHIP

2165. Admission of members.

The terms of admission of members to registered societies<sup>1</sup> and branches<sup>2</sup> are matters which are required to be covered in the rules of the society or branch<sup>3</sup>. There is no limitation on the maximum number of members unless it is fixed by rule. A society was required to have at least seven members before it could be registered<sup>4</sup>. There is no statutory provision that a society loses its right to remain registered if its membership is reduced below seven members, but if the Financial Services Authority<sup>5</sup> is satisfied that a society has ceased to exist it may cancel the society's registration<sup>6</sup>. The rules of a registered society may limit the age at which a person can be admitted<sup>7</sup>.

Similar but separate provision is made in relation to the incorporation of friendly societies under the Friendly Societies Act 1992, and is considered elsewhere in this title<sup>8</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2082.

2 As to branches of societies see PARA 2091.

3 See the Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 7(2)(a), Sch 2 para 3(1); and PARA 2156. As to the contents of rules see PARA 2156.

4 See the Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 7(2)(c). See also the text and notes 5-6.

6 See the Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 91; and PARA 2258.

7 If the rules of a registered society in force at 1 April 1975 (ie the date of commencement of the Friendly Societies Act 1974) were in force on 1 January 1909 and provide for the admission as members of persons from the minimum age authorised by the Friendly Societies Act 1896, the rules are construed as providing for the admission as members of persons from birth: Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 116(2), Sch 10 para 5.

MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(2) FRIENDLY SOCIETIES/(iii) Registered Societies/C. MEMBERS AND MEMBERSHIP/2166. Minors.

2166. Minors.

The rules of a registered society<sup>1</sup> or branch<sup>2</sup> may provide for the admission of minors as members<sup>3</sup>. Such a member may, by himself if he is over 16, and by his parent or guardian if he is under 16, execute all instruments and give all receipts necessary to be executed or given under the rules<sup>4</sup>, but he cannot be a member of the committee of management or a trustee, manager or treasurer<sup>5</sup>.

Similar but separate provision is made in relation to the incorporation of friendly societies under the Friendly Societies Act 1972, and is considered elsewhere in this title<sup>6</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2082.

MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(2) FRIENDLY SOCIETIES/(iii) Registered Societies/C. MEMBERS AND MEMBERSHIP/2167. Liability of members.

2167. Liability of members.

Registered societies<sup>1</sup> or branches<sup>2</sup>, other than cattle insurance societies and certain specially authorised societies<sup>3</sup>, cannot sue a member for arrears or current subscriptions<sup>4</sup>. Sums of money payable by a member to a registered cattle insurance society or branch, or to such specially authorised societies or branches as the Treasury may allow to take the benefit of this provision, are deemed to be debts due from the member to the society or branch and are recoverable as such in the county court for the district in which the member resides<sup>5</sup>.

The rules must provide for the consequences of non-payment of any subscription<sup>6</sup>, but such a rule cannot give the society power to sue<sup>7</sup>. Fines may not be enforced unless they are reasonable<sup>8</sup>.

Where the funds of a society have been improperly divided among members, the members may be ordered to refund the amount received by them<sup>9</sup>.

A registered society or branch is not a corporate body<sup>10</sup>, and the Friendly Societies Act 1974 makes no provision limiting the liability of members in respect of its debts. It is conceived that members who are not committee members are not liable to contribute to the funds more than the subscriptions prescribed by the rules<sup>11</sup> and that in respect of contracts entered into on behalf of societies or branches the general law of agency applies<sup>12</sup>.

2168. Register of members.

Every registered friendly society<sup>1</sup> must maintain a register of the names and addresses of the members of the society<sup>2</sup>, to be kept at the registered office of the society or at such other place or places as the committee of management<sup>3</sup> thinks fit<sup>4</sup>. Failure to maintain a register is an offence<sup>5</sup>.

A society need not enter in the register the address of a member who became a member before 1 January 1994<sup>6</sup> while it has no address for him and his whereabouts are unknown<sup>7</sup>. Where it appears to a society that the address for a member shown in the register is no longer current, it may remove that address from the register, and need not enter an address for that member while it has no address for him and his whereabouts are unknown<sup>8</sup>.

MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(2) FRIENDLY SOCIETIES/(iii) Registered Societies/C. MEMBERS AND MEMBERSHIP/2169. Withdrawal from membership.

2169. Withdrawal from membership.

The right of a member<sup>1</sup> to terminate his membership of a registered society<sup>2</sup> or branch<sup>3</sup> must be ascertained according to the provisions in the rules<sup>4</sup>. If there is no provision on this matter, it would seem that a member can resign his membership at any time. The resignation is effective without the need for acceptance by the society, and therefore cannot be withdrawn after it has been received<sup>5</sup>. It would also seem that if by the rules notice of withdrawal is required, but no particular form is prescribed, and it is not stated to whom notice is to be given, parol notice given by a member to the secretary, or to an officer or other person through whom the original contract with the society was made, is sufficient<sup>6</sup>.

MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(2) FRIENDLY SOCIETIES/(iii) Registered Societies/C. MEMBERS AND MEMBERSHIP/2170. Expulsion.

2170. Expulsion.

As a society is founded on a written contract expressing the terms on which the members associate together, there is no inherent power to expel a member, and a member may not therefore be expelled unless the rules provide that power<sup>1</sup>. Any power of expulsion must be exercised in good faith, for the benefit of the society<sup>2</sup> and strictly in accordance with the rules<sup>3</sup>. If rules give the committee or some other authority power to expel a member for some act of disobedience or misconduct on his part, its decision cannot be questioned, provided the decision is arrived at after the member's defence has been heard or he has been given an opportunity of being heard<sup>4</sup>. If a member is not given the opportunity the decision will be null and void<sup>5</sup>. If the rules have been strictly observed, and the member has had due notice and full opportunity of answering the charges made against him and the power of expulsion has been exercised in good faith and for a reason which is not manifestly absurd, no tribunal can interfere to prevent the expulsion<sup>6</sup>.

Where under the rules of a friendly society it is a condition that a member should be, and continue to be, a member of another institution, by ceasing to belong to the latter institution the member automatically ceases to belong to the society<sup>7</sup>.

On the expulsion of a branch from a society, the members of the branch cease to be members of the society<sup>8</sup>.

2171. Protection of members joining the forces from deprivation of membership.

Any provision in the rules of a registered society<sup>1</sup> or branch<sup>2</sup> which purports to deprive persons of membership of the society or branch or of any interest in it by reason of their service in any of the naval, military or air forces of the Crown is of no effect, and no person may be fined for failure to attend any meeting of the society or branch or otherwise to comply with its rules if the failure was due to his service<sup>3</sup>.

D. OFFICERS

2172. Necessary and usual officers.

The affairs of a registered society<sup>1</sup> or branch<sup>2</sup> are managed through its officers<sup>3</sup>, and the rules must provide for trustees, a treasurer and other officers, and a committee of management<sup>4</sup>. There must also be a qualified auditor<sup>5</sup>. Every friendly society must have a chief executive and a secretary<sup>6</sup>. Other officers sometimes appointed include managers, persons to sue and be sued on behalf of a society or branch<sup>7</sup>, a chairman, sick visitors and so forth. Officers are sometimes described by titles borrowed from freemasonry and other crafts.

A minor<sup>8</sup> cannot be a member of the committee, a trustee, manager or treasurer<sup>9</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2082.

2 As to branches of societies see PARA 2091.

3 'Officer', for the purposes of the Friendly Societies Act 1974, includes a trustee, treasurer, secretary, or member of the committee of management of a society or branch, or a person appointed by the society or branch to sue or be sued on its behalf: s 111(1). Registered friendly societies, in common with incorporated friendly societies, are under an obligation to appoint a chief executive and a secretary (see the Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 28(1); and PARA 2301), and accordingly a different definition of 'officer' is given for the purposes of the Friendly Societies Act 1992 (see PARA 2115 note 11).

4 See the Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 7(2)(a), Sch 2 para 5.

MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(2) FRIENDLY SOCIETIES/(iii) Registered Societies/D. OFFICERS/(A) In general/2173. Appointment of officers.

2173. Appointment of officers.

The rules of a registered society<sup>1</sup> or branch<sup>2</sup> must provide for the appointment of the officers<sup>3</sup>. A list<sup>4</sup> signed by the secretary and by every trustee<sup>5</sup> and other officer named in it is evidence, on registration of the society or branch, that the named persons have been duly appointed<sup>6</sup>.

Specific provision as to the appointment of the chief executive and secretary of a friendly society is considered elsewhere in this title<sup>7</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2082.

2 As to branches of societies see PARA 2091.

3 See PARA 2172. As to the rules see PARA 2156 et seq.

MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(2) FRIENDLY SOCIETIES/(iii) Registered Societies/D. OFFICERS/(A) In general/2174. Removal, dismissal and resignation of officers.

2174. Removal, dismissal and resignation of officers.

The rules of a registered society<sup>1</sup> or branch<sup>2</sup> must provide for the removal of officers<sup>3</sup>. An officer dismissed by resolution of a general meeting of a society cannot be reinstated by a mandatory order<sup>4</sup>. On receiving notice from a competent court of his removal from office, a secretary of a society may not part with the books in his custody as office holder except to the official to whom he is directed to deliver them<sup>5</sup>. An officer of a collecting society after dismissal has no right to give a list of the members to a rival society<sup>6</sup>.

In the absence of any provisions in the rules or any contract, it seems that an officer can resign by giving notice to the secretary, and that he cannot withdraw his notice of resignation<sup>7</sup>.

On the death of an officer<sup>1</sup> of a registered society<sup>2</sup> or branch<sup>3</sup> who has in his possession, by virtue of his office, money or property belonging to the society or branch, the executors or administrators must, on the demand in writing<sup>4</sup> of the trustees<sup>5</sup> of the society or branch, or of any two of them, or of any person authorised by the society or branch or its committee of management to make the demand, pay the money and deliver over the property to the trustees in preference to any other debt or claim against the officer's estate<sup>6</sup>.

2176. Priority on bankruptcy or in execution.

A registered society<sup>1</sup> or branch<sup>2</sup> has a priority against creditors, in the event of the bankruptcy<sup>3</sup> of an officer<sup>4</sup> who has in his possession, by virtue of his office, money or property belonging to the society or branch<sup>5</sup>; or in the event of any execution, attachment or other process being issued, or action or diligence being raised against the officer or his property<sup>6</sup>. The trustee in bankruptcy or the sheriff or other person executing the process must, on demand in writing<sup>7</sup>, pay the money and deliver over the property to the trustees of the society or branch in preference to any other debt or claim<sup>8</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2082.

2 As to branches of societies see PARA 2091.

3 'Bankruptcy' includes liquidation of the officer's affairs by arrangement: Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 59(3). See BANKRUPTCY AND INDIVIDUAL INSOLVENCY vol 3(2) (2002 Reissue) PARAS 588, 859 et seq.

MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(2) FRIENDLY SOCIETIES/(iii) Registered Societies/D. OFFICERS/(A) In general/2177. Preference construed strictly.

2177. Preference construed strictly.

The provisions relating to preference<sup>1</sup> are construed strictly, as they are against common right. Preference is given in respect of property in the possession of the officer<sup>2</sup> by virtue of his office. There would be no preference if the officer in possession of the property were not the officer having the duty under the rules to hold it<sup>3</sup>.

It appears that in bankruptcy or the winding up of an insolvent estate the preferential right of a registered friendly society or branch will prevail against the Crown claiming in respect of a Crown debt<sup>4</sup>.

It would seem that if the treasurer of a registered society to which he owes money becomes bankrupt, and his landlord distrains for rent, the landlord, as between himself and the society, may retain the proceeds of the distress<sup>5</sup>.

Neglect to obtain from the treasurer the protection of a bond or other security required by the rules of the society may deprive the society of its claim to priority<sup>6</sup>; but a society does not lose its priority by reason of the bankrupt officer being beneficially interested in the property of the society<sup>7</sup>, nor by the society being negligent in examining its accounts<sup>8</sup>.

2178. When preference applies.

The preferential right<sup>1</sup> applies only in the case of properly constituted officers<sup>2</sup>. It does not apply in the case of a society's bankers<sup>3</sup>, even though appointed under the rules<sup>4</sup>, nor to money lent, by the consent of a society upon a promissory note carrying interest, to a person who acts as treasurer, even though not appointed<sup>5</sup>. The right applies where the officer has been removed from office before the date of his bankruptcy<sup>6</sup>.

When the defaulting officer is in partnership with another person, and both become bankrupt, the society is entitled to preference only out of the separate estate of the officer<sup>7</sup>.

2179. Appointment and removal of trustees.

Every registered society<sup>1</sup> and branch<sup>2</sup> must have one or more trustees<sup>3</sup>, whose appointment and removal must be provided for in the rules<sup>4</sup>. They must be appointed by a resolution of the society or branch in general meeting or in such other manner as the rules may provide<sup>5</sup>. A corporation may be a trustee<sup>6</sup>.

If the appointment is by resolution, a copy of the resolution, signed by the trustee appointed and by the secretary of the society or branch, must be sent to the Financial Services Authority<sup>7</sup>. In the case of appointment in another manner provided by the rules, the society or branch must send to the Authority notice of the trustee's appointment signed by the secretary of the society or branch, and an acceptance of office signed by the trustee<sup>8</sup>.

In the case of the appointment of a trustee of a branch, any of the documents referred to above must be sent through an officer appointed in that behalf by the society of which the branch forms part<sup>9</sup>.

Failure to send a copy is an offence<sup>10</sup>, but does not seem to invalidate the appointment<sup>11</sup>.

A secretary or treasurer of a registered society or branch may not also be a trustee of that society or branch<sup>12</sup>.

2180. Trustees' functions.

Unless the rules otherwise provide, the trustees of a registered society<sup>1</sup> or branch<sup>2</sup> are the proper persons to sue or be sued<sup>3</sup> and may be sued for debts incurred by the society before their appointment<sup>4</sup>. Although they are nominal claimants or defendants, the society is the real litigant, and therefore the board of management of the society is entitled to direct any change of solicitors<sup>5</sup>.

The trustees are also the officers in whom by law the property of a registered society or branch is vested<sup>6</sup>. They may, with the consent of the committee or of a general meeting, invest the funds in certain authorised investments<sup>7</sup>.

The trustees sign certain statutory documents and notices required to be sent to the registrar, including the notice of their own appointment<sup>8</sup>, indorsed receipts on discharge of mortgages<sup>9</sup> and declarations in support of instruments of dissolution<sup>10</sup>. They make the formal demand for payment in priority to other creditors for sums due to a society or branch from the estates of deceased or bankrupt officers<sup>11</sup>. They can require an officer to render an account and pay and deliver up all property in his hands and can prosecute persons who obtain possession of the property of the society or branch by false representation or imposition, or who fraudulently withhold or apply such property<sup>12</sup>.

2181. Responsibility of trustees.

The trustees of a registered society<sup>1</sup> or branch<sup>2</sup> are not liable<sup>3</sup> to make good any deficiency in the funds of the society or branch, and each trustee is liable only for sums of money actually received by him on account of the society or branch<sup>4</sup>. The indemnity does not extend to illegal acts<sup>5</sup>, but it would extend to ministerial acts by trustees under the direction of the committee of management<sup>6</sup>. It is conceived that trustees in the performance of their functions under the Friendly Societies Act 1974 and under rules are not altogether subject to the same rules of conduct as ordinary trustees of a trust fund under the general law relating to trustees<sup>7</sup>. Their position is different from, on the one hand, the directors of a company, who have not vested in them the property which they manage, and who are answerable for that management as agents for the members and not as trustees<sup>8</sup>, and, on the other hand, the trustees of a will or settlement, who have the property vested in them and are responsible for its management<sup>9</sup>. The members who are the beneficiaries, for whose use and benefit the property is held by the trustees, control and manage the property either in general meeting or through their appointed officers<sup>10</sup>.

The statutory functions of trustees are mainly ministerial<sup>11</sup>. They are usually the officers who sue or who are sued on behalf of a society or branch, and in this matter their responsibilities and powers are nominal<sup>12</sup>. They are removable by the members at any time<sup>13</sup>. In investing funds, with which trustees in practice are most often concerned, they may make authorised investments only with the consent of the committee or of a general meeting<sup>14</sup>. They do not have the powers of investment exercisable by trustees under the general law<sup>15</sup>.

With regard to the authority enabling investment with certain consents in, for example, trustee securities<sup>16</sup>, industrial and provident societies (which are incorporated bodies) have a similar enabling provision in their principal governing statute<sup>17</sup> and it seems that the members of their committees are responsible for their decisions as agents and not as trustees<sup>18</sup>. In this respect the only distinction between those societies and societies registered under the Friendly Societies Act 1974 would seem to be that the former are incorporated and hold property in the corporate name and the latter are unincorporated and hold property in the names of trustees. The statutory protection given to the trustees of a registered society or branch, that they are not liable to make good any deficiency in the funds and are liable only for sums of money actually received by them<sup>19</sup>, is unqualified.

2182. Public Trustee as custodian trustee.

The rules of a registered friendly society<sup>1</sup> or branch<sup>2</sup> may provide for the appointment of the Public Trustee<sup>3</sup> as custodian trustee<sup>4</sup>. If he agrees to accept the office, the securities for any investments can be transferred to him<sup>5</sup>, and he invests the funds according to the rules<sup>6</sup>. He pays the interest to the trustees, and, if and when required, transfers securities to them or pays to them the proceeds on realisation of investments<sup>7</sup>.

- 4 Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 55(1)(b). It should be noted that this applies only to registered friendly societies, not to other registered societies.
- 5 This is the case notwithstanding anything in the Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 54: see PARAS 2181, 2185.
- 6 See the Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 55(1), (2) (s 55(1) amended by SI 2001/2617). The Public Trustee is exonerated from any liability in relation to any securities held by him in pursuance of this provision: Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 55(3).
See also the Public Trustee Act 1906 s 4, under which the Public Trustee or a duly authorised trust corporation may be appointed custodian trustee, leaving the management of the property with the other trustees as managing trustees. On such appointment, the whole of the trust property is transferred to the custodian trustee as if he were sole trustee: s 4(2)(a). This provision is available to registered societies and branches and there is therefore an exception to the principle that the property of a society or branch must be held in the names of all the trustees: cf PARAS 2180, 2185. ### 2183. Auditors and treasurer.

Auditors of societies are prima facie not officers<sup>1</sup>, but may be officers under the terms of the rules<sup>2</sup>. Other officers of registered societies and branches are ineligible for appointment as auditors<sup>3</sup>.

The rules of a registered society and branch must provide for the appointment and removal of a treasurer<sup>4</sup>. Trustees are ineligible for this office<sup>5</sup>. A banking company cannot be appointed treasurer<sup>6</sup>, and neither can a minor<sup>7</sup>.

The responsibility of a treasurer for money belonging to a society which he has received is that of a bailee so that if, before paying it into the bank, he is robbed by vis major, it seems his guarantor would not be liable<sup>8</sup>.

2184. Committee of management.

The Friendly Societies Act 1992 introduced new provisions as to the committee of management which apply in relation to all friendly societies, and which are dealt with elsewhere in this title<sup>1</sup>. The following additional matters are specific to registered societies and branches<sup>2</sup>.

The rules of a registered friendly society or branch must provide for the appointment and removal of a committee of management<sup>3</sup>, the members of which are officers<sup>4</sup>. A minor may not be a member of the committee<sup>5</sup>.

The duties of a committee of management are, among other things, to manage the society and to institute proceedings against persons in relation to fraud in the obtaining or withholding of, or the misapplication of, property<sup>6</sup>; and its consent to investments may be necessary<sup>7</sup>. The committee also has certain powers of determining who is entitled to money due from a society to a member who has died without having made a nomination subsisting at the time of his death<sup>8</sup>.

2185. Vesting of property.

All property<sup>1</sup> belonging to a registered society<sup>2</sup>, whether acquired before or after registration, is vested in the society's trustees<sup>3</sup> for the time being, for the use and benefit of the society and its members and of all persons claiming through the members<sup>4</sup> according to the rules<sup>5</sup>.

The property of a registered branch<sup>6</sup> vests wholly or partly in the trustees for the time being of that branch, or of any other branch of which that branch forms part or, if the society's rules so provide, in the trustees for the time being of the society<sup>7</sup>. The property vests for the use and benefit either of the members of the branch in question and persons claiming through them or of the members of the society generally and persons claiming through them, according to the rules of the society<sup>8</sup>.

1 'Property' extends to all property, whether real or personal, including books and papers: see the Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 111(1).

2 As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2082.

3 As to the trustees see PARAS 2179-2182.

4 'Persons claiming through a member' includes the nominees of the member where nomination is allowed: Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 111(1).

5 Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 54(1). As to the rules of a society see PARA 2156 et seq; and as to registration see PARA 2149 et seq. Even if a registered society or branch has more than four trustees, its land is vested in them all: see the Law of Property Act 1925 s 7(3), which effectively disapplies the limitation as to numbers of grantees imposed by s 34(2) (see REAL PROPERTY vol 39(2) (Reissue) PARA 211); and PARA 2189. In proceedings, property may be stated to be the property of the trustees of a society or branch in their own names as trustees for the society or branch: see PARA 2290. As to the penalty for withholding or misapplying the property of a registered society or branch see PARA 2282. As to the Public Trustee acting as custodian trustee, and as to a possible exception to the principle that the property is vested in all the trustees, see PARA 2182. The property of an unregistered society vests in the trustees on registration, and must be delivered to them by those in whose hands it may be: Yeates v Roberts (1855) 7 De GM & G 227; Sharp v Warren (1818) 6 Price 131; Oldham Our Lady's Sick and Burial Society v Taylor (1887) 3 TLR 472, CA; cf Davies v Griffiths (1853) 1 WR 402.

Upon the death, resignation or removal of a trustee<sup>1</sup> of a registered society<sup>2</sup> or branch<sup>3</sup>, the property vested in him as such a trustee vests in the succeeding trustees, either solely or with any surviving or continuing trustees; and, until the appointment of succeeding trustees, it vests in the surviving or continuing trustees only, or in the executors or administrators of the last surviving or continuing trustee. The property vests subject to the same trusts, without conveyance, assignment or assignation<sup>4</sup>.

(B) INVESTMENT

2187. Powers of investment.

The rules of a registered society<sup>1</sup> or branch<sup>2</sup> must provide for the investment of its funds<sup>3</sup>. The trustees<sup>4</sup> may, with the consent of the committee<sup>5</sup> or of a majority of the members present and entitled to vote in general meeting, invest<sup>6</sup> the whole or a part of the funds to any amount<sup>7</sup>:

671 (1) in the purchase of land or the erection or alteration of offices or other buildings on it<sup>8</sup>;

- 672 (2) upon any other security<sup>9</sup> expressly directed by the rules, not being personal security, except as authorised in the Friendly Societies Act 1974 with respect to loans<sup>10</sup>;
- 673 (3) in any investment in which trustees are for the time being by law authorised to invest trust funds<sup>11</sup>; and
- 674 (4) in the case of a registered friendly society or branch of which the rules expressly so direct, in subscribing up to any amount permitted for any of the share or loan capital of a housing association<sup>12</sup>, other than shares or debentures not fully paid up at the time of issue<sup>13</sup>.

The trustees of a registered society have power<sup>14</sup>, subject to the same consents as are referred to above, to invest the society's funds in any other manner authorised by the society's rules<sup>15</sup>, if it is a society which is required to maintain, and does maintain, a prescribed minimum margin of solvency in respect of its long term or general insurance business<sup>16</sup>. A society which satisfies this requirement will continue to do so until the Financial Services Authority<sup>17</sup> serves a notice on it stating that the society no longer appears to do so<sup>18</sup>; the society thereupon reverts to the limited investment powers mentioned in heads (1) to (3) above<sup>19</sup>, save that it can retain any investment made under the wider powers unless the Authority directs the society to dispose of any such investment<sup>20</sup>.

- 9 It was held in Re United Law Clerks' Society [1947] Ch 150, [1946] 2 All ER 674, that 'any other security', in what is now the Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 46(1)(d), does not include ordinary or preference shares.
- 10 Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 46(1)(d). See further PARA 2190. As to the power to make certain loans on members' personal security see PARA 2194.
- 11 Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 46(1)(e). The powers of investment conferred on trustees by the Trustee Act 2000 are now very extensive: see PARAS 2191, 2196.
- 12 'Housing association' has the same meaning as in the Housing Associations Act 1985 or the Housing (Northern Ireland) Order 1981, SI 1981/156, Pt II: Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 51(4) (amended by the Housing (Consequential Provisions) Act 1985 Sch 2 para 26; and the Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 16 paras 1, 18(b)). See HOUSING vol 22 (2006 Reissue) PARA 11.
- 13 Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 51(1). This power was formerly subject to the same restrictions as those made on the power of registered societies to make loans (see s 50(1), (2); and PARA 2198), by virtue of s 51(2). However, s 51(2) has been amended by the Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 16 para 18(a), and now states additionally that those restrictions do not apply to investments made by the trustees of a registered friendly society or a branch of such a society. Given that the power conferred by the Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 51(1) is available only to societies of that description, the effect of the amendment would appear to be to remove the restrictions from the exercise of the power. This view is reinforced by the enactment of s 50(2A): see PARA 2198 note 7.
- 14 See the Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 46(2A) (added by the Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 16 para 15(3)). This provision applies the Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 14(2)-(12) in respect of the investment powers of the trustees of a registered friendly societies as those provisions apply to the powers of investment of an incorporated friendly society (see PARA 2136), subject to obtaining the necessary consents (see the text to notes 4-6).

15 See the Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 14(2). See note 14.

16 If it is a society to which rules in respect of margins of solvency, made under the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 s 138 (see PARA 21) apply and it maintains the required margin of solvency: Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 14(3) (amended by SI 2001/2617). See note 14.

2189. Investment in land and buildings.

If the rules of a registered society<sup>1</sup> or branch<sup>2</sup> so provide, the society or branch may acquire and hold land for the purpose of carrying on any of its activities in the names of the trustees<sup>3</sup>. A registered society or branch may also, if its rules so provide, dispose of or otherwise deal with any land so held<sup>4</sup>. No person is bound to inquire as to the authority of the trustees to dispose of or to deal with the land, and the trustees' receipt is a discharge for all sums of money arising from or in connection with the disposal or other dealing with the land<sup>5</sup>.

The power of a registered society or branch to hold land devised to it by will seems to depend on whether the terms of the gift tend to a perpetuity. If there is nothing to prevent existing members from dealing with the property, the gift is valid<sup>6</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2082.

2 For the purposes of the Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 53, a branch of a registered society need not be separately registered: s 53(2). As to branches of friendly societies see PARA 2091.

3 Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 53(1) (substituted by the Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 16 paras 1, 19). As to the trustees of a society see PARAS 2179-2182. Whereas the Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 46(1)(c) gives statutory authority for the purchase of land as an investment without any provision for such investment being made in the rules, but with a requirement as to the consent required for such investment (see PARA 2187), s 53(1) gives power to acquire and hold land etc only if the rules so provide. The Law of Property Act 1925 s 7(3) (b) preserved the provisions of the Friendly Societies Act 1896 with regard to land to which that Act applied (see s 47(1) (repealed), replaced by the Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 53(1)). ## 2190. Investment in securities authorised by rules.

In addition to investments directly authorised by statute<sup>1</sup>, the trustees<sup>2</sup> of a registered society<sup>3</sup> or branch<sup>4</sup>, with the consent of a majority of its members present and entitled to vote in general meeting or of the committee<sup>5</sup>, may invest upon any security expressly directed by the rules, but the security must not be a personal security, that is, a mere personal promise to repay<sup>6</sup>. 'Security' is used here to imply that a debtor-creditor relationship is created and that the repayment of the debt is secured or guaranteed by a charge on some property or by some document recording the obligation of a person or corporation to pay. Thus preference stock or shares in chartered or incorporated companies, which are in the nature of participation in an enterprise and do not involve a debtor-creditor relationship, are not securities in which investment may be directed by the rules<sup>7</sup>. This power does not extend to advancing money on note of hand, taking interest from a treasurer for money in his hands<sup>8</sup>, or leaving money which ought to be invested on mere deposit with a bank or a society<sup>9</sup>. The usual securities expressly directed by rules are loans on mortgages to local authorities charged on the rates, and mortgages on freehold and leasehold property<sup>10</sup>.

Investments may be made by trustees<sup>1</sup> of a registered society<sup>2</sup> or branch<sup>3</sup>, with the consent of a majority of its members present and entitled to vote in general meeting or of the committee<sup>4</sup>, in any investment in which trustees are for the time being by law authorised to invest trust funds<sup>5</sup>. Trustees' powers of investments are set out in the Trustee Act 2000<sup>6</sup>. It seems clear that, in exercising those powers, the trustees of a registered society or branch must comply with the specific duties (including in particular the duty to obtain and consider proper advice) imposed by the Act<sup>7</sup>. It has not, however, been decided whether they must also observe the same rules provided for ordinary trustees as to the degree of care and prudence which ordinary trustees are required by law to exercise in making investments<sup>8</sup>.

A registered society<sup>1</sup> or branch<sup>2</sup> may, in accordance with its rules, set up and administer a fund for the purchase, on behalf of members contributing to it, of defence bonds or national savings certificates or such other government securities as the Treasury may prescribe<sup>3</sup>. In amending its rules for this purpose, any such society or branch may make provision for enabling persons to become members of the society for the purpose only of contributing to that fund and without being entitled to any rights as members other than rights as contributors to the fund<sup>4</sup>.

As regards societies or branches which were in existence on 25 April 1940, the Chief Registrar could prescribe forms of rules which could be adopted for that purpose, and, if requested by the committee of a society or branch existing at that date to register a rule in any form thus prescribed, could register it; and any rule so registered had effect as if it had been duly passed by the society or branch: s 47(3). This provision is repealed by SI 2001/2617, but with the saving that it is to be treated as if it continued to have effect in relation to any rule registered before 1 December 2001.

(C) BORROWING

2193. Power to borrow.

The only powers of borrowing by registered societies<sup>1</sup> and branches<sup>2</sup> conferred by the Friendly Societies Act 1974 are: (1) the power to borrow on the mortgage of land and buildings if the rules provide that the society or branch may hold land<sup>3</sup>; (2) in the case of registered societies, not branches, the power to accept deposits made by members to a separate loan fund only if the rules make provision for such a fund<sup>4</sup>; and (3) certain powers which a specially authorised society may have under its rules<sup>5</sup>. It seems that a registered society or branch can take power in its rules to borrow for the purpose of the conduct of its business to the extent to which it is necessary for carrying out its objects<sup>6</sup>. Under such a power a registered society or branch may accept loans from the surplus funds of a society or branch of a different description where the rules of the lending society or branch authorise such loans<sup>7</sup>.

2194. Power to lend; separate loan fund.

Apart from statutory authority, the trustees<sup>1</sup> of a registered society<sup>2</sup> have no authority to lend the society's money<sup>3</sup>.

A registered society<sup>4</sup>, when so authorised by its rules, may create a separate loan fund by receiving contributions or deposits from its members for the purpose of making loans to members<sup>5</sup>. Lending money to members is not a purpose in respect of which a society can be registered<sup>6</sup>, but registered societies may undertake it within limits<sup>7</sup>.

No member may have an interest in the loan fund exceeding £800<sup>8</sup>; and at any one time a society may not hold on deposit from its members any money beyond the amount fixed by the rules, which must not exceed two-thirds of the total sums owing to the society by members who have borrowed from the loan fund<sup>9</sup>.

A society may make loans to members only out of the loan fund, not out of money contributed for other purposes<sup>10</sup>. Such loans may be made on the personal security of members, with or without sureties<sup>11</sup>, and to the amount fixed by the rules<sup>12</sup>; but no loan may be made which, together with any money owing by a member to the society, exceeds £200<sup>13</sup>. No person other than an officer or person authorised by resolution of a society can inspect a member's loan account without the member's written consent<sup>14</sup>. A loan on personal security to a person who is not a member is not illegal in the sense that money lent on personal security is irrecoverable, but it is a breach of trust<sup>15</sup>.

2198. Loans to society or branch of different description.

A registered society<sup>1</sup> or branch<sup>2</sup> (other than a benevolent society<sup>3</sup> or its branch) may, if its rules so provide, make loans to another registered society or registered branch of a society which is not of the same description<sup>4</sup> as the lending society or branch<sup>5</sup>. Such loans may be made interest free<sup>6</sup>.

In relation to registered societies which are not friendly societies<sup>7</sup>, such an advance may not be made by a society or branch unless the value of its assets showed a surplus over the amount of its liabilities<sup>8</sup>, and no advance may be so made to an amount greater (with any amounts outstanding in respect of previous such advances) than the amount for the time being unapplied of that surplus<sup>9</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2082.

2 As to branches of societies see PARA 2091.

3 As to the meaning of 'benevolent society' see PARA 2089.

4 A society or branch is for this purpose deemed to be of the same description as another society or branch only if both are registered as the same type of society (or branch) as is mentioned in the Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 7(1)(a) (see PARA 2096), s 7(1)(b), (d) or (e) (see PARA 2089), or, if a specially authorised society (see s 7(1)(f)) or branch, if they are both established for the same purpose or purposes: s 50(5). This does not, however, prejudice the power of a society or branch under s 52(2) (see PARA 2201) to contribute to the funds and take part in the management of another society or branch of the same description: s 50(4).

5 Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 50(1). As to the rules see PARA 2156 et seq.

6 Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 50(3).

7 The provisions of the Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 50(2) (described in the text and notes 8-9) do not apply to registered friendly societies: s 50(2A) (added by the Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 16 paras 1, 17). However, they continue to apply to registered societies which are not registered friendly societies: see the Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 7(1)(b)-(f); and PARA 2089. The enactment of s 50(2A) also has the effect of rendering redundant s 51(3) by which amounts invested by registered friendly societies in housing associations (see PARA 2187 notes 12-13) were to be taken into account for the purposes of s 50(2).

8 Ie according to the last valuation under the Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 41 (see PARA 2203) or, where the society or branch is not so valued, according to its last annual return under s 43 (see PARA 2211). As to the repeal of those provisions in relation to registered friendly societies see note 7.

9 Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 50(2)(a). For any purpose other than the purposes of s 50(2)(a), in determining the amount unapplied, there must be deducted any amounts outstanding in respect of advances so made after the date to which the valuation or return referred to in note 8 relates: s 50(2)(b). A lending society or branch<sup>1</sup> may take such part in the government and control of the society or branch to which any loan is made or agreed to be made<sup>2</sup> as is provided by the rules of that society or branch<sup>3</sup>.

Disputes between the borrowing and lending societies or branches relating to the loan must be determined according to the provisions of the Friendly Societies Act 1974 in the case of registered societies which are not friendly societies<sup>4</sup>, and of the Friendly Societies Act 1992 in the case of friendly societies<sup>5</sup>.

2201. Contributions to other societies.

In accordance with its rules, a registered society<sup>1</sup> or branch<sup>2</sup> may contribute to the funds and take part, by delegates or otherwise, in the government of any other registered society or registered branch<sup>3</sup>, without thereby becoming a branch of the other society or branch<sup>4</sup>; and such a contributing society does not become a member of the other society<sup>5</sup>. If the registered society contributed to is a medical society, that is to say a society carried on for the purpose of relief in sickness by providing medical attendance and medicine, a contributing society or branch may withdraw its contributions only on three months' notice to the medical society and on payment of all contributions to the date when the notice expires<sup>6</sup>.

(A) REGISTERED FRIENDLY SOCIETIES

2202. Valuation and accounts in relation to registered friendly societies.

The provisions of the Friendly Societies Act 1974 relating to the valuation of assets and the preparation and auditing of accounts<sup>1</sup> are repealed in relation to registered friendly societies and branches thereof<sup>2</sup>, but remain in effect in respect of registered societies which are not friendly societies<sup>3</sup>.

(B) REGISTERED SOCIETIES OTHER THAN FRIENDLY SOCIETIES

(a) Valuations

2203. Valuations of specially authorised societies.

Certain specially authorised societies<sup>1</sup> and branches<sup>2</sup> must have their assets and liabilities valued at least once every five years<sup>3</sup>. However, the Financial Services Authority<sup>4</sup> may dispense with this requirement where it deems it inapplicable to the purposes or the nature of the operations of the society or branch<sup>5</sup>; or in respect of any particular business conducted by a society or branch if, in its opinion, the requirement is inapplicable to that business because of its nature or the manner in which it is conducted<sup>6</sup>. These provisions may be modified by regulations<sup>7</sup>.

The Authority may direct<sup>8</sup> that any particular specially authorised society or branch is to have its assets and liabilities, or those in respect of any particular business, valued at intervals of three years if, in its opinion, it is expedient to do so in the members' interests<sup>9</sup>.

1    As to specially authorised societies see PARAS 2089-2090.

2    As to branches of societies see PARA 2091.

3 Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 41(1)(a) (s 41(1), (5), (6) amended by SI 2001/2617). The Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 41 is repealed in relation to registered friendly societies: see PARA 2202. Section 41(1) applies only to specially authorised societies where it is so directed in the authority for registering that society or branch: s 41(4).

5 Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 41(5) (as amended: see note 3). See note 3.

6 Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 41(6) (as amended: see note 3). In relation to any such society or branch on which a partial exemption is conferred the requirement for a valuation has effect, subject to any regulations made or direction given under s 42 (see the text and notes 7-9), as if: (1) it required that society or branch at least once in every five years to cause its assets and liabilities in respect of any business other than the business to which the partial exemption relates to be valued under s 41; and (2) the report required to be sent to the Authority under s 41(1) (see PARA 2204) were a report on the assets and liabilities so valued: s 41(6) (as so amended). See note 3.

7 The Treasury may make regulations providing that, in the case of societies or branches of a specified class, the Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 41 is to apply as if for five years there were substituted three years: s 42(1) (s 42(1)-(5) amended by SI 2001/2617). The Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 42 is repealed in relation to registered friendly societies: see PARA 2202.

The Treasury may also provide that in specified cases s 41 is to apply as if it required business of a specified class to be valued every three years, and other business (except where an exemption under s 41(6) (see the text and note 6) has been granted) to be valued every five years: s 42(2) (as so amended). It may exercise this power so as to make different provision in relation to different cases or circumstances: s 42(6). As to the Treasury see PARA 3; and CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 512 et seq; and as to the transfer of functions to the Treasury see PARA 2105.

2204. Actuary's report in relation to specially authorised societies.

Certain specially authorised societies and branches<sup>1</sup> must have their valuations<sup>2</sup> carried out by qualified actuaries<sup>3</sup> appointed by them<sup>4</sup>, and must send the actuary's report to the Financial Services Authority<sup>5</sup>. The report must be signed by the actuary and state his address<sup>6</sup>. It must be made in such form and contain such particulars as the Authority may direct<sup>7</sup>, and must contain an abstract made by the actuary of the results of his valuation, together with a statement containing such information concerning the benefits assured and the contributions receivable by the society or branch, and of its funds and effects, debts and credits, as the Authority may require<sup>8</sup>.

For the purpose of valuations the Treasury may appoint public valuers who are qualified actuaries<sup>9</sup>, and the Treasury may determine the rates of remuneration to be paid by societies and branches for their services<sup>10</sup>.

Every registered society and branch must keep a copy of the last valuation report or reports<sup>11</sup> always hung up in a conspicuous place at the registered office of the society or branch<sup>12</sup>.

MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(2) FRIENDLY SOCIETIES/(iii) Registered Societies/F. VALUATIONS AND ACCOUNTS/(B) Registered Societies other than Friendly Societies/(b) Accounts/2205. Obligation to keep accounts.

(b) Accounts

2205. Obligation to keep accounts.

Registered societies<sup>1</sup> and branches<sup>2</sup> (other than registered friendly societies or branches thereof<sup>3</sup>) must keep such books of account relating to their transactions, assets and liabilities<sup>4</sup> as are necessary to give a true and fair view of the state of the affairs of the societies or branches and to explain their transactions<sup>5</sup>. They must establish and maintain a satisfactory system of control of their books of account, cash holdings and all receipts and remittances<sup>6</sup>. Books of account may be kept by making entries in bound books or by some other method of recording<sup>7</sup>.

In respect of each year of account<sup>8</sup>, every registered society or branch must prepare either a revenue account which deals with its affairs as a whole for that year<sup>9</sup>, or two or more revenue accounts for that year which deal separately with the particular businesses conducted by the society or branch<sup>10</sup>. Every such revenue account must give a true and fair view of the income and expenditure, for the period to which it relates, either of the branch as a whole or, as the case may be, in respect of the particular business in question<sup>11</sup>.

The balance sheet of a registered society or branch must give a true and fair view of the state of its affairs as at the date of the balance sheet<sup>12</sup>. The balance sheet of a specially authorised society or branch, which by virtue of a direction in its authority for registration is required to carry out a valuation<sup>13</sup>, must give a true and fair view of its assets and current liabilities and of the resulting balances of its funds as at the date of the balance sheet<sup>14</sup>.

Failure by a member of the committee of a registered society or branch to take reasonable steps to secure compliance with the above provisions is an offence<sup>15</sup>.

In the case of cattle insurance societies, registration is subject to the rules providing for the keeping of proper accounts: see s 7(2)(a), Sch 2 para 12; and PARA 2156.

8 'Year of account', in relation to a registered society or branch, means a period of 12 months ending with 31 December: Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 111(4).

MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(2) FRIENDLY SOCIETIES/(iii) Registered Societies/F. VALUATIONS AND ACCOUNTS/(B) Registered Societies other than Friendly Societies/(b) Accounts/2206. Appointment of auditors.

2206. Appointment of auditors.

Subject to specified exceptions, every registered society<sup>1</sup> or branch<sup>2</sup> (other than a registered friendly society or branch thereof<sup>3</sup>) must in each year of account<sup>4</sup> appoint one or more qualified auditors to audit its accounts and balance sheet for that year<sup>5</sup>. Any society or branch may be exempt from these requirements<sup>6</sup> in any year of account if:

- 675 (1) its receipts and payments<sup>7</sup> in respect of the preceding year of account<sup>8</sup> did not, in the aggregate, exceed £5,000<sup>9</sup>;
- 676 (2) the number of members at the end of that year did not exceed 500<sup>10</sup>; and
- 677 (3) the value of its assets at the end of that year did not, in the aggregate, exceed £5,000<sup>11</sup>.

A branch may be exempt<sup>12</sup> on the alternative grounds that:

- 678 (a) it satisfies the conditions set out in heads (1) and (2) above<sup>13</sup>;
- 679 (b) at the end of the preceding year of account at least 75 per cent<sup>14</sup> of its assets had been transferred to the society of which it is a branch or to another registered branch of that society for the purpose of being invested in that society or branch<sup>15</sup>, and the value of the assets not so transferred did not, in the aggregate, exceed £5,000<sup>16</sup>; and
- 680 (c) the society or branch to which the assets were transferred is not exempt in the year of account in question<sup>17</sup>.

Subject to any direction to the contrary given by the Financial Services Authority<sup>18</sup>, registered societies and branches which are exempt in respect of the current year of account may appoint either one or more qualified auditors, or two or more persons who are not qualified auditors, to audit their accounts and balance sheets for that year<sup>19</sup>.

No person is a qualified auditor for these purposes unless he is eligible<sup>20</sup> for appointment as a statutory auditor<sup>21</sup>. A person who is an officer<sup>22</sup> or employee of a registered society or branch, or a person who is a partner of, or in the employment of, or who employs, an officer or employee of the society or branch, may not be appointed auditor of that society or branch<sup>23</sup>.

A registered society or branch may, by resolution<sup>24</sup>, disapply the requirement to appoint auditors<sup>25</sup> in relation to a year of account if: (i) the value of its assets at the end of the preceding year of account did not in the aggregate exceed £1,400,000; and (ii) its turnover<sup>26</sup> for that year did not exceed £350,000 or, if a charity, £250,000<sup>27</sup>. This does not apply to a society or branch which holds or has at any time since the end of the preceding year of account, held, a deposit<sup>28</sup>. The Authority may by notice to a society or branch disapply the power to disapply the requirement to appoint auditors in relation to the year of account of the society or branch in which the notice is given<sup>29</sup>. Where a society or branch exercises the power, the disapplication ceases to have effect if at any time before the end of the year of account to which it relates the society or branch holds a deposit, or the Authority gives to the society or branch notice as mentioned above<sup>30</sup>.

3 The Friendly Societies Act 1974 ss 29-45 are repealed in relation to registered friendly societies by the Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 16 paras 1, 12, but remain in force in relation to registered societies which are not friendly societies: see PARA 2202.

6 See the Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 31(4).

7 Regulations made by the Treasury may prescribe what receipts and payments of a society are to be taken into account for this purpose and such regulations may make different provision in relation to different cases or circumstances: Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 31(5) (amended by SI 2001/2617). At the date at which this volume states the law, no such regulations had been made. As to the Treasury see PARA 3; and CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 512 et seq; and as to the transfer of functions to the Treasury see PARA 2105.

8 'Preceding year of account' means the year of account immediately preceding the current year of account; and 'current year of account' in relation to the appointment of auditors means the year of account in which the question of appointment arises: Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 111(4)(a), (b).

9 Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 31(2)(a). Regulations made by the Treasury may substitute a different sum or number for any of those specified in s 31(2), or a different sum or percentage for any sum or percentage specified in s 31(3), and different provision may be made in relation to different cases or circumstances: s 31(5) (as amended: see note 7). At the date at which this volume states the law, no such regulations had been made.

18 In the case of any society or branch which is exempt in respect of the current year of account, the Financial Services Authority may direct it to appoint a qualified auditor to audit its accounts and balance sheet for that year: Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 32(2) (s 32(1)-(4) amended by SI 2001/2617). In the case of any society or branch which was exempt in respect of any earlier year of account, and which did not appoint any qualified auditors for that year, the Authority may direct it to appoint a qualified auditor to audit the accounts and balance sheet for that year: Friendly Societies Act s 32(3)(a) (as so amended). Where that society or branch has already sent an annual return to the Authority (see PARA 2211) for the year in question, it may direct that, after the accounts and balance sheet have been audited by a qualified auditor, a further annual return must be sent within three months from the date of the receipt of the direction: s 32(3)(b) (as so amended). Failure to comply with a direction is an offence: s 32(4) (as so amended). As to the penalty for commission of such an offence see PARA 2278. An appointment made in contravention of the Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 37 is not an effective appointment for the purposes of the Act: s 37(3). References in s 37(1) to an officer or employee are to be construed as not including an auditor: s 37(4). See also PARAS 2172, 2183.

24 The power is exercisable by resolution passed at a general meeting of the society or branch at which: (1) less than 20% of the total votes cast are cast against the resolution; and (2) less than 10% of the members of the society or branch for the time being entitled under the body's rules to vote cast their votes against the resolution: Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 32A(2) (s 32A added by SI 1996/1738).

25 In the requirement under the Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 31: see the text and notes 1-17.

26 For this purpose, 'turnover', in relation to a society or branch, means the amounts derived from the provision of goods and services falling within the society's or branch's activities, after deduction of: (1) trade discounts; (2) value added tax; and (3) any other taxes based on the amounts so derived: Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 32A(8) (as added: see note 24).

27 Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 32A(1), (6) (as added: see note 24). For a period which is a society's or branch's year of account, but not in fact a year, the maximum figure must be proportionately adjusted: s 32A(7) (as so added).

Reappointment and removal of auditors.

2207. Reappointment and removal of auditors.

A qualified auditor appointed<sup>1</sup> to audit the accounts and balance sheet of a registered society<sup>2</sup> or branch<sup>3</sup> (other than a registered friendly society or branch thereof<sup>4</sup>) for the preceding year of account<sup>5</sup> is automatically reappointed for the current year of account<sup>6</sup> unless:

- 681 (1) a resolution is passed at a general meeting<sup>7</sup> of the society or branch appointing someone else or expressly providing that he is not to be reappointed or disapplying the requirement to appoint auditors in relation to the current year of account<sup>8</sup>;
- 682 (2) he has given written notice to the society or branch of his unwillingness to be reappointed<sup>9</sup>;
- 683 (3) he is ineligible for appointment as auditor of the society or branch for the current year of account<sup>10</sup>; or
- 684 (4) he has ceased to act as auditor of the society or branch by reason of death or incapacity<sup>11</sup>.

A resolution of the kind referred to in head (1) above is not effective unless notice of the intention to move the resolution has been given to the society or branch at least 28 days before the meeting at which it is moved<sup>12</sup>. Where notice of the intention to move any such resolution has been given to a society or branch which is required by its rules to give notice to members<sup>13</sup> of the meeting at which the resolution is to be moved, the society or branch must, if it is practical to do so, give them notice of the resolution at the same time and in the same manner as it gives notice of the meeting<sup>14</sup>. Where notice of the resolution is not so given, the society or branch must give notice of it to members at least 14 days before the meeting at which the resolution is to be moved, either by advertisement in a newspaper having an appropriate circulation, or in any other way allowed by the rules<sup>15</sup>.

On receiving notice of intention to move a resolution of a kind referred to in head (1) above, a registered society or branch must forthwith send a copy of the notice to the retiring auditor<sup>16</sup>. On receiving such a notice, the retiring auditor may, at any time before the date of the general meeting, make representations in writing (not exceeding a reasonable length) to the society or branch with respect to the intended resolution<sup>17</sup>, and may notify the society or branch that he intends to make such representations<sup>18</sup> and request that notice be given to the members of his intention, or any such representations made by him as are received by the society or branch before notice of the intended resolution is given to members<sup>19</sup>. A society or branch which receives such representations or notification of intended representations before the date when notice of the intended resolution is required to be given to members<sup>20</sup> must, in any notice of the resolution given to members, state that it has received the representations or notification<sup>21</sup> and that any member may receive, on demand made before the date of the general meeting, a copy of any representations which have been or may be received by the society or branch before that date<sup>22</sup>. Unless the High Court is satisfied that the rights of a retiring auditor are being abused to secure needless publicity for defamatory matter<sup>23</sup>, the society or branch must, on such demand by a member made before the date of the meeting, send him a copy of any representations received before that date<sup>24</sup>. The retiring auditor may, in addition, and without prejudice to his right to be heard orally, require that the representations be read out at the meeting<sup>25</sup>.

Where notice is given of an intended resolution to appoint at a general meeting some person or persons in place of a retiring auditor, and the resolution cannot be proceeded with at the meeting because of the death or incapacity of that person or those persons, or because he or they are ineligible for appointment (see note 10) for the current year of account, the retiring auditor is not automatically reappointed: Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 33(2).

As to the rules see PARA 2156 et seq.

13 Any provision in the Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 34 or s 35 requiring notice to be given to the members of a society or branch, or (in the case of s 35) conferring any right upon a member, is to be construed, in the case of a meeting of delegates appointed by members, as requiring a notice to be given to the delegates so appointed, or as conferring the right upon a delegate: ss 34(5), 35(6). MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(2) FRIENDLY SOCIETIES/(iii) Registered Societies/F. VALUATIONS AND ACCOUNTS/(B) Registered Societies other than Friendly Societies/(b) Accounts/2208. Conduct of audit.

2208. Conduct of audit.

The auditors<sup>1</sup> of a registered society<sup>2</sup> or branch<sup>3</sup> (other than a registered friendly society or branch thereof<sup>4</sup>) must make a report to the society or branch on the accounts examined by them, and on the revenue account or accounts and the balance sheet for the year of account<sup>5</sup> in respect of which they are appointed<sup>6</sup>. The report must state whether the revenue account or accounts and the balance sheet for that year comply with the requirements of the Friendly Societies Act 1974<sup>7</sup> and whether, in the auditors' opinion:

- 685 (1) the revenue account or accounts give a true and fair view, in accordance with those requirements, of the income and expenditure of the society or branch as a whole for that year of account, and, in the case of accounts which deal with a particular business conducted by the society or branch, a true and fair view, in accordance with those requirements, of the income and expenditure of the society or branch in respect of that business for that year<sup>8</sup>; and
- 686 (2) the balance sheet gives a true and fair view, in accordance with those requirements, either of the state of the affairs of the society or branch, or, as the case may require, of its assets and current liabilities and the resulting balances of its funds, as at the end of that year of account<sup>9</sup>.

In preparing their report, the auditors have a duty to carry out such investigations as will enable them to form an opinion on whether the society or branch has kept proper books of account<sup>10</sup> and maintained a satisfactory system of control over its transactions<sup>11</sup>, and whether the revenue account or accounts, the other accounts (if any) to which the report relates, and the balance sheet are in agreement with the books of account<sup>12</sup>. If the auditors are not satisfied on any of these matters, they must state that fact in their report<sup>13</sup>; and if they fail to obtain all the information and explanations which, to the best of their knowledge and belief, are necessary for the purposes of their audit, that fact also must be stated in their report<sup>14</sup>. Accounts duly audited and signed may be impeached on grounds of fraud, but not of honest error<sup>15</sup>.

Every auditor of a registered society or branch has a right of access at all times to the books, deeds and accounts of the society or branch, and to all other documents relating to its affairs<sup>16</sup>, and is entitled to require from the officers<sup>17</sup> such information and explanations as he thinks necessary for the performance of his duties<sup>18</sup>. The auditors are also entitled to attend any general meeting, and to receive all notices of, and other communications relating to, general meetings which any member is entitled to receive<sup>19</sup>, and they are entitled to be heard at any meeting which they attend on any part of the business of the meeting which concerns them as auditors<sup>20</sup>.

2209. Duty to obtain accountant's report where no obligation to appoint auditors.

Where, at the end of a year of account<sup>1</sup> of a registered society or branch<sup>2</sup> (other than a registered friendly society or branch thereof<sup>3</sup>), a disapplication of the obligation to appoint auditors<sup>4</sup> is in force in relation to the year<sup>5</sup>, and the society's or branch's turnover<sup>6</sup> in the preceding year of account exceeded £90,000<sup>7</sup>, the society or branch must, before the end of the period of 28 days beginning immediately after the end of the year of account, appoint an appropriate person<sup>8</sup> to make: (1) a report on its accounts and balance sheet for the year<sup>9</sup>; and (2) a report relating to the preceding year of account stating whether in the opinion of the person making the report the financial criteria for the exercise of the power to disapply the requirement to appoint auditors<sup>10</sup> were met in relation to the year<sup>11</sup>.

A person appointed for this purpose, for the purposes of his appointment: (a) has a right of access at all times to the books, deeds and accounts of the relevant society or branch<sup>12</sup>, and to all other documents relating to its affairs; and (b) is entitled to require from the officers<sup>13</sup> of the relevant society or branch such information and explanations as that person thinks necessary<sup>14</sup>. If the person appointed fails to obtain all the information and explanations which, to the best of that person's knowledge and belief, are necessary for purposes of doing what he has been appointed to do, that fact must be stated in his report<sup>15</sup>. A person appointed is entitled: (i) to receive notice of, and attend, any general meeting of the relevant society or branch at which any relevant matter<sup>16</sup> is discussed; and (ii) to be heard at any such general meeting which he attends on any part of the business of the meeting which relates to any relevant matter<sup>17</sup>.

6 For this purpose, 'turnover', in relation to a society or branch, means the amounts derived from the provision of goods and services falling within the society's or branch's activities, after deduction of: (1) trade discounts; (2) value added tax; and (3) any other taxes based on the amounts so derived: Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 32A(8) (added by SI 1996/1738); definition applied by the Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 39A(6) (as added: see note 5).

7 Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 39A(1)(b) (as added: see note 5).

8 An appropriate person is to a person who is: (1) a qualified auditor for the purposes of the Friendly Societies Act 1974 (see PARA 2206); and (2) not ineligible by virtue of s 37(1) (see PARA 2206) to be appointed as auditor of the society or branch: s 39A(5) (as added: see note 5).

9 A report for the purposes of head (1) in the text must: (1) state whether, in the opinion of the person making the report, the revenue account or accounts, the other accounts (if any) to which the report relates, and the balance sheet are in agreement with the books of account kept by the society or branch under the Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 29 (see PARA 2205); and (2) state whether, in that person's opinion, on the basis of the information contained in those books of account, the revenue account or accounts and the balance sheet comply with the requirements of the Friendly Societies Act 1974: s 39A(3) (as added: see note 5).

2210. Financial Services Authority's power to require accounts to be audited.

The Financial Services Authority<sup>1</sup> may give a direction to a registered society or branch<sup>2</sup> (other than a registered friendly society or branch thereof<sup>3</sup>) in respect of any relevant year of account<sup>4</sup> of the society or branch before the year of account in which the direction is given: (1) requiring it to appoint one or more qualified auditors<sup>5</sup> to audit its accounts and balance sheet for that year; and (2) where it has sent to the Authority its annual return<sup>6</sup> for that year before the date of the direction, requiring it, after its accounts and balance sheet have been audited by a qualified auditor, to send the Financial Services Authority within three months from receipt of the direction a further annual return complying with the requirements of the Friendly Societies Act 1974 (other than that as to time of sending)<sup>7</sup>. A failure by a registered society or branch to comply with any such direction given by the Authority is an offence<sup>8</sup>.

1 As to the Financial Services Authority see PARA 2105, and also PARAS 4, 6 et seq.

2 As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2082. As to branches of societies see PARA 2091.

2211. Annual returns.

Every registered society<sup>1</sup> or branch<sup>2</sup> (other than a registered friendly society or branch thereof<sup>3</sup>) must send to the Financial Services Authority<sup>4</sup> once a year, not later than 31 July, a return relating to its affairs<sup>5</sup>. The annual return must be made up for the year of account<sup>6</sup> preceding that in which it is required to be sent<sup>7</sup>. It must contain the revenue account or accounts for that year, prepared in accordance with the requirements of the Friendly Societies Act 1974<sup>8</sup>, and a balance sheet as at the end of that year<sup>9</sup>.

The return of every specially authorised society and branch which is required to make a valuation of its assets and liabilities<sup>10</sup> must also include:

- 687 (1) in the case of a society or branch to which the Authority has given neither a complete nor a partial exemption from the requirement to make a valuation<sup>11</sup>, a statement specifying the date of the last actuary's report<sup>12</sup> on the condition of the society or branch, or the dates of the last reports on the assets and liabilities of the society or branch in respect of particular businesses conducted by it<sup>13</sup> and a place where a copy of that report or those reports may be inspected<sup>14</sup>;
- 688 (2) in the case of a society or branch to which the Authority has given a complete exemption from the requirement to make a valuation, a statement specifying the reason for that exemption<sup>15</sup>; and
- 689 (3) in the case of a society or branch to which the Authority has given a partial exemption, a statement specifying the reason for that partial exemption, and the date or dates of the last report or reports on the assets and liabilities of the society or branch in respect of any business or businesses conducted by it, and a place where a copy of that report or those reports may be inspected<sup>16</sup>.

Every return must contain such other particulars, and be in such form, as the Authority may direct<sup>17</sup>. It must be accompanied by a copy of the auditors' report on the accounts and balance sheet contained in the return<sup>18</sup>, or by the accountant's report where no audit is required<sup>19</sup>.

The return of a registered branch must be sent to the Authority through an officer appointed in that behalf by the society of which the branch forms part<sup>20</sup>.

Publication of accounts and balance sheet.

2212. Publication of accounts and balance sheet.

A registered society or branch<sup>1</sup> (other than a registered friendly society or branch thereof<sup>2</sup>) may not publish any revenue account or balance sheet unless it has been signed by the secretary of the society or branch and by two members of its committee acting on the committee's behalf<sup>3</sup>.

Where at the end of a registered society's or branch's year of account<sup>4</sup> no disapplication of the provision requiring the appointment of auditors<sup>5</sup> is in force in relation to the year, the society or branch may not publish a year end revenue account or balance sheet<sup>6</sup> unless: (1) it has been previously audited by the auditor or auditors last appointed to audit the accounts and balance sheet of the society or branch; and (2) it incorporates a report by the auditor or auditors stating whether in his or their opinion it complies with the accounting requirements of the Friendly Societies Act 1974<sup>7</sup>.

Where at the end of a registered society's or branch's year of account a disapplication of the provision requiring the appointment of auditors<sup>8</sup> is in force in relation to the year and the society's or branch's turnover<sup>9</sup> in the preceding year of account exceeded £90,000, the society or branch may not publish a year end revenue account or balance sheet unless: (a) it is one on which the society or branch has obtained an accountant's report<sup>10</sup>; and (b) it incorporates so much of the report as relates to it<sup>11</sup>.

Where a registered society's or branch's year of account is one in relation to which the Financial Services Authority has directed an audit<sup>12</sup>, the society or branch may not publish any year end or interim revenue account or balance sheet, unless it incorporates a report by the auditor or auditors appointed in pursuance of the direction stating whether in his or their opinion it complies with the accounting requirements of the Friendly Societies Act 1974<sup>13</sup>.

A specially authorised society or branch which is not statutorily exempted from making a valuation of its assets and liabilities<sup>14</sup> may not publish any balance sheet unless it includes a statement containing the same particulars as the statement required to be included in the annual return<sup>15</sup>.

Every registered society and branch must keep a copy of the last annual balance sheet, together with its auditors' report<sup>16</sup>, always hung up in a conspicuous place at its registered office<sup>17</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2082. As to branches of societies see PARA 2091.

2 The Friendly Societies Act 1974 ss 29-45 are repealed in relation to registered friendly societies by the Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 16 paras 1, 12, but remain in force in relation to registered societies which are not friendly societies: see PARA 2202.

3 Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 30A(1) (s 30A added by SI 1996/1738). As to the committee of management see PARAS 2184, 2294 et seq.

4 As to the meaning of 'year of account' see PARA 2205 note 8.

5 Ie under the Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 32A(1): see PARA 2206. As to the obligation to appoint auditors see s 31; and PARA 2206.

6 'Year end balance sheet', in relation to a year of account, means a balance sheet relating to the position at the end of the year; and 'year end revenue account', in relation to a year of account, means a revenue account for the year or for any period falling within the year of account and ending at the end of the year: Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 30A(12) (as added: see note 3).

7 Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 30A(2) (as added: see note 3). The requirements are those of s 30(1), (4) or, as the case may be, s 30(5) (see PARA 2205): s 30A(12) (as so added). Where at the beginning of a year of account (the 'current year of account') a registered society or branch is subject to s 30A(2) in relation to the publication of a year end revenue account or balance sheet for the preceding year of account, it may not publish any interim revenue account or balance sheet for the current year of account: (1) if a disapplication under s 32A(1) (see note 5) is in force in relation to that year, unless it incorporates a report by an appropriate person stating whether in his opinion it complies with s 30(1), (4) or, as the case may be, s 30(5); and (2) if no disapplication under s 32A(1) is in force in relation to that year, unless heads (1) and (2) in the text are met in relation to it: s 30A(4) (as so added). 'Interim balance sheet', in relation to a year of account, means a balance sheet relating to the position at a time in the year other than the end; and 'interim revenue account', in relation to a year of account, means a revenue account for any period falling within the year of account, other than one ending at the end of the year: s 30A(12) (as so added).

Section 39B (see PARA 2209) applies in relation to a person appointed for the purposes of s 30A(4), (5) as it applies in relation to a person appointed under s 39A(2) (see PARA 2209): s 30A(8) (as so added). References to a disapplication under s 32A(1) being in force in relation to a year of account, where the year of account has ended, must be construed as references to a disapplication under that provision being in force at the end of the year: s 30A(9) (as so added). Subject to s 30A(11), in s 30A(4), (5) references to an appropriate person are to a person who is: (a) a qualified auditor for the purposes of the Friendly Societies Act 1974 (see PARA 2206); and (b) not ineligible by virtue of s 37(1) (see PARA 2206) to be appointed as auditor of the society or branch: s 30A(10) (as so added). In relation to the application of s 30A(4) to a registered society or branch which: (i) was an exempt society or an exempt branch in respect of the preceding year of account; and (ii) appointed persons who were not qualified auditors to audit its accounts and balance sheet for that year, s 30A(10), if the year is not one in relation to which the Financial Services Authority has given a direction under s 32(2) (see PARA 2206), has effect with the omission of s 30A(10)(a) (see head (a) above): s 30A(11) (as so added). As to the Financial Services Authority see PARA 2105, and also PARAS 4, 6 et seq.

8 See note 5.

9 For this purpose, 'turnover', in relation to a society or branch, means the amounts derived from the provision of goods and services falling within the society's or branch's activities, after deduction of: (1) trade discounts; (2) value added tax; and (3) any other taxes based on the amounts so derived: Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 32A(7) (added by SI 1996/1738); definition applied by the Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 30A(12) (as added: see note 3).

10 Ie a report from a person appointed under the Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 39A(2) which meets the requirements of s 39A(3) (see PARA 2209): s 30A(3) (as added: see note 3).

11 Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 30A(3) (as added: see note 3). Where at the beginning of a year of account (the 'current year of account') a registered society or branch is subject to s 30A(3) in relation to the publication of a year end revenue account or balance sheet for the preceding year of account, it may not publish any interim revenue account or balance sheet for the current year of account unless it incorporates a report by an appropriate person stating: (1) whether, in his opinion, the revenue account, or, as the case may be, the balance sheet, is in agreement with the books of account kept by the society or branch under s 29 (see PARA 2205); and (2) whether, in his opinion, on the basis of the information contained in those books of account, the revenue account or, as the case may be, the balance sheet complies with the requirements of the Friendly Societies Act 1974 (see PARA 2205 et seq): s 30A(5) (as so added). Section 30A(3) ceases to apply in relation to a year of account if a direction under s 39C (see PARA 2210) is made in relation to it: s 30A(7) (as so added).

12 Ie a direction under the Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 39C has effect: see PARA 2210.

13 Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 30A(6) (as added: see note 3). The requirements are those of s 30(1), (3) or, as the case may be, s 30(5): see PARA 2205.

14 See PARA 2203 text and notes 1-3.

15 Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 30(7). As to the statement required to be included in the annual return see PARA 2211 text and notes 10-16.

16 See PARA 2208.

17 Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 45(a). Failure to comply with this provision is an offence: see PARA 2278. As to the same requirement in the case of the actuary's report or reports see PARA 2204 text and notes 11-12.

Supply of copies of annual return and balance sheet.

2213. Supply of copies of annual return and balance sheet.

On the application of a member or a person interested in its funds, a registered society<sup>1</sup> or branch<sup>2</sup> (other than a registered friendly society or branch thereof<sup>3</sup>) must supply to him gratuitously either: (1) a copy of the last annual return of the society or branch; or (2) a balance sheet or other document duly audited containing the same particulars relating to the affairs of the society or branch as are contained in the annual return<sup>4</sup>. Together with every copy of the annual return or with every balance sheet or other document so supplied, the registered society or branch must provide a copy of the auditors' report on the accounts and balance sheet<sup>5</sup> contained in the return or on the balance sheet or document supplied, as the case may require<sup>6</sup>.

Where the last annual return of a registered society or branch relates to a year of account at the end of which there is in force in relation to the year a disapplication of the requirement to appoint auditors<sup>7</sup>, the balance sheet or other document need not be audited and a copy of the accountant's report must instead be supplied<sup>8</sup>.

(A) INSPECTIONS

2214. Right to inspect books.

A member or any person having an interest in the funds of a registered society<sup>1</sup> or branch<sup>2</sup> may inspect the books at all reasonable hours at the registered office of the society or branch or at any place where the books are kept<sup>3</sup>, and may take copies of them<sup>4</sup>. However, only officers<sup>5</sup>, or members or persons interested who are specially authorised by a resolution of the society or branch, are entitled to inspect the loan account of any other member without his written consent<sup>6</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2082.

2 As to branches of societies see PARA 2091.

MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(2) FRIENDLY SOCIETIES/(iii) Registered Societies/G. INSPECTIONS AND MEETINGS/(A) Inspections/2215. Inspection of affairs.

2215. Inspection of affairs.

On the application of one-fifth of the members of a registered society<sup>1</sup> (other than a registered friendly society<sup>2</sup>), or of 100 members if the society has not fewer than 1,000 and not more than 10,000 members, or of 500 members if the society has more than 10,000 members<sup>3</sup>, the Financial Services Authority<sup>4</sup> may appoint an inspector or inspectors to examine and report on the society's affairs<sup>5</sup>. This provision does not apply to a society with branches, except with the consent of the central body of that society<sup>6</sup>.

A member may issue a circular among his fellow members for the purpose of getting sufficient signatures to such an application, but inaccurate statements as to the society's financial condition may be restrained by injunction<sup>7</sup>.

The application must be supported by such evidence that there is good reason for an inspection and that the applicants are not actuated by malicious motives, and such notice of the application must be given to the society, as the Authority directs<sup>8</sup>.

The inspector may require the production of all or any of the books and documents of a registered society, and may examine on oath<sup>9</sup> its officers<sup>10</sup>, members, agents, and servants in relation to its business<sup>11</sup>. However, the inspector is not entitled to conduct the inspection or examination in public, nor may he make public the information gained by him, or otherwise make use of the information, except for the purposes of carrying out the examination and of preparing his report, and for ancillary purposes<sup>12</sup>. The inspector makes his report to the Authority<sup>13</sup>. In the absence of any evidence to the contrary, a document purporting to be signed by an inspector may be received in evidence without proof of the signature<sup>14</sup>.

Before appointing an inspector, the Authority may require the applicants to give security for the costs of the proposed inspection<sup>15</sup>. All expenses of and incidental or preliminary to an inspection must be defrayed by the members applying for it, or out of the society's funds, or by present or former members or officers, in such proportions as the Authority may direct<sup>16</sup>. They may be recovered in a magistrates' court as a civil debt<sup>17</sup>.

(B) MEETINGS

2216. General meetings.

The rules of registered societies<sup>1</sup> and branches<sup>2</sup> must provide for the mode of holding general meetings<sup>3</sup>. Rules may provide for general meetings being constituted by delegates appointed by members<sup>4</sup>.

Where the place of meetings is fixed by the rules which provide for their alteration only at a meeting of the society legally convened, new rules made at a meeting held elsewhere and purporting to replace former rules are void<sup>5</sup>.

Further provision as to meetings of registered and incorporated friendly societies is made by the Friendly Societies Act 1992 and is considered elsewhere in this title<sup>6</sup>.

As to the adjournment of meetings and notice of business see Orton v Bristow (1915) 32 TLR 129; affd (1916) 32 TLR 352, CA. Rules usually provide for holding ordinary meetings for receiving contributions (weekly or fortnightly etc), business meetings (quarterly or half-yearly or annually etc), and special meetings to be called at any time by the direction of the committee or by a requisition from a certain number of members; for notice of special meetings to be given and for forming a quorum; for use or non-use of proxies, and appointment; and, in case of equality, for the casting vote of the chairman. As to further statutory provisions relating to special meetings see PARA 2217. Where the secretary of a society was served with a requisition, duly signed in accordance with the rules, to call a meeting for the purpose of altering or rescinding the rules, he was obliged to convene the meeting: R v Bannatyne (1851) 17 QB 524; and see R v Aldham and United Parishes Insurance Society [1854] 2 WR 456 (mandamus to officer to convene meeting not granted in special circumstances).

2217. Financial Services Authority's power to call special meetings.

The Financial Services Authority<sup>1</sup> may call a special meeting of a registered society<sup>2</sup> (other than a registered friendly society<sup>3</sup>) on the application of the same number of people as may apply for the appointment of an inspector<sup>4</sup>. The same consent (in the case of a society with branches) and the same evidence and security are required as for the appointment of an inspector, and the same provisions apply regarding the defrayal of expenses<sup>5</sup>.

The Authority may direct the time and place of the meeting and the matters to be discussed and determined at the meeting; the meeting has all the powers of a meeting called according to the rules of the society<sup>6</sup>, and may appoint its own chairman notwithstanding any rule of the society to the contrary<sup>7</sup>.

2218. Special resolutions.

Certain transactions of registered societies<sup>1</sup> (other than registered friendly societies<sup>2</sup>) may be carried out only by passing a special resolution. These are: (1) amalgamation with another registered society<sup>3</sup>; (2) transfer of engagements to another registered society or to a company<sup>4</sup>; and (3) conversion of a registered society into a company<sup>5</sup>.

For the purposes of the Friendly Societies Act 1974, a special resolution in relation to a registered society or branch<sup>6</sup> other than a registered friendly society is<sup>7</sup> a resolution which is passed: (a) at a general meeting of which notice, specifying the intention to propose that resolution, has been duly given in accordance with the society's rules<sup>8</sup>; and (b) by not less than three-quarters of those members of the society for the time being entitled under the society's rules to vote who vote either in person or by proxy<sup>9</sup> at the meeting or, in the case of a meeting of delegates appointed by members<sup>10</sup>, by not less than three-quarters of the delegates who vote at the meeting<sup>11</sup>.

Notwithstanding anything to the contrary in the rules<sup>12</sup> of a registered society, at any such general meeting, other than a meeting of delegates, proxy voting is permitted on a special resolution if the procedure adopted complies with the requirements imposed by the Treasury by regulations<sup>13</sup>. The proxy need not be a member of the society and in the case of a collecting society must not be a collector or superintendent of the society<sup>14</sup>. The proxy must be appointed in writing by the person appointing him or by his duly authorised agent<sup>15</sup>, and in order to be valid the instrument of appointment<sup>16</sup> must be deposited at the society's registered office, or such other place in the United Kingdom<sup>17</sup> as is specified in the notice convening the meeting, not less than 48 hours before the time for holding the meeting or adjourned meeting at which the vote is to take place<sup>18</sup>. The instrument may indicate whether the proxy is to vote for or against the resolution or as he thinks fit<sup>19</sup>, and a vote given in accordance with the instrument is valid notwithstanding the previous death or mental disorder<sup>20</sup> of the appointer or the revocation of the proxy, provided the society has not received any written intimation of the event at its registered office before the commencement of the meeting or adjourned meeting at which the proxy is used<sup>21</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2082.

2 For the purposes of the Friendly Societies Act 1974, 'special resolution' in relation to a registered friendly society must be construed in accordance with the Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 30, Sch 12 para 7 (see PARA 2306); Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 86(2A) (added by the Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 16 paras 1, 33).

H. MERGERS AND CONVERSIONS INVOLVING REGISTERED SOCIETIES OTHER THAN FRIENDLY SOCIETIES

(A) AMALGAMATION AND TRANSFER OF ENGAGEMENTS

2220. Powers to amalgamate and to transfer engagements.

Two or more registered societies<sup>1</sup> (neither being a registered friendly society<sup>2</sup>) may, by special resolution<sup>3</sup> of each of them, become amalgamated together as one society<sup>4</sup>, with or without dissolution or division of the funds of the societies or any of them<sup>5</sup>.

A registered society may, by special resolution, transfer to any extent its engagements to any other registered society which, by special resolution or in such other manner as may be authorised by its rules, undertakes to fulfil those engagements<sup>6</sup>.

A registered society may by special resolution determine to transfer to any extent its engagements to a company regulated by the Companies Acts<sup>7</sup> or to an industrial and provident society<sup>8</sup>.

In order to transfer some but not all of its engagements, a registered society must, in addition to passing the special resolution required as described above, pass an affected members' resolution<sup>9</sup>.

If a registered society transfers all its engagements, the registration of the society becomes void and must be cancelled by the Financial Services Authority<sup>10</sup>.

Separate provision as to transfers of engagements by, and amalgamations of, friendly societies is made by the Friendly Societies Act 1992, and is considered elsewhere in this title<sup>11</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2082.

2 These provisions do not apply to registered friendly societies: Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 82(8) (added by the Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 16 paras 1, 29). The Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 86(4) made further provision as to special resolutions for the transfer of engagements or amalgamations of registered friendly societies, but since s 82(8) apparently ends the power of friendly societies to make a resolution under the Friendly Societies Act 1974, and there is separate provision under the Friendly Societies Act 1992 for friendly societies to amalgamate or transfer engagements (see PARA 2352 et seq), it is thought that the Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 86(4) is no longer operative.

3 As to special resolutions see PARA 2218.

4 For judicial authority on the effect of an amalgamation see Northern Rock Building Society v Davies (Inspector of Taxes) [1969] 3 All ER 1310, [1969] 1 WLR 1742 (concerning the union of building societies).

5 Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 82(1). As to the registration of special resolutions see PARA 2218. Except in relation to juvenile societies (see PARA 2222), there is no statutory provision for the amalgamation of branches, which therefore may be effected only if there is an appropriate provision in the rules. As to the rules see PARA 2156 et seq.

6 Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 82(2) (amended by the Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 16 para 29). It has been held in the comparable context of the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 that 'engagements' means the business undertaking of the society in question (Stansell Ltd v Co-operative Group (CWS) Ltd [2005] EWHC 1601 (Ch), [2006] 1 BCLC 401); this point was common ground on the appeal (see sub nom Co-operative Group (CWS) Ltd v Stansell Ltd [2006] EWCA Civ 538, [2006] 1 WLR 1704, [2006] 2 BCLC 599). There is no statutory provision for the transfer of engagements between branches, which therefore may be effected only if there is an appropriate provision in the rules.

7 'Companies Acts' means the Companies Act 2006, the Companies Act 1985 and any earlier enactment for the like purposes which has been repealed: Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 111(1) (amended by the Companies Consolidation (Consequential Provisions) Act 1985 Sch 2; and the Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 16 para 48); Companies Act 2006 s 1297(5).

8 Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 82(3) (amended by the Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 16 para 29). 'Industrial and provident society' means a society registered or deemed to be registered under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 (see PARA 2410 et seq); Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 82(9) (added by the Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 16 paras 1, 29).

9 Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 82(3A) (added by the Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 16 paras 1, 29). An 'affected members' resolution' is a resolution passed by the appropriate majority of the members whose engagements with the society are included in the transfer and who, under the rules, would be entitled to vote on a special resolution: Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 82(3A) (as so added). 'Appropriate majority' means a majority consisting of not less than three-quarters of those members who vote: s 82(3B) (added by the Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 16 paras 1, 29).

10 Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 82(5) (amended by the Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 22 Pt I; and SI 2001/3649). As to cancellation of registration see PARAS 2257-2260. As to the Financial Services Authority see PARA 2105, and also PARAS 4, 6 et seq.

11 See the Friendly Societies Act 1992 ss 85, 86; note 2; and PARA 2352 et seq.

2221. Vesting of property.

It seems that on amalgamation of registered societies<sup>1</sup> other than registered friendly societies<sup>2</sup> the property of the amalgamating societies vests in the trustees of the amalgamated society without conveyance or transfer<sup>3</sup>.

1 See PARA 2220. As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2082.

2 This cannot apply to registered friendly societies, since the effect of the amalgamation of societies is to create a new society which, if it is a friendly society, must be incorporated under the Friendly Societies Act 1992: see PARA 2112.

3 See the Friendly Societies Act 1974 ss 54(1), 58; and PARAS 2185-2186. An amalgamation or transfer of engagements does not prejudice any right of a creditor of a registered society which is a party to it: s 82(7). As to the application of s 82 see PARA 2220 note 2.

A registered society<sup>1</sup> consisting wholly of members under 21 years of age may amalgamate<sup>2</sup> with a registered society having members above that age (neither being a registered friendly society<sup>3</sup>), or with a branch or branches of such society, by resolutions registered in the manner required for the registration of an amendment of rules<sup>4</sup>. Alternatively, provision may be made by such resolutions for distributing among several branches the members of a society consisting wholly of members under 21 years of age<sup>5</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2082.

2 As to amalgamations generally see PARA 2220.

3 These provisions do not apply to registered friendly societies: Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 82(8) (added by the Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 16 paras 1, 29). See further PARA 2220 note 2.

4 Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 82(6). In the case of such amalgamation the usual procedure of special resolution etc (see PARA 2220) need not be followed: see s 82(6). ### (a) Conversion into Company

2223. Power to convert into company.

A registered society<sup>1</sup> (other than a registered friendly society<sup>2</sup>) may by special resolution<sup>3</sup> convert itself into a company under the Companies Acts<sup>4</sup>.

The objects of the company into which the society is converted should be substantially the objects set out in the society's rules, but afterwards the company can enlarge its objects under its powers as a registered company<sup>5</sup>. When a registered society has been converted into a limited company the objects of which, as declared by the memorandum of association, are to continue the society's business, and also to carry on an extended range of business, whatever relief a member might be entitled to in properly constituted proceedings, he cannot, while suing as a member of the company, claim to restrain it from carrying out those of the objects of its memorandum which are in excess of the objects of the original society; and this is so even assuming that the special resolution for conversion was ultra vires the society<sup>6</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2082.

2 The Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 84 is repealed in relation to registered friendly societies by the Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 16 paras 1, 31. As to the conversion of friendly societies into companies see s 91; and PARA 2359.

3 As to special resolutions see PARA 2218.

4 Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 84(1). As to the meaning of 'Companies Acts' see PARA 2220 note 7. On the conversion of a registered society into a company, the members of the society are not simultaneously converted into members of the company: Re Blackburn Philanthropic Assurance Co Ltd [1914] 2 Ch 430.

5 See Blythe v Birtley [1910] 1 Ch 228 at 235, CA, per Cozens-Hardy MR: 'When it is a limited company, it may then exercise such powers of enlarging and altering its objects, with the sanction of the court, as are given by the Companies Acts'. But, for example, a friendly society could not be converted into a brewery company: see Blythe v Birtley. See also McGlade v Royal London Mutual Insurance Society Ltd [1910] 2 Ch 169, CA. As to the objects of registered societies which are not friendly societies see the Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 7(1)(b)-(f); and PARA 2089. As to the power of a registered company to alter its objects see COMPANIES vol 14 (2009) PARAS 240 et seq.

6 McGlade v Royal London Mutual Insurance Society Ltd [1910] 2 Ch 169, CA, where Cozens-Hardy MR said at 177: 'I think it might have been competent for a member to commence an action, suing on behalf of himself and all other . . . members . . . , asking for a declaration that the special resolution was ultra vires, and that all proceedings under it were therefore void'. These views gave rise to doubts as to whether certain societies already converted into companies had been validly so converted, and for the purpose of putting an end to those doubts the Companies (Converted Societies) Act 1910 (now repealed by the Statute Law (Repeals) Act 1989) was enacted. See also Re Royal London Mutual Assurance Society Ltd (1910) 55 Sol Jo 46.

A registered society other than a registered friendly society<sup>1</sup> may apply for registration under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965<sup>2</sup> if the proposal to apply for registration has been submitted to the members of the registered society for their consent<sup>3</sup>, and consent has been obtained accordingly<sup>4</sup>. On registration under that Act, all property<sup>5</sup> held by the registered society immediately before that registration by any person in trust for the registered society or any branch<sup>6</sup> (whether or not a registered branch) becomes property of the industrial and provident society<sup>7</sup>. The society continues to be entitled to all rights, and subject to all liabilities<sup>8</sup>, as before registration<sup>9</sup>.

No later than 90 days beginning with the day on which a society is registered under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965:

- 690 (1) the registered society's trustees<sup>10</sup> must deliver to the registered office of the industrial and provident society any property of the registered society or a branch of it held by them, and any documents relating to the property, rights and liabilities of the registered society or to its financial affairs<sup>11</sup>;
- 691 (2) the trustees of any branch of the registered society must deliver to that office any property of the branch or any other branch of the society held by them and any documents relating to the property, rights and liabilities of the branch or to its financial affairs<sup>12</sup>;
- 692 (3) if he holds property on trust for the registered society or any branch of the society the Public Trustee<sup>13</sup> must deliver to that office the property held by him and any documents relating to it<sup>14</sup>.

This does not, however, have the effect of relieving the trustees or the Public Trustee from any liability arising from acts or omissions before the registration of the society under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965<sup>15</sup>.

On registration as an industrial and provident society, the previous registration of the society becomes void and must be cancelled by the Financial Services Authority<sup>16</sup>.

Any appointment as a trustee of the registered society or any branch of it determines on registration of the society as an industrial and provident society<sup>17</sup>, but all other officers become equivalent officers in the industrial and provident society<sup>18</sup>. Any current contract of employment with the registered society or any branch takes effect with the substitution of the industrial and provident society as the employer, but with no termination or any other variation<sup>19</sup>, and accordingly any period of employment with the registered society counts as employment with the industrial and provident society<sup>20</sup>. The rights and liabilities of the registered society or branch under any agreement or arrangement for the payment of pensions, allowances or gratuities vests in the industrial and provident society along with all the other rights and liabilities<sup>21</sup>.

Any agreement made, transaction effected or other thing done by, to or in relation to the registered society or branch (whether registered or not) which is effective immediately before registration as an industrial and provident society has effect as if made, effected or done by, to or in relation to the industrial and provident society<sup>22</sup>.

1 As to the meanings of 'registered society' and 'registered friendly society' see PARA 2082. In this paragraph 'registered society' denotes the society registered under the Friendly Societies Act 1974, as distinct from the society after it is registered under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965, when it is referred to as the 'industrial and provident society'.

I. CONVERSION OF REGISTERED SOCIETY INTO BRANCH

2227. Conversion of society into branch.

A registered society<sup>1</sup> may, by a resolution passed by a majority of the members or delegates present and entitled to vote at any general meeting of which notice, specifying the intention to propose the resolution, has been duly given according to the rules, determine to become a branch<sup>2</sup> of any other registered society, and also, if thought fit, of any registered branch of such a society<sup>3</sup>.

If the society's rules do not comply with all the provisions of the Friendly Societies Act 1974 and of the Treasury regulations<sup>4</sup> in respect of the registration of branches, the general meeting at which the resolution is passed may also make the necessary amendments in the rules<sup>5</sup>. A copy of the society's rules, marked to show the amendments, if any, made at the meeting, and two copies of the resolution and of any such amendment of rules, each signed by the chairman of the meeting and by the secretary of the society, and countersigned by the secretary of the society of which it is to become a branch, must be sent to the Financial Services Authority<sup>6</sup>.

Registration as branch.

2228. Registration as branch.

Where the necessary documents for converting a registered society<sup>1</sup> into a branch have been submitted to the Financial Services Authority<sup>2</sup>, and it finds that the society's rules (amended or not, as the case may be) comply with the provisions of the Friendly Societies Act 1974 and the Treasury regulations<sup>3</sup>, it must, without further request or notice, cancel the registration<sup>4</sup> of the society and register it as a branch of the other society referred to in the resolution in question, and also, if it is so specified in the resolution, of any branch of that other society; and, without further application or evidence, it must register any such amendment of rules<sup>5</sup>. Until such registration, the resolution does not take effect<sup>6</sup>. The rules of a society which becomes a branch, so far as they are not contrary to any express provision of the Friendly Societies Act 1974 or the Treasury regulations, and subject to any amendment<sup>7</sup>, continue in force as the rules of the branch until amended<sup>8</sup>.

J. NOMINATIONS AND PAYMENTS ON DEATH

2229. Sum payable on death.

The money payable by a registered society<sup>1</sup> or branch<sup>2</sup> on the death of a member (in addition to any sums insured on his life under rules or policies<sup>3</sup>) includes money contributed to or deposited in the separate loan fund<sup>4</sup> and sums accumulated for the member's use, together with interest<sup>5</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2082.

2 As to branches of societies see PARA 2091. These provisions do not apply to a benevolent society, a working men's club or an old people's home society: Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 66(4). As to those types of society see PARA 2089.

3 As to the validity of policies see Robinson v Trustees of Loyal Philanthropic Friendly Society (1905) 119 LT Jo 414; and INSURANCE vol 25 (2003 Reissue) PARA 95 et seq. 'Sums payable on the death of a member' probably means sums which he can dispose of as he wills and not sums which rules direct are to be paid to certain relatives only, such as sums for the relief and maintenance of widows and orphans: see the Report of the Chief Registrar of Friendly Societies 1914, Pt A, 26 (Parliamentary Papers for 1914-1916 vol 49); and the Report of the Chief Registrar of Friendly Societies 1918, Pt A, 7 (Parliamentary Papers for 1919 vol 39). MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(2) FRIENDLY SOCIETIES/(iii) Registered Societies/J. NOMINATIONS AND PAYMENTS ON DEATH/2230. Power of nomination.

2230. Power of nomination.

A member aged 16 years or over of a registered society<sup>1</sup> or branch<sup>2</sup>, other than a benevolent society, working men's club or old people's home society or branch<sup>3</sup>, may nominate a person or persons to receive any sum of money payable on his death<sup>4</sup> by the society or branch, or any specified sum so payable<sup>5</sup>. This power of nomination is subject to an overall limit as to amount<sup>6</sup>.

The nomination must be in writing<sup>7</sup> or in print<sup>8</sup>, be signed by the nominator<sup>9</sup> and delivered at or sent<sup>10</sup> to the registered office<sup>11</sup> of the society or branch, or made in a book kept at the office<sup>12</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2082.

MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(2) FRIENDLY SOCIETIES/(iii) Registered Societies/J. NOMINATIONS AND PAYMENTS ON DEATH/2231. Amount disposable by nomination.

2231. Amount disposable by nomination.

Where a nomination<sup>1</sup> was delivered at or sent to the registered office<sup>2</sup> of the society, or made in the appropriate book<sup>3</sup>, before 21 December 1955, the maximum amount which may be disposed of by the nomination is £100<sup>4</sup>. In the case of a nomination delivered, sent or made on or after 21 December 1955 but before 5 September 1965, the maximum amount is £200<sup>5</sup>. In the case of a nomination delivered, sent or made on or after 5 September 1965 but before 10 August 1975, the maximum amount is £500<sup>6</sup>. In the case of a nomination delivered, sent or made on or after 10 August 1975 but before 12 May 1984, the maximum amount is £1,500<sup>7</sup>. In the case of nominations after 11 May 1984 the limit is increased to £5,000<sup>8</sup>. A nominator need not nominate the whole of the money payable on his death, and a nomination of a sum not exceeding the maximum permitted amount is valid even though the total amount payable on the death exceeds that amount<sup>9</sup>. Where a nomination does not specify the maximum sum which is to be payable and the sum to which the nomination relates exceeds £5,000 only because of an increase in benefit resulting from the adoption of a prescribed or approved scheme under the Decimal Currency Act 1969<sup>10</sup>, the nomination is not invalidated by reason of the excess<sup>11</sup>.

7    Friendly Societies Act 1974 ss 66(2), 67(2) (both as amended by SI 1975/1137). This provision applies in relation to any nomination delivered at or sent to the appropriate office or made in the appropriate book after the expiration of a period of one month beginning with the date on which the amending order came into force (ie 10 July 1975): Administration of Estates (Small Payments) Act 1965 s 6(1)(e), (2) (s 6(1)(e) added, and s 6(2) amended, by the Friendly Societies Act 1974 Sch 9 para 20).

8    Friendly Societies Act 1974 ss 66(2), 67(2) (both as amended by SI 1984/539).

9    Bennett v Slater [1899] 1 QB 45, CA.

10   The Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 66(2) actually refers to 'any such increase as is mentioned in section 64(2)(c)'. Section 64(2) provided for the disregard of certain amounts in applying pecuniary limits, and s 64(2)(c) listed any increase in a benefit under a friendly society contract resulting from the adoption of a scheme prescribed or approved under the Decimal Currency Act 1969 s 6 as one such amount. The Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 64 has been repealed by the Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 Sch 31, but no consequential amendment was made of the Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 66(2). It is suggested that, as indicated in the text, s 66(2) can be read as including a reference to such schemes rather than to s 64(2)(c). The Decimal Currency Act 1969 s 6 was enacted to permit the making of regulations to determine conversion amounts from the old monetary system to the decimal system, and to approve schemes for the purpose of determining amounts payable under the decimal currency system. The Friendly Societies (Decimal Currency) Regulations 1970, SI 1970/932 (amended by SI 2001/3647), were made under that provision.

11 Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 66(2) (as amended: see note 8). This provision will also apply where the maximum amount disposable is £500 or £1,500 as appropriate in relation to the respective limits (see the text to note 5) and these limits are so exceeded: see s 66(2) (as originally enacted).

A will may operate as a nomination<sup>1</sup> when the original will is left in the custody of the society at the registered office<sup>2</sup>, but mere production of the will, or probate of the will, is not sufficient<sup>3</sup>. However, an invalid nomination, if executed in accordance with the Wills Act 1837, may operate as a will<sup>4</sup>. A valid nomination is of a testamentary character<sup>5</sup>.

2235. Revocation, variation or termination of nomination.

A nomination<sup>1</sup> may be revoked or varied by a document under the hand of the nominator<sup>2</sup>, delivered, sent or made in the same way as a nomination<sup>3</sup>. A nomination is not revocable by will unless the original will is left in the custody of the society at the registered office<sup>4</sup>; mere production of the will or of the probate is not sufficient<sup>5</sup>. The marriage of, or formation of a civil partnership by, a member of a society or branch operates as a revocation of any nomination previously made by that member<sup>6</sup>; but the receipt of a nominee is a valid discharge to the society or branch where, in ignorance of a marriage subsequent to the nomination, it has paid money to the nominee<sup>7</sup>. A nomination, being revocable, does not operate as a gift<sup>8</sup> and the nominee's death in the nominator's lifetime has the effect of defeating the nomination so that on the nominator's death his legal personal representative is entitled to the property<sup>9</sup>.

2236. Payment on death of nominator.

On receiving satisfactory proof of the death of a nominator, the registered society<sup>1</sup> or branch<sup>2</sup> must pay the nominee or nominees the amount due to the deceased member or, as the case may be, the amount specified in the nomination<sup>3</sup>, not being an amount exceeding the prescribed limit<sup>4</sup>. The receipt of a nominee over 16 years of age is valid<sup>5</sup>. There is a prima facie presumption that the nominee is intended to take beneficially, but it is a question depending on evidence, and the member's personal representative may in a proper case demand repayment from the nominee<sup>6</sup>, subject to sums expended by the nominee for medical fees and funeral expenses in respect of the nominator<sup>7</sup>.

2237. Payment on member's death where there is no nomination.

If a member of a registered society<sup>1</sup> or branch<sup>2</sup> who is entitled to a sum from its funds not exceeding a specified amount<sup>3</sup> dies without having made a nomination<sup>4</sup> of that sum which subsists at the time of his death, the society or branch may, without letters of administration or probate of any will, distribute the sum among such persons as appear to the committee, upon such evidence as it may deem satisfactory, to be entitled by law to receive it<sup>5</sup>, having regard to all the circumstances of the case, the amount and nature of the claim and the probabilities of the claimants being the persons who are entitled<sup>6</sup>. In ascertaining the persons entitled by law, the society may dispense with strict evidence of title and relationship, but may not alter the title or select one out of a number of next of kin as sole payee, even with the consent of the majority<sup>7</sup>.

This power applies only where the sum to which the member is entitled from the funds of the society or branch does not exceed £5,000<sup>8</sup> or exceeds that sum only because of an increase in benefit resulting from the adoption of a prescribed or approved scheme under the Decimal Currency Act 1969<sup>9</sup>.

If an illegitimate<sup>1</sup> member of a registered society<sup>2</sup> or branch<sup>3</sup> dies without having made a nomination<sup>4</sup> subsisting at the time of his death, the society or branch may pay the sum of money which the member might have nominated to or among the persons who, in the committee's opinion, would have been entitled to it if the member had been legitimate<sup>5</sup>; and if there are no such persons<sup>6</sup>, the society or branch must deal with the money as the Treasury directs<sup>7</sup>.

As to the distribution of assets of an intestate see the Administration of Estates Act 1925 Pt IV (ss 45-52); and EXECUTORS AND ADMINISTRATORS vol 17(2) (Reissue) PARA 583 et seq. Since the enactment of the Family Law Reform Act 1987 ss 1, 18 (which provide that for the purposes of the Administration of Estates Act 1925 Pt IV a relationship between two persons must be construed without regard to whether the parents of either person were married, or to whether the parents of any person through whom the relationship is deduced were married: see EXECUTORS AND ADMINISTRATORS vol 17(2) (Reissue) PARA 588), the question whether a deceased member of a society was illegitimate would not appear to affect the ascertainment of the people who would be entitled to receive the sum to which the deceased was entitled.

6 As a matter of construction, the provision of the Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 68(2) described in the text to note 7 refers only to the position where the deceased member was illegitimate; there is no comparable provision in s 68(1) as to the position where the deceased member was legitimate and there are no persons entitled to the sum in question. Under the general law of intestacy, if there is no relative in the prescribed degrees of kinship to whom property may pass, the property passes to the Crown as bona vacantia: see the Administration of Estates Act 1925 s 46; and EXECUTORS AND ADMINISTRATORS vol 17(2) (Reissue) PARA 613. As to bona vacantia see also CROWN PROPERTY vol 12(1) (Reissue) PARA 235 et seq. ### 2239. Validity of payment.

Payment on the death of a member, where there is no subsisting nomination<sup>1</sup>, by a registered society<sup>2</sup> or branch<sup>3</sup> under its statutory powers<sup>4</sup> to a person who appears to the committee of the society or branch to be entitled is valid and effectual against any demand made upon the trustees, or the society or branch, by any other person<sup>5</sup>. The committee should consider all the circumstances of the case, including the amount and nature of the claim and the probability of the person claiming being the person lawfully entitled<sup>6</sup>. Payment to the widow of a member who left a will of which the society had received no notice would be valid<sup>7</sup>. Group insurance business may be carried on in such a case whether or not members of the group scheme are, or are required by the society to be, members of the society<sup>3</sup>.

Where the rules of a society carrying on group insurance business expressly provide for it, any qualifying person<sup>4</sup> with whom the society contracts, or his nominee, may be given the rights of a member of the society, including the right to vote, in order to participate in the affairs of the society in the interests of the members of the group scheme with which he is concerned<sup>5</sup>. A person accorded these rights is not to be precluded by the rules from being a member of the society in his private capacity<sup>6</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'registered friendly society' see PARA 2082. As to the rules see PARA 2156 et seq.

2 Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 65A(1) (s 65A added by the Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 16 paras 1, 23). 'Group insurance business' means business (carried on in accordance with the society's rules and subject to any regulations made under the Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 11 (see PARA 2138)), which is of a description falling within Sch 2 head A or Sch 2 head B class 2 (see PARA 2096) and is carried on as the business of providing benefits, in pursuance of a contract with a qualifying person, for or in respect of the members of a group scheme: Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 65A(2) (as so added). 'Group scheme' means a scheme or other arrangement under which benefits are to be provided for or in respect of persons who are members of the scheme and who qualify for membership by virtue of being employees of a particular employer or being members of some other group of persons of a description specified in regulations made under the Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 11 (see PARA 2138): Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 65A(3) (as so added). 'Qualifying person' means a person who has established or is otherwise responsible for the operation of a group scheme or a trustee of such a scheme: s 65A(3) (as so added). 'Member' in relation to a group scheme includes any person for or in respect of whom benefits are to be provided under the scheme, whatever the terms in which such persons are described in the scheme: s 65A(3) (as so added).

The Treasury is empowered to make regulations under the Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 11(7) (see PARA 2138) which apply to registered friendly societies: Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 65A(8) (as so added; and amended by SI 2001/2617). The Friendly Societies (Group Schemes) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/59, made under the Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 11(7), prescribe for the purposes of the definition of 'group scheme' a club formed for the purposes of: (1) the promotion of lawful sports or games; and (2) the provision of facilities for recreation, including physical exercise, or other leisure-time occupation. As to the Treasury see PARA 3; and CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 512 et seq; and as to the transfer of functions to the Treasury see PARA 2105.

4 As to the meaning of 'qualifying person' see note 2.

5 Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 65A(5) (as added: see note 2). A person accorded the rights of a member under this provision is to be treated as a member for the purposes of any power conferred on the Financial Services Authority by the Friendly Societies Act 1974 or the Friendly Societies Act 1992 which is exercisable in the interests of the members: Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 65A(7) (as so added; and amended by SI 2001/2617). ### 2243. Validation of certain existing contracts entered into by friendly societies.

Where a contract was entered into by a relevant friendly society<sup>1</sup> after 3 May 1966 and before 1 June 1984 in the course of life or endowment business<sup>2</sup>, then for the purpose of determining any question as to the compliance of the society with the relevant enactments<sup>3</sup> or as to the validity of the contract, there must be disregarded any term which is set out otherwise than in the registered rules<sup>4</sup> of the society or a policy document issued by the society to the member concerned<sup>5</sup>.

1 The Friendly Societies Act 1984 s 1 refers to 'an exempt new friendly society', which means a society: (1) which was registered after 3 May 1966 or was registered in the period of three months ending on that date but which at no time before that date carried on any life or endowment business; and (2) the rules of which, on 1 June 1984, provided that the only life or endowment business which the society might carry on was business of a description falling within the Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1970 s 333(2)(a)-(c) (repealed): Friendly Societies Act 1984 s 1(2). Section 1(5) provides that 'life or endowment business' has the meaning assigned to it by the Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1970 s 337(2) (repealed), which has been replaced by the Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 466(1) (see PARA 2366 note 2).

The terms on which a registered friendly society<sup>1</sup> provides any benefit must either be specified in its rules, or be determined in a manner specified in its rules<sup>2</sup>. If benefit terms are not specified in a society's rules, the society is required to make copies of them available free of charge to members of the society at each of its offices and must send copies of them, free of charge, to any member of the society who demands them<sup>3</sup>. Failure by the society to make such benefit terms available or, as the case may be, to send them to a member who demands them within seven days of the demand, is an offence<sup>4</sup>.

2245. Determination of disputes in relation to registered friendly societies.

The provisions of the Friendly Societies Act 1974 relating to the determination of disputes<sup>1</sup>, are substantially amended so as no longer to apply to registered friendly societies and branches thereof, but only to registered societies which are not friendly societies<sup>2</sup>.

Registered friendly societies and branches, in common with incorporated friendly societies, are governed in these respects by provisions of the Friendly Societies Act 1992, which are dealt with elsewhere in this title<sup>3</sup>.

1 Ie the Friendly Societies Act 1974 ss 76-80.

2 The provisions of the Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 76, s 80, and consequently those of ss 78, 79, no longer apply to registered societies which are friendly societies or branches thereof: s 76(3A) (added by the Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 16 paras 1, 25(3)); Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 80(1A) (added by the Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 16 paras 1, 28). Those provisions of the Friendly Societies Act 1974 accordingly remain of relevance only to registered societies which are not friendly societies: see PARAS 2246-2256.

(a) Determining Disputes

2246. Provisions in rules for settling disputes.

Every registered society<sup>1</sup> or branch<sup>2</sup> must provide by its rules for the manner in which disputes are to be settled<sup>3</sup>.

Every dispute involving a registered society or branch (other than a registered friendly society or branch<sup>4</sup>) falling within certain categories<sup>5</sup> must be decided in the manner directed by the rules of the society or branch<sup>6</sup>. This provision is imperative and ousts any other jurisdiction<sup>7</sup> unless the parties consent to that jurisdiction or unless no decision is made in a dispute, referred under the rules, within the time limited by the statute<sup>8</sup>.

If the parties so agree, a county court may hear and determine a dispute falling within one of the specified classes of dispute instead of its being determined under the rules<sup>9</sup>.

2 As to branches of societies see PARA 2091.

Where the rules of a registered society<sup>1</sup> or branch<sup>2</sup> (other than a registered friendly society or branch<sup>3</sup>) contain no directions as to disputes<sup>4</sup>, or where no decision is made within 40 days after application for a reference of a dispute under the rules of the society or branch<sup>5</sup>, application may be made<sup>6</sup> to the county court, which may hear and determine the matter in dispute<sup>7</sup>. In the case of a society with branches, the 40 days do not begin to run until application has been made in succession to all the bodies entitled to determine disputes under the rules of the society or branch, but no rules may require a greater delay than three months between each successive determination<sup>8</sup>.

2248. Classes of disputes.

The classes of dispute<sup>1</sup> in relation to a registered society<sup>2</sup> or branch<sup>3</sup> (other than a registered friendly society or branch<sup>4</sup>) which must be decided in the manner directed by the rules are as follows:

- 693 (1) disputes between a member or person claiming through a member<sup>5</sup> or under the rules of a registered society or branch, and the society or branch or any of its officers<sup>6</sup>;
- 694 (2) disputes between any person aggrieved who has ceased to be a member of a registered society or branch, or any person claiming through such an aggrieved person, and the society or branch or any of its officers, where the dispute arose while he was a member or arises out of his previous relationship to the society or branch as a member<sup>7</sup>;
- 695 (3) disputes between any registered branch of a society and the society of which it is a registered branch<sup>8</sup>;
- 696 (4) disputes between an officer of any registered branch, and the society of which that registered branch is a branch<sup>9</sup>;
- 697 (5) disputes between two or more registered branches of any society, or any officers of them<sup>10</sup>.

The term 'dispute' includes any dispute arising on the question whether a member or person aggrieved is entitled to be, or to continue to be, a member or to be reinstated as a member<sup>11</sup>. It does not, however, include a dispute between the parties mentioned in heads (1) and (2) above which has arisen as a result of and incidentally to a dispute between a member, or a person aggrieved who has ceased to be a member, of a registered society or branch and a person claiming through him or under the rules of the registered society or branch<sup>12</sup>.

1 See PARA 2246.

2 As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2082.

3 As to branches of societies see PARA 2091.

4 See PARA 2245.

5 As to the meaning of 'person claiming through a member' see PARA 2185 note 4.

6 Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 76(1)(a). As to the meaning of 'officer' see PARA 2172 note 3. Such disputes must have relation to the membership of the member: Morrison v Glover (1849) 4 Exch 430.

Examples of disputes within this class are disputes relating to: the distribution of a fund in the hands of trustees of a friendly society (Grinham v Card (1852) 7 Exch 833; Winter v Wilkinson [1915] 1 Ch 317, CA); a claim for sick pay (Re Hogg, ex p Parkin (1898) 14 TLR 210; Catt v Wood [1910] AC 404, HL); a claim for death benefit (R v Dublin Justices (1891) 28 LR Ir 516; Bushell v Smith (1891) Times, 12 June, DC); the construction of rules (Ex p Payne (1849) 5 Dow & L 679; Trott v Hughes (1850) 16 LTOS 260; Stone v Liverpool Marine Society (1894) 63 LJQB 471, DC (affd 10 TLR 370, CA); Cox v Hutchinson [1910] 1 Ch 513); the propriety of convening a special meeting for the purpose of amending rules (Hoey v M'Farlane (1858) 4 CBNS 718); the conduct of an officer involving expulsion (Glasgow District of Ancient Order of Foresters v Stevenson (1899) 2 F 14, Ct of Sess); or the repayment of money deposited by a member (Melrose v Adams (1897) 24 R 483).

Examples of disputes not within this class are: disputes between a society and a member not in his capacity as member, such as a claim by a society against one of its officers for misappropriation of funds (Sinden v Banks (1861) 3 E & E 623); a dispute as to the title of the administrator of a deceased member to represent the member (Symington's Executor v Galashiels Co-operative Store Co Ltd (1894) 21 R 371, Ct of Sess; cf Kelsall v Tyler (1856) 11 Exch 513); and a dispute with a member as mortgagor or mortgagee (Morrison v Glover above; R v Trafford (1854) 24 LJMC 20; and see also Carroll v Pilling [1939] LJNCCR 148 (cited in note 11)).

2249. Exclusion of courts' jurisdiction.

If a dispute involving a registered society<sup>1</sup> or branch<sup>2</sup> (other than a registered friendly society or branch<sup>3</sup>) comes within any of the classes which are required to be decided according to the rules<sup>4</sup>, no tribunal other than that provided in the rules has jurisdiction to hear it in the first instance without the consent of all parties concerned<sup>5</sup>. The courts' jurisdiction is not ousted if the dispute has not been decided according to the rules<sup>6</sup>, or if the dispute concerns a matter which is alleged to be ultra vires the constitution of the society or branch<sup>7</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2082.

2 As to branches of societies see PARA 2091.

As to reference of disputes by consent to the county court see PARA 2246.

6 Eg if a member is expelled on a charge different from the charge before the arbitrators, and of which he had not been given any notice as required by rules (Andrews v Mitchell [1905] AC 78 at 82, HL; cf M'Kernan v Greenock Lodge of United Operative Masons' Association (1873) 11 M 548, Ct of Sess), or if a member is expelled by resolution of committee passed without formulating any charge against him or hearing him (Wayman v Perseverance Lodge of Cambridgeshire Order of United Brethren Friendly Society [1917] 1 KB 677).

7 Eg a dispute as to whether certain rules are ultra vires (McEllistram v Ballymacelligott Co-operative Agricultural and Dairy Society Ltd [1919] AC 548, HL, decided under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1893 s 49 (repealed)); whether a resolution is ultra vires the rules (Heard v Pickthorne [1913] 3 KB 299, CA, decided under the National Insurance Act 1911 s 67 (repealed)); whether rules are illegal and ultra vires (Re Quinn and National Catholic Benefit and Thrift Society's Arbitration [1921] 2 Ch 318, decided under the National Insurance Act 1911 s 67 (repealed); and cf Bundey v Seabrook (1932) 48 TLR 361); and whether the rules have been violated on the election of an officer (M'Gowan v City of Glasgow Friendly Society 1913 SC 991, Ct of Sess).

2250. Disputes between societies.

Where a registered society<sup>1</sup> or branch<sup>2</sup> (other than a registered friendly society or branch<sup>3</sup>) has made or agreed to make advances out of its surplus funds<sup>4</sup> to another registered society or branch, and the lender is thereby empowered by the borrower's rules to take part in the government or control of the borrower<sup>5</sup>, any dispute between the lender and the borrower relating to the advance or agreement or to the rights of the lender or one of its officers under the borrower's rules must be decided in the manner directed by the borrower's rules, as if the borrower were a branch of the lender<sup>6</sup>. The bringing of legal proceedings for the determination of the dispute is not, however, prohibited, unless before the commencement of the proceedings application has been made for a reference under the borrower's rules; and any such proceedings may be brought in the county court, whether or not that court apart from this special authorisation has jurisdiction to entertain them<sup>7</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2082.

2 As to branches of societies see PARA 2091.

3 These provisions do not apply where the lender is a registered friendly society or a branch of such a society: Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 80(1A) (added by the Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 16 paras 1, 28). See also PARA 2245.

2251. Effect of decisions.

A decision given in accordance with the provisions in the rules of a registered society<sup>1</sup> or branch<sup>2</sup> (other than a registered friendly society or branch<sup>3</sup>) as to disputes is binding and conclusive on all parties, and cannot be appealed from, restrained by injunction or removed into any court of law<sup>4</sup>. The decision is binding where there is a want of jurisdiction or other irregularity in its making, if the parties have acquiesced in the want of jurisdiction or irregularity<sup>5</sup>. An application for the enforcement of such a decision may be made to the county court<sup>6</sup>.

2 As to branches of societies see PARA 2091.

3 See PARA 2245.

4 Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 76(1). However, for the purposes of the Tribunals and Inquiries Act 1992 s 12, this provision is deemed to have been enacted before 1 August 1958, and consequently does not prevent the removal of the proceedings into the High Court by quashing order or prejudice the High Court's power to make a mandatory order: see the Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 76(1) (amended by the Tribunals and Inquiries Act 1992 Sch 3 para 10); the Tribunals and Inquiries Act 1992 s 12(1); and ADMINISTRATIVE LAW vol 1(1) (2001 Reissue) PARAS 21; and JUDICIAL REVIEW vol 61 (2010) PARA 688. Where the rules of a registered society<sup>1</sup> or branch<sup>2</sup> direct disputes to be referred to arbitration<sup>3</sup>, the arbitration must be conducted according to the provisions of the rules in all matters of substance<sup>4</sup>. Where the rules require arbitrators to be appointed by the society and the society neglects to appoint them, recourse may be made to the county court after 40 days from the application for a reference<sup>5</sup>, or the society may be compelled to appoint arbitrators by a mandatory order<sup>6</sup>.

Jurisdiction of the county court.

2255. Jurisdiction of the county court.

The county court has jurisdiction<sup>1</sup>, in relation to a dispute involving a registered society<sup>2</sup> or branch<sup>3</sup> (other than a registered friendly society or branch<sup>4</sup>), to hear and decide a dispute:

- 698 (1) where it is expressly directed in the rules<sup>5</sup>;
- 699 (2) where, in relation to a dispute which would otherwise fall to be determined under the rules, the parties agree that it is instead to be determined by the county court<sup>6</sup>;
- 700 (3) where the rules contain no direction as to disputes<sup>7</sup>;

- 701 (4) where no decision is made on a dispute within 40 days after application to the society or branch for a reference under its rules<sup>8</sup>;
- 702 (5) in certain circumstances where the dispute is between a lending society or branch and a borrowing society or branch<sup>9</sup>; and
- 703 (6) if the rules contain directions by virtue of which a dispute would fall to be determined by the Financial Services Authority<sup>10</sup>.

The county court has no jurisdiction in the first instance to hear and determine a dispute unless the application falls within one of the above cases<sup>11</sup>.

A county court to which a dispute has been referred under the rules may, but cannot be compelled to, state a case for the opinion of the High Court on a point of law<sup>12</sup>.

Proceedings commenced in the county court against a registered society or branch, where the rules contain no direction as to disputes<sup>13</sup> or where no decision is made on a dispute within the prescribed time<sup>14</sup>, may, in a proper case, be removed on application for judicial review by way of quashing order to the High Court<sup>15</sup>, as may a reference of a dispute to the county court under the rules of a society<sup>16</sup>.

8 See the Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 79(1) (as amended: see note 7); and PARA 2247. If the judge of a county court decides as arbitrator, under s 76(1) or s 76(3B) (see the text and note 6), his decision is conclusive and there is no appeal (but see PARA 2251 text and note 4); but on an application to the county court under s 79, an appeal lies in the ordinary way to the Court of Appeal (see the County Courts Act 1984 s 77; and Wilkinson v Jagger (1887) 20 QBD 423; cf R (M'Aneny) v Tyrone County Court Judge (1910) 44 ILT 147). As to when the period of 40 days commences to run in the case of a branch see PARA 2247; and see R v Catley (1887) 19 QBD 491. For further cases on the jurisdiction of the county court (decided under the Friendly Societies Act 1896 s 68(6) (repealed), which has been replaced by the Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 79)) see eg R v Shropshire County Court Judge, Re Thomas (1887) 3 TLR 526; Ex p Wooldridge (1862) 1 B & S 844. The High Court would decline to entertain the application for a quashing order if it were made for improper reasons, eg for purposes of procrastination: Tiplady v Royal Liver Friendly Society. Presumably disputes between lending and borrowing societies (see the text and note 9) could similarly be removed to the High Court, but it is conceived that in view of the unlimited jurisdiction conferred on the county court in these disputes an application for a quashing order would rarely be granted. ## 2256. Jurisdiction on enforcement of award.

In proceedings for enforcing an award<sup>1</sup> on a dispute involving a registered society<sup>2</sup> or branch<sup>3</sup> (other than a registered friendly society or branch<sup>4</sup>), the county court is the proper tribunal to determine, in the first instance, whether the dispute should have been decided in accordance with the rules of the society<sup>5</sup>. The High Court may overrule a decision of the county court if it is shown that there is an error on the face of the award or that it has been corruptly obtained<sup>6</sup>. It will not grant a prohibiting order before the matter has come before the county court<sup>7</sup>.

O. CANCELLATION OF REGISTRATION

2257. Voluntary cancellation of registration.

At the request of a society, the Financial Services Authority<sup>1</sup> may, if it thinks fit<sup>2</sup>, by notice in writing<sup>3</sup> cancel its registration<sup>4</sup>. Notice of the cancellation must forthwith be published in the London Gazette<sup>5</sup> and in a newspaper in general circulation in the neighbourhood of the society's registered office<sup>6</sup>.

1 As to the Financial Services Authority see PARA 2105, and also PARAS 4, 6 et seq.

2 The granting or refusal of the request is discretionary. There should be some valid reason for the request, eg withdrawal of all members and no funds.

3 As to references in statutes to writing see the Interpretation Act 1978 s 5, Sch 1; and STATUTES vol 44(1) (Reissue) PARA 1388.

4 Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 91(1)(a) (s 91(1) substituted, and s 91(1A) added, by SI 2001/2617). The request must be evidenced in such way as the Authority may direct: Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 91(1A) (as so added).

5 If the registered office of the society or branch is situated in Scotland, publication must be in the Edinburgh Gazette; or, if it is in Northern Ireland, in the Belfast Gazette: see the Friendly Societies Act 1974 ss 91(6), 111(1).

2258. Compulsory cancellation or suspension of registration.

If the Financial Services Authority<sup>1</sup> is satisfied that: (1) an acknowledgment of registration<sup>2</sup> has been obtained by fraud or mistake<sup>3</sup>; (2) a society exists for an unlawful purpose<sup>4</sup>; (3) a society has wilfully and after notice from the Authority violated any of the provisions of the Friendly Societies Act 1974<sup>5</sup>; (4) a society has ceased to exist<sup>6</sup>; or (5) in the case of a society carrying out certain types of insurance business<sup>7</sup>, the principal place of business of the society is outside the British Islands<sup>8</sup>, it may by notice in writing cancel the society's registration<sup>9</sup>. In any case falling within heads (1) to (4) above the Authority may by notice in writing suspend the registration of the society for up to three months, with power from time to time to renew such suspension for a similar period<sup>10</sup>. The Authority must give the society not less than two months' previous written notice briefly specifying the ground of the proposed cancellation or suspension<sup>11</sup>. If, before the expiry of that period, a society duly lodges an appeal<sup>12</sup>, its registration may not be cancelled before the date of determination or abandonment of the appeal<sup>13</sup>, but the Authority may by notice in writing suspend the society's registration from the expiry of that period until the date of determination or abandonment of the appeal<sup>14</sup>.

The registration of a society must be cancelled if it transfers all its engagements to another registered society or to a company or industrial and provident society<sup>15</sup>, or becomes converted into a company<sup>16</sup> or into a branch of another registered society or branch<sup>17</sup>, or becomes registered as an industrial and provident society<sup>18</sup>.

Where the registration of a society has been cancelled or suspended, notice must forthwith be published in the London Gazette<sup>19</sup> and in a newspaper in general circulation in the neighbourhood of the society's registered office<sup>20</sup>.

1 As to the Financial Services Authority see PARA 2105, and also PARAS 4, 6 et seq.

2 Under the Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 93(1), no society may be registered under the Friendly Societies Act 1974: see PARA 2083 note 3. The Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 15, which provided for acknowledgments of registration, is replaced by s 15A, which provides for acknowledgments of registration of branches of existing societies, which may still be registered (see PARA 2159): Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 93(3). This does not affect the operation of the Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 15 in relation to acknowledgments previously issued: Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 95, Sch 16 para 6(3). See further PARAS 2149, 2152.

3 Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 91(1)(b)(i) (s 91(1) substituted by SI 2001/2617).

4 Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 91(1)(b)(ii) (as substituted: see note 3). The Friendly Societies Act 1896 s 77(1) (repealed), from which this provision is derived, originally referred to an 'illegal purpose'. It was held that 'illegal' meant unlawful, and not illegal as being ultra vires the society: Re Middle Age Pension Friendly Society [1915] 1 KB 432, DC.

7 Is a society to which the Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 37(2) or (3) applies: see PARA 2112 note 15.

8 Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 91(1)(b)(v) (as substituted: see note 3). 'British Islands' means the United Kingdom, the Channel Islands and the Isle of Man: Interpretation Act 1978 s 5, Sch 1. As to the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 2 note 3.

9 Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 91(1) (as substituted: see note 3).

11 Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 91(3) (amended by SI 2001/2617). This requirement does not apply where a society has itself requested cancellation (see PARA 2257), or the cancellation is under the Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 82(5), s 84(3) or s 85(4) (see PARAS 2220, 2225, 2228) or under any provision of the Friendly Societies Act 1992: Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 91(4) (amended by the Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 16 para 37).

12 Is an appeal under the Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 92: see PARA 2259.

15 See the Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 82(5), as read with s 82(2), (3) (see PARA 2220). By virtue of s 82(8), these provisions do not apply to registered friendly societies: see PARA 2220.

16 See the Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 84(3); and PARA 2223 et seq. This provision is repealed in relation to registered friendly societies.

17 See the Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 85(4); and PARAS 2227-2228.

18 See the Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 84A(6); and PARA 2226. As to registration as an industrial and provident society see PARA 2410 et seq.

19 If the registered office of the society or branch is situated in Scotland, publication must be in the Edinburgh Gazette; or, if it is in Northern Ireland, in the Belfast Gazette: see the Friendly Societies Act 1974 ss 91(6), 111(1).

A society may appeal to the High Court<sup>1</sup> against the cancellation of its registration<sup>2</sup>, provided the appeal is lodged before the expiry of the period of notice required to be given by the Financial Services Authority<sup>3</sup>. A society may similarly appeal to the High Court against a renewal of the suspension of its registration<sup>4</sup>, so far as the renewal provides for the suspension to continue more than six months from the original date of suspension<sup>5</sup>.

2260. Effect of cancellation and suspension.

Where a society's registration has been cancelled<sup>1</sup> or suspended<sup>2</sup> it is not entitled to any privileges of a registered society under the Friendly Societies Act 1974, either as from the date of cancellation or between the date of suspension and the end of the suspension period or its renewal<sup>3</sup>. This provision is without prejudice to any liability actually incurred by the society, which may be enforced against it as if the cancellation or suspension had not taken place<sup>4</sup>. As a result of the cancellation or suspension the society is treated as unregistered<sup>5</sup>.

P. DISSOLUTION OF SOCIETIES AND BRANCHES

2261. Methods of dissolution.

Registered societies<sup>1</sup> and branches<sup>2</sup> may be terminated or dissolved: (1) upon the happening of any event declared by the rules to be the termination of the society or branch<sup>3</sup>; (2) by instrument of dissolution<sup>4</sup>; or (3) by award of the Financial Services Authority<sup>5</sup>.

A society which has branches may not be dissolved except with the consent of the central body<sup>6</sup>. A registered society which has more than seven members may also be wound up by the court as an unregistered company<sup>7</sup>.

Where the Authority has appointed one or more persons to investigate and report to it on the state and conduct of the affairs of a friendly society or branch<sup>8</sup>, and it appears to the Authority on receiving the report that it is in the interests of the members or of the public that the society or branch<sup>9</sup> should be wound up, the Authority may, unless the society or branch is already being wound up by the court, present a petition to the High Court that, if the court thinks it just and equitable, the society or branch should be wound up<sup>10</sup> by the court<sup>11</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2082. As to the dissolution of unregistered societies see PARA 2103.

2 As to branches of societies see PARA 2091.

3 Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 93(1)(a). As to the rules see PARA 2156 et seq. A registered society is not necessarily permanent; if it is meant to be terminable the rules should provide for the event on which it is to terminate.

4 Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 93(1)(b) (amended by the Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 16 paras 1, 38). See PARAS 2263-2270. In the case of a registered friendly society or branch, or registered cattle insurance society or branch, the rules are required to make provision as to voluntary dissolution: see s 7(2), Sch 2 para 14; and PARA 2156. As to the consents required for an instrument of dissolution see PARA 2263. Any method of dissolution other than by instrument would probably not be practicable as the instrument provides for the way in which the funds are to be divided or appropriated: see PARA 2264. A society cannot by its rules contract itself out of the powers of dissolution given by statute: Walker v London Tramways Co (1879) 12 ChD 705; and see also Ellis v Dadson (1891) 60 LJCh 353.

2263. Consent to instrument of dissolution.

A registered society<sup>1</sup> or branch<sup>2</sup> may be dissolved by an instrument of dissolution<sup>3</sup> approved by a special resolution of the society or branch<sup>4</sup>. In the case of a branch of a friendly society the dissolution must be with the consent of the central body and in accordance with the general rules of the society<sup>5</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2082.

2 As to branches of societies see PARA 2091.

3 As to the instrument of dissolution see the Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 94(1); and PARA 2264.

MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(2) FRIENDLY SOCIETIES/(iii) Registered Societies/P. DISSOLUTION OF SOCIETIES AND BRANCHES/(B) Dissolution by Instrument/2264. Instrument of dissolution.

2264. Instrument of dissolution.

The instrument of dissolution of a registered society<sup>1</sup> or branch<sup>2</sup> must<sup>3</sup> specify:

- 704 (1) the liabilities and assets in detail<sup>4</sup>;
- 705 (2) the number of members and the nature of their interests<sup>5</sup>;
- 706 (3) the claims of creditors, if any, and the provision to be made for their payment<sup>6</sup>; and
- 707 (4) the intended appropriation or division of the funds and property, unless the appropriation or division is stated in the instrument to be left to the award of the Financial Services Authority<sup>7</sup>.

In the case of a registered friendly society or branch the instrument must not direct or contain any provision for a division or appropriation of the funds, or any part of them, otherwise than for the purpose of carrying into effect the objects of the society or branch as declared in its rules, unless the claim of every member or person claiming any relief, annuity or other benefit from the funds is first duly satisfied or adequate provisions are made for satisfying those claims<sup>8</sup>.

The instrument must be registered with all alterations in the same manner as an amendment of the rules, and is binding on all the members<sup>9</sup>. The instrument must be sent to the Authority accompanied by a statutory declaration by one of the trustees<sup>10</sup> or by three members and the secretary of the society or branch that the statutory provisions have been complied with<sup>11</sup>. The instrument is exempt from charge for the purposes of stamp duty land tax<sup>12</sup>.

The instrument of dissolution may be altered, subject to the same consents<sup>13</sup> as are required for the dissolution<sup>14</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2082.

2 As to branches of societies see PARA 2091.

3 The provisions of the Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 94 (see the text and notes 4-14) apply where a registered society or branch is dissolved under s 93(1)(b) (see PARA 2261): s 94(1).

12 See the Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 105A; and PARA 2383.

13 The Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 94(3) refers to 'the like consents as are required by section 93(1)(b) . . . testified in the same manner'. Save in the case of a branch of a registered friendly society, the only consent now required by s 93(1)(b) (see PARA 2263 note 4) is that referred to in PARA 2263 text and note 5; it is not clear whether s 94(3) can be construed as generally requiring an amendment to an instrument of dissolution to be subject to approval by special resolution, which s 93(1)(b) now provides (see PARA 2263 text and note 4).

Within three months from the date of the London Gazette in which the notice of the dissolution of a registered society<sup>1</sup> or branch<sup>2</sup> is advertised<sup>3</sup>, a member or other person interested in or having a claim on the funds, or a trustee<sup>4</sup>, may commence proceedings to set aside the dissolution<sup>5</sup>. The dissolution may accordingly be set aside<sup>6</sup>. Notice of the proceedings must be given to the Financial Services Authority<sup>7</sup> not later than the expiry of: (1) the period of seven days after the commencement of the proceedings; or (2) the period of three months referred to above, whichever period first expires<sup>8</sup>. Where an order is made setting aside the dissolution of a society or branch, the society or branch must give notice of the order to the Authority within seven days after the order is made<sup>9</sup>.

(C) DISSOLUTION BY AWARD OF THE FINANCIAL SERVICES AUTHORITY

(a) Societies other than Registered Friendly Societies

2271. Application for investigation.

When a dissolution of a registered society<sup>1</sup> or branch<sup>2</sup> (other than a registered friendly society or branch<sup>3</sup>) is desired by award of the Financial Services Authority<sup>4</sup>, an application<sup>5</sup> in writing is made to it stating that the society or branch funds are insufficient to meet the existing claims on them, or that the rates of contribution fixed in the rules are insufficient to cover the benefits assured, and setting forth grounds for the allegation of insufficiency and requesting an investigation into the affairs of the society or branch with a view to dissolution<sup>6</sup>. The Authority may then, at the expense of the society or branch concerned<sup>7</sup>, appoint one or more competent persons to conduct an investigation on its behalf into the affairs of the society or branch<sup>8</sup>. The Authority must give at least one month's written notice to the society or branch concerned<sup>9</sup>.

The application must be made under the hands of one-fifth of the members, or by 100 members if there are not fewer than 1,000 and not more than 10,000 members, or by 500 members if the membership exceeds 10,000<sup>10</sup>.

The consent of the central body of a society is necessary before the Authority can investigate the affairs of a society with branches with a view to its dissolution<sup>11</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2082.

2 As to branches of societies see PARA 2091.

3 The Friendly Societies Act 1974 ss 90, 95 are repealed in relation to registered friendly societies by the Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 16 paras 1, 36, 39. Such societies are now governed, in relation to dissolution by award, by the Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 95A: see PARA 2275. As to registered societies or branches other than registered friendly societies or branches, ie benevolent societies, cattle insurance societies, working men's clubs, old people's home societies and specially authorised societies see s 7(1)(b)-(f); and PARA 2089.

4 As to the Financial Services Authority see PARA 2105, and also PARAS 4, 6 et seq.

5 The rules of a registered cattle insurance society must set out the right of the number of members set out in the text to note 10 to make an application for an investigation: see the Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 7(2)(a), Sch 2 para 15; and PARA 2156.

6 Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 95(2).

7 The expenses of the investigation and award and of advertising the notice of dissolution must be paid out of the society's or branch's funds before any other appropriation is made: Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 95(7).

8 Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 95(1) (amended by SI 2001/2617). The granting of an application is discretionary: Professional and Civil Service Supply Association v Dougal (1898) 5 SLT 359.

2272. Award of dissolution.

If on investigation<sup>1</sup> of the affairs of a registered society<sup>2</sup> or branch<sup>3</sup> (other than a registered friendly society or branch<sup>4</sup>) it appears that the funds are insufficient to meet the existing claims on them, or that the rates of contribution fixed in the rules are insufficient to cover the benefits assured, the Financial Services Authority may, if it considers it expedient to do so, award that the society or branch be dissolved and its affairs wound up; and, if so, the Authority must direct in what manner the assets are to be divided or appropriated<sup>5</sup>.

The operation of the award may be suspended for such period as the Authority may deem necessary to enable the society or branch to make such alterations and adjustments of contributions and benefits as will, in its judgment, prevent the necessity of the award of dissolution coming into operation; and where within that period the society makes such alterations and adjustments, the Authority may cancel the award<sup>6</sup>.

2273. Effect of award of dissolution.

An award of dissolution<sup>1</sup> is final and conclusive on the registered society<sup>2</sup> or branch<sup>3</sup> in respect of which the award is made, and on all members, and on all other persons<sup>4</sup> having any claim on the funds of the society or branch; and is enforceable in the same manner as a decision on a dispute<sup>5</sup>. There is no appeal from the award<sup>6</sup>, but the dissolution consequent upon the award may be set aside on application<sup>7</sup> made by a member or other person interested in or having any claim on the funds of the society or branch within three months from the date when notice of the award of dissolution is advertised<sup>8</sup>.

Where a person takes proceedings to set aside an award, he must give notice of the proceedings to the Financial Services Authority not later than seven days after the commencement of the proceedings or the period of three months mentioned above, whichever first expires<sup>9</sup>. Where an order is made setting aside the dissolution of an order or a branch, the society or branch must give the Authority notice of it within seven days after the order is made<sup>10</sup>.

Within 21 days of making an award of dissolution<sup>1</sup> of a registered society<sup>2</sup> or branch<sup>3</sup>, the Financial Services Authority<sup>4</sup> must have the award advertised by notice in the London Gazette<sup>5</sup> and in a newspaper in general circulation in the neighbourhood of the registered office of the society or branch concerned<sup>6</sup> at the expense of the society or branch<sup>7</sup>. Unless within three months of the advertisement a member or other person interested in or having a claim on the funds of the society or branch commences proceedings to set aside the dissolution consequent upon the award<sup>8</sup> and it is set aside accordingly<sup>9</sup>, the society or branch is legally dissolved as from the date of the advertisement<sup>10</sup>.

2275. Dissolution by award of the Financial Services Authority.

If it appears to the Financial Services Authority<sup>1</sup>, as a result of an investigation undertaken on its behalf under its statutory powers<sup>2</sup>, that:

- 708 (1) the funds of a registered friendly society<sup>3</sup> or branch<sup>4</sup> are insufficient to meet the existing claims on them; or
- 709 (2) the rates of contribution fixed in the rules of the society or branch are insufficient to cover the benefits assured to be given by the society or branch, the Authority may, if it considers it expedient to do so, order that the society or branch be dissolved and its affairs wound up; and where the Authority makes such an award, it must also direct how the assets of the society or branch are to be divided or appropriated<sup>5</sup>.

Where the Authority makes such an award, it may suspend its operation for as long as it deems necessary to enable the society or branch to make such alterations and adjustments of contributions and benefits as will in its judgment prevent the necessity for the award of dissolution coming into operation; and where, during the period of suspension, the alterations and adjustments are made, the Authority may cancel the award<sup>6</sup>.

The expenses of every award and of advertising every notice must be paid out of the funds of the society or branch before any other appropriation of them is made<sup>7</sup>.

Q. OFFENCES

(A) STATUTORY OFFENCES

2278. Failure to observe statutory requirements.

It is an offence under the Friendly Societies Act 1974 for a registered society<sup>1</sup> or branch<sup>2</sup>, or any officer or member<sup>3</sup>:

- 710 (1) to fail to give any notice, send any return or document, or do or allow to be done anything required by the Act to be given, sent, done or allowed to be done<sup>4</sup>;
- 711 (2) wilfully<sup>5</sup> to neglect or refuse to do any act or to furnish any information required for the purposes of the Act by the Financial Services Authority<sup>6</sup> or by any other authorised person or to do anything forbidden by the Act<sup>7</sup>; or
- 712 (3) to make a return or wilfully to furnish information required for the purposes of the Act in any respect false or insufficient<sup>8</sup>.

It is also an offence for an officer or member of a body which, having been a branch of a society, has wholly seceded or been expelled from that society, to use the society's name, or any name implying that the body is a branch of the society or to use the number by which that body was designated as a branch<sup>9</sup>.

All the above offences are punishable on summary conviction by a fine<sup>10</sup>.

If an officer of a registered friendly society or any other person aids or abets in the dissolution of a friendly society, otherwise than as provided in the Friendly Societies Act 1974, he is liable on summary conviction to a fine<sup>11</sup>.

If a member of the committee of a registered society or branch (other than a registered friendly society or branch<sup>12</sup>) fails to take all reasonable steps to secure the compliance of any revenue account or balance sheet with the requirements of the Friendly Societies Act 1974<sup>13</sup>, he is liable on summary conviction to a fine<sup>14</sup> unless he proves that he had reasonable grounds to believe, and did believe, that a competent and reliable person was charged with the duty of seeing that the relevant provision was complied with and was in a position to discharge that duty<sup>15</sup>.

It is an offence, punishable on summary conviction with a fine, if a registered society or branch (other than a registered friendly society or branch) fails to comply with any direction given by the Authority requiring it to appoint a qualified auditor or to submit a further annual return<sup>16</sup>.

2279. Insuring money to be paid on child's death.

A society, whether registered or not, or any branch, which pays money on the death of a child under ten years of age otherwise than in accordance with the Friendly Societies Act 1974 commits an offence<sup>1</sup>.

A parent or parent's personal representative claiming money on the death of a child commits an offence if he produces to the society or branch from which the money is claimed a false death certificate or one fraudulently obtained, or in any way attempts to defeat the provisions of the Friendly Societies Act 1974 with respect to payments on the death of children<sup>2</sup>.

Both the offences described above are punishable on summary conviction with a fine<sup>3</sup>.

MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(2) FRIENDLY SOCIETIES/(iii) Registered Societies/Q. OFFENCES/(A) Statutory Offences/2282. Fraudulent withholding and application of property.

2282. Fraudulent withholding and application of property.

If any person<sup>1</sup> obtains possession by false representation or imposition of any property of a registered society<sup>2</sup> or branch<sup>3</sup>, or fraudulently withholds any such property in his possession, or fraudulently applies any such property for purposes which are not authorised by the rules of the society or branch or which are not in accordance with the Friendly Societies Act 1974, he is liable on summary conviction to a fine<sup>4</sup>, and may be ordered to deliver up the property or to repay all money improperly applied<sup>5</sup>. If in proceedings for any such offence which do not result in a conviction, or in civil proceedings instituted for the purpose, a magistrates' court is satisfied that any person having possession of any property of a registered society or branch has failed to deliver it up when requested to do so by the society or branch, the court may make an order requiring him to deliver up that property<sup>6</sup>. If in any such proceedings a magistrates' court is satisfied that any person has applied money belonging to a registered society or branch for purposes which are not authorised by its rules, or which are not in accordance with the Friendly Societies Act 1974, the court may order him to repay to the society or branch the money which he has so applied; and, whatever the nature of the proceedings, the order is enforceable as an order for the payment of money recoverable summarily as a civil debt<sup>7</sup>.

A prima facie case against a defendant is made out if it is proved that he has received the property of the society and has failed to give it up on demand or to account for it<sup>8</sup>. A creditor of an officer, who, being possessed of money of a society, makes an assignment of his property for the benefit of his creditors, cannot be convicted of withholding unless it is shown that specific money belonging to the society is in his possession<sup>9</sup>, nor can a treasurer of an unregistered association, which subsequently becomes registered, who is not party to the registration and declines to deliver up papers and money in his hands belonging to the unregistered association<sup>10</sup>.

2284. Time limit for summary proceedings.

Summary proceedings instituted by the Financial Services Authority<sup>1</sup> for offences under the Friendly Societies Act 1974<sup>2</sup> may be commenced at any time within one year of the first discovery of the offence by the Authority<sup>3</sup>, but not in any case after more than three years from the commission of the offence<sup>4</sup>. Every default constituting an offence is a new offence in every week during which it continues<sup>5</sup>.

1 As to the Financial Services Authority see PARA 2105, and also PARAS 4, 6 et seq.

2 See PARA 2285.

3 This is notwithstanding any limitation on the time for the taking of proceedings contained in any enactment: Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 98(7) (amended by SI 2001/2617).

Summary proceedings for an offence under the Friendly Societies Act 1974 may be instituted by the Financial Services Authority<sup>1</sup> or by any person aggrieved<sup>2</sup>.

In cases of obtaining possession by false representation or imposition, or fraudulently withholding or applying the property of any registered society or branch<sup>3</sup>, proceedings may be instituted only by the following persons<sup>4</sup>:

- 713 (1) in the case of a registered society, the society or any member authorised by it, or the trustees or committee<sup>5</sup>;
- 714 (2) in the case of a registered branch, the branch or any member authorised by it or the trustees or committee, or the society's central body, or any member of the society or branch authorised by the central body<sup>6</sup>;
- 715 (3) in any case, any member of the society or branch authorised by the Financial Services Authority<sup>7</sup>; and
- 716 (4) the Financial Services Authority<sup>8</sup>.

A conviction will be set aside as ultra vires if the information was laid by officers of a society who were not officers appointed for the purpose<sup>9</sup>.

2287. Appeals.

The right of appeal from a conviction by a magistrates' court for an offence under the Friendly Societies Act 1974 is governed by the general law<sup>1</sup>. Where in civil proceedings, or in proceedings which do not result in a conviction, a magistrates' court orders a person to deliver up property or to repay money<sup>2</sup>, the order may be appealed against as if it were an order of the court made on the conviction of the person to whom the order is directed<sup>3</sup>.

2288. Remedy by civil action.

A conviction for an offence under the Friendly Societies Act 1974 does not take away the common law remedy by a claim against an officer for money had and received<sup>1</sup>; but an order for repayment followed by imprisonment in default is a bar to a claim brought by a society for recovery of the same money<sup>2</sup>.

An officer of an unregistered society can be sued for conversion of money to his own use, and the members can obtain an injunction to restrain any dealing with the fund<sup>3</sup>.

Where a person has supplied incorrect rules with intent to mislead or defraud<sup>1</sup>, or has obtained possession of the property of a registered society or branch by false representation or imposition or has fraudulently withheld or applied such property<sup>2</sup>, the provisions of the Friendly Societies Act 1974 do not prevent him from being proceeded against on indictment if he has not previously been convicted of the same offence under that Act<sup>3</sup>. Proceedings on indictment against an officer for misappropriation are not superseded by the statutory remedy provided to enforce a civil debt<sup>4</sup>. In the case of an unregistered society proceedings against persons for misappropriation can be taken only under the ordinary criminal law<sup>5</sup>.

2290. Proceedings by or against registered societies.

The trustees<sup>1</sup> of a registered society<sup>2</sup> or branch<sup>3</sup>, or any officers<sup>4</sup> authorised by its rules, may bring or defend, or cause to be brought or defended, actions or other legal proceedings in any court whatsoever, touching or concerning any property, right or claim of the society or branch, and may sue and be sued in their proper names without any description other than the title of their office<sup>5</sup>. The liability of trustees to be sued in proceedings with respect to a right or claim of the society or branch is restricted to cases in which the right or claim concerns its property and therefore does not extend to all cases where the society or branch funds are threatened by a claim for damages<sup>6</sup>. In all legal proceedings whatsoever concerning property vested in the trustees of a registered society or branch the property may be stated to be the property of the trustees in their own names as trustees for the society or branch without further description<sup>7</sup>.

A trustee or other officer appointed to sue or be sued on behalf of a registered society may sign the acknowledgement of service but must state the position he holds<sup>8</sup>.

Proceedings may be brought against a trustee of a society or branch by the other trustee or trustees<sup>9</sup>.

2291. Officer as defendant.

In legal proceedings brought under the Friendly Societies Act 1974 by a member or a person claiming through a member, a registered society<sup>1</sup> or branch<sup>2</sup> may also be sued in the name, as defendant, of any officer<sup>3</sup> or person who receives contributions or issues policies on behalf of the society or branch within the jurisdiction of the court in which the legal proceedings are brought, with the addition of the words 'on behalf of the society or branch' (naming the same)<sup>4</sup>. An officer sued on behalf of the society is not personally liable<sup>5</sup>.

The death, resignation or removal from office of an officer of a registered society or branch, or any act of the officer after the commencement of proceedings, does not cause the abatement or discontinuance of legal proceedings<sup>6</sup>.

2292. Service of process against officers.

Where proceedings are taken against an officer<sup>1</sup> or other person sued on behalf of a registered society<sup>2</sup> or branch<sup>3</sup>, the officer or other person is sufficiently served: (1) if he is served personally; or (2) if a true copy of the summons, writ or other process: (a) is left at the registered office of the society or branch, or at any place of business of the society or branch within the jurisdiction of the court in which the proceeding is brought; or (b) where that office or place of business is closed, is posted on its outer door<sup>4</sup>. Where the service is not effected in any such way, a copy must be forwarded in a letter sent by registered post or by the recorded delivery service addressed to the committee<sup>5</sup> at the registered office of the society or branch and posted at least six days before any further step is taken in the proceedings<sup>6</sup>.

Where proceedings are taken against a society or branch for the recovery of any fine under the Friendly Societies Act 1974, the summons or other process is sufficiently served by leaving a true copy at its registered office or at any place of business of the society or branch within the jurisdiction of the court in which the proceedings are brought or, if that office or place of business is closed, by posting the copy on its outer door<sup>7</sup>.

A. MANAGEMENT AND ADMINISTRATION

(A) COMMITTEE OF MANAGEMENT AND OTHER OFFICERS

2293. Approval by the Financial Services Authority.

A friendly society<sup>1</sup> which is an authorised person under the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000<sup>2</sup> must take reasonable care to ensure that no person performs a controlled function<sup>3</sup> under an arrangement<sup>4</sup> entered into by the society or a contractor of the society in relation to the carrying on of a regulated activity by the society, unless the Financial Services Authority approves the performance by that person of the controlled function to which the arrangement relates<sup>5</sup>. A friendly society which carries on regulated activities will therefore need to take reasonable care to ensure that each member of its committee of management<sup>6</sup> and each of its other officers and employees who is responsible for the discharge of a controlled function is approved by the Authority as a fit and proper person to perform that function<sup>7</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'friendly society' see PARA 2082.

2 I.e. a person who (so far as is relevant) has permission from the Financial Services Authority under the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 Pt IV (ss 40-55) (see PARA 84 et seq) to carry on one or more regulated activities under that Act: see s 31(1)(a), (2); and PARA 314. As to regulated activities see PARA 84 et seq. As to the Financial Services Authority see PARA 2105, and also PARAS 4, 6 et seq.

3 I.e. a function of a description specified in rules made by the Financial Services Authority under the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000. The Financial Services Authority may only specify a description of function for these purposes if it is satisfied that the function: (1) is likely to enable the person responsible for its performance to exercise a significant influence on the conduct of the authorised person's affairs, so far as relating to the regulated activity; (2) will involve the person performing it in dealing with customers of the authorised person in a manner substantially connected with the carrying on of the regulated activity; or (3) will involve the person performing it in dealing with property of customers of the authorised person in a manner substantially connected with the carrying on of the regulated activity: see s 59(3)-(7); and PARA 367.

4 An 'arrangement' means any kind of arrangement for the performance of a function of the authorised person ('A') which is entered into by A or any contractor of his with another person, and includes in particular that other person's appointment to an office, his becoming a partner or his employment: Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 s 59(10). See PARA 367.

5 Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 s 59(1), (2). See PARA 367.

6 As to the committee of management see PARA 2294.

7 As to the procedure for applying for approval see the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 ss 60-62; and PARAS 368-370. Reference should be made to the Financial Services Authority's Handbook of Rules and Guidance for the detailed specification of controlled functions and for the criteria which determine whether a person is fit and proper to perform those functions. As to the Handbook generally see PARA 22. As to friendly societies, regulation of investment business and the Handbook see also PARA 2109.

MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(2) FRIENDLY SOCIETIES/(iv) Matters Common to All Friendly Societies/A. MANAGEMENT AND ADMINISTRATION/(A) Committee of Management and Other Officers/2294. Committee of management.

2294. Committee of management.

Every friendly society<sup>1</sup> must have a committee of management with at least two members<sup>2</sup>. The committee must appoint one of its members to be chairman of the committee<sup>3</sup>. A member of the committee must normally be elected to office in accordance with the rules of the society<sup>4</sup>, unless the member concerned has been co-opted on to the committee<sup>5</sup>. The committee may co-opt any person as a member of the committee, whether or not he is a member of the society, and whether he is co-opted as an additional member or to fill a vacancy, if: (1) he appears to the committee to be fit and proper to be a member; and (2) he has not failed to be elected as a member of the committee, having been nominated at an election held within the preceding 12 months<sup>6</sup>.

A friendly society must notify the Financial Services Authority<sup>7</sup> within one month of the date on which a person becomes or ceases to be a member of the committee of management of the society, stating the person's name, address and the date on which he became or ceased to be a member of the committee; and in the case of a person becoming a member of the committee, his date of birth must also be notified<sup>8</sup>. Failure so to notify is an offence punishable on summary conviction with a fine<sup>9</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'friendly society' see PARA 2082.

3 Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 27(2).

4 The rules of a friendly society must make provision for the manner in which the officers of the society are elected or appointed and for their removal: see the Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 7(2), Sch 2 para 5 (see PARA 2156); and the Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 5, Sch 3 para 5(3) item 6(a) (see PARA 2121).

8 Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 29(1), (2) (s 29(1), (5) amended by SI 2001/2617). On receipt of such a notice the Financial Services Authority must record the name of the person to whom it relates, and the date on which he began to hold or ceased to hold office, in the public file of the society: Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 29(5) (as so amended). As to the public file see PARA 2382.

Eligibility to be elected a committee member.

2295. Eligibility to be elected a committee member.

Subject to the rules of the friendly society<sup>1</sup> and to the provisions relating to normal retirement age<sup>2</sup>, any person who is not under 18 years of age<sup>3</sup> is eligible to be elected as a member of its committee<sup>4</sup>.

The rules of a society may require the members of the committee to retire at a prescribed age without eligibility for re-election or reappointment<sup>5</sup>. This is known as the 'compulsory retirement age'<sup>6</sup>. If the rules of a society make such a provision, a person who has attained the prescribed age is ineligible to be elected as a member of the committee<sup>7</sup>.

Once a person has attained the normal retirement age<sup>8</sup> for the society he ceases to be eligible for election to the committee unless: (1) he has been approved as eligible to be so elected by a resolution of the committee; and (2) his age and the reasons for the committee's approval of his eligibility have been notified to every person entitled to vote at the election<sup>9</sup>. This does not apply, however, where the compulsory retirement age<sup>10</sup> is no greater than the normal retirement age for members of the committee<sup>11</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'friendly society' see PARA 2082.

2 'Normal retirement age' means 70 years of age, or such lesser age as the rules of the society may prescribe as the normal retirement age for members of its committee: Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 27(5), Sch 11 para 1(1). 'Committee' means the committee of management of the society: Sch 11 para 1(1). As to the committee of management generally see PARA 2294.

3 A person under 18 may not hold any office in the society: Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 5, Sch 3 para 7(b).

A person who holds office as, or is to his knowledge nominated for election or proposed for co-option<sup>1</sup> to the committee<sup>2</sup> as, a member of the committee of a friendly society<sup>3</sup>, must give the society notice, not later than 28 days before he attains the normal retirement age<sup>4</sup> or, as the case may be, the compulsory retirement age<sup>5</sup> for members of the committee, of the date on which he will attain that age<sup>6</sup>. Failure to give the required notice is an offence<sup>7</sup>.

2298. Retirement of elected committee members.

The general rule is subject, however, to the following exceptions<sup>4</sup>:

717 (1) where the committee member had attained the normal retiring age<sup>5</sup> at his election, he must retire at the next annual general meeting following that date<sup>6</sup>;

718 (2) a committee member who attains the normal retirement age or, as the case may be, the compulsory retirement age<sup>7</sup>, must retire from office at the next annual general meeting of the society, subject to any provision of the society's rules for earlier retirement<sup>8</sup>;

719 (3) if the rules provide for the retirement of members of its committee by rotation, they may also provide that a person elected to fill a vacant seat on the committee must retire at the annual general meeting at which, in accordance with the rules for retirement in rotation, the seat is to fall vacant<sup>9</sup>.

- 2 As to the meaning of 'friendly society' see PARA 2082.
- 3 Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 27(5), Sch 11 para 6(1)(a). The date of a person's election to office as a member of the committee, where the rules provide for a postal ballot, is the date of the meeting at which the result of the ballot is declared: Sch 11 para 1(2). ## 2299. Retirement of co-opted members.

A person who is co-opted<sup>1</sup> as a member of the committee<sup>2</sup> of a friendly society<sup>3</sup> ceases to hold office at the end of the permitted period<sup>4</sup> unless he is elected to office as a member within that period<sup>5</sup>.

- 4 'Permitted period', with reference to the tenure of office of a co-opted member of the committee, means the period beginning with the date of his appointment and ending with the declaration of the next election of members of the committee conducted after his appointment, or the expiration of the period of 16 months beginning with the date of his appointment, whichever first occurs: Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 27(5), Sch 11 para 7(2).

Dealings with members of the committee of management.

2300. Dealings with members of the committee of management.

Dealings with members of the committee<sup>1</sup> of a friendly society<sup>2</sup> are governed by specific provisions and also by other provisions applied and modified in their application to friendly societies<sup>3</sup>.

A friendly society or registered branch must not make any payment to a member of the committee of management of the society or branch (1) by way of compensation for loss of office; or (2) as consideration for or in connection with the member's retirement from office, unless particulars of the proposed payment (including its amount) have been disclosed to members of the society or branch and the proposal has been approved by the society or branch<sup>4</sup>.

Certain provisions of the Building Societies Act 1986 concerning directors<sup>5</sup> have effect as if any reference to a director of a building society included a reference to a member of the committee of management of a friendly society or registered branch<sup>6</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'committee' see PARA 2295 note 2.

2 As to the meaning of 'friendly society' see PARA 2082.

3 See the Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 27(5), Sch 11 paras 8-16; and the text and notes 4-6. This also applies to registered branches: s 27(5). As to registered branches see PARA 2091.

4 Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 11 para 8(1) (Sch 11 para 8 substituted by SI 2008/948). The Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 11 para 8(1) does not apply to a bona fide payment by way of damages for breach of contract or by way of pension in respect of past services; and for these purposes, 'pension' includes any superannuation allowance, superannuation gratuity or similar payment: Sch 11 para 8(2) (as so substituted).

5 In the Building Societies Act 1986 s 62 (prohibition of tax-free payments to directors); s 63 (disclosure of interests in contracts and other transactions); s 64 (substantial property transactions); s 65 (restriction on loans, etc); s 66 (sanctions); s 68 and Sch 9 (records of loans, etc); s 69 (disclosure and record of related businesses); and s 70 (interpretation). See PARA 1952 et seq.

6 Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 11 para 9(1). Accordingly, references to a friendly society (or registered branch) are substituted for references to a building society, and references to the committee of management are substituted for references to the board of directors: Sch 11 para 9(2). Additional specific modifications are made in relation to the Building Societies Act 1986 ss 65, 69 (Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 11 para 9(3), (4)); in the latter case one such modification involves the replacement of a list contained in the Building Societies Act 1986 s 69, Sch 10 of particulars required to be notified by a director or officer of a building society, the replacement list being set out in the Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 11 paras 10-16 (Sch 11 para 16 amended by SI 2001/2617): see the Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 11 para 9(6). By a drafting error there is no provision numbered Sch 11 para 9(5). See also note 5.

Chief executive and secretary.

2301. Chief executive and secretary.

Every friendly society<sup>1</sup> must have a chief executive and a secretary<sup>2</sup>. This is in addition to any officers in relation to which the rules of a registered friendly society<sup>3</sup> must or may make provision<sup>4</sup>.

The chief executive of a friendly society is appointed by the committee of management<sup>5</sup> and is responsible, either alone or jointly with one or more other persons, under the immediate authority of the committee, for the conduct of the business of the society<sup>6</sup>. The committee of management must take all reasonable steps to secure that the person appointed as chief executive has the requisite knowledge and experience to discharge the functions of his office<sup>7</sup>.

The secretary must either be appointed by the committee of management or, if the rules of the society so provide, be elected to office in accordance with the rules<sup>8</sup>.

It is permissible for the offices of chief executive and secretary to be held by the same person<sup>9</sup>.

Anything required or authorised to be done by or to the chief executive or secretary may be done by an assistant or deputy secretary or chief executive, if the office in question is vacant, or if there is no chief executive or secretary capable of acting for any other reason. If there is no assistant or deputy capable of acting, any member of the society's staff who is authorised generally or specially for the purpose by the committee of management may act in his place<sup>10</sup>.

A friendly society must notify the Financial Services Authority<sup>11</sup> within one month of a person becoming or ceasing to be the society's chief executive or secretary, stating his full name and address and the date on which he became, or ceased to be, chief executive or secretary<sup>12</sup>. Failure so to notify is an offence punishable on summary conviction with a fine<sup>13</sup>.

(B) MEETINGS AND RESOLUTIONS

2302. Annual general meeting.

A friendly society<sup>1</sup> or registered branch<sup>2</sup> must hold a general meeting every year as its annual general meeting, in addition to any other meetings in that year<sup>3</sup>. No more than 15 months may elapse between the date of one annual general meeting and that of the next<sup>4</sup>. If an incorporated friendly society<sup>5</sup> holds its first annual general meeting within 18 months of its incorporation, it need not hold it in the first year of its incorporation or in the following year<sup>6</sup>. Similarly, if a registered friendly society<sup>7</sup> or registered branch holds its first annual general meeting within 18 months of its registration under the Friendly Societies Act 1974, it need not hold it in the year of its registration or in the following year<sup>8</sup>.

A meeting which is to be held as the annual general meeting of a friendly society or registered branch must be specified as such in any notice calling it<sup>9</sup>. The business which may be dealt with at an annual general meeting includes any resolution, including a special resolution, notwithstanding anything in the rules of the society or branch<sup>10</sup>.

A friendly society or branch commits an offence if it fails to hold an annual general meeting as described above<sup>11</sup>. If no annual general meeting is held as required by the Friendly Societies Act 1992, the Financial Services Authority<sup>12</sup> may call or direct the calling of an annual general meeting and give any ancillary or consequential directions which it considers expedient, including modifying or supplementing the operation of the society's rules in relation to the calling, holding and conducting of the meeting<sup>13</sup>. Default in complying with any such directions of the Authority is an offence<sup>14</sup>.

MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(2) FRIENDLY SOCIETIES/(iv) Matters Common to All Friendly Societies/A. MANAGEMENT AND ADMINISTRATION/(B) Meetings and Resolutions/2303. Notice for calling meetings.

2303. Notice for calling meetings.

A meeting of a friendly society<sup>1</sup> or registered branch<sup>2</sup> must be called by not less than 14 days' notice<sup>3</sup> to members, or a longer period if the rules so require, expiring with the date of the meeting or, where proxy voting is allowed, with whatever earlier date is specified by the society or branch, under its rules, as the final date for the receipt of instruments appointing proxies to vote at the meeting<sup>4</sup>.

Where the rules do not provide for the giving of individual notices to those entitled<sup>5</sup> to vote at meetings of any description, the rules may provide for the giving of notice by advertisement<sup>6</sup>. If the rules provide for notice to be given by advertisement, the rules must include provision requiring the advertisements to be inserted in at least one newspaper circulating in the areas in which the members of the society reside, or where the membership is drawn from a professional body or wholly or mainly from persons engaged in a particular trade, profession or vocation, in an appropriate professional journal, as the rules provide<sup>7</sup>.

If the rules of a society or branch provide: (1) for adjourned meetings to be called without notice or with such notice as the rules require; or (2) for meetings to be held at a specified time and place, on such dates as are prescribed by the rules, either without further notice or with such notice as the rules may require, the above requirements as to notice of meetings do not apply to meetings which are held by virtue of such provisions<sup>8</sup>.

The above provisions are without prejudice to any requirement of the rules of a friendly society or branch to give notice of special resolutions<sup>9</sup> to be moved, or any other business to be transacted, at a meeting of the society or branch<sup>10</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'friendly society' see PARA 2082.

2 As to the meaning of 'registered branch' see PARA 2091.

3 The notice to members must be in the manner prescribed by the rules of the society or branch: Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 30, Sch 12 para 4(1).

2304. Members' entitlement to vote on resolutions.

Any provision in the rules of a friendly society<sup>1</sup> or registered branch<sup>2</sup> is void, to the extent that it would have the effect of making the voting rights conferred on members by the rules conditional on the amount of their subscriptions<sup>3</sup>, except in relation to any provision in the rules excluding or limiting the voting rights of members in such cases or circumstances as the Treasury<sup>4</sup> may prescribe by regulations<sup>5</sup>.

2305. Right to demand a poll.

Any provision in the rules of a friendly society<sup>1</sup> or registered branch<sup>2</sup> is void, if and so far as its effect would be: (1) to exclude the right to demand a poll at a meeting of the society on any question other than the election of a chairman of the meeting or the adjournment of the meeting; or (2) to make a demand for a poll ineffective on any such question, which is made by not fewer than ten members<sup>3</sup> who are entitled to vote at the meeting or, in the case of a society whose rules provide for delegate voting, five delegates who are so entitled<sup>4</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'friendly society' see PARA 2082.

2 As to the meaning of 'registered branch' see PARA 2091.

3 The reference to 'members' includes, where the rules allow the appointment of proxies, reference to persons duly appointed on behalf of members entitled to attend and vote at the meeting: Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 30, Sch 12 para 6(2).

Common to All Friendly Societies/A. MANAGEMENT AND ADMINISTRATION/(B) Meetings and Resolutions/2306. Special resolutions.

2306. Special resolutions.

A resolution of a friendly society<sup>1</sup> may only be passed as a special resolution<sup>2</sup> if:

- 720 (1) it is required by or under any provision of the Friendly Societies Act 1974<sup>3</sup> or the Friendly Societies Act 1992, or by the rules of the society, to be passed as one<sup>4</sup>;
- 721 (2) at least 14 days' notice, or longer if the rules of the society so require, expiring:
- 33
- 16. (a) with the date of the meeting at which the resolution is to be moved; or
  - 17. (b) where proxy voting is permitted, with such earlier date as the society may specify under its rules as the final date for the receipt of instruments appointing proxies to vote at the meeting,
  - 18. is given to members in the manner prescribed by its rules<sup>5</sup>; and
- 722 (3) any such notice (or, in the case of a postal ballot, the ballot papers) includes a statement that the resolution will not be effective unless it is passed as a special resolution<sup>6</sup>.

With one exception, a resolution of a friendly society is not effective as a special resolution unless it is passed by not less than three-quarters of the number of the members of the society entitled to vote on it, who in fact do vote, in person or by proxy, on a poll at a meeting of the society or in a postal ballot<sup>7</sup>. The exception is where the rules of a friendly society provide for delegate voting, in which case a resolution is not effective as a special resolution unless it is passed by not less than three-quarters of the number of delegates entitled to vote on the resolution, who vote on a poll at a meeting or in a postal ballot<sup>8</sup>.

Where the rules of a friendly society do not require individual notice to be given to those entitled to vote on a special resolution, the rules may provide for notice to be given by advertisement<sup>9</sup>. If the rules so provide, they must require the advertisements to be inserted either: (i) in at least one newspaper circulating in the areas in which the members of the society reside; or (ii) where the membership of the society is drawn from a professional body, or wholly or mainly from persons who are or have been engaged in a particular trade, profession or vocation, in an appropriate professional journal<sup>10</sup>.

Notwithstanding anything to the contrary in the rules of a friendly society, proxy voting must be allowed on any resolution to be moved as a special resolution at any meeting of the society other than a delegate meeting; the procedure adopted by the society for proxy voting must comply with any requirements prescribed in regulations made by the Treasury<sup>11</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'friendly society' see PARA 2082.

2 In the Friendly Societies Act 1992, 'special resolution' means a resolution passed in accordance with the provisions described in the text and notes 3-6: ss 30, 119(1), Sch 12 para 7(1).

3 For the purposes of the Friendly Societies Act 1974, 'special resolution', in relation to a registered friendly society, is to be construed in accordance with the Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 12 para 7: see the Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 86(2A) (added by the Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 16 paras 1, 33(b)). See also PARA 2218.

9 Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 12 para 7(4).

10 Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 12 para 7(5).

11 Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 12 para 7(6) (amended by SI 2001/2617). As to the Treasury see PARA 3; and CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 512 et seq; and as to the transfer of functions to the Treasury see PARA 2105.

The Friendly Societies (Proxy Voting) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/2294, reg 2 provides that the procedure must comply with the following requirements:

- 22 (1) in every notice calling a meeting of the society at which a special resolution is to be moved there must be a statement that a member entitled to attend and vote may appoint a proxy to attend and vote instead of him, and that the member may direct the proxy how to vote at the meeting;
- 23 (2) the instrument appointing the proxy must be signed by the appointer or his agent authorised in writing;
- 24 (3) that instrument or any other document necessary to show the validity of, or otherwise relating to, the appointment must be received at the registered office of the society or such other place within the United Kingdom as is specified in the notice convening the meeting, not less than 48 hours before the time for holding the meeting or adjourned meeting at which the person named in the instrument proposes to vote;
- 25 (4) there must be no requirement that the instrument or other document must be received more than seven days before a meeting or adjourned meeting at which that person proposes to vote, in order for the appointment to be effective;
- 26 (5) an instrument must be in the form prescribed by the regulations (ie in the Schedule);
- 27 (6) the society may add to such prescribed form any explanatory notes it may think fit to assist an appointer;
- 28 (7) where the rules of a society permit a proxy to speak at a meeting the instrument of appointment may confer authority to do so;
- 29 (8) a vote given in accordance with the terms of an instrument of appointment is valid notwithstanding;
79. (a) the previous death or mental disorder (see PARA 2218 note 20) of the appointer or revocation of the proxy or of the authority under which it was executed, provided that no intimation in writing of that event has been received by the society at its registered office before the commencement of the meeting or adjourned meeting; or
80. (b) that since the last day specified for the receipt of instruments appointing a proxy the appointer has ceased to be entitled to attend and vote at the meeting.
80

The proxy need not be a member of the society, and in the case of a collecting society (see PARA 2088), must not be a collector or superintendent of the society: reg 2(b). As to the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 2 note 3.

Common to All Friendly Societies/A. MANAGEMENT AND ADMINISTRATION/(B) Meetings and Resolutions/2307. Postal ballots.

2307. Postal ballots.

The rules of a friendly society<sup>1</sup> or registered branch<sup>2</sup> may provide for the voting in an election of the committee of management<sup>3</sup> or, where applicable, of the secretary<sup>4</sup>, or on any resolution (whether special<sup>5</sup> or not), to be conducted in all or in any particular circumstances by postal ballot<sup>6</sup>.

Any postal ballot must comply with the following requirements<sup>7</sup>. Notice of a postal ballot must be given not less than 14 nor more than 56 days before the date which the society or branch specifies as the final date for the receipt of completed ballot papers (known as the 'voting date')<sup>8</sup>. Notice must be given to every member of the society or branch who would be entitled to vote in the election or on the resolution if the voting date for the election or resolution fell on the date of the notice<sup>9</sup>.

Notice of a postal ballot must contain such other notices relating to the election or resolution, and be accompanied by such other documents, as would be required to be given or sent to a member in connection with the election or resolution concerned had it been intended to hold the election or vote on the resolution at a meeting instead of by a postal ballot, with the exception of any notice relating to voting by proxy at a meeting<sup>10</sup>.

2308. Resolutions requiring special notice.

Where special notice of a resolution is required under any provision of the Friendly Societies Act 1992<sup>1</sup>, the resolution is not effective unless notice of the intention to move it has been given to the friendly society<sup>2</sup> concerned at least 28 days before the meeting at which it is to be moved<sup>3</sup>. The society concerned must give its members notice of such a resolution at the same time and in the same manner as its rules require for notice of the meeting or, if that is not practicable, by advertisement in a newspaper having an appropriate circulation<sup>4</sup>, or in any other mode allowed by the society's rules, at least 14 days before the meeting<sup>5</sup>. If, after notice has been given to the society of the intention to move such a resolution, a meeting is called for a date 28 days or less after the notice has been given, the notice is deemed properly given, even though not within the time required<sup>6</sup>.

1 Eg a resolution at a general meeting to remove an auditor before the expiry of his term of office: see the Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 72, Sch 14 para 11; and PARA 2338.

2 As to the meaning of 'friendly society' see PARA 2082.

3 Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 30, Sch 12 para 9(1).

4 'Appropriate circulation' is not defined, but it is conceived that the circulation of newspapers required for notice of calling meetings or the advertisement of special resolutions pertains: see PARAS 2303 text and note 7, 2306 text and note 10.

B. AUTHORISATION

2309. Authorisation by the Financial Services Authority.

Friendly societies must apply to the Financial Services Authority<sup>1</sup> for permission to carry out activities regulated by the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000<sup>2</sup>. The regulation of such activities is dealt with elsewhere in this title<sup>3</sup>.

1 As to the Financial Services Authority see PARA 2105, and also PARAS 4, 6 et seq.

2 Ie under the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 Pt IV (ss 40-55): see PARA 348 et seq. See also PARA 2109. A society becomes an 'authorised person' for the purposes of the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 when the necessary permission is given: see s 31(1)(a), (2); and PARA 2293. ## C. POWERS OF THE FINANCIAL SERVICES AUTHORITY

2310. Power to petition the court or apply for an order.

Where the Financial Services Authority<sup>1</sup> has reason to believe that any of the following conditions is satisfied, it may present a petition<sup>2</sup> to the High Court<sup>3</sup> for the winding up of a friendly society<sup>4</sup> under the applicable winding up legislation<sup>5</sup>. The conditions are:

- 723 (1) that the society is carrying on activities that are not activities which such a society is permitted to carry on by the Friendly Societies Act 1974 or the Friendly Societies Act 1992<sup>6</sup>;
- 724 (2) that the society is not carrying on any specified activity<sup>7</sup>;
- 725 (3) that the society is failing to satisfy any obligation to which it is subject by virtue of any provision of the law of any EEA state<sup>8</sup> other than the United Kingdom<sup>9</sup> which gives effect to the General Insurance Directives<sup>10</sup> or the Life Assurance Consolidation Directive<sup>11</sup> or is otherwise applicable to the insurance activities of the society in that state<sup>12</sup>.

A court may not make an order for the winding up of a society under these provisions unless it is satisfied that at least one of these conditions is satisfied<sup>13</sup>.

Where the Authority has reason to believe that any of the above conditions is satisfied, it may make application to the High Court for an order<sup>14</sup> directing the society to modify its business as directed in the order, or to take such other steps as may be directed<sup>15</sup>. The court may not make such an order unless it is satisfied that one or more of the above conditions are satisfied<sup>16</sup>.

1 As to the Financial Services Authority see PARA 2105, and also PARAS 4, 6 et seq.

2 The power to present a petition is available to the Financial Services Authority whether or not it has previously presented a petition: Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 52(7) (amended by SI 2001/2617).

3 Or, where applicable, to the Court of Session or the High Court in Northern Ireland: see the Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 52(8).

4 As to the meaning of 'friendly society' see PARA 2082.

5 Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 52(1) (amended by SI 2001/2617). As to the meaning of 'the applicable winding up legislation' in relation to an incorporated friendly society see the Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 23; and PARA 2145 note 3. In relation to a registered friendly society 'the applicable winding up legislation' means the Insolvency Act 1986 Pt V (ss 220-229) (see COMPANY AND PARTNERSHIP INSOLVENCY vol 7(4) (2004 Reissue) PARA 1147 et seq), or, where the society's registered office is in Northern Ireland, the Insolvency (Northern Ireland) Order 1989, SI 1989/2405, Pt VI: Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 52(9).

7 Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 52(2)(b). The activities referred to are any activities falling within Sch 2: see PARA 2096.

8 'EEA state' means a state which is a contracting party to the EEA Agreement; and 'EEA Agreement' means the Agreement on the European Economic Area signed at Oporto on 2 May 1992 as adjusted by the Protocol signed at Brussels on 17 March 1993: Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 119(1) (definitions added by SI 1994/1984).

9 As to the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 2 note 3.

10 'General Insurance Directives' means the First General Insurance Directive (ie EC Council Directive 73/239 of 24 July 1973 (OJ L228, 16.8.73, p 3) on the coordination of laws, regulations and administrative provisions relating to the taking-up and pursuit of the business of direct insurance other than life assurance), the Second General Insurance Directive (ie EC Council Directive 88/357 of 22 June 1988 (OJ L172, 4.7.88, p 1) on the coordination of laws, regulations and administrative provisions relating to direct insurance other than life assurance and laying down provisions to facilitate the effective exercise of freedom to provide services and amending Council Directive 73/239), the Third General Insurance Directive (ie EC Council Directive 92/49 of 18 June 1992 (OJ L228, 11.8.92, p 1) on the coordination of laws, regulations and administrative provisions relating to direct insurance other than life assurance and amending Council Directives 73/239 and 88/357), and such other directives as make provision with respect to the business of direct insurance other than life assurance: see the Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 119(1) (definition substituted by SI 1994/1984). References in the Friendly Societies Act 1992 to the First or Third General Insurance Directive are references to that directive as amended by European Parliament and Council Directive 95/26 of 29 June 1995 (OJ L168, 18.7.95, p 7) amending EEC Directive 77/780 (OJ L322, 17.12.77, p 30) and EEC Directive 89/646 (OJ L386, 30.12.89, p 1) in the field of credit institutions, EEC Directive 73/239 (OJ L228, 16.8.73, p 3) and EEC Directive 92/49 (OJ L228, 11.8.92, p 1) in the field of non-life insurance, EEC Directive 93/22 (OJ L141, 11.6.93, p 27) in the field of investment firms and EEC Directive 85/611 (OJ L375, 31.12.85, p 3) in the field of undertakings for collective investment in transferable securities ('UCITS') with a view to reinforcing prudential supervision and as amended by the Reinsurance Directive (ie European Parliament and EC Council Directive 2005/68 (OJ L323, 9.12.2005, p 1) on reinsurance and amending EEC Council Directives 73/239, 92/49 as well as EC Directives 98/78 and 2002/83): see the Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 119(1A) (added by SI 1996/1669; and amended by SI 2001/3649; SI 2004/3379; SI 2007/3253); the Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 119(3) (added by SI 2007/3253).

11 The reference to the 'Life Assurance Consolidation Directive' is a reference to European Parliament and Council Directive 2002/83 of 5 November 2002 (OJ L345, 19.12.2002, p 1) concerning life assurance: see the Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 119(1) (definition added by SI 2004/3379). References in the Friendly Societies Act 1992 to the Life Assurance Consolidation Directive are references to that directive as amended by the Reinsurance Directive (ie European Parliament and EC Council Directive 2005/68 (OJ L323, 9.12.2005, p 1)): see the Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 119(1D) (added by SI 2007/3253).

MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(2) FRIENDLY SOCIETIES/(iv) Matters Common to All Friendly Societies/C. POWERS OF THE FINANCIAL SERVICES AUTHORITY/2311. Supervision of activities of subsidiaries etc.

2311. Supervision of activities of subsidiaries etc.

If it appears to the Financial Services Authority<sup>1</sup> that the activities of subsidiaries<sup>2</sup> of an incorporated friendly society<sup>3</sup> or bodies jointly controlled by it<sup>4</sup> are, or may become, disproportionate to those of the friendly society group<sup>5</sup> as a whole, it may direct the society: (1) to take or refrain from taking steps specified in the direction with a view to securing that the activities in question cease to be, or do not become, disproportionate; or (2) to take specified steps with a view to securing that it ceases to have control or joint control of any subsidiary or jointly controlled body in question, or that any such subsidiary or jointly controlled body is wound up<sup>6</sup>.

If it appears to the Authority that any activity of a subsidiary of, or body jointly controlled by, an incorporated friendly society, is unsuitable for a member of a friendly society group, it may direct<sup>7</sup> the society: (a) to take steps specified in the direction with a view to securing that that activity ceases; or (b) to take steps so specified with a view to securing that the society ceases to have control or joint control of the subsidiary or jointly controlled body, or that the subsidiary or jointly controlled body is wound up<sup>8</sup>.

A direction under these provisions may specify that the society is to comply with it: (i) immediately on receipt of a final notice in relation to the direction; (ii) before the end of such period as may be specified in the direction, beginning with the giving of a final notice in relation to the direction; or (iii) on the happening of an event subsequent to the giving of such a notice<sup>9</sup>. A society given such a direction must either comply with it or convert itself into a company<sup>10</sup>. The Authority may by written notice to the society vary a direction at the request of the society or revoke such a direction<sup>11</sup>. If a society requests the Authority to notify it as to whether, in the Authority's opinion, it has complied with such a direction, the Authority is obliged to comply with the request<sup>12</sup>.

E. INFORMATION

2316. Powers to obtain information, documents etc.

The Financial Services Authority<sup>1</sup> may, by notice to a friendly society<sup>2</sup> or to a subsidiary or jointly controlled body of a friendly society<sup>3</sup>, require it to take any of the following actions<sup>4</sup>:

- 726 (1) to furnish to it, within a specified<sup>5</sup> period, or at a specified time or times, such specified information<sup>6</sup> as the Authority considers it needs for the purposes of its supervisory functions<sup>7</sup>;
- 727 (2) to produce to it, at a specified time and place, such specified documents or other material<sup>8</sup> as the Authority considers it needs for the purposes of its supervisory functions<sup>9</sup>;
- 728 (3) to provide to it, within a specified period, such explanations of specified matters<sup>10</sup> as the Authority considers it needs for the purposes of its supervisory functions<sup>11</sup>;
- 729 (4) to furnish to it, within a specified period, a report by an accountant or actuary approved by the Authority on, or on specified aspects of, information or documents or other material furnished or produced to the Authority<sup>12</sup>.

Any person authorised for the purpose by the Authority (an 'authorised officer') may, on producing evidence of his authority, require a friendly society or a subsidiary of, or body jointly controlled by, an incorporated friendly society<sup>13</sup>:

- 730 (a) to furnish to him forthwith such specified information as the Authority considers it needs for the purposes of its supervisory functions<sup>14</sup>;
- 731 (b) to produce to him forthwith such documents or other material as the Authority considers it needs for those purposes<sup>15</sup>;
- 732 (c) to provide to him forthwith such explanations of specified matters as the Authority considers it needs for those purposes<sup>16</sup>.

Where the Authority has power under head (1), (2) or (3) above, or by virtue of heads (a) to (c) above an authorised officer has power, to require any information, documents, material or explanation by a friendly society, the Authority or authorised officer has the like powers as regards any person who: (i) is or has been an officer<sup>17</sup>, employee or agent<sup>18</sup> of the society, or in relation to a directive society<sup>19</sup>, a controller<sup>20</sup> or manager of the society; or (ii) in the case of documents or material, appears to the Authority or authorised officer to have the document or material in his possession or under his control<sup>21</sup>. Both the Authority and an authorised officer have similar powers, as regards a subsidiary of, or body jointly controlled by, an incorporated friendly society, in relation to any person who is or has been an officer, employee or agent of the subsidiary or jointly controlled body or, in the case of documents or material, who appears to the Authority or authorised officer to have the document or material in his possession or under his control<sup>22</sup>.

Where such a person from whom production of a document or material is required claims a lien on the document or material, the production of it is without prejudice to the lien<sup>23</sup>.

Where the Authority or an authorised officer requires production of documents or material under the provisions described above and they are not produced by the person concerned, the Authority or authorised officer may require that person to state, to the best of his knowledge and belief, where they are; if they are produced, the Authority or authorised officer may take copies of or extracts from them and require the person who produces them or any other person who is or has been an officer, employee or agent of the friendly society or other body, as the case may be, to provide an explanation of the documents or material<sup>24</sup>.

A barrister, solicitor, advocate and certain other persons are exempt from the above requirements if the document or material concerned is contained in a privileged communication or is protected from disclosure on the ground of confidentiality<sup>25</sup>.

Any person who fails without reasonable excuse to furnish any information or report, to produce any documents or material, or to provide any explanation or make any statement, when required to do so under the provisions described above, is guilty of an offence<sup>26</sup>.

Any friendly society which furnishes any information, provides any explanation or makes any statement, which is false or misleading in a material particular, is guilty of an offence<sup>27</sup>. Any person who knowingly or recklessly does so is guilty of an offence<sup>28</sup>.

2 As to the meaning of 'friendly society' see PARA 2082.

3 The Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 62 does not authorise any requirement in relation to information, documents or other material (see note 6) to be imposed on a subsidiary of or body jointly controlled by an incorporated friendly society unless that subsidiary or body carries on business in the United Kingdom; but a requirement may be imposed under s 62 on a friendly society in relation to information, documents or other material in the possession or control of a subsidiary of or body jointly controlled by the society which does not carry on business in the United Kingdom: s 62(2). As to the meanings of 'subsidiary' and 'jointly controlled body' see PARA 2134. As to the meaning of 'incorporated friendly society' see PARA 2082. As to the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 2 note 3.

5 'Specified' in the Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 62 means specified in a notice under that provision: s 62(12).

6 These provisions apply to information, documents or other material, or explanations of matters which relate to the activities or plans for the future development of a friendly society or of a subsidiary or jointly controlled body of an incorporated friendly society: Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 62(1).

7 Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 62(3)(a) (as amended: see note 4). In relation to requirements imposed by s 62, 'the purposes of its supervisory functions' means the purposes of the discharge by the Authority of any of its functions under the Friendly Societies Act 1992: s 62(1) (amended by SI 2001/2617).

8 As to the documents and materials to which these provisions apply see note 6.

9 Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 62(3)(b) (as amended: see note 4).

10 As to such explanations to which these provisions apply see note 6.

16 Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 62(3A)(c) (as added: see note 13).

17 As to the meaning of 'officer' see PARA 2115 note 11.

18 'Agent', in relation to a friendly society or a subsidiary of, or body jointly controlled by, an incorporated friendly society, includes its bankers, accountants, solicitors and auditors and the appropriate actuary: Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 62(12). As to the meaning of 'appropriate actuary' see PARA 2139 note 4.

19 In relation to a society to which the Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 37(2) or (3) applies: see PARA 2112 note 15.

20 'Controller', in relation to a friendly society to which the Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 37(2) or (3) applies (see PARA 2112 note 15), means a person who, either alone or with any associate or associates: (1) is entitled to exercise or control the exercise of 10% or more of the voting power at any general meeting of the society; or (2) is able to exercise a significant influence over the management of the society by virtue of an entitlement to exercise, or to control the exercise of, the voting power at any general meeting of the society: ss 55A(2), 119(1) (s 55A added by SI 1994/1984; and amended by SI 2001/2617). As to general meetings see PARA 2302.

2317. Entry of premises under warrant.

A justice of the peace may issue a warrant<sup>1</sup> if satisfied on information on oath given by or on behalf of the Financial Services Authority<sup>2</sup>, an authorised officer<sup>3</sup>, or a person appointed as an investigator<sup>4</sup> or as an inspector<sup>5</sup>, that there are reasonable grounds for believing that the first or second set of conditions below is satisfied<sup>6</sup>.

The first set of conditions is that:

- 733 (1) there are on the premises specified in the warrant information, documents or other material in relation to which a requirement has been imposed on any person<sup>7</sup>, or which it is the duty of any person to produce<sup>8</sup>; and
- 734 (2) that person has failed (wholly or in part) to comply with that requirement or, having been requested to do so, has failed (wholly or in part) to comply with that duty<sup>9</sup>.

The second set of conditions is that:

- 735 (a) there are on the premises specified in the warrant information, documents or other material in relation to which a requirement could be imposed on any person<sup>10</sup>, or which any person could be requested to produce in compliance with the duty imposed on him<sup>11</sup>; and
- 736 (b) if such a requirement were imposed, or such a request made it would not be complied with or any information, documents or other material to which it related would be removed, tampered with or destroyed<sup>12</sup>.

2319. Investigations on behalf of the Financial Services Authority.

If it appears to the Financial Services Authority<sup>1</sup> desirable, for the purpose of its supervisory functions<sup>2</sup>, it may appoint one or more competent persons to investigate and report to it on the state and conduct of the activities of a friendly society<sup>3</sup>, or on any particular aspect of those activities<sup>4</sup>.

If a person so appointed thinks it necessary for the purposes of his investigation, he may also investigate the activities of any body corporate which is, or has at any relevant time been, a subsidiary of, or jointly controlled by, the society under investigation<sup>5</sup>.

Anyone who is or has been an officer<sup>6</sup>, employee or agent<sup>7</sup> of a friendly society or other body which is under investigation is under a duty:

- 737 (1) to produce to the investigator all records, books and papers relating to the body concerned which are in his custody or power;
- 738 (2) to attend before the investigator when required to do so;
- 739 (3) to answer any question which is put to him by the investigator with respect to any friendly society or other body which is under investigation, and otherwise to give him all assistance in connection with the investigation which he is reasonably able to give<sup>8</sup>.

Anyone who fails, without reasonable excuse, to produce any records, books or papers which it is his duty to produce, or to comply with his duty to attend or answer any question, commits an offence<sup>9</sup>. Anyone who is or has been an officer, employee or agent of a friendly society or other body and who knowingly or recklessly furnishes to an investigator any information which is false or misleading in a material particular commits an offence<sup>10</sup>.

1 As to the Financial Services Authority see PARA 2105, and also PARAS 4, 6 et seq.

2 The purposes of the discharge by the Financial Services Authority of any of its functions under the Friendly Societies Act 1992: s 62(1) (amended by SI 2001/2617); applied by the Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 65(6) (amended by SI 2001/2617). See also PARA 2316 note 7.

6 As to the meaning of 'officer' see PARA 2115 note 11.

7 'Agent', in relation to a friendly society or other body whose activities are under investigation, includes its bankers, accountants, solicitors and auditors and the appropriate actuary: Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 65(6). As to the meaning of 'appropriate actuary' see PARA 2139 note 4.

8 Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 65(3) (amended by SI 1994/1984; and SI 2001/2617). In relation to a friendly society to which the Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 37(2) or (3) applies (see PARA 2112 note 15), the reference in s 65(3) to an officer includes a reference to a controller or manager: s 65(5A) (added by SI 1994/1984). As to the meaning of 'controller' see PARA 2316 note 20.

9 Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 65(4). The offence is punishable on summary conviction with a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale: s 65(4). As to the standard scale see PARA 27 note 21.

10 Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 65(5) (amended by SI 1994/1984; and SI 2001/2617). The offence is punishable on conviction on indictment with imprisonment for up to two years or a fine or both, and on summary conviction with a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum: Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 65(5) (as so amended). As to the statutory maximum see PARA 56 note 24.

In relation to a friendly society to which s 37(2) or (3) applies (see PARA 2112 note 15), the reference in s 65(5) to an officer includes a reference to a controller or manager: s 65(5A) (as added: see note 8).

MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(2) FRIENDLY SOCIETIES/(iv) Matters Common to All Friendly Societies/F. INVESTIGATIONS, INSPECTIONS AND THE CALLING OF MEETINGS/2320. Inspections and special meetings: in general.

2320. Inspections and special meetings: in general.

The requisite number of members of a friendly society<sup>1</sup> (that is, one-tenth of the total number of members or, in the case of a society having more than 1,000 members, 100 of them<sup>2</sup>), may apply to the Financial Services Authority<sup>3</sup> for the appointment of one or more competent inspectors to investigate and report on the affairs of the society, or for a special meeting of the society to be called to consider its affairs, or for both of these things<sup>4</sup>. In the case of a registered society with branches, regardless of the number of members, the central body of the society must first consent to the application being made<sup>5</sup>.

The Authority is also empowered to appoint an inspector, call a special meeting, or do both, if it is of the opinion that an investigation should be held into a society's affairs, or that the affairs of the society call for consideration by a meeting of its members<sup>6</sup>.

The Authority may extend an investigation or consideration at a members' meeting to include the affairs of a subsidiary or jointly controlled body of the society<sup>7</sup> concerned, either where the members' application requests it, or if the Authority is of the opinion that it is necessary to the investigation of the friendly society<sup>8</sup>. The inspectors may similarly extend the scope of an investigation, with the consent of the Authority, if they are of that opinion<sup>9</sup>.

Where an application is made by the requisite number of members the Authority may require evidence from the applicants, showing that they have good reasons for making the application and are not actuated by malicious, frivolous, vexatious or scandalous motives<sup>10</sup>. The Authority may direct what notice of the application is to be given to the society concerned or, if the application extends to the affairs of a subsidiary or jointly controlled body, what notice is to be given to that body also<sup>11</sup>.

The Authority may require security to be given for the costs of the investigation or meeting, before appointing the inspectors or calling the meeting<sup>12</sup>. The expenses of or incidental to an investigation are to be met by the Authority, in the first place, subject to certain rights of contribution<sup>13</sup>. The costs of an investigation must not exceed the corresponding Companies Act limit<sup>14</sup>. The expenses of or incidental to a meeting are to be defrayed by the applicants, or out of the funds of the society, or by past or present members or officers of the society, in such proportions as the Authority directs<sup>15</sup>.

Where, at the instance of the Authority:

- 740 (1) an inspection or meeting is proposed; or
- 741 (2) the scope of an investigation or the consideration of the meeting is extended to any subsidiary or jointly controlled body, the Authority must inform the society of its proposed action and the grounds for it, and the society or, as the case may be, the subsidiary or jointly controlled body is entitled to give the Authority an explanatory statement, within 14 days, by way of reply<sup>16</sup>.

Inspectors appointed for these purposes have the powers necessary for or incidental to the discharge of their functions under these provisions, as well as further specific powers<sup>17</sup>.

Additional provisions regarding special meetings.

2321. Additional provisions regarding special meetings.

Where a special meeting of a friendly society<sup>1</sup> is called<sup>2</sup>, the Financial Services Authority<sup>3</sup> may direct where and when the meeting is to be held, what is to be discussed and determined at the meeting, and which members may attend and vote at it, and may give such other directions about the calling, holding and conduct of the meeting it thinks fit<sup>4</sup>. The Authority may appoint a person to be chairman of the meeting, or in default of such appointment the meeting may appoint its own chairman<sup>5</sup>. The meeting has all the powers of a meeting called according to the rules of the society<sup>6</sup>. These provisions and any direction given by the Authority have effect notwithstanding anything in the rules of the society concerned<sup>7</sup>.

MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(2) FRIENDLY SOCIETIES/(iv) Matters Common to All Friendly Societies/F. INVESTIGATIONS, INSPECTIONS AND THE CALLING OF MEETINGS/2322. Additional provisions regarding inspections.

2322. Additional provisions regarding inspections.

Where an inspector is appointed<sup>1</sup> to investigate the affairs of a friendly society and, if the investigation has been so extended, the affairs of any body which is or has been a subsidiary of, or jointly controlled by, the friendly society and is also the subject of the investigation<sup>2</sup>, it is the duty of all past and present officers<sup>3</sup>, employees and agents<sup>4</sup> of the body under investigation: (1) to produce to the inspectors all documents and material of or relating to the body which are in their custody or power; (2) to attend before the inspectors when required to do so; (3) otherwise to give the inspectors all assistance in connection with the investigation which they are reasonably able to give<sup>5</sup>. Any other person who the inspectors consider is, or may be, in possession of information concerning the affairs of the body under investigation may be required to produce documents or material in his custody or power relating to the body under investigation, to attend before the inspectors, and to render them all assistance in connection with the investigation which he is reasonably able to give, and that person is under a duty to comply with the requirement<sup>6</sup>.

The inspectors may examine any such person on oath, and may administer an oath accordingly<sup>7</sup>. An answer given by such a person to a question put to him may be used in evidence against him<sup>8</sup>. If any such person refuses to produce any document or material which he is under a duty to produce, refuses to attend before the inspectors when required to do so, or refuses to answer any question put to him by the inspectors with respect to the affairs of the body in question, the inspectors may certify the refusal in writing to the High Court; the court may inquire into the case, hear witnesses and any statement offered in defence, and may punish the offender as if he had been guilty of contempt of court<sup>9</sup>.

The inspectors may, and if the Financial Services Authority<sup>10</sup> so directs must, make interim reports to the Authority, but if matters come to the knowledge of inspectors tending to show that an offence has been committed, they may inform the Authority of those matters at any time<sup>11</sup>.

The Authority may, if it thinks fit<sup>12</sup>:

742 (a) send a copy of the inspectors' report to the body whose affairs were the subject of the investigation<sup>13</sup>;

743 (b) furnish a copy of any such report, on request, to<sup>14</sup>:

19. (i) any member of the body whose affairs were the subject of the investigation<sup>15</sup>;

20. (ii) the auditors of that body<sup>16</sup>;

21. (iii) any person whose conduct is referred to in the report<sup>17</sup>;

22. (iv) any other person whose financial interests appear to the Authority to be affected by matters dealt with in the report, whether as creditor or otherwise<sup>18</sup>;

744 (c) have the report printed and published<sup>19</sup>.

A copy of a report of inspectors appointed to hold an investigation, certified by the Authority to be a true copy, is admissible in any legal proceedings as evidence of the inspectors' opinion on anything in the report; and a document purporting to be such a certificate must be received in evidence and deemed to be such a certificate, unless the contrary is proved<sup>20</sup>.

The Authority is entitled to be repaid the costs of an investigation:

- 745 (A) by the applicants for the investigation, to such extent as the Authority directs;
- 746 (B) by any body whose affairs were the subject of the investigation, to such extent as the Authority directs;
- 747 (C) by any person convicted of an offence in proceedings instituted as a result of the investigation, to such extent as the court before which he was convicted may order, and a person liable under any one of heads (A) to (C) above is entitled to contribution from any other person liable under the same head, according to the amount of their respective liabilities under it<sup>21</sup>.

(A) ACCOUNTING RECORDS

2323. Accounting records.

Every friendly society<sup>1</sup> and every registered branch<sup>2</sup> must cause accounting records<sup>3</sup> to be kept<sup>4</sup>. Where an incorporated friendly society<sup>5</sup> has subsidiaries<sup>6</sup> or jointly controls other bodies<sup>7</sup>, the society must also secure that such accounting records are kept by them as to enable the society to comply with the statutory requirements<sup>8</sup> in relation to the business of the society, those subsidiaries and jointly controlled bodies<sup>9</sup>.

The accounting records must be kept in an orderly manner and must be sufficient to show and explain the transactions of the society or branch<sup>10</sup>. In particular they must:

- 748 (1) disclose the financial position of the society or branch at any time with reasonable accuracy and promptness<sup>11</sup>;
- 749 (2) enable the committee of management properly to discharge its duties<sup>12</sup> and its function of direction of the affairs of the society or branch<sup>13</sup>; and
- 750 (3) enable the society or branch to discharge the duties<sup>14</sup> imposed on it<sup>15</sup>.

The accounting records must contain entries from day to day of all sums received and paid by the society or branch and the matters in respect of which they are received or paid<sup>16</sup>. They must also contain entries from day to day of every transaction entered into by the society or branch which will, or there is reasonable ground for expecting may, give rise to assets or liabilities, other than insignificant ones, in respect of the management of the society or branch<sup>17</sup>. They must contain a record of the assets and liabilities of the society and branch<sup>18</sup>.

Accounting records must be kept at the registered office of the society or branch, or at such other place or places as the committee of management thinks fit, and must be open to inspection by the committee of management at all times<sup>19</sup>. Accounting records must be preserved for six years from the date on which they were made<sup>20</sup>.

(B) ANNUAL ACCOUNTS AND REPORT

(a) Societies' and Branches' Individual Accounts

2324. Duty to prepare individual accounts.

The committee of management<sup>1</sup> of a friendly society<sup>2</sup> or registered branch<sup>3</sup> is required to prepare accounts for the society or branch for each of its financial years<sup>4</sup>. These accounts are the 'individual accounts' of the society or branch<sup>5</sup>. The individual accounts of a friendly society or registered branch of a society may be prepared in accordance with the Friendly Societies Act 1992<sup>6</sup> ('Friendly Societies Act individual accounts'), or in accordance with international accounting standards<sup>7</sup> ('IAS individual accounts')<sup>8</sup>.

After the first financial year in which the committee of management of a friendly society or registered branch prepares IAS individual accounts (the 'first IAS year'), all subsequent individual accounts of the society or branch must be prepared in accordance with international accounting standards unless there is a relevant change of circumstance<sup>9</sup>. There is a relevant change of circumstance if, at any time during or after the first IAS year:

- 751 (1) the society or branch becomes a subsidiary undertaking<sup>10</sup> of another undertaking and individual accounts for that undertaking are not prepared in accordance with international accounting standards<sup>11</sup>;
- 752 (2) the society or branch ceases to be a society or part of a society with securities admitted to trading on a regulated market<sup>12</sup>; or
- 753 (3) a parent undertaking<sup>13</sup> of the society or branch ceases to be an undertaking with securities admitted to trading on a regulated market<sup>14</sup>.

If, having changed to preparing Friendly Societies Act individual accounts following a relevant change of circumstance, the committee of management again prepares IAS individual accounts for the society or branch, the provisions set out above<sup>15</sup> apply again as if the first financial year for which such accounts are again prepared were the first IAS year<sup>16</sup>.

Form and content of individual accounts.

2325. Form and content of individual accounts.

Friendly Societies Act individual accounts<sup>1</sup> must comprise a balance sheet as at the last day of the financial year<sup>2</sup> and an income and expenditure account<sup>3</sup>. The balance sheet must give a true and fair view<sup>4</sup> of the state of affairs of the society or branch as at the end of the financial year; and the income and expenditure account must give a true and fair view of the income and expenditure of the society or branch for the financial year<sup>5</sup>.

Friendly Societies Act individual accounts must comply with the requirements of regulations<sup>6</sup> as to the form and content of the balance sheet and income and expenditure account and additional information to be provided by way of notes to the accounts or otherwise<sup>7</sup>. Where compliance with the provisions of those regulations, and the other provisions of the Friendly Societies Act 1992 as to the matters to be included in the individual accounts of a society or branch or in notes to those accounts, would not be sufficient to give a true and fair view, the necessary additional information must be given in the accounts or in a note to them<sup>8</sup>. If in special circumstances compliance with any of those provisions is inconsistent with the requirement to give a true and fair view, the committee of management must depart from that provision to the extent necessary to give a true and fair view<sup>9</sup>. Particulars of any such departure, the reasons for it, and its effect, must be given in a note to the accounts<sup>10</sup>.

The Treasury may by regulations:

- 754 (1) add to the classes of documents to be comprised in the Friendly Societies Act individual accounts of a society or branch<sup>11</sup>;
- 755 (2) make provision as to the matters to be included in any document so added<sup>12</sup>;
- 756 (3) modify the requirements<sup>13</sup> as to the matters to be stated in any document comprised in the Friendly Societies Act individual accounts of a society or branch<sup>14</sup>;
- 757 (4) reduce the classes of documents to be comprised in the Friendly Societies Act individual accounts of a society or branch<sup>15</sup>.

Such regulations may make different provision for different cases and may include incidental and supplementary provisions<sup>16</sup>.

Where the committee of management of a friendly society prepare IAS individual accounts for a society or branch, it must state in the notes to those accounts that the accounts have been prepared in accordance with international accounting standards<sup>17</sup>.

2325 Form and content of individual accounts

NOTE 6--SI 1994/1983 reg 8 amended: SI 2008/1144.

2326. Duty to prepare group accounts.

If at the end of a financial year<sup>1</sup> an incorporated friendly society<sup>2</sup> has subsidiary undertakings<sup>3</sup>, the committee of management<sup>4</sup>, in addition to preparing individual accounts<sup>5</sup> for the year, must prepare consolidated accounts for the year for the society and those undertakings taken as a whole, unless exempted<sup>6</sup>. Those accounts are the society's group accounts<sup>7</sup>.

Certain friendly societies are obliged<sup>8</sup> to prepare their group accounts in accordance with international accounting standards<sup>9</sup> ('IAS group accounts')<sup>10</sup>. The group accounts of other friendly societies may be prepared in accordance with the Friendly Societies Act 1992<sup>11</sup> ('Friendly Societies Act group accounts'), or may be IAS group accounts prepared in accordance with international accounting standards<sup>12</sup>.

After the first financial year in which the committee of management of a friendly society prepares IAS group accounts (the 'first IAS year'), all subsequent group accounts of the society must be prepared in accordance with international accounting standards unless there is a relevant change of circumstance<sup>13</sup>. There is a relevant change of circumstance if, at any time during or after the first IAS year:

- 758 (1) the society becomes a subsidiary undertaking of another undertaking and accounts for that undertaking and its subsidiary undertakings (taken as a whole) are not prepared in accordance with international accounting standards<sup>14</sup>;
- 759 (2) the society ceases to be a society with securities admitted to trading on a regulated market<sup>15</sup>; or
- 760 (3) a parent undertaking<sup>16</sup> of the society ceases to be an undertaking with securities admitted to trading on a regulated market<sup>17</sup>.

If, having changed to preparing Friendly Societies Act group accounts following a relevant change of circumstance, the committee of management again prepares IAS group accounts for the society, the above provisions<sup>18</sup> apply again as if the first financial year for which such accounts are again prepared were the first IAS year<sup>19</sup>.

6 Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 69E(1) (s 69E added by SI 2005/2211). The Treasury may by regulations exempt specified descriptions of incorporated friendly societies with subsidiaries from any duty to prepare group accounts: Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 69E(7) (as so added). Such regulations may exempt societies by reference to any criterion and may make different provision for different descriptions of societies: s 69E(8) (as so added). ### 2327. Form and content of group accounts.

Friendly Societies Act group accounts<sup>1</sup> must comprise a balance sheet dealing with the state of affairs of the society and its subsidiary undertakings<sup>2</sup> and an income and expenditure account<sup>3</sup> showing the income and expenditure of the society and its subsidiary undertakings<sup>4</sup>.

Friendly Societies Act group accounts must give a true and fair view<sup>5</sup> of the state of affairs as at the end of the financial year<sup>6</sup>, and the income and expenditure for the financial year, of the society and the subsidiary undertakings included in the group accounts as a whole, so far as concerns the members of the society<sup>7</sup>.

Friendly Societies Act group accounts must comply with the requirements of regulations<sup>8</sup> as to the form and content of the group accounts and additional information to be provided by way of notes to the accounts or otherwise<sup>9</sup>. Where compliance with the provisions of those regulations, and the other provisions of the Friendly Societies Act 1992 as to the matters to be included in a society's group accounts or in notes to those accounts, would not be sufficient to give a true and fair view, the necessary additional information must be given in the accounts or in a note to them<sup>10</sup>. If in special circumstances compliance with any of those provisions is inconsistent with the requirement to give a true and fair view, the committee of management must depart from that provision to the extent necessary to give a true and fair view<sup>11</sup>. Particulars of any such departure, the reasons for it, and its effect, must be given in a note to the accounts<sup>12</sup>.

The Treasury may by regulations:

- 761 (1) add to the classes of documents to be comprised in a society's Friendly Societies Act group accounts<sup>13</sup>;
- 762 (2) make provision as to the matters to be included in any document so added<sup>14</sup>;
- 763 (3) modify the statutory requirements<sup>15</sup> as to the matters to be stated in any document comprised in the society's Friendly Societies Act group accounts<sup>16</sup>; and
- 764 (4) reduce the classes of documents to be comprised in a society's Friendly Societies Act group accounts<sup>17</sup>.

Such regulations may make different provision for different descriptions of society and may include incidental and supplementary provisions<sup>18</sup>.

Where the committee of management of a friendly society prepares IAS group accounts<sup>19</sup>, it must state in the notes to those accounts that the accounts have been prepared in accordance with international accounting standards<sup>20</sup>.

The committee of management of a friendly society that prepares group accounts must secure that the individual accounts of the friendly society, each of its subsidiary undertakings, and each of its registered branches<sup>21</sup>, are all prepared using the same financial reporting framework, except to the extent that in its opinion there are good reasons for not doing so<sup>22</sup>. The committee of management of a society which has subsidiary undertakings must ensure that, except where in its opinion there are good reasons against it, the financial year of each of its subsidiary undertakings coincides with the society's own financial year<sup>23</sup>.

- 771 (7) where the chief executive<sup>14</sup> of the society is not also a member of the committee of the society, he must be treated for these purposes as a member of that committee and in such circumstances there must be a note in the accounts specifying that the chief executive has been so treated<sup>15</sup>;
- 772 (8) a statement showing, in relation to loans from and other transactions and arrangements with the society<sup>16</sup>, the aggregate amounts outstanding under them at the end of the financial year and the numbers of persons for whom such loans, transactions and arrangements were made<sup>17</sup>;
- 773 (9) in respect of the statutory auditors<sup>18</sup> of the society or branch, the amount of their remuneration and of their associates<sup>19</sup> (and where remuneration is paid to auditors or their associates for non-audit services, that remuneration must be shown separately) and, in respect of the actuaries of the society or branch, the amount of their remuneration, including any sums paid by the society or branch in respect of the auditors' or actuaries' expenses<sup>20</sup>; and
- 774 (10) the average number<sup>21</sup> of persons employed by the society in the financial year<sup>22</sup> and the average number of persons so employed within each category<sup>23</sup> of persons employed by the society<sup>24</sup>.

It is the duty of any member of the committee of management, and any person who has been at any time in the preceding five years a member of the committee, to give notice to the society of such matters relating to himself as may be necessary for the purposes of heads (1) to (9) above<sup>25</sup>. A person who does not comply with this requirement is guilty of an offence<sup>26</sup>.

The annual accounts of a friendly society which is required to produce group accounts<sup>27</sup> must include the material specified by heads (8) to (10) above not only in respect of the society but also in respect of the society and its subsidiaries in combination<sup>28</sup>.

The Treasury may, by order, modify the provisions set out above<sup>29</sup>; and such an order may make consequential amendments or repeals of other provisions of the Friendly Societies Act 1992, make such transitional or saving provisions as appear to the Treasury to be necessary or expedient, and make different provision for different cases<sup>30</sup>.

1 As to annual accounts see PARAS 2324-2327.

2 As to the meaning of 'friendly society' see PARA 2082.

3 Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 69J(1) (s 69J, Sch 13D added by SI 2005/2211). As to registered branches see PARA 2091.

4 Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 69J(2), Sch 13D para 1(1) (as added: see note 3). As to the committee of management see PARA 2294 et seq. 'Committee members' emoluments' means the emoluments paid to or receivable by any person in respect of: (1) his services as a member of the committee; or (2) his services while a member of the committee: (a) as director of any of the society's associated bodies; or (b) otherwise in connection with the management of the affairs of the society or any of its associated bodies: Sch 13D para 1(2) (as so added). As to associated bodies see note 12. There must also be shown, separately, the aggregate amounts within head (1) above, head (2)(a) above and head (2)(b) above: Sch 13D para 1(3) (as so added). The 'emoluments' of a person include:

- 30 (i) fees and percentages;
- 31 (ii) sums paid by way of expenses allowance (so far as those sums are chargeable to United Kingdom income tax) (see INCOME TAXATION vol 23(1) (Reissue) PARA 699 et seq);
- 32 (iii) contributions paid in respect of him under any pension scheme; and
- 33 (iv) the estimated money value of any other benefits received by him otherwise than in cash, and emoluments in respect of a person's accepting office as a member of the committee must be treated as emoluments in respect of his services as a member of the committee: Sch 13D para 1(4) (as so added). As to the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 2 note 3. 'Pension' includes any superannuation allowance, superannuation gratuity or similar payment; 'pension scheme' means a scheme for the provision of pensions in respect of services as a member of the committee or otherwise which is maintained in whole or in part by means of contributions; and 'contribution', in relation to a pension scheme, means any payment (including an insurance premium) paid for the purposes of the scheme by or in respect of persons rendering services in respect of which pensions will or may become payable under the scheme except that it does not include any payment in respect of two or more persons if the amount paid in respect of each of them is not ascertainable: Sch 13D para 10(1)(b)-(d) (as so added).

With respect to the amounts to be shown under Sch 13D paras 1, 4, 5 and 6 (see heads (4)-(6) in the text), the amount in each case includes all relevant sums paid by or receivable from the society, the society's associated bodies and any other person, except sums to be accounted for to the society or any of its associated bodies: Sch 13D para 7(1), (2) (as so added). The amount to be shown under Sch 13D para 5 (see head (5) in the text) must distinguish between the sums respectively paid by or receivable from the society, its associated bodies and persons other than the society and its associated bodies: Sch 13D para 7(3) (as so added). References to amounts paid to or receivable by a person include amounts paid to or receivable by a person connected with him or a body corporate associated with him (but not so as to require an amount to be counted twice): Sch 13D para 7(4) (as so added). See note 12.

The amounts to be shown for any financial year under Sch 13D paras 1, 2, 5 and 6 (see heads (1), (2), (5), (6) in the text) are the sums receivable in respect of that year (whenever paid) or, in the case of sums not receivable in respect of a period, the sums paid during that year: Sch 13D para 8(1) (as so added). But where: (A) any sums are not shown in a note to the accounts for the relevant financial year on the ground that the person receiving them is liable to account for them as mentioned in Sch 13D para 7(2), but the liability is thereafter wholly or partly released or is not enforced within a period of two years; or (B) any sums paid by way of expenses allowance are charged to United Kingdom income tax after the end of the relevant financial year, those sums, to the extent to which the liability is released or not enforced or they are charged as mentioned (as the case may be), must be shown in a note to the first accounts in which it is practicable to show them and must be distinguished from the amounts to be shown apart from this provision: Sch 13D para 8(2) (as so added).

5 Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 13D para 2(1) (as added: see note 3). Where there has been more than one chairman during the year, the emoluments of each must be stated so far as attributable to the period during which he was chairman: Sch 13 para 2(2) (as so added). In Sch 13D para 2, 'emoluments' has the same meaning as in Sch 13D para 1 (see note 4), except that it does not include contributions paid in respect of a person under a pension scheme: Sch 13D para 2(6) (as so added). See note 4.

6 Where the amount shown is £60,000 or more, the following information must be given with respect to the committee members' emoluments: (1) the number of members of the committee whose emoluments fell within each of the following bands: not more than £5,000, more than £5,000 but not more than £10,000, more than £10,000 but not more than £15,000, and in successive bands of £5,000; (2) if the emoluments of any of the members of the committee exceeded that of the chairman, the greatest amount of emoluments of any member of the committee: Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 13D para 2(3) (as added: see note 3). Where more than one person has been chairman during the year, the reference in head (2) above to the emoluments of the chairman is to the aggregate of the emoluments of each person who has been chairman, so far as attributable to the period during which he was chairman: Sch 13D para 2(4) (as so added). The information required by head (1) above need not be given in respect of a member of the committee who discharged his duties as such wholly or mainly outside the United Kingdom; and any such member of the committee must be left out of account for the purposes of head (2) above: Sch 13D para 2(5) (as so added). See note 4.

7 Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 13D para 3(1) (as added: see note 3). As to the meaning of 'emoluments' see note 4; definition applied by Sch 13D para 3(3) (as so added). For these purposes, it must be assumed that a sum not receivable in respect of a period would have been paid at the time at which it was due, and if such sum was payable only on demand, it must be deemed to have been due at the time of the waiver: Sch 13D para 3(2) (as so added).

8 References to pensions include benefits otherwise than in cash and in relation to so much of a pension as consists of such a benefit references to its amount are to the estimated money value of the benefit: Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 13D para 4(4) (as added: see note 3). The nature of any such benefit must be disclosed: Sch 13D para 4(5) (as so added). See note 4.

9 Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 13D para 4(1) (as added: see note 3). This amount does not include any pension paid or receivable under a pension scheme if the scheme is such that the contributions under it are substantially adequate for the maintenance of the scheme, but, subject to this, it includes any pension paid or receivable in respect of any such services of a member of the committee or past member of the committee whether to or by him or on his nomination or by virtue of dependence on or other connection with him, to or by any other person: Sch 13D para 4(2) (as so added). The amount shown must distinguish between pensions in respect of services as a member of the committee or a director of any of its associated bodies, and other pensions: Sch 13D para 4(3) (as so added). See note 4.

10 Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 13D para 5(1) (as added: see note 3). This amount includes compensation received or receivable by past or present members of the committee for: (1) loss of office as a member of the committee; or (2) loss, while a member of the committee or in connection with his ceasing to be a member of the committee, of any other office in connection with the management of the society's affairs, or any office as director or otherwise in connection with the management of the affairs of any associated body of the society, and must distinguish between compensation in respect of the office of member of the committee or a director of any of its associated bodies, and compensation in respect of other offices: Sch 13D para 5(2) (as so added). References to compensation include benefits otherwise than in cash; and in relation to such compensation references to its amount are to the estimated money value of the benefit, and the nature of the compensation must be disclosed: Sch 13D para 5(3) (as so added). References to compensation for loss of office include compensation in consideration for, or in connection with, a person's retirement from office: Sch 13D para 5(4) (as so added). See note 4.

11 The reference to consideration includes benefits paid or receivable otherwise than in cash; and in relation to such consideration references to its amount are to the estimated money value of the benefit, and the nature of the consideration must be disclosed: Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 13D para 6(2) (as added: see note 3). See note 4.

12 The reference to third parties is to a person other than: (1) the member of the committee himself or a person connected with him or a body corporate associated with him; and (2) the society or any of its associated bodies: Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 13D para 6(3) (as added: see note 3). 'Associated body', in relation to a society, means a body in which the society holds shares or corresponding membership rights: Sch 13D para 14 (as so added). In Sch 13D paras 6, 7, references to a person being 'connected' with a member of the committee, and to a member of the committee being 'associated with' a body corporate, must be construed in accordance with the Building Societies Act 1986 s 70 (see PARA 1961) (as applied to friendly societies by the Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 11 para 9 (see PARA 2300)): Sch 13D para 10(2) (as so added).

13 Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 13D para 6(1) (as added: see note 3). See note 4. References to services to an associated body of a society must be taken to refer to services to a body which was an associated body of the society at the time at which the services were rendered, or, in the case only of Sch 13D para 5 (see head (5) in the text), immediately before the member of the committee lost his office as member of the committee: Sch 13D para 10(1)(a) (as so added).

14 As to the chief executive see PARA 2301.

15 Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 13D para 9 (as added: see note 3).

16 In (1) loans from and other transactions and arrangements with the society described in the Building Societies Act 1986 s 65 (see PARA 1955) (as applied to friendly societies by the Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 11 para 9 (see PARA 2300)) (which restricts loans to and other transactions and arrangements with directors and persons connected with them), other than those to which the provisions of the Building Societies Act 1986 s 65(5), (6) apply; and (2) in the case of a society the committee of management of which is obliged to prepare group accounts, loans from and other transactions and arrangements with a subsidiary undertaking of the society to which head (1) above would apply were the society rather than the subsidiary undertaking a party to them: Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 13D para 11(1) (as added: see note 3). Schedule 13D para 11 applies in relation to loans to, and other transactions and arrangements with, a person connected with a member of the committee where the society (or, in the case of a subsidiary undertaking incorporated in the United Kingdom, the subsidiary undertaking) has notice of the connection between that member of the committee and that person: Sch 13D para 11(4) (as so added). See note 17.

17 Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 13D para 11(2) (as added: see note 3). The notes to the annual accounts must, in relation to any loan or other transaction or arrangement subsisting during or at the end of the financial year, make the following disclosures: (1) where a copy of it or a memorandum of its terms is included in the register maintained under the Building Societies Act 1986 s 68 (see PARA 1958) (as applied to friendly societies by the Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 11 para 9 (see PARA 2300)) (which requires the maintenance of such a register), the existence of the register and the availability of requisite particulars from it for inspection must be disclosed; (2) where the committee of management is obliged to prepare group accounts, its particulars must be disclosed unless it was one which would, had the subsidiaries of the society formed part of the society, have been exempted from the obligations imposed by the Building Societies Act 1986 s 68 (see PARA 1958) (as applied to friendly societies by the Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 11 para 9 (see PARA 2300)): Sch 13D para 11(3) (as so added). Schedule 13D para 11 does not apply to non-directive friendly societies or their registered branches: s 69J(5) (as added: see note 3). 'Non-directive friendly society' means a registered friendly society: (a) to which s 37(2) and s 37(3) (restriction of combinations of business: see PARA 2112 note 15) do not apply; and (b) which does not carry on reinsurance business: s 78A(1) (added by SI 2005/2211).

18 As to auditors see PARA 2332 et seq.

19 For the purposes of determining whether a person is to be regarded as an associate of a society's auditor and for determining the remuneration paid to auditors or their associates for non-audit services, the Companies Act 1985 (Disclosure of Remuneration for Non-audit Work) Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2128 have effect as if any reference to a company included a reference to a society or branch: Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 13D para 12(2) (as added: see note 3). See COMPANIES vol 15 (2009) PARA 922.

20 Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 13D para 12(1) (as added: see note 3).

21 The average number is determined by dividing the relevant annual number by the number of complete calendar months in the financial year: Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 13D para 13(2) (as added: see note 3). The relevant annual number is determined by ascertaining for each complete calendar month in the financial year the number of persons employed under contracts of service by the society in that month (whether throughout the month or not), or the number of persons in the category in question of persons so employed, and, in either case, adding together all the monthly numbers: Sch 13D para 13(3) (as so added). Schedule 13D para 13 does not apply to non-directive friendly societies or their registered branches: s 69J(5) (as added: see note 3).

22 There must also be stated the aggregate amounts respectively of: (1) wages and salaries paid or payable in respect of that year to those persons; (2) social security costs incurred by the society on their behalf; and (3) other pension costs so incurred, in so far as those amounts, or any of them, are not stated elsewhere in the society's accounts: Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 13D para 13(4) (as added: see note 3). See note 21.

23 The categories of person employed by the society are such as the directors may select, having regard to the manner in which the society's activities are organised: Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 13D para 13(5) (as added: see note 3). See note 21.

24 Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 13D para 13(1) (as added: see note 3). See note 21.

25 Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 69J(3) (as added: see note 3).

26 Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 69J(4) (as added: see note 3). A person guilty of such an offence is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale: s 69J(4) (as so added). As to the standard scale see PARA 27 note 21.

27 Ie under the Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 69E: see PARA 2326.

28 Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 69J(6) (as added: see note 3).

29 Friendly Societies Act 1992d s 69J(7) (as added: see note 3). As to the Treasury see PARA 3; and CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 512 et seq.

30 Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 69J(8) (as added: see note 3).

2329. Disclosures about related undertakings.

Where a friendly society is not required to prepare consolidated accounts<sup>1</sup>, the following information must be given in notes to the annual accounts<sup>2</sup> of the friendly society<sup>3</sup> or registered branch<sup>4</sup>:

- 775 (1) the name of each subsidiary undertaking<sup>5</sup> and body corporate in which the society has a significant holding<sup>6</sup> and where it is registered and, if it is incorporated outside the United Kingdom<sup>7</sup>, the country in which it is incorporated<sup>8</sup>;
- 776 (2) the identity of each class of shares held by the society in the subsidiary undertaking or body corporate and the proportion of the nominal value of the shares of that class represented by those shares<sup>9</sup>;
- 777 (3) the aggregate amount of the capital and reserves of each subsidiary undertaking or body corporate as at the end of its relevant financial year<sup>10</sup> and its profit or loss for that year<sup>11</sup>.

Where a friendly society is required to prepare consolidated accounts, the following information must be given<sup>12</sup>:

- 778 (a) the name of each body corporate that is a subsidiary undertaking of the society at the end of the financial year and where it is registered and, if it is incorporated outside the United Kingdom, the country in which it is incorporated<sup>13</sup>;
- 779 (b) the identity of each class of shares held by the society and by the group<sup>14</sup> in the subsidiary undertaking and the proportion of the nominal value of the shares of that class represented by those shares<sup>15</sup>;
- 780 (c) with respect to each subsidiary undertaking not included in the consolidation, the aggregate amount of its capital and reserves as at the end of its relevant financial year<sup>16</sup> and its profit or loss for that year<sup>17</sup>;
- 781 (d) the name of any jointly controlled body in which a body corporate included in the consolidation has an interest, where it is registered and, if it is incorporated outside the United Kingdom, the country in which it is incorporated<sup>18</sup>;
- 782 (e) the identity of each class of shares held by the society and by the group in the jointly controlled body and the proportion of the nominal value of the shares of that class represented by those shares<sup>19</sup>;
- 783 (f) the name of any other body corporate in which the society or the group has a significant holding<sup>20</sup>, where it is registered and, if it is incorporated outside the United Kingdom, the country in which it is incorporated<sup>21</sup>;
- 784 (g) the identity of each class of shares held by the society or the group in the body corporate and the proportion of the nominal value of the shares of that class represented by those shares<sup>22</sup>;

785 (h) the aggregate amount of the capital and reserves of the body corporate as at the end of its relevant financial year<sup>23</sup> and its profits or loss for that year<sup>24</sup>.

The Treasury may, by order, modify the provisions set out above<sup>25</sup>; and such an order may make consequential amendments or repeals of other provisions of the Friendly Societies Act 1992, make such transitional or saving provisions as appear to the Treasury to be necessary or expedient, and make different provision for different cases<sup>26</sup>.

1 le under the Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 69E: see PARA 2326.

2 As to annual accounts see PARAS 2324-2327.

3 As to the meaning of 'friendly society' see PARA 2082.

4 Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 69K(1), (2) (s 69K, Sch 13E added by SI 2005/2211). As to registered branches see PARA 2091.

5 This requirement relates to undertakings that are subsidiary undertakings of the society at the end of the financial year: Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 13E para 1(1) (as added: see note 4). As to the meaning of 'subsidiary undertaking' see PARA 2324 note 10. As to the meaning of 'financial year' see PARA 2392.

6 A holding is significant for this purpose if: (1) it amounts to 20% or more of the nominal value of the shares in the body corporate; or (2) the amount of the holding (as stated or included in the society's accounts) exceeds one-tenth of the amount (as so stated) of the society's assets: Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 13E para 5(2) (as added: see note 4).

7 As to the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 2 note 3.

8 Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 13E paras 1(2), (3), 5(1), 6(1), (2) (as added: see note 4). The specific reason why each subsidiary undertaking is not required to be included in consolidated accounts must be stated: Sch 13E para 1(4) (as so added). Information otherwise required by Sch 13E para 6 need not be given if it is not required in order for the society's individual accounts and group accounts to give a true and fair view: Sch 13E para 6(4) (as so added).

9 Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 13E paras 2(1), 6(3) (as added: see note 4). The shares held by or on behalf of the society itself must be distinguished from those attributed to the society which are held by or on behalf of a subsidiary undertaking: Sch 13E para 2(2) (as so added).

References to shares held by a society are to be construed as follows: Sch 13E para 8(1) (as so added). For the purposes of Sch 13E paras 2, 3, shares held by a subsidiary undertaking, or by a person acting on behalf of the society or a subsidiary undertaking, are treated as if they were held by the society but shares held on behalf of a person other than the society or a subsidiary undertaking are not treated as if they were held by the society: Sch 13E para 8(2) (as so added). For the purposes of Sch 13E paras 5-7, shares held on behalf of a society by any person are treated as if they were held by the society but shares held on behalf of a person other than the society are not treated as if they were held by the society: Sch 13E para 8(3) (as so added). For the purposes of Sch 13E paras 2-7, shares held by way of security are to be treated as if they were held by the person providing the security where: (1) apart from the right to exercise them for the purposes of preserving the value of the security, or of realising it, the rights attached to the shares are exercisable only in accordance with his instructions; and (2) the shares are held in connection with the granting of loans as part of normal business activities and apart from the right to exercise them for the purpose of preserving the value of the security, or of realising it, the rights attached to the shares are exercisable only in his interests: Sch 13E para 8(4) (as so added).

10 The 'relevant financial year' of a subsidiary undertaking or body corporate is: (1) if its financial year ends with that of the society, that year; and (2) if not, its financial year ending last before the end of the society's financial year: Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 13E paras 3(4), 7(5) (as added: see note 4). Where disclosure is made with respect to a subsidiary undertaking and that undertaking's financial year does not end with that of the society, there must be stated in relation to that undertaking the date on which its last financial year before the end of the society's financial year ended: Sch 13E para 4 (as so added).

11 Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 13E paras 3(1), 7(5) (as added: see note 4). The information referred to in head (3) in the text need not be given if the society's investment in the subsidiary undertaking or in all bodies corporate in which it has a significant holding is included in the society's accounts, or is shown in aggregate in the notes to the accounts, by way of the equity method of valuation or if: (1) the subsidiary undertaking or body corporate is not required by any provision of the Companies Act 2006 to deliver a copy of its balance sheet for its relevant financial year and does not otherwise publish that balance sheet in the United Kingdom or elsewhere; and (2) the society's holding is less than 50% of the nominal value of the shares in the undertaking or body corporate: Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 13E paras 3(2), 7(2), (3) (as so added; Sch 13E paras 3(2), 7(3) amended by SI 2008/948). Information otherwise required by head (3) in the text need not be given if it is not material: (a) in the case of Friendly Societies Act accounts, for the purpose of giving a true and fair view for the society of the matters set out in the Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 69B(2) (see PARA 2325) or, where appropriate, s 69F(2) (see PARA 2327); or (b) in the case of IAS accounts, to the requirement under international accounting standards that such accounts achieve a fair presentation: Sch 13E paras 3(3), 7(4) (as so added). As to the meaning of 'true and fair view' see PARA 2325 note 4. As to the meaning of 'IAS accounts' see PARA 2325 note 3. As to the meaning of 'international accounting standards' see PARA 2324 note 7. As to the equity method of valuation see COMPANIES vol 15 (2009) PARA 757.

12 Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 69K(3) (as added: see note 4).

13 Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 13E para 9(1)-(3) (as added: see note 4). It must be stated whether the subsidiary undertaking is included in the consolidation and, if it is not, the reason for excluding it from the consolidation must be given: Sch 13E para 9(4) (as so added). It must also be stated with respect to each subsidiary undertaking of the society by virtue of which of the conditions specified in the Companies Act 2006 s 1162 (see COMPANIES vol 14 (2009) PARA 26) (as applied by the Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 78A (see PARA 2324 note 10)) it is a subsidiary undertaking of the society: Sch 13E para 9(5) (as so added). Schedule 13E para 9(5) does not apply in relation to a subsidiary undertaking if: (1) the relevant condition is that specified in the Companies Act 2006 s 1162 (see COMPANIES vol 14 (2009) PARA 26); and (2) the society that is its immediate parent undertaking (within the meaning of s 1162) holds the same proportion of the shares in the undertaking as it holds voting rights: Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 13E para 9(6) (as so added; amended by SI 2008/948).

14 'Group' means a friendly society and its subsidiary undertakings: Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 13E para 20 (as added: see note 4).

15 Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 13E para 10(1), (2) (as added: see note 4). The information must be shown separately in respect of the society and the group: see Sch 13E para 10(1) (as so added). References to shares held by the society or the group are to be construed as follows: Sch 13E para 19(1) (as so added). For the purposes of Sch 13E paras 10, 12(4), (5), 13-15, shares held on behalf of a society by any person are treated as if they were held by the society but shares held on behalf of a person other than the society are not treated as if they were held by the society: Sch 13E para 19(2) (as so added). References to shares held by the group are to any shares held by or on behalf of the society or any of its subsidiary undertakings; but shares held on behalf of a person other than the society or any of its subsidiary undertakings are not treated as if they were held by the group: Sch 13E para 19(3) (as so added). Shares held by way of security are treated as if they were held by the person providing the security: (1) where apart from the right to exercise them for the purpose of preserving the value of the security, or of realising it, the rights attached to the shares are exercisable only in accordance with his instructions; or (2) where the shares are held in connection with the granting of loans as part of normal business activities and apart from the right to exercise them for the purpose of preserving the value of security, or of realising it, the rights attached to the shares are exercisable only in his interests: Sch 13E para 19(4) (as so added).

16 The 'relevant financial year' of a subsidiary undertaking is: (1) if its financial year ends with that of the society, that year; and (2) if not, its financial year ending last before the end of the society's financial year: Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 13E para 11(4) (as added: see note 4).

17 Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 13E para 11(1) (as added: see note 4). The information referred to in head (c) in the text need not be given if the group's investment in the subsidiary undertaking is included in the accounts by way of the equity method of valuation or if: (1) the subsidiary undertaking is not required by any provision of the Companies Act 2006 to deliver a copy of its balance sheet for its relevant financial year and does not otherwise publish that balance sheet in the United Kingdom or elsewhere; and (2) the holding of the group is less than 50% of the nominal value of the shares in the subsidiary undertaking: Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 13E para 11(2) (as so added; amended by SI 2008/948). Information otherwise required by the Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 13E para 11 need not be given if it is not required in order for the society's group accounts to give a true and fair view: Sch 13E para 11(3) (as so added). See note 15.

18 Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 13E para 12(1)-(3) (as added: see note 4). See note 15.

19 Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 13E para 12(4), (5) (as added: see note 4). See note 15.

20 A holding is significant for this purpose if: (1) it amounts to 20% or more of the nominal value of the shares in the undertaking; or (2) the amount of the holding (as stated or included in the society's individual accounts) exceeds one-tenth of the amount of the society's assets (as so stated): Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 13E paras 13(2), 16(2) (as added: see note 4). See note 15.

21 Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 13E paras 13(1), 14(1), (2), 16(1), 17(1), (2) (as added: see note 4). Where it is the society that has the significant holding, the information otherwise required by heads (f) and (g) in the text need not be given if: (1) it is not material for the purposes of giving a true and fair view, for the society and its subsidiary undertakings as a whole, of the matters set out in s 69F(2) (see PARA 2327); (2) in the case of IAS accounts, it is not material to the requirement under international accounting standards that such accounts achieve a fair presentation: Sch 13E para 14(4) (as so added). Where it is the group that has the significant holding, the information otherwise required by heads (f) and (g) in the text need not be given if it is not required in order for the society's group accounts to give a true and fair view: Sch 13E para 17(4) (as so added). See note 15.

22 Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 13E paras 14(3), 17(3) (as added: see note 4). See notes 15, 21.

23 The 'relevant financial year' of an undertaking is: (1) if its financial year ends with that of the society, that year; and (2) if not, its financial year ending last before the end of the society's financial year: Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 13E paras 15(4), 18(4) (as added: see note 4).

24 Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 13E paras 15(1), 18(1) (as added: see note 4). The information required by head (h) in the text need not be given in respect of a body corporate if: (1) the body corporate is not required by any provision of the Companies Act 2006 to deliver a copy of its balance sheet for its relevant financial year and does not otherwise publish that balance sheet in the United Kingdom or elsewhere; and (2) the holding of the society or group is less than 50% of the nominal value of the shares in the undertaking: Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 13E paras 15(2), 18(2) (as so added; amended by SI 2008/948). Information otherwise required by head (h) in the text need not be given if it is not material: (a) for the purposes of giving a true and fair view, for the society and its subsidiary undertakings as a whole, of the matters set out in s 69F(2) (see PARA 2327); (b) in the case of IAS accounts, to the requirement under international accounting standards that such accounts achieve a fair presentation: Sch 13E paras 15(3), 18(3) (as so added). #### 2329A. Disclosures relating to off-balance-sheet arrangements.

If in any financial year, a friendly society or registered branch has been party to arrangements that are not reflected in its balance sheet, and at the balance sheet date the risks or benefits arising from those arrangements are material, the information required by s 69L must be given in notes to the society's or branch's annual accounts: Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 69L(1) (s 69L added by SI 2008/1140). The information required is the nature and business purpose of the arrangements and the financial impact of the arrangements on the society or branch: Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 69L(2). The information need only be given to the extent necessary for enabling the financial position of the society or branch to be assessed: s 69L(3). Where a friendly society is required to prepare consolidated group accounts, s 69L applies in relation to those accounts as if the undertakings included in the consolidation were a single friendly society: s 69L(4). As to the meaning of 'friendly society' see PARA 2082; and as to branches and registered branches of societies see PARA 2091.

2329B. Disclosure of auditor remuneration.

The information specified in the Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 13F must be given in notes to a friendly society's or a registered branch's annual accounts: s 69M(1) (s 69M, Sch 13F added by SI 2008/1140). The following must be shown: (1) the amount of any remuneration receivable by the society's auditor for the auditing of the annual accounts and (2) the amount of any remuneration receivable in respect of the financial year by the society's auditor, or any person who was, at any time during that financial year, an associate of the society's auditor, for the supply of other services to the society or branch or any associate of the society or branch: Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 13F para 1(1). Where the remuneration includes benefits in kind, the nature and estimated money-value of those benefits must also be shown: Sch 13F para 1(2). Separate disclosure is required in respect of the auditing of the accounts in question and of each type of service specified above, but not in respect of each service falling within a type of service: Sch 13F para 1(3). Separate disclosure is required in respect of services supplied to the society and its subsidiaries on the one hand and to associated pension schemes on the other: Sch 13F para 1(4). Where more than one person has been appointed as a society's auditor in respect of the financial year, separate disclosure is required in respect of the remuneration of each such person and his associates: Sch 13F para 1(5). Where a friendly society is required to prepare consolidated group accounts (a) those accounts must comply with head (2) above, as if the undertakings included in the consolidation were a single friendly society, and (b) notes to the society's individual accounts do not have to disclose the information required by that provision if the notes state that the group accounts are so required: Sch 13F para 1(6). The types of service in respect of which disclosure is required are (i) the auditing of accounts of associates of the society pursuant to legislation, including that of countries and territories outside the United Kingdom; (ii) other services supplied pursuant to such legislation; (iii) other services relating to taxation; (iv) services relating to information technology; (v) internal audit services; (vi) valuation and actuarial services; (vii) services relating to litigation; (viii) services relating to recruitment and remuneration; (ix) services relating to corporate finance transactions entered into or proposed to be entered into on behalf of the society or any of its associates; (x) all other services: Sch 13F para 2. Disclosure is not required of remuneration for certain services provided by a distant associate: see Sch 13F para 3. As to the duty of the auditor to supply information to the directors to enable the required disclosure to be made, see Sch 13F para 4. As to the meaning of 'associate' and 'distant associate' of a friendly society's auditor, see Sch 13F para 5. Schedule 13F applies to a registered branch as it applies to a friendly society: Sch 13F para 7. The Treasury may, by order, modify the provisions of Sch 13F: s 69M(2). An order under s 69M may make consequential amendments or repeals of other provisions of the Friendly Societies Act 1992, make such transitional or saving provisions as appear to the Treasury to be necessary or expedient, or make different provision for different cases: s 69M(3). (d) Annual Report and Business Review

2330. Report on friendly society's affairs by the committee of management.

The committee of management<sup>1</sup> of a friendly society<sup>2</sup> must prepare for submission to the annual general meeting<sup>3</sup> of the society a report on the activities of the society<sup>4</sup> containing:

- 786 (1) a fair review of the business of the society, its subsidiary undertakings<sup>5</sup> and any bodies that it jointly controls<sup>6</sup>;
- 787 (2) a description of the principal risks and uncertainties facing the society, its subsidiary undertakings and any bodies that it jointly controls<sup>7</sup>;
- 788 (3) such information relating to such aspects of the activities of the society as may be prescribed by regulations made by the Treasury<sup>8</sup>; and
- 789 (4) a statement whether any and, if so, what activities carried on during the year by the society are believed to have been carried on outside its powers<sup>9</sup>.

If the friendly society has subsidiary undertakings, the report may, where appropriate, give greater emphasis to those matters which are significant to the society and its subsidiary undertakings taken as a whole<sup>10</sup>.

Where an incorporated friendly society<sup>11</sup> has subsidiaries or jointly controls other bodies the report must<sup>12</sup>:

- 790 (a) contain such information relating to such aspects of the activities of any subsidiaries or bodies which it jointly controls as may be prescribed by regulations made by the Treasury<sup>13</sup>;
- 791 (b) contain a statement whether any, and if so what, activities carried on during the year by any of its subsidiaries or by any body which it jointly controls are believed to have been carried on outside the powers of the subsidiary or jointly controlled body<sup>14</sup>.

If the report does not contain the prescribed information, or the information in the report is not given in accordance with the regulations, each member of the committee of management commits an offence<sup>15</sup>.

2331. Business review.

The business review<sup>1</sup> is a balanced and comprehensive analysis, consistent with the size and complexity of the business<sup>2</sup>, of:

- 792 (1) the development and performance of the business of the friendly society<sup>3</sup>, its subsidiary undertakings<sup>4</sup> and any bodies that it jointly controls<sup>5</sup> during the financial year<sup>6</sup>; and
- 793 (2) the position of the friendly society, its subsidiary undertakings and any bodies that it jointly controls at the end of that year<sup>7</sup>.

The review must, to the extent necessary for an understanding of the development, performance or position of the business of the society, its subsidiary undertakings and any bodies that it jointly controls, include analysis using financial key performance indicators<sup>8</sup> and, where appropriate, analysis using other key performance indicators, including information relating to environmental matters and employee matters<sup>9</sup>.

The review must, where appropriate, include references to additional explanations of amounts included in the annual accounts<sup>10</sup> of the society<sup>11</sup>.

(C) AUDITORS

2332. Appointment of auditors.

Every friendly society<sup>1</sup> and every registered branch<sup>2</sup> is required to appoint an auditor or auditors at each annual general meeting<sup>3</sup>, to hold office from the conclusion of that meeting until the conclusion of the next annual general meeting<sup>4</sup>.

The first auditors of a friendly society or registered branch may be appointed by its committee of management<sup>5</sup> at any time before the first general meeting of the society or branch following the end of its initial financial year<sup>6</sup> and auditors appointed in this way hold office until the conclusion of that meeting<sup>7</sup>.

The committee of management, or the society or branch in general meeting, may fill any casual vacancy in the office of auditor; but while any such vacancy continues, the surviving or continuing auditor or auditors (if any) may act<sup>8</sup>.

If at any annual general meeting of a friendly society or registered branch no auditor is appointed or reappointed, the Financial Services Authority<sup>9</sup> may appoint a person to fill the vacancy; and the society or branch must, within one week of this power of the Authority becoming exercisable, give it notice of that fact<sup>10</sup>. Failure by the society or branch to do so is an offence<sup>11</sup>.

Appointment as auditor of a friendly society to which the Audit Directive<sup>12</sup> applies is an appointment as a statutory auditor to which the relevant provisions of the Companies Act 2006<sup>13</sup> apply<sup>14</sup>.

UPDATE

2332 Appointment of auditors

NOTE 10--Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 14 para 3(1) amended: SI 2008/1140.

NOTE 12--Directive 2006/43 implemented, in part, by the Insurance Accounts Directive (Miscellaneous Insurance Undertakings) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/565.

Halsbury's Laws of England/FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS (VOLUME 48 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-589; VOLUME 49 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 590-1619; VOLUME 50 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1620-2586)/8. MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(2) FRIENDLY SOCIETIES/(iv) Matters Common to All Friendly Societies/G. ACCOUNTS AND AUDIT/(C) Auditors/2333. Eligibility for appointment as auditor.

2333. Eligibility for appointment as auditor.

In general<sup>1</sup>, a person is only eligible for appointment as the auditor of a friendly society<sup>2</sup> or a registered branch<sup>3</sup> if he is a member of a recognised supervisory body<sup>4</sup> and is not ineligible for the appointment under the rules of that body<sup>5</sup>. An individual or a firm<sup>6</sup> may be appointed as auditor<sup>7</sup>.

A person is ineligible for appointment as an auditor of a friendly society or registered branch if he is: (1) an officer or employee of the friendly society or any registered branch of the society; or (2) a partner or employee of such a person or a partnership of which such a person is a partner<sup>8</sup>. A person is ineligible for appointment as an auditor of an incorporated friendly society<sup>9</sup> if he is prohibited<sup>10</sup> from acting as statutory auditor of a subsidiary<sup>11</sup> of the society, or of a body jointly controlled<sup>12</sup> by the society and some other person<sup>13</sup>. For this purpose, an auditor of a friendly society or branch is not to be regarded as an officer or employee of the society or branch<sup>14</sup>. A person is also ineligible for appointment as auditor of a friendly society or branch if there exists between him and any associate<sup>15</sup> of his and the society or branch or, if it is an incorporated friendly society, any of its subsidiaries, a connection of such a description as may be specified in regulations made by the Treasury<sup>16</sup>.

1 This provision is subject to the exception provided by the Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 72(2), Sch 14 para 7: see PARA 2334.

2 As to the meaning of 'friendly society' see PARA 2082.

3 As to branches and registered branches of societies see PARA 2091.

4 'Recognised supervisory body' means a body which is a recognised supervisory body for the purposes of the Companies Act 2006 Pt 42 (ss 1209-1264) (see COMPANIES vol 15 (2009) PARA 957 et seq): Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 14 para 4(3) (definition amended by SI 2008/948).

5 Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 14 para 4(1).

6 'Firm' means a corporate body or partnership: Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 14 para 4(3).

Where a partnership constituted under the law of England, Wales or Northern Ireland, or under the law of any other country or territory in which a partnership is not a legal person, is appointed auditor (Sch 14 para 6(1)):

(1) the appointment is (unless the contrary intention appears) an appointment of the partnership as such and not of the partners (Sch 14 para 6(2)); and

(2) where the partnership ceases, the appointment is treated as extending to: (a) any partnership which succeeds the practice of that partnership and is eligible for the appointment; and (b) any person who succeeds to that practice having previously carried it on in partnership and who is eligible for appointment (Sch 14 para 6(3)).

For this purpose, a partnership is regarded as succeeding to the practice of another partnership only if the members of the successor partnership are substantially the same as those of the former partnership; and a partnership or other person is to be regarded as succeeding to the practice of a partnership only if it or he succeeds to the whole or substantially the whole of the business of the former partnership: Sch 14 para 6(4). Where the partnership ceases and no person succeeds to the appointment under head (2) above, the appointment may with the consent of the recognised supervisory body be treated as extending to a partnership or other person eligible for appointment who succeeds to the business of the former partnership or to such part of it as is agreed by the body is to be treated as comprising the appointment: Sch 14 para 6(5).

2334. Cases in which auditor need not belong to recognised supervisory body.

A person who is not a member of a recognised supervisory body<sup>1</sup> may be an auditor of a registered friendly society<sup>2</sup> or a registered branch<sup>3</sup> if:

- 794 (1) its receipts and payments in respect of the preceding financial year<sup>4</sup> did not, in the aggregate, exceed £5,000<sup>5</sup>;
- 795 (2) the number of its members at the end of that year did not exceed 500<sup>6</sup>; and
- 796 (3) the value of its assets at the end of that year did not, in the aggregate, exceed £5,000<sup>7</sup>.

A person who is not a member of a recognised supervisory body may also be an auditor of a registered branch if<sup>8</sup>:

- 797 (a) the conditions mentioned in heads (1) and (2) above are satisfied<sup>9</sup>;
- 798 (b) at the end of the preceding financial year at least 75 per cent of its assets had been transferred to the society of which it is a branch or to another registered branch of that society, for the purpose of being invested, in accordance with the Friendly Societies Act 1974, by that society or other branch, and the value of the assets not so transferred did not, in the aggregate, exceed £5,000<sup>10</sup>; and
- 799 (c) an auditor of the society or branch to which the assets were transferred is a member of a recognised supervisory body<sup>11</sup>.

The Financial Services Authority<sup>12</sup> may direct that a society or branch which is an exempt society or branch<sup>13</sup> in respect of any financial year is to be treated in that year as if it were not an exempt society or branch<sup>14</sup>. Subject thereto, a society or branch which is an exempt society or branch in respect of any financial year must appoint either: (i) one or more qualified auditors; or (ii) two or more persons who are not qualified auditors, to audit its annual accounts for that year<sup>15</sup>.

Regulations made by the Treasury<sup>16</sup> may substitute for any sum, number or percentage for the time being specified above<sup>17</sup>, such sum, number or percentage as may be specified in the regulations and prescribe what receipts and payments are to be taken into account for those purposes<sup>18</sup>.

No person may act under the Friendly Societies Act 1992<sup>1</sup> as an auditor of a friendly society<sup>2</sup> or registered branch<sup>3</sup> if he is ineligible for appointment to the office<sup>4</sup>. If an auditor becomes ineligible for appointment during the term of his office, he must vacate the office and forthwith give notice in writing<sup>5</sup> to the society concerned that he has vacated it by reason of ineligibility<sup>6</sup>. It is an offence for a person to act as auditor when ineligible or to fail to give notice of vacating his office in these circumstances<sup>7</sup>. In proceedings for such an offence, it is a defence to show that the person did not know and had no reason to believe that he was or had become ineligible for appointment<sup>8</sup>.

If a person appointed as auditor<sup>1</sup> of a friendly society<sup>2</sup> or registered branch<sup>3</sup> was, for any part of the period during which the audit was conducted, ineligible for appointment to that office, the Financial Services Authority<sup>4</sup> may direct the friendly society or registered branch concerned to retain an eligible person<sup>5</sup>: (1) to audit the relevant accounts again; or (2) to review the first audit and to report, giving his reasons, whether a second audit is needed<sup>6</sup>. The society or branch must comply with the Authority's direction within 21 days<sup>7</sup>. Failure to comply with these provisions is an offence<sup>8</sup>. A direction under these provisions is, on the application of the Authority, enforceable by injunction<sup>9</sup>. If a second audit is recommended, the society or branch must forthwith take such steps as are necessary to comply with the recommendation<sup>10</sup>. If a person accepts an appointment, or continues to act, as an auditor when he knows he is ineligible, the society concerned may recover from him any costs incurred by it in complying with these requirements<sup>11</sup>.

A friendly society<sup>1</sup> or registered branch<sup>2</sup> may, by ordinary resolution in general meeting<sup>3</sup>, remove an auditor<sup>4</sup> before the expiration of his term of office, notwithstanding any agreement between it and him<sup>5</sup>. In such an event, the society or branch must within 14 days give notice of that fact to the Financial Services Authority<sup>6</sup>. Failure to give that notice is an offence<sup>7</sup>. These provisions do not operate to deprive anyone removed from office in this way of compensation or damages that may be payable to him in consequence of terminating his appointment as auditor or any appointment terminating with that as auditor<sup>8</sup>. An auditor's removal does not affect his rights in relation to any general meeting of the society or branch at which: (1) his term of office would otherwise have expired; or (2) it is proposed to fill the vacancy caused by his removal<sup>9</sup>.

UPDATE

2337 Removal of auditors

TEXT AND NOTES--Where an auditor of a friendly society to which the European Parliament and EC Council Directive 2006/43 ('the Audit Directive') applies is removed from office an application may be made to the High Court under the Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 14 para 10A: Sch 14 para 10A(1) (Sch 14 para 10A added by SI 2008/1140). The persons who may make such an application are any member of the society who was also a member at the time of the removal or the Authority: Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 14 para 10A(2). If the court is satisfied that the removal was on grounds of divergence of opinion on accounting treatments or audit procedures or any other improper grounds, it may make such order as it thinks fit for giving relief in respect of the removal: Sch 14 para 10A(3). The court may, in particular, declare that any resolution of the society removing an auditor, or appointing a new auditor in his place, is void, require the directors of the society to re-appoint the auditor until the next general meeting of the society, or give directions as to the conduct of the society's affairs in the future: Sch 14 para 10A(4).

2338. Rights of auditors who are removed or not reappointed.

Special notice is required for a resolution at a general meeting<sup>1</sup> of a friendly society<sup>2</sup> or registered branch<sup>3</sup>, removing an auditor<sup>4</sup> before the expiration of his term of office or appointing as auditor a person other than a retiring auditor<sup>5</sup>. On receipt of notice of such an intended resolution, the friendly society or branch must send a copy of it forthwith to the person proposed to be removed or, as the case may be, to the person proposed to be appointed and to the retiring auditor<sup>6</sup>. The auditor proposed to be removed or, as the case may be, the retiring auditor, may make representations in writing to the society or branch with respect to the intended resolution and request their notification to members of the society<sup>7</sup>.

Unless the auditor's representations are received too late for it to do so, the society or branch must<sup>8</sup>:

- 800 (1) in any notice of the resolution given to its members state the fact that the representations have been made<sup>9</sup>;
- 801 (2) include in or with the notice a copy of the representations<sup>10</sup>; and
- 802 (3) make copies of them available to members at the meeting at which the resolution is to be moved<sup>11</sup>.

If notice of the representations is not given because they are received too late or because of the default of the society or branch, the auditor may, without prejudice to his right to be heard orally<sup>12</sup>, require that the representations be read out at the meeting<sup>13</sup>. These steps need not be taken if, on the application of the society or branch or any other person aggrieved, the court<sup>14</sup> is satisfied that the auditor's rights are being abused to secure needless publicity for defamatory matter; and the court may order the costs of the society or branch on the application to be paid in whole or in part by the auditor in this event, notwithstanding that he is not a party to the application<sup>15</sup>.

2340. Rights of resigning auditors.

Where the auditor<sup>1</sup> of a friendly society<sup>2</sup> or registered branch<sup>3</sup> accompanies his notice of resignation with a statement of circumstances which he considers should be brought to the attention of members or creditors of the society or branch, he may deposit with the notice a signed requisition calling on the committee of management<sup>4</sup> forthwith duly to convene an extraordinary general meeting of the society or branch, for the purpose of receiving and considering such explanation of the circumstances connected with his resignation as he may wish to place before the meeting<sup>5</sup>.

Unless the statement is received too late for the following provisions to be complied with, at the request of the auditor the society must<sup>6</sup>:

- 803 (1) in any notice of the meeting convened on his requisition, or of any general meeting<sup>7</sup> at which his term of office would otherwise have expired, or at which it is proposed to fill the vacancy caused by his resignation, state the fact that the statement has been made<sup>8</sup>;
- 804 (2) include in or with that notice a copy of a statement in writing by the auditor (not exceeding a reasonable length) of the circumstances connected with his resignation<sup>9</sup>; and
- 805 (3) make copies of the statement available to members at any such meeting<sup>10</sup>.

If the committee of management does not, within 21 days from the date of deposit of such a requisition, convene a meeting for a day not more than 28 days after the date on which the notice convening the meeting is given, every member of the committee who failed to take all reasonable steps to secure that a meeting was duly convened is guilty of an offence<sup>11</sup>. If notice of the auditor's statement is not given as required because it is received too late, or because of the default of the society or branch, the auditor may, without prejudice to his right to be heard orally<sup>12</sup>, require that the statement be read out at the meeting<sup>13</sup>.

These steps need not be taken if, on the application of the society or branch, or of any other person who claims to be aggrieved, the court<sup>14</sup> is satisfied that the rights of the auditor are being abused to secure needless publicity for defamatory matter; and the court may, in such a case, order the costs of the society or branch on the application to be paid in whole or in part by the auditor, notwithstanding that he is not a party to the application<sup>15</sup>.

2341. Statement by person ceasing to hold office.

When an auditor<sup>1</sup> of a friendly society<sup>2</sup> or registered branch<sup>3</sup> ceases to hold office for any reason, he must deposit at the registered office<sup>4</sup> of the society or branch concerned<sup>5</sup>:

- 806 (1) a statement of any circumstances connected with his ceasing to hold office, which he considers should be brought to the attention of the members or creditors of the society or branch<sup>6</sup>; or
- 807 (2) if he considers that there are no such circumstances, a statement that there are none<sup>7</sup>.

In a case falling within head (1) above, it is also the duty of the auditor, unless he receives notice of an application to the court<sup>8</sup> before the end of a period of 21 days beginning with the day on which he deposited the statement, to send the Financial Services Authority<sup>9</sup> a copy within a further seven days<sup>10</sup>.

In the case of resignation, the statement must be deposited along with the notice of resignation; in the case of failure to seek reappointment, the statement must be deposited not less than 14 days before the end of the time allowed for next appointing an auditor; in any other case, the statement must be deposited not later than the end of 14 days beginning with the date on which he ceases to hold office<sup>11</sup>.

If the statement is of circumstances which the auditor considers ought to be brought to the attention of members and creditors, the society must, within 14 days of the deposit of the statement, either send a copy of it to every member who is, when the statement is deposited, entitled to vote at a meeting of the society or branch<sup>12</sup>, or apply to the court<sup>13</sup>. If it applies to the court, the society or branch must notify the auditor of the application<sup>14</sup>.

If the court is satisfied that the auditor is using the statement to secure needless publicity for defamatory matter it must direct that copies of the statement need not be sent out and it may further order that the costs of the society or branch on the application be paid, in whole or in part, by the auditor, notwithstanding that he is not a party to the application; within 14 days of the court's decision, the society or branch must send a statement setting out the effect of the order to every member who was, when the statement by the auditor was deposited, entitled to vote at a meeting of the society or branch<sup>15</sup>. If the court is not so satisfied, the society or branch must:

808 (a) send copies of the statement to every member who was, when the statement by the auditor was deposited, entitled to vote at a meeting of the society or branch; and

809 (b) notify the auditor of the court's decision, within 14 days of it being given, and the auditor must, within seven days of receiving such notice, send a copy of the statement to the Authority<sup>16</sup>.

If a person ceasing to hold office as an auditor fails to comply with these provisions he is guilty of an offence<sup>17</sup>. If a society or branch makes a default in complying with these provisions it is guilty of an offence<sup>18</sup>.

2341 Statement by person ceasing to hold office

TEXT AND NOTES--Where an auditor of a friendly society or registered branch ceases for any reason to hold office, he must notify the appropriate audit authority: see the Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 14 para 15A (Sch 14 paras 15A-15C added by SI 2008/1140). It is an offence to fail to comply with this requirement: Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 14 para 15A(5). The friendly society or registered branch must also notify the appropriate audit authority where an auditor ceases to hold office before the end of his term of office: see Sch 14 para 15B. 'Appropriate audit authority' means the Secretary of State or, if the Secretary of State has delegated functions under the Companies Act 2006 s 1252 (see COMPANIES vol 15 (2009) PARA 960) to a body whose functions include receiving the equivalent notice under s 522 or s 523 (see COMPANIES vol 15 (2009) PARAS 945, 946), that body: Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 14 para 15C.

2342. Remuneration of auditors.

The remuneration<sup>1</sup> of auditors appointed by a friendly society<sup>2</sup> or registered branch<sup>3</sup> in general meeting<sup>4</sup> must be fixed by the society or branch in general meeting, or in such manner as the society or branch may determine in general meeting<sup>5</sup>. The remuneration of auditors appointed by a committee of management<sup>6</sup> or the Financial Services Authority<sup>7</sup> must be fixed by the committee of management or the Authority, as the case may be<sup>8</sup>. The amount of the remuneration of auditors, in their capacity as such, must be stated in a note to the annual accounts of the society or branch<sup>9</sup>.

The Treasury<sup>10</sup> may make regulations for securing the disclosure of any remuneration received or receivable by auditors or their associates in respect of services other than those of auditors in their capacity as such<sup>11</sup>.

1 'Remuneration' includes sums paid in respect of expenses: Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 72(2), Sch 14 para 16(4). Schedule 14 para 16 applies in relation to benefits in kind as to payments in cash; and, in relation to any such benefit, references to its amount are to its estimated money value: Sch 14 para 16(5). The nature of any such benefit must also be disclosed: Sch 14 para 16(6).

11 Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 14 para 17(1) (amended by SI 2001/2617). Such regulations may: (1) provide that 'remuneration' includes sums paid in respect of expenses; (2) apply in relation to benefits in kind as to payments in cash, and in relation to any such benefit require disclosure of its nature and its estimated money value; (3) define 'associate' in relation to an auditor; and (4) require the disclosure of remuneration in respect of services rendered to subsidiaries: Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 14 para 17(2). As to the meaning of 'subsidiary' see PARA 2134. Such regulations may also require the auditor to disclose the relevant information in his report or require the relevant information to be disclosed in a note to the accounts of the society or branch and require the auditor to supply the committee of management of the society or branch with such information as will enable that disclosure to be made: Sch 14 para 17(3). As to the auditor's report to the committee of management see PARA 2343 et seq. See the Friendly Societies (Accounts and Related Provisions) Regulations 1994, SI 1994/1983 (amended by SI 2001/3649).

(D) AUDITORS' REPORT

2343. Auditors' report on annual accounts.

The auditors<sup>1</sup> of a friendly society<sup>2</sup> or registered branch<sup>3</sup> must make a report to the members on the annual accounts<sup>4</sup> which are to be laid before the society or branch at the annual general meeting<sup>5</sup> during their tenure of office<sup>6</sup>. In preparing their report the auditors must carry out such investigations as will enable them to form an opinion as to whether:

- 810 (1) proper accounting records<sup>7</sup> have been kept;
- 811 (2) the annual accounts are in agreement with the accounting records; and if the auditors are of the opinion that proper accounting records have not been kept, they must state that fact in their report<sup>8</sup>.

If the auditors fail to obtain all the information and explanations and access to documents which they believe necessary for the purposes of their audit, they must also state that fact in their report<sup>9</sup>. They must also in their report state whether in their opinion the information given in the report of the committee of management<sup>10</sup> for the financial year<sup>11</sup> for which the annual accounts are prepared is consistent with those accounts and state whether in their opinion that report has been prepared in accordance with the Friendly Societies Act 1992 and regulations made under it<sup>12</sup>.

The auditors must include in their report: (a) an introduction identifying the annual accounts that are the subject of the audit and the financial reporting framework that has been applied in their preparation; (b) a description of the scope of the audit identifying the auditing standards in accordance with which the audit was conducted<sup>13</sup>.

The auditors must also, in their report, state clearly whether in their opinion the annual accounts have been properly prepared<sup>14</sup>.

The auditors must also, in their report, state in particular whether the annual accounts give a true and fair view<sup>15</sup> in accordance with the relevant financial reporting framework:

- 812 (i) in the case of an individual balance sheet<sup>16</sup>, of the state of affairs of the society or branch as at the end of the financial year;
- 813 (ii) in the case of an individual income and expenditure account, of the income and expenditure of the society or branch for the financial year;
- 814 (iii) in the case of the group accounts<sup>17</sup> of an incorporated friendly society, of the state of affairs as at the end of the financial year and of the income and expenditure for the financial year of the society and the subsidiary undertakings<sup>18</sup> dealt with in the group accounts, so far as concerns members of the society<sup>19</sup>.

The auditors' report may be either unqualified or qualified, and must include a reference to any matters to which the auditors wish to draw attention by way of emphasis without qualifying the report<sup>20</sup>.

UPDATE

2344 Signature of auditors' report

TEXT AND NOTES--Friendly Societies Act 1992 ss 74-74C substituted for s 74 by SI 2008/1140. Provision is made as to the signature of the auditor's report (s 74); signature by the senior statutory auditor (s 74A); the publication of auditors' names in the copies of the auditor's report which are filed or published (s 74B); and the circumstances in which names may be omitted (s 74C).

Halsbury's Laws of England/FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS (VOLUME 48 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-589; VOLUME 49 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 590-1619; VOLUME 50 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1620-2586)/8. MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(2) FRIENDLY SOCIETIES/(iv) Matters Common to All Friendly Societies/G. ACCOUNTS AND AUDIT/(D) Auditors' Report/2345. Auditors' rights to information and to attend meetings.

2345. Auditors' rights to information and to attend meetings.

The auditors<sup>1</sup> of a friendly society<sup>2</sup> or registered branch<sup>3</sup> are entitled to access at all times to the books, accounts and vouchers of the society or branch and to require from the officers<sup>4</sup> of the society or branch whatever information and explanations they think necessary for the performance of their duties as auditors<sup>5</sup>. They are entitled to receive from the society or branch: (1) notice of any general meeting<sup>6</sup> of the society or branch and of any matter relating to the business of such a meeting of which notice is given (by whatever means) to the members of the society or branch; and (2) copies of any communications sent to the members of the society or branch with respect to any such meeting<sup>7</sup>. The auditors are also entitled to attend any general meeting of the society or branch and to be heard on any part of the business of the meeting which concerns them as auditors<sup>8</sup>.

If an officer of a friendly society or registered branch knowingly or recklessly<sup>9</sup> makes to its auditors a statement which conveys or purports to convey any information or explanations which the auditors require or are entitled to require and the statement is misleading, false or deceptive in a material particular, he commits an offence<sup>10</sup>.

It is the duty of a subsidiary<sup>11</sup> of an incorporated friendly society<sup>12</sup>, and the subsidiary's auditors, to give to the society's auditors such information and explanations as they may reasonably require for the purposes of their duties as auditors of the society<sup>13</sup>. If the subsidiary or its auditors fail to do so they are guilty of an offence<sup>14</sup>.

If an incorporated friendly society has a subsidiary which is not a company<sup>15</sup> it must, if required by its auditors, take all such steps as are reasonably open to it to obtain from the subsidiary such information and explanations as they may reasonably require for the purposes of their duties as auditors of that society and failure to do so is an offence<sup>16</sup>.

1 As to the appointment of auditors see PARA 2332. As to eligibility to be appointed see PARAS 2333-2334.

2 As to the meaning of 'friendly society' see PARA 2082.

3 As to branches and registered branches of societies see PARA 2091.

4 As to the meaning of 'officer' see PARA 2115 note 1.

5 Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 75(1)(a), (b).

6 As to general meetings see PARA 2302 et seq.

7 Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 75(1)(c).

8 Friendly Societies Act 1992s 75(1)(d). The right to attend and be heard at a meeting is exercisable, in the case of a body corporate or partnership, by an individual authorised by it in writing to act as its representative at the meeting: s 75(2).

9 As to recklessness see CRIMINAL LAW, EVIDENCE AND PROCEDURE vol 11(1) (2006 Reissue) PARAS 11-12.

10 Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 75(3), (4). A person guilty of such an offence is liable: (1) on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years or to a fine or to both; or (2) on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months or to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum or to both: s 75(5). As to the statutory maximum see PARA 56 note 24.

11 In this case the subsidiary must be a company within the meaning of the Companies Act 1985 (see s 735 (prospectively repealed); and COMPANIES vol 14 (2009) PARA 32 (as to replacement provision see the Companies Act 2006 s 1)) incorporated in Great Britain, or a company within the meaning of the Companies (Northern Ireland) Order 1986, SI 1986/1032 incorporated in Northern Ireland: Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 75(6). As to the meaning of 'subsidiary' generally see PARA 2134.

12 As to the meaning of 'incorporated friendly society' see PARA 2082. The Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 75(6) refers to the subsidiary of a friendly society without further qualification, but only incorporated friendly societies may have subsidiaries (see PARAS 2085, 2133 et seq).

13 Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 75(6).

14 Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 75(7). Such an offence is punishable on summary conviction with a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale: s 75(7). As to the standard scale see PARA 27 note 21.

15 See note 11.

16 Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 75(8), (9). Such an offence is punishable on summary conviction by a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale: s 75(9).

2346. Approval and signing of accounts.

The annual accounts<sup>1</sup> of a friendly society<sup>2</sup> or a registered branch<sup>3</sup> must be approved by the committee of management<sup>4</sup>. Having been approved, they must be signed by the secretary<sup>5</sup> of the society or branch on the balance sheet<sup>6</sup>. Every copy of the balance sheet laid before the society or branch in general meeting<sup>7</sup>, or otherwise circulated, published or issued, must state the name of the secretary of the society or branch<sup>8</sup>. The copy of the balance sheet of a society or branch which is sent<sup>9</sup> to the Financial Services Authority<sup>10</sup> must also be signed by the secretary of the society or branch<sup>11</sup>.

If annual accounts are approved which do not comply with the requirements of the Friendly Societies Act 1992, every member of the committee of management who is party to their approval and who knows that they do not comply or is reckless<sup>12</sup> as to whether they comply commits an offence<sup>13</sup>.

If a copy of the balance sheet of a society or branch is sent to the Authority without being signed as required, or is laid before the society or branch, or otherwise circulated, published or issued, without the balance sheet having been signed or without the statement of the signatory's name being included, as required, the society or branch and every officer who is in default commits an offence<sup>14</sup>.

2347. Information on appointed actuary to be annexed to balance sheet.

- 817 (1) whether the actuary was a member of the society or any subsidiary<sup>7</sup> of the society at any time during the year<sup>8</sup>;
- 818 (2) particulars of any pecuniary interest of the actuary in any transaction between the actuary and the society or any subsidiary of it subsisting at any time during that year or, in the case of transactions of a minor character, a general description of such interests<sup>9</sup>;
- 819 (3) the aggregate amount of any remuneration and the value of any other benefits (other than a pension or other future or contingent benefit) under any contract of service of the actuary with, or contract for services by the actuary to, the society or any subsidiary of the society, receivable by the actuary in respect of any period in that year<sup>10</sup>; and
- 820 (4) a general description of any other pecuniary benefit (including any pension or other future contingent benefit) received by the actuary from the society or any subsidiary of the society in that year, or receivable by him from the society or any other such subsidiary<sup>11</sup>.

There must also be a statement that the society has made a request to the actuary to furnish to it the particulars specified above, and identifying any particulars furnished pursuant to the request<sup>12</sup>.

If a friendly society fails to annex the required statement to a copy of its balance sheet<sup>13</sup>, the society concerned commits an offence<sup>14</sup>.

1    le a copy which is: (1) furnished to the Financial Services Authority under the Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 78 (see PARA 2348); (2) laid before the society at its annual general meeting; or (3) furnished to a member at his request: s 77(1) (amended by SI 2001/2617). ## (E) LAYING AND FURNISHING OF ACCOUNTS AND REPORTS

2348. Laying and furnishing of accounts and reports.

In each year, the committee of management<sup>1</sup> of a friendly society<sup>2</sup> or registered branch<sup>3</sup> must lay before the society or branch at the annual general meeting<sup>4</sup>, and send to the Financial Services Authority<sup>5</sup>, not later than 30 June or 14 days before that meeting, whichever is the earlier, copies of the annual accounts for the last financial year<sup>6</sup>, the auditors' report<sup>7</sup> on those accounts and, in the case of a society, the report of the committee of management<sup>8</sup> for that year<sup>9</sup>. Failure to do so is an offence by every person who was a member of the committee of management of the society or branch at any time during the relevant period<sup>10</sup>.

Every friendly society and registered branch must make available copies of the annual accounts, the auditors' report and, in the case of a society, the report of the committee of management, free of charge, to members of the society or branch, at every office of the society or branch; and it must also send, free of charge, copies of those documents to any member of the society or branch who demands them<sup>11</sup>. Failure to make the accounts available, or to supply them within seven days of the demand, is an offence<sup>12</sup>.

The Authority must keep one of the copies of documents received by it from a friendly society<sup>13</sup> in the public file of the society<sup>14</sup>.

H. DISPUTES AND COMPLAINTS

2349. Determination of certain disputes by arbitration.

The Friendly Societies Act 1992 removed the jurisdiction of the Chief Registrar of Friendly Societies<sup>1</sup> to determine disputes in relation to friendly societies<sup>2</sup> and registered branches<sup>3</sup>, which previously existed under the Friendly Societies Act 1974<sup>4</sup>, and substituted new provisions<sup>5</sup>.

Any dispute<sup>6</sup> between:

- 821 (1) a member or person claiming through a member, or under the rules, of a friendly society or registered branch and the society or branch;
- 822 (2) a person aggrieved, who has ceased to be a member of a friendly society or registered branch, or a person claiming through such a person, and the society or branch or an officer of the society or branch;
- 823 (3) a registered branch and the society of which it is a registered branch;
- 824 (4) an officer<sup>7</sup> of a registered branch and the society of which it is a registered branch; or
- 825 (5) two or more registered branches, or any of their officers, must be determined by arbitration in the manner directed by the rules<sup>8</sup> of the society or branch<sup>9</sup>. This does not prevent any person from having a complaint dealt with under an ombudsman scheme<sup>10</sup> before, or instead of, arbitration<sup>11</sup>. An application for enforcement of an award on arbitration may be made to the county court<sup>12</sup>.

If the parties to a dispute agree that it is to be determined by the county court, it may be so determined, instead of being determined by arbitration<sup>13</sup>. If a party to a dispute applies to the society or branch in accordance with its rules for the determination of the dispute by arbitration, and no determination of it has been made within the period of 40 days beginning with the day on which the application was made<sup>14</sup>, and either party applies for determination of the dispute by the county court, the dispute may be so determined<sup>15</sup>.

2 As to the meaning of 'friendly society' see PARA 2082.

3 As to branches and registered branches of societies see PARA 2091.

4 I.e. the Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 77 (repealed by the Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 16 paras 1, 26, Sch 22 Pt I).

5 The new provisions are the Friendly Societies Act 1992 ss 80-82: see the text and notes 6-15; and PARAS 2350-2351. Residual provisions as to the settlement of disputes remain in the Friendly Societies Act 1974, relative to societies other than friendly societies and branches which remain registered under that Act: see PARA 2245 et seq.

6 In the Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 80, 'dispute': (1) includes any dispute arising on the question whether a member or person aggrieved is entitled to be, or to continue to be, a member or to be reinstated as a member; but (2) in the case of a person who has ceased to be a member, does not (except as mentioned in head (1) above) include any dispute other than one on a question which arose while he was a member, or arises out of his membership; and (3) does not include a dispute between parties mentioned in heads (1) and (2) in the text, which has arisen as a result of, and incidentally to, a dispute between a member, or person aggrieved who has ceased to be a member, and a person claiming through him or under the rules of a society or branch: s 80(8). As to the meaning of 'person aggrieved' see JUDICIAL REVIEW vol 61 (2010) PARA 664.

7 As to the meaning of 'officer' see PARA 2115 note 11.

8 A society registered under the Friendly Societies Act 1974 is required by s 7(2), Sch 2 para 9 to provide in its rules the manner in which disputes are to be settled: see PARA 2156. An incorporated friendly society is similarly required, under the Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 5, Sch 3 para 5(3) Table item 9, to provide for the manner in which disputes are to be settled: see PARA 2121.

9 Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 80(1). Where, however, the rules of a registered friendly society or branch provide for such disputes to be determined by arbitration by the Chief Registrar or an assistant registrar, any such disputes must be determined instead by a reference to the county court: s 123(1); Friendly Societies Act 1992 (Transitional and Consequential Provisions and Savings) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/932, reg 8(a). As to the meaning of 'registered friendly society' see PARA 2082. Until a day to be appointed (ie the day prescribed to be the end of the 'transitional period' under the Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 93(14): see PARA 2150), where the rules of a registered friendly society or branch do not provide for determination of such disputes by arbitration, they are to be determined instead by a reference to the county court: s 126(2); Friendly Societies Act 1992 (Commencement No 3 and Transitional Provisions) Order 1993, SI 1993/16, art 6.

14     If the society has registered branches, the period of 40 days does not begin to run until application has been made in succession to all the bodies entitled to determine the dispute by arbitration in accordance with the rules; but the rules may not require a greater delay than three months between each successive determination by such a body: Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 80(7).

2350. Complaints by members of friendly societies.

A friendly society<sup>1</sup> or registered branch<sup>2</sup> has power<sup>3</sup> to establish internal procedures for the resolution of complaints<sup>4</sup>, or to make, to join with others in making, or to accede<sup>5</sup> to, schemes for the investigation of complaints and their settlement by an adjudicator<sup>6</sup>. The Financial Services Authority<sup>7</sup> has the function of promoting the establishment by societies and branches of internal complaints procedures and schemes for the investigation and settlement of complaints and in particular the Authority may issue such guidance on those matters to societies and branches as it thinks fit<sup>8</sup>. A society or branch may not, however, prevent a member from referring any dispute to arbitration<sup>9</sup> by purporting to require instead the making of a complaint or the acceptance of any determination of a complaint<sup>10</sup>.

In cases where a friendly society or registered branch is an authorised person under the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000<sup>11</sup>, complaints by members and other customers relating to an act or omission which occurred in carrying on an activity which is regulated by that Act will normally fall within the jurisdiction of the Financial Ombudsman Service, which operates the ombudsman scheme established under Part XVI of that Act<sup>12</sup>. The scheme is intended to provide for disputes to be resolved quickly and with the minimum of formality by an independent person<sup>13</sup>, and complaints are to be determined by what is, in the opinion of the ombudsman, fair and reasonable in all the circumstances of the case<sup>14</sup>. Detailed rules for the operation of the scheme have been made by the Authority<sup>15</sup>.

(A) AMALGAMATION

2352. Amalgamation of friendly societies.

Any two or more friendly societies<sup>1</sup> may amalgamate by establishing an incorporated friendly society<sup>2</sup> as their successor<sup>3</sup>. In order to establish a society as their successor, friendly societies proposing to amalgamate must:

- 828 (1) provide certain information about the proposed amalgamation to their members<sup>4</sup>;
- 829 (2) decide on the constitution of the successor society<sup>5</sup>;
- 830 (3) each approve the proposed amalgamation and the terms on which it is to take place by special resolution<sup>6</sup>; and
- 831 (4) obtain the confirmation of the Financial Services Authority<sup>7</sup> of the amalgamation, and on obtaining the confirmation of the Authority, the successor society may be registered and incorporated under the Friendly Societies Act 1992<sup>8</sup>.

If the Authority confirms the amalgamation and the successor society is registered under the Act, the certificate of incorporation issued by the Authority must specify a date as the transfer date for the amalgamation<sup>9</sup>. On the transfer date all the property, rights and liabilities of each society participating in the amalgamation become the property, rights and liabilities of the successor society and each society so participating is dissolved, but the transfer from each such society to the successor society is deemed to have been effected immediately before the dissolution of that society<sup>10</sup>.

Where a society is dissolved in this way its registration, whether under the Friendly Societies Act 1974 or the Friendly Societies Act 1992, must be cancelled by the Authority<sup>11</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'friendly society' see PARA 2082.

2 As to the meaning of 'incorporated friendly society' see PARA 2082.

3 Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 85(1). The provisions of the Friendly Societies Act 1974 relating to amalgamations, transfers of engagements and conversion of registered societies now apply only to registered societies which are not registered friendly societies: see s 82(8); and PARAS 2220-2228.

4 It must comply with the applicable requirements of the Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 85(2)(a), (6), Sch 15 paras 1-4. That is, each participating society must send a statement to every member entitled (when the statement is sent) to vote on any resolution required by s 85: Sch 15 para 1(1). The statement must arrive no later than 14 days (or such longer period as the rules may require for notice of any resolution required by s 85) before the meeting at which any such resolution is to be moved or, where proxy voting is permitted, such earlier date as may be specified by the society, under its rules, as the final date for the receipt of instruments appointing proxies to vote at the meeting: Sch 15 para 1(3). The matters of which the required statement is to give particulars are as follows: (1) the financial position of the society and of every other society or person participating in the amalgamation; (2) any interest of the members of the committee of management of the society in the amalgamation; (3) the compensation or other consideration (if any) proposed to be paid to or in respect of: (a) the members of the committee of management or other officers of the society; and (b) the officers of every other society or person participating in the amalgamation; (4) any other matter which the Financial Services Authority requires in the case of the particular amalgamation: Sch 15 para 2(1)(a)-(c), (e) (amended by SI 2001/2617). No such statement is to be sent unless its contents, so far as they concern the above matters, have been approved by the Financial Services Authority: Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 15 para 2(2). As to the committee of management see PARA 2294 et seq. As to the meaning of 'officer' see PARA 2115 note 11. As to the Financial Services Authority see PARA 2105, and also PARAS 4, 6 et seq.

If, on the transfer date, each of the societies whose amalgamation was confirmed by the Authority has a permission under the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 Pt IV (ss 40-55) (see PARA 348 et seq), the Authority must, with effect from that date, give their successor such permission under Pt IV as it considers appropriate, and must notify the successor of the permission by giving the successor a decision notice: Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 85(4A) (s 85(4A)-(4D) added by SI 2001/2617). The Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 Pt XXVI (ss 387-396) (see PARA 769 et seq) applies to a decision notice given under the Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 85 as it applies to a decision notice given under the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 s 52(9) by virtue of s 52(9)(a) (see PARA 350), except that s 390 (final notices) (see PARA 772) does not apply, and for the purposes of s 391 (publication) (see PARA 774) the decision notice is to be treated as if it were a final notice rather than a decision notice: Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 85(4B) (as so added). The giving of permission pursuant to s 85(4A) is to be treated for the purposes of the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 s 55 (right to refer matters to the Financial Services and Markets Tribunal) (see PARA 361) as if it were the determination of an application made by the successor under Pt IV, and Pt IX (ss 132-137) (hearings and appeals) applies accordingly; however, in the application of Pt IX, s 133(9) (which prevents the Authority from taking action specified in a decision notice until after any reference and appeal) is omitted: Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 85(4C), (4D) (as so added). A friendly society<sup>1</sup> may transfer its engagements<sup>2</sup>, to any extent, to any of the following<sup>3</sup>:

- 832 (1) an industrial and provident society<sup>4</sup>;
- 833 (2) a company<sup>5</sup>;
- 834 (3) in relation to engagements the fulfilment of which will constitute the carrying on of insurance business<sup>6</sup>, any other person who is an insurer<sup>7</sup>;
- 835 (4) in relation to engagements the fulfilment of which will not constitute the carrying on of insurance business, a person, or body of persons, who is not of a description specified in head (1), (2) or (3) above<sup>8</sup>.

In order to transfer any of its engagements, a friendly society must: (a) provide certain information about the transfer to its members<sup>9</sup>; (b) resolve to transfer the engagements by special resolution<sup>10</sup>; (c) if the transfer is of some, but not all, of its engagements, resolve to do so by an affected members' resolution<sup>11</sup>; (d) record the extent of the transfer as so resolved in an instrument of transfer of engagements<sup>12</sup>; and (e) obtain the confirmation of the Financial Services Authority to the transfer<sup>13</sup>.

When the confirmation of the Authority is obtained, the instrument of transfer of engagements may be registered<sup>14</sup>.

Where the Authority confirms a transfer of engagements, on the application of the society proposing to transfer them and the proposed transferee, the Authority must register a copy of the instrument of transfer of engagements and issue a registration certificate to the transferee<sup>15</sup>. The registration certificate will specify a date as the transfer date for that transfer<sup>16</sup>. On the transfer date, the property, rights and liabilities of the society transferring its engagements become the property, rights and liabilities of the transferee, to the extent provided in the instrument of transfer; and if the transfer is of all the society's engagements, the society is dissolved and its registration, whether under the Friendly Societies Act 1974 or the Friendly Societies Act 1992, must be cancelled by the Authority<sup>17</sup>. The transfer is deemed to have been effected immediately before the dissolution<sup>18</sup>.

Where it is proposed that any engagements of a person other than a friendly society should be transferred to a friendly society, the proposed transferee, in order to undertake to fulfil them, must resolve to do so by special resolution<sup>19</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'friendly society' see PARA 2082.

2 In accordance with the Friendly Societies Act 1992 Pt VIII (ss 85-92): see PARAS 2352, 2354-2365. It has been held in the comparable context of the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 that 'engagements' means the business undertaking of the society in question (Stansell Ltd v Co-operative Group (CWS) Ltd [2005] EWHC 1601 (Ch), [2006] 1 BCLC 401); this point was common ground on the appeal (see sub nom Co-operative Group (CWS) Ltd v Stansell Ltd [2006] EWCA Civ 538, [2006] 1 WLR 1704, [2006] 2 BCLC 599).

3 Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 86(1). Section 86(1)(a) which made specific provision for a transfer of engagements by one friendly society to another friendly society was repealed by SI 2001/3649. Accordingly, a transfer of engagements by one friendly society to another friendly society will now proceed under the Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 86(1)(d) (see head (3) in the text) if the fulfilment of the transferred engagements will constitute the carrying on of insurance business and the transferee society is an 'insurer' (see note 7) or under s 86(1)(e) (see head (4) in the text) in other cases. Where it is proposed to transfer the engagements of one friendly society to another friendly society, the proposed transferee, in order to undertake to fulfil them must comply with the applicable requirements of Sch 15 Pt I (see note 9) and, if required, with ss 87, 88 (see PARAS 2354-2355); and it must also resolve to undertake to fulfil the engagements by special resolution or, if the Financial Services Authority consents to that mode of proceeding, by resolution of the committee of management: s 86(3) (amended by SI 2001/2617). As to the Financial Services Authority see PARA 2105, and also PARAS 4, 6 et seq.

As from a day to be appointed, the Treasury has power to make by statutory instrument such modifications to the transfer provisions contained in the Friendly Societies Act 1992 ss 86, 88, Sch 15 as it thinks appropriate to facilitate, or in consequence of, the transfer of the whole of the business of a friendly society to a subsidiary of a mutual society (whether or not of the same type): see the Building Societies (Funding) and Mutual Societies (Transfer) Act 2007 ss 3-5 (not yet in force); and PARA 2358. At the date at which this volume states the law, no such day had been appointed, and no orders had been made under ss 3, 4.

4 Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 86(1)(b). As to industrial and provident societies generally see PARA 2394 et seq.

5 Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 86(1)(c). Section 86(1)(c) refers to a company within the meaning of the Companies Act 1985 (see s 735 (prospectively repealed); and as to replacement provisions see the Companies Act 2006 s 1) or the Companies (Northern Ireland) Order 1986, SI 1986/1032, incorporated in Great Britain or Northern Ireland: see COMPANIES vol 14 (2009) PARA 24 et seq.

6 As to the meaning of 'insurance business' see PARA 2138 note 5.

7 Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 86(1)(d) (amended by SI 2001/3649). For this purpose, 'insurer' means: (1) a person who has permission under the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 Pt IV (ss 40-55) (see PARA 348 et seq) to effect or carry out contracts of insurance; or (2) an EEA firm of the kind mentioned in Sch 3 para 5(d), which has permission under Sch 3 para 15 (as a result of qualifying for authorisation under Sch 3 para 12) to effect or carry out contracts of insurance (see PARA 315): Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 86(12) (s 86(12), (13) added by SI 2001/3649). The Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 86(12) must be read with the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 s 22, any relevant order under that provision and Sch 2 (see PARA 84): Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 86(13) (as so added).

9 Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 86(2)(a). The society must comply with the applicable requirements of Sch 15 paras 1-4. These requirements are the same as those in relation to s 85: see PARA 2352 note 4. In addition to the requirements in relation to s 85, however, in the case of a transfer under s 86 the statement the society must send to its members must include a summary of any actuary's report which the society is directed to furnish to the Financial Services Authority under s 88 (see PARA 2355): Sch 15 para 2(2)(d) (amended by SI 2001/2617). If it appears to the Authority that it is impractical to send such a summary of the actuary's report in the statement it may direct that the summary be sent separately within such period as the Authority may specify in the direction: Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 15 para 1(4) (amended by SI 2001/2617). As to the meaning of 'actuary' see PARA 2139 note 4.

10 Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 86(2)(b). As to special resolutions see PARA 2306.

11 Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 86(2)(c). An 'affected members' resolution' is a resolution approving a transfer of engagements which is passed by the appropriate majority of those members whose contracts with the society are included in the transfer and who are entitled to vote on the resolution: s 86(9)(a). 'Appropriate majority' means a majority consisting of not less than three-quarters of those who vote on the resolution (in person or by proxy) at a meeting of the society or in a postal ballot: s 86(9)(b). The provisions of Sch 12 para 7(1)(b), (c), (4), (5) and (6) (see PARA 2306) apply to an affected members' resolution as they apply to a special resolution: s 86(9). Delegate voting may not take place on an affected members' resolution; and where the rules of a friendly society provide for delegate voting on any matter, they must provide for voting by individual members on such resolutions: s 86(10).

12 Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 86(2)(d). Such an instrument is not subject to stamp duty: see PARA 2383.

14 Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 86(2).

15 Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 86(4)(a), (b). The Authority must keep a copy of the instrument of transfer and the registration certificate: (1) where the transferee is a friendly society, in the public file of that society; and (2) in any other case, in the public file of the society transferring the engagements: s 86(6) (amended by SI 2001/2617). As to the public file of a friendly society see PARA 2382.

16 Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 86(4).

17 Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 86(5)(a), (b), (7) (s 86(7) amended by SI 2001/2617). As to the effect of the statutory transfer of property, rights and liabilities cf Co-operative Group (CWS) Ltd v Stansell Ltd [2006] EWCA Civ 538, [2006] 1 WLR 1704, [2006] 2 BCLC 599, in which it was held by the Court of Appeal that a transfer of engagements by an industrial and provident society was effective under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 51(1) (see PARA 2562) to pass a contractual right which could only have been assigned at common law with the consent of the other party to the contract (which had not been obtained). As to registration of friendly societies see PARA 2149 et seq.

2353 Transfer of engagements by or to a friendly society

TEXT AND NOTE 5--Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 86(1)(c) amended: SI 2009/1941.

Halsbury's Laws of England/FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS (VOLUME 48 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-589; VOLUME 49 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 590-1619; VOLUME 50 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1620-2586)/8. Actuary's report as to margin of solvency.

2354. Actuary's report as to margin of solvency.

Where a friendly society<sup>1</sup> proposes to transfer any of its engagements to another friendly society and the fulfilment of any of those engagements will constitute:

- 836 (1) in the case of a transferor which is a directive society<sup>2</sup>, the carrying on of insurance business in one or more EEA states<sup>3</sup>; and
- 837 (2) in any other case, the carrying on of insurance business in the United Kingdom<sup>4</sup>, and the transferee will, after taking the proposed transfer into account, be under a duty to maintain a margin of solvency<sup>5</sup>, the transferee must furnish the Financial Services Authority<sup>6</sup> with a report by the appropriate actuary<sup>7</sup> as to whether, immediately after the proposed transfer, it will possess that margin of solvency<sup>8</sup>.

Where the fulfilment of any of the engagements will constitute the carrying on of long term business<sup>9</sup>, but a report is not required as mentioned above, the Authority may direct the transferee to furnish the Authority with a report by the appropriate actuary as to whether it will, immediately after the proposed transfer, possess an excess of assets over liabilities<sup>10</sup>.

The appropriate actuary has a right of access at all times to the books, accounts and vouchers of the transferor and the transferee, and is entitled to require from the officers<sup>11</sup> of either society such information and explanations as he thinks necessary to enable him to prepare such a report<sup>12</sup>. If the appropriate actuary fails to obtain all the information and explanations and the access to documents which, to the best of his knowledge and belief, are necessary for the purposes of the report, he must state that fact in his report<sup>13</sup>.

An officer of a transferor or of the transferee commits an offence if he knowingly or recklessly makes a statement (written or oral) to the appropriate actuary which conveys, or purports to convey, information or explanations which he is entitled to require for the purposes of his report, and which is misleading, false or deceptive in a material particular<sup>14</sup>.

- 13   Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 87(5).
- 14   Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 87(6). The offence is punishable: (1) on conviction on indictment, with imprisonment for up to two years or a fine or both; and (2) on summary conviction, with imprisonment for up to six months or a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum or both: s 87(7). However, if a person is guilty of an offence, but would not have been so but for the substitutions in s 87(2) (see the text and notes 3-4), he is not liable on summary conviction to more than three months' imprisonment: Friendly Societies Act 1992 (Amendment) Regulations 1994, SI 1994/1984, reg 26(2). ### 2355. Actuary's report on long term business.

Where:

838 (1) a friendly society<sup>1</sup> (a 'transferor society') proposes to transfer to any person engagements, the fulfilment of which will constitute:

37

23. (a) in the case of a directive society<sup>2</sup>, the carrying on of long term business<sup>3</sup> in one or more EEA states<sup>4</sup>; and
24. (b) in any other case, the carrying on of long term business in the United Kingdom<sup>5</sup>; or

38

839 (2) a friendly society (a 'transferee society') proposes to undertake to fulfil any such engagements to be transferred to it from another friendly society<sup>6</sup>, the Financial Services Authority<sup>7</sup> may direct the transferor society or the transferee society to furnish the Authority with a report by an independent actuary<sup>8</sup> on the terms of the proposed transfer and as to his opinion on the likely effects of the transfer on the members of the society who are long term policyholders<sup>9</sup>.

A friendly society which is directed to furnish such a report must, on payment of a reasonable fee, furnish a copy of the report to any person who asks for one at any time before the transfer in question is confirmed by the Authority<sup>10</sup>.

The provisions relating to the preparation of a report by the actuary as to the margin of solvency, including rights of access and information, and the provisions as to offences, apply to the preparation of a report under the provisions described above<sup>11</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'friendly society' see PARA 2082.

2 Is a friendly society to which the Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 37(2) or (3) applies: see PARA 2112 note 15.

6 Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 88(1)(b).

7 As to the Financial Services Authority see PARA 2105, and also PARAS 4, 6 et seq.

8 'Independent actuary', in relation to a transfer of engagements, means an actuary who is not the appropriate actuary of a friendly society participating in the transfer: Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 88(5). As to the meaning of 'appropriate actuary' see PARA 2139 note 4.

9 Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 88(2) (amended by SI 2001/2617). 'Long term policyholder' means a member whose contract with a friendly society is a contract the effecting of which by the society constituted the carrying on of long term business: Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 88(5).

As from a day to be appointed, the Treasury has power to make by statutory instrument such modifications to the transfer provisions contained in the Friendly Societies Act 1992 ss 86, 88, Sch 15 as it thinks appropriate to facilitate, or in consequence of, the transfer of the whole of the business of a friendly society to a subsidiary of a mutual society (whether or not of the same type): see the Building Societies (Funding) and Mutual Societies (Transfer) Act 2007 ss 3-5 (not yet in force); and PARA 2358. At the date at which this volume states the law, no such day had been appointed, and no orders had been made under ss 3, 4.

Power of Financial Services Authority to alter requirements for transfer by a friendly society.

2356. Power of Financial Services Authority to alter requirements for transfer by a friendly society.

If the Financial Services Authority<sup>1</sup> is satisfied that it is expedient to do so in the interests of the members or potential members of a friendly society<sup>2</sup>, it may give a direction modifying or disapplying certain requirements of the Friendly Societies Act 1992 in relation to a particular proposed transfer or to all transfers made by the society after the making of the direction<sup>3</sup>.

The Authority may not give such a direction unless<sup>4</sup>:

- 840 (1) an application has been made to it by not less than 10 per cent of the members of the society concerned or, in the case of a society with more than 1,000 members, by not fewer than 100 members of the society<sup>5</sup>;
- 841 (2) not less than one month before giving the direction the Authority has served on the society concerned a notice stating that it proposes to make a direction and specifying the considerations which have led it to conclude that it would be expedient to give it<sup>6</sup>;
- 842 (3) the Authority has considered any representations made by the society with respect to the notice mentioned in head (2) above, within such period (being not less than one month) from the date on which the society was served with the notice, as the Authority may allow<sup>7</sup>; and
- 843 (4) if the society so requests, the Authority has afforded to it an opportunity to be heard by it within that period<sup>8</sup>.

On giving a direction, the Authority is required to serve on the society concerned a copy of the direction, which specifies the considerations which have led the Authority to conclude that it is expedient to give the direction, but the Authority may not give a direction unless all the considerations so specified were those, or among those, which were specified in the notice served on the society under heads (1) to (4) above<sup>9</sup>. The Authority must keep a copy of any direction given in the public file of the society concerned<sup>10</sup>. Notice of a direction must be published by the Authority in one or more of the London, Belfast or Edinburgh Gazettes, as it thinks appropriate, and in such other ways as appear to the Authority expedient for informing the public<sup>11</sup>.

If the Authority considers it expedient to do so in the interests of the members or potential members of the society concerned, it may vary or revoke a direction by a further direction<sup>12</sup>.

1 As to the Financial Services Authority see PARA 2105, and also PARAS 4, 6 et seq.

2 As to the meaning of 'friendly society' see PARA 2082.

3 Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 89(1) (s 89(1), (3)-(6) amended by SI 2001/2617). The requirements of the Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 86(2)(b) and (c) may be modified and the requirements of Sch 15 Pt I may be modified or disapplied: s 89(1)(a), (b). As to those requirements see PARA 2353 text and notes 10-11. However, a direction may not modify the requirements of s 86(2) so as to permit a society to resolve to make a transfer by a resolution passed by less than a majority, or so as to require more than a three-quarters majority, of those voting on the resolution: s 89(2).

MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(2) FRIENDLY SOCIETIES/(iv) Matters Common to All Friendly Societies/I. AMALGAMATION, TRANSFERS OF ENGAGEMENTS AND CONVERSION/(B) Transfer of Engagements, etc/2357. Power of Financial Services Authority to effect transfer of engagements.

2357. Power of Financial Services Authority to effect transfer of engagements.

The Financial Services Authority<sup>1</sup> may give a direction providing for the transfer of such of the engagements of a friendly society<sup>2</sup> as are specified in the direction to a specified person (the 'transferee')<sup>3</sup>. The Authority may give such a direction if: (1) it considers that the society is unable to manage its affairs satisfactorily in relation to the engagements specified and that a transfer of those engagements would be expedient to protect the interests of the members of the society<sup>4</sup>; and (2) the proposed transferee has complied with the applicable statutory requirements<sup>5</sup> and has resolved to undertake to fulfil the engagements by special resolution<sup>6</sup> or, if the Authority so allows, by resolution of the committee of management<sup>7</sup>. The Authority may direct that head (2) above be modified in relation to a particular proposed transfer, but not so as to permit a society to resolve to undertake to fulfil the engagements by less than a simple majority, or more than a three-quarters majority, of those voting<sup>8</sup>.

The Authority may not give a direction if, were the transfer to be proposed by the society itself<sup>9</sup>, it would be precluded by certain provisions from confirming it<sup>10</sup>.

Before giving a direction, the Authority is required to serve on the society concerned a warning notice stating that it intends to give the direction<sup>11</sup>; and it must publish notice of the proposed direction in one or more of the London, Belfast or Edinburgh Gazettes, as it thinks appropriate and, if it thinks appropriate, in one or more newspapers<sup>12</sup>.

If the Authority gives such a direction it must keep a copy of that direction and must register it and issue a registration certificate to the transferee, specifying a date as the transfer date for the transfer<sup>13</sup>. On the transfer date, the property, rights and liabilities of the society become, to the extent provided in the direction, the property, rights and liabilities of the transferee and, if the transfer is of all the society's engagements, the society is dissolved, the transfer being deemed to have been effected before the dissolution<sup>14</sup>.

Following its dissolution, the society's registration, whether under the Friendly Societies Act 1974 or the Friendly Societies Act 1992, must be cancelled by the Authority<sup>15</sup>.

The Authority must keep a copy of a direction and of the registration certificate, if the transferee is a friendly society, in the public file of that society and, in any other case, in the public file of the society transferring the engagements<sup>16</sup>.

11 le a notice in accordance with the Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 58A: see PARA 2313. Such a notice must: (1) state that any interested party has the right to make representations to the Authority; (2) specify a date before which written representations, or notice of that party's intention to make oral representations, must be received; and (3) specify a date on which it intends to hear oral representations: s 90(5) (as amended: see note 3). After the date specified in head (2) above, the Authority must determine the time and place at which oral representations may be made, give notice of that determination to the society and the proposed transferee and any persons who have notified their intention to make oral representations, and send copies of the written representations to the society and the proposed transferee: s 90(6) (as so amended). Before the Authority decides whether to give the society a decision notice in accordance with s 58A(3) (see PARA 2313), the Authority must allow the society and the proposed transferee an opportunity to comment on the written representations, whether at a hearing or in writing before the expiry of such period as the Authority specifies: s 90(7) (as so amended).

2358. Transfer of a friendly society's business under the Building Societies (Funding) and Mutual Societies (Transfers) Act 2007.

As from a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect<sup>1</sup>. The Treasury has power to make by statutory instrument such modifications<sup>2</sup> to the transfer provisions (including the provisions of the Friendly Societies Act 1992 relating to the transfer of engagements by or to a friendly society, and those relating to the actuary's report on a transfer of business)<sup>3</sup> as it thinks appropriate to facilitate, or in consequence of, the transfer of the whole of the business of a mutual society<sup>4</sup> (the 'transferor') to a subsidiary of a mutual society<sup>5</sup> (whether or not of the same type) (the 'transferee')<sup>6</sup>.

1 The Building Societies (Funding) and Mutual Societies (Transfers) Act 2007 ss 3-5 come into force on such day as the Treasury may by order made by statutory instrument appoint, and different days may be appointed for different purposes: see s 6. As to the Treasury see PARA 3; and CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 512 et seq. At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed, and no orders had been made under ss 3, 4.

2 'Modifications' include omissions, additions and alterations: Building Societies (Funding) and Mutual Societies (Transfers) Act 2007 s 3(9). See note 1.

3 'Transfer provisions' means, in relation to friendly societies, the Friendly Societies Act 1992 ss 86, 88, Sch 15 (see PARAS 2353, 2355) and provision contained in subordinate legislation made under ss 86, 88, Sch 15: see the Building Societies (Funding) and Mutual Societies (Transfer) Act 2007 s 3(11)(b), (d). See note 1.

4 A 'mutual society' is a building society incorporated or deemed to be incorporated under the Building Societies Act 1986 (see PARA 1856 et seq); a friendly society within the meaning of the Friendly Societies Act 1992 (see PARA 2082); an industrial and provident society registered or deemed to be registered under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 (see PARA 2394 et seq); or an EEA mutual society: Building Societies (Funding) and Mutual Societies (Transfer) Act 2007 s 3(10). See note 1. An 'EEA mutual society' is a body which is a European Cooperative Society for the purposes of EC Council Regulation 1435/2003 (OJ L207, 18.8.2003, p 1) on the Statute for a European Cooperative Society; a body which is established as a cooperative under the law of an EEA state as mentioned in that Regulation; or a body which is a cooperative or mutual undertaking of such description as the Treasury may specify by order and which is established or operates in accordance with the laws of an EEA state or any of the Channel Islands or the Isle of Man: Building Societies (Funding) and Mutual Societies (Transfer) Act 2007 s 3(12).

5 A 'subsidiary of a mutual society' is a relevant company (1) in which the society holds a majority of the voting rights or of which the society is a member and alone controls, pursuant to an agreement with other shareholders or members, a majority of the voting rights; and (2) in relation to which the society has the right to appoint or remove a majority of the company's board of directors, but the Treasury may, by order, amend heads (1) and (2) above to make the degree of control required more or less onerous: Building Societies (Funding) and Mutual Societies (Transfer) Act 2007 s 3(13). See note 1. A 'relevant company' is a company within the meaning of the Companies Act 2006 (or, before the commencement of Pt 1 (ss 1-6), the Companies Act 1985); a company within the meaning of the Companies (Northern Ireland) Order 1986 (SI 1986/1032 (NI 6)); a body corporate which is incorporated in an EEA state other than the United Kingdom: Building Societies (Funding) and Mutual Societies (Transfer) Act 2007 s 3(14). As to the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 2 note 3.

6 See the Building Societies (Funding) and Mutual Societies (Transfer) Act 2007 s 3(1). See note 1.

An order under s 3 may make provision as to the rights (including rights of and pertaining to membership) in relation to the mutual society of which the transferee is a subsidiary of the members of the transferor and of persons who, after the transfer, become customers of the transferee: s 3(2). Such an order may confer such functions on the Authority as the Treasury thinks appropriate: s 3(3).

An order under s 3 may make such consequential, saving, supplementary or transitional provision as the Treasury thinks appropriate; and may make different provision for different purposes: s 3(4). The power to make such an order is exercisable by statutory instrument: s 3(5). An order which makes modifications of a provision mentioned in s 3(11)(a)-(d) (which include the provisions relating to friendly societies mentioned in s 3(11)(b) (see note 3), or amends s 3(13)(a) or (b) (see note 5 heads (1), (2)), (whether or not it contains any other provision) must not be made unless a draft of it has been laid before and approved by resolution of each House of Parliament: s 3(6). Otherwise, an order is subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament: s 3(7). If a draft of an order mentioned in s 3(6) would, apart from this provision, be treated for the purposes of the Standing Orders of either House of Parliament as a hybrid instrument it must proceed in that House as if it were not such an instrument: s 3(8).

For the purposes of the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 Sch 1 para 17 (power to charge fees) (see PARA 16) a function conferred on the Financial Services Authority by an order under the Building Societies (Funding) and Mutual Societies (Transfer) Act 2007 s 3 is to be treated as a function conferred under or as a result of the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000: Building Societies (Funding) and Mutual Societies (Transfer) Act 2007 s 3(15). As to the Financial Services Authority see PARA 2105, and also PARAS 4, 6 et seq.

An order under s 3 may provide for s 4 to have effect: s 4(1). Section 4(3) applies if the terms of a transfer to which the order applies include provision for part of the funds of the transferor or the mutual society of which the transferee is a subsidiary (the 'holding mutual') to be distributed in consideration of the transfer among the members of the transferor, the holding mutual, or both the transferor and the holding mutual: s 4(2). In such a case, the provision for the distribution must be authorised as follows: (1) it must not exceed the limits prescribed by order under s 4(4) (see below), and the distribution must be approved (in the case of the transferor) by the transfer resolution or (in the case of the holding mutual) by a resolution of such description as the Treasury specifies by order; (2) if the provision for a distribution exceeds the prescribed limits, it must be approved by each of the resolutions mentioned in head (1) above: s 4(3). 'Transfer resolution' means, in relation to a friendly society, the resolution required by the Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 86(2)(b) (see PARA 2353 head (b)); see the Building Societies (Funding) and Mutual Societies (Transfer) Act 2007 s 4(5)(b). The Treasury must by order authorise distributions of funds to members by mutual societies participating (directly or through a subsidiary) in transfers to which an order mentioned in s 4(1) applies, subject to limits specified by or determined in accordance with the order: s 4(4). Expressions used in ss 3, 4 have the same meaning as in s 3: s 4(6). Section 3(4)-(7) apply to an order under s 4 as they apply to an order under s 3: s 4(7).

Her Majesty may by Order in Council provide for any of the provisions of the Building Societies (Funding) and Mutual Societies (Transfer) Act 2007 to extend with or without modifications, to any of the Channel Islands or to the Isle of Man: s 5.

Conversion of a friendly society into a company.

(C) CONVERSION

2359. Conversion of a friendly society into a company.

A friendly society<sup>1</sup> may convert itself into a company<sup>2</sup>. In order to do so, it must:

- 844 (1) supply certain information about the proposed conversion to its members<sup>3</sup>;
- 845 (2) approve the proposed conversion, the terms on which it is to take place and the proposed memorandum and articles of association for the company, by special resolution<sup>4</sup>; and
- 846 (3) obtain the confirmation of the Financial Services Authority of the conversion<sup>5</sup>.

On obtaining that confirmation, the society may apply for registration as a company<sup>6</sup>.

The terms on which the conversion of a friendly society into a company is to take place may include provision for part of the funds of the society or the company to be distributed among, or for other rights in relation to shares in the company to be conferred on, members of the society<sup>7</sup>.

Where a special resolution of a society contains the particulars required<sup>8</sup> to be contained in the memorandum of association, or the articles of association, of a company and a copy of the resolution has been registered by the Authority, a copy of that resolution under the seal and stamp of the Authority<sup>9</sup> has the same effect as a memorandum of association or, as the case may be, articles of association which have been duly signed<sup>10</sup>.

On the registration of a friendly society as a company, the registration of the society under the Friendly Societies Act 1974 or the Friendly Societies Act 1992 must be cancelled by the Authority<sup>11</sup>.

Where a friendly society converts into a company, the terms approved by the society and confirmed by the Authority, in so far as they provide for the conferral of rights on members or officers of the society, are enforceable as if they had been the subject of an agreement between the society and those members and officers<sup>12</sup>.

Registration of a friendly society as a company does not affect any right or claim subsisting against the society or any penalty incurred by the society, and for the purpose of enforcing such a right, claim or penalty, the society may be sued and proceeded against in the same manner as if it had not become registered as a company<sup>13</sup>.

The Authority may, with the consent of the Treasury, make regulations governing the conversion of friendly societies into companies, and in particular for: (a) the transition from regulation under the Friendly Societies Act 1974 or the Friendly Societies Act 1992 to regulation by or under any other enactment; and (b) the treatment, in the hands of the company into which the society has converted, of the property, rights and liabilities of the society immediately before conversion and the modification of any enactment in its application to any such property, rights and liabilities<sup>14</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'friendly society' see PARA 2082.

2 Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 91(1), which refers to a company registered under the Companies Act 1985 (as to company formation see the Companies Act 1985 Pt I Ch I (ss 1-24) (prospectively repealed); and as to replacement provisions see the Companies Act 2006 Pt 2 (ss 7-16)) or the Companies (Northern Ireland) Order 1986, SI 1986/1032. See generally COMPANIES vol 14 (2009) PARA 24 et seq.

3 See the Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 91(2)(a), (9), Sch 15 paras 1-4. The society must comply with the following requirements. It must send a statement concerning such matters as may be prescribed by regulations made by the Treasury, and such other matters as may be required by the Financial Services Authority for the particular conversion, to every member entitled at the time of sending to vote on any resolution required by s 91(2): Sch 15 para 3(1) (amended by SI 2001/2617). The statement must be sent to arrive no later than 14 days (or such longer period as the rules may require for notice of any resolution under the Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 91) before the meeting at which any such resolution is to be moved or, where proxy voting is permitted, such earlier date as may be specified by the society, under its rules, as the final date for receipt of instruments appointing proxies for the meeting, but no statement may be sent unless its contents, so far as they concern the required matters, have been approved by the Authority: Sch 15 para 4 (amended by SI 2001/2617). Regulations may include among the prescribed matters any alternatives to a proposed conversion which may be available: Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 15 para 3(2). At the date at which this volume states the law, no regulations had been made under these provisions. ### (D) CONFIRMATION BY THE FINANCIAL SERVICES AUTHORITY

2360. Applications for confirmation.

An application by a friendly society<sup>1</sup> for confirmation by the Financial Services Authority<sup>2</sup> of: (1) an amalgamation<sup>3</sup>; (2) a transfer of engagements<sup>4</sup>; or (3) the conversion of a friendly society into a company<sup>5</sup>, must be made in such manner as the Authority may direct<sup>6</sup>. An application for confirmation of an amalgamation must be made jointly by the friendly societies concerned<sup>7</sup>.

Notice of an application for confirmation of an amalgamation, transfer or conversion must be published by the society concerned in one or more of the London Gazette, the Edinburgh Gazette or the Belfast Gazette, as the Authority directs, and in one or more newspapers, if it so directs<sup>8</sup>. The notice must:

- 847 (a) state that any interested party has the right to make representations to the Authority with respect to the application<sup>9</sup>;
- 848 (b) specify a date, determined by the Authority, before which any written representations or notice of a person's intention to make oral representations must be received by the Authority<sup>10</sup>; and
- 849 (c) specify a date, determined by the Authority, as the day on which it intends to hear any oral representations<sup>11</sup>.

Where a friendly society participating in a transfer of engagements is required to furnish an actuary's report<sup>12</sup>, the society must publish a notice in like manner:

- 850 (i) stating that such a report has been obtained<sup>13</sup>;
- 851 (ii) stating the addresses of the offices of the society<sup>14</sup> at which copies of the report will be available for inspection, for a period of not less than 21 days beginning with the date of first publication of the notice<sup>15</sup>; and
- 852 (iii) containing such particulars of any other matter relating to the report which the Authority requires<sup>16</sup>.

This notice may be included in the notice of application for confirmation referred to above<sup>17</sup>.

After the date specified in the notice of application for confirmation as the date before which any written representations, or notice of a person's intention to make oral representations, must be received, the Authority is required to: (A) determine the time and place at which oral representations may be made; (B) give notice of the time and place to the society applying for confirmation and to any persons who have given notice of their intention to make oral representations; and (c) send copies of any written representations received by the Authority to the applicant society<sup>18</sup>. The Authority must then allow the society an opportunity to comment on the written representations, whether at the hearing or in writing, before the end of the period specified for this purpose in a notice to the applicant society<sup>19</sup>.

MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(2) FRIENDLY SOCIETIES/(iv) Matters Common to All Friendly Societies/I. AMALGAMATION, TRANSFERS OF ENGAGEMENTS AND CONVERSION/ (D) Confirmation by the Financial Services Authority/2361. Confirmation by the Financial Services Authority.

2361. Confirmation by the Financial Services Authority.

In relation to any amalgamation or transfer of engagements, if it seems to the Authority that there is a substantial risk that the successor society or the transferee society will not be able lawfully to carry out the engagements to be transferred to it, it may not give confirmation, and where it has already done so, it must withdraw its confirmation, but it may not withdraw it on or after the transfer date for the amalgamation or transfer<sup>7</sup>.

The Authority is not precluded from confirming an amalgamation, transfer or conversion solely because some requirement of the Friendly Societies Act 1992, or in the rules of a society, is not fulfilled, if it appears to the Authority that it could not have been material to the members' decision and the Authority gives a direction that the failure is to be disregarded<sup>8</sup>. Subject to this, the Authority may not confirm:

- 853 (1) an amalgamation or transfer, if it considers that: (a) some information material to the members' decision was not made available to all the members eligible to vote; (b) the vote on any resolution approving the amalgamation or transfer does not represent the views of the members eligible to vote; or (c) some relevant requirement of the Friendly Societies Act 1992 or the rules of any friendly society participating in the amalgamation or transfer was not fulfilled<sup>9</sup>;
- 854 (2) a conversion, if it considers that: (a) some information material to the members' decision about the conversion was not made available to all the members eligible to vote; (b) the vote on any resolution approving the conversion does not represent the views of the members eligible to vote; or (c) some relevant requirement of the Friendly Societies Act 1992 or the rules of the society was not fulfilled<sup>10</sup>;
- 855 (3) an amalgamation, transfer of engagements or conversion unless it is satisfied that there is no substantial risk that the successor society, the proposed transferee, or the company into which the society is converted, will not have such permission under the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000<sup>11</sup> as will enable it to carry on the business which it will have as a result of the amalgamation, transfer or conversion without contravening the general prohibition under that Act<sup>12</sup>.

Where the Authority would be precluded from confirming an amalgamation, transfer of engagements or a conversion, because of any of the defects or reasons mentioned in heads (1) to (3) above, it may give the friendly society concerned a direction requiring it to take specified steps to remedy the defect, including calling a further meeting, or remove the risk referred to in head (3) above, and to furnish the Authority with evidence that those steps have been taken<sup>13</sup>. If the Authority is satisfied that the steps have been taken and the defect has been substantially remedied or, as the case may be, the risk has been removed, the Authority must confirm the amalgamation, transfer or conversion<sup>14</sup>.

MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(2) FRIENDLY SOCIETIES/(iv) Matters Common to All Friendly Societies/I. AMALGAMATION, TRANSFERS OF ENGAGEMENTS AND CONVERSION/ (D) Confirmation by the Financial Services Authority/2362. Confirmation of transfers of engagements.

2362. Confirmation of transfers of engagements.

The Financial Services Authority<sup>1</sup> may not confirm a transfer of engagements<sup>2</sup> unless it is satisfied: (1) that all the engagements included in the transfer may properly be transferred to the transferee<sup>3</sup>; (2) that the transfer is in the interests of the members of each friendly society<sup>4</sup> participating in the transfer<sup>5</sup>; and (3) in the case of a partial transfer of engagements, that the purposes of each friendly society participating in the transfer will, after the transfer, continue to include the carrying on of one or more of the permitted activities<sup>6</sup>.

Where the transferee society is required to furnish an actuary's report as to the margin of solvency after the transfer<sup>7</sup>, the Authority must not confirm the transfer unless it is satisfied that, after taking the transfer into account, the transferee society will possess the requisite margin of solvency<sup>8</sup>, or, where no margin of solvency is required, will possess an excess of assets over liabilities<sup>9</sup>. The Authority is also prohibited from confirming a transfer of engagements the fulfilment of which will constitute the effecting or carrying out of contracts of insurance<sup>10</sup> in the United Kingdom<sup>11</sup>, unless it is so satisfied<sup>12</sup>.

In the case of certain transfers of engagements by directive societies<sup>13</sup>, the Authority must not confirm such a transfer unless:

- 856 (a) it is satisfied that every policy included in the transfer evidences a contract entered into before the date of the application<sup>14</sup>;

- 857 (b) the relevant authority<sup>15</sup> certifies that the transferee possesses the necessary margin of solvency after taking the proposed transfer into account<sup>16</sup>; and
- 858 (c) where the establishment from which the policies are to be transferred is situated in an EEA state other than the United Kingdom, the Authority is satisfied that the supervisory authority in that EEA state has been consulted and has responded or three months have elapsed since the consultation<sup>17</sup>.

Where, as regards any policy which is included in the proposed transfer, the risk is situated in an EEA state other than the United Kingdom, the Authority may not confirm the transfer unless it is satisfied that the supervisory authority in that EEA state has been notified and has consented, or it has not refused its consent and three months have elapsed since notification<sup>18</sup>.

Provision which is in all significant respects identical to that described above in relation to transfers of general business by directive societies<sup>19</sup>, is made in relation to the transfer by such societies of engagements other than contracts of reinsurance<sup>20</sup>.

15 'Relevant authority' means, in relation to the each type of body specified in note 13 head (3)(a)-(e) respectively, the following: (1) the Financial Services Authority; (2) the Authority; (3) the home state regulator; (4) the supervisory authority in Switzerland; or (5) the Authority or other supervisory authority responsible for supervision: Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 15 para 15(6) (substituted by SI 2001/3649). 'Supervisory authority' in relation to an EEA state other than the United Kingdom, means the authority responsible in that state for supervising persons whose business consists of effecting or carrying out contracts of insurance: Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 119(1) (definition added by SI 1994/1984; and amended by SI 2001/3649). In the definition of 'supervisory authority', the reference to contracts of insurance and to effecting or carrying out such contracts must be read with the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 s 22, any relevant order under that provision and Sch 2 (see PARA 84): Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 119(1C) (added by SI 2001/3649). ### 2363. Rights of policyholders on transfer of engagements.

Where the Financial Services Authority<sup>1</sup> confirms a transfer of engagements<sup>2</sup> and, as regards any policy<sup>3</sup> included in the transfer, an EEA state<sup>4</sup> other than the United Kingdom<sup>5</sup> is the EEA state in which the risk or commitment is situated<sup>6</sup>, the Authority must direct that notice of its decision or any order, and of the execution of any instrument giving effect to the transfer, is to be published in the EEA state in which the risk or commitment is situated, and that notice is to specify the period during which the policyholder<sup>7</sup> may exercise any right to cancel the policy<sup>8</sup>. The instrument does not bind the policyholder if such a notice is not published or he exercises his right to cancel during the specified period<sup>9</sup>.

The law of the EEA state in which the risk or commitment is situated determines whether the policyholder has a right to cancel the policy, and the conditions applicable to any such right<sup>10</sup>.

1 As to the Financial Services Authority see PARA 2105, and also PARAS 4, 6 et seq. The Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 86(11), Sch 15 paras 16A, 16B refers to the 'Commission', but it is submitted that this should have been replaced by a reference to the Financial Services Authority.

7 'Policyholder' means a member whose contract with a directive society is a contract the effecting of which by the society constituted the carrying on of insurance business (other than reinsurance business) of any class: Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 15 para 18(2) (substituted by SI 1994/1984). A directive society is one to which the Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 37(2) or (3) applies: see PARA 2112 note 15. ### 2364. Effect of failure to comply with relevant requirements.

Failure to comply with the relevant requirements<sup>1</sup> of the Friendly Societies Act 1992, or any rules of a friendly society<sup>2</sup>, does not invalidate an amalgamation<sup>3</sup>, transfer of engagements<sup>4</sup> or conversion<sup>5</sup>; but a society which participates in an amalgamation or transfer, or converts into a company, and fails without reasonable excuse to comply with such a requirement, commits an offence<sup>6</sup>.

1 'Relevant requirement', with reference to the Friendly Societies Act 1992 or the rules of a friendly society, means a requirement of Pt VIII (ss 85-92), Sch 15, or of any rules prescribing the procedure to be followed by the society in approving or effecting an amalgamation, a transfer of engagements or its conversion into a company: ss 85(6), 86(11), 91(9), Sch 15 para 18(2) (substituted by SI 1994/1984).

(E) COMPENSATION FOR LOSS OF OFFICE

2365. Compensation for loss of office.

The terms of an amalgamation<sup>1</sup>, transfer of engagements<sup>2</sup> of a friendly society<sup>3</sup>, or a conversion<sup>4</sup>, may include provision for compensation<sup>5</sup> for loss of office<sup>6</sup> or diminution of emoluments attributable to the amalgamation, transfer or conversion, to be paid by a participating society<sup>7</sup> to or in respect of the following persons<sup>8</sup>:

- 859 (1) the officers of the society which is to pay the compensation<sup>9</sup>;
- 860 (2) in the case of an amalgamation or transfer, the officers of any other participating society<sup>10</sup>;
- 861 (3) in the case of a transfer, the officers of any other person participating in the transfer<sup>11</sup>; and
- 862 (4) the appointed actuary<sup>12</sup> (if any) of any society participating in an amalgamation or transfer<sup>13</sup>.

Any such provision for compensation for loss of office must be approved by the society which is to pay the compensation by a special resolution<sup>14</sup> separate from any resolution approving the other terms of the amalgamation, transfer or conversion<sup>15</sup>. If compensation which has not been so authorised is received by an officer, it must be repaid<sup>16</sup>.

2 As to transfers of engagements see PARA 2353.

3 As to the meaning of 'friendly society' see PARA 2082.

4 As to the conversion of societies into companies see PARA 2359.

5 'Compensation' includes the provision of benefits in kind: Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 92(5).

6 'Loss of office' includes, in relation to an officer of an incorporated friendly society holding office, by virtue of his position in the society, in a subsidiary of the society or body jointly controlled by the society, the loss of that office: Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 92(5). As to the meaning of 'officer' see PARA 2115 note 11. As to the meaning of 'incorporated friendly society' see PARA 2082. As to the meanings of 'subsidiary' and 'jointly controlled body' see PARA 2134.

7 'Participating society' means, in relation to an amalgamation or transfer, a friendly society participating in the amalgamation or transfer; and, in relation to the conversion of a friendly society, that society: Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 92(5).

J. EXEMPTION FROM TAX

2366. Exemption in respect of life or endowment business.

A friendly society<sup>1</sup> may claim exemption from income tax and corporation tax (whether on income or chargeable gains) on profits arising from life or endowment business<sup>2</sup>. However, this provision:

- 863 (1) does not exempt a registered friendly society registered after 31 December 1957 which at any time during the three months ending with 3 May 1966 entered into any transaction in return for a single premium, being a transaction forming part of its life or endowment business<sup>3</sup>;
- 864 (2) does not exempt an incorporated friendly society which before incorporation was a registered friendly society as mentioned in head (1) above<sup>4</sup>;
- 865 (3) does not apply to profits arising from gross roll-up business<sup>5</sup>;
- 866 (4) does not apply to profits arising from specified life or endowment business consisting of: (a) the assurance of gross sums under contracts under which the total premiums payable for 12 months (or, in certain cases, the gross sum assured) exceed a specified amount<sup>6</sup>; or (b) the granting of annuities of annual amounts exceeding a specified amount<sup>7</sup>;
- 867 (5) does not apply to so much of the profits arising from life or endowment business as is attributable to contracts for the assurance of gross sums made on or after 20 March 1991 and expressed at the outset not to be made in the course of tax exempt life or endowment business<sup>8</sup>;
- 868 (6) as respects other life or endowment business ('tax exempt life or endowment business'), has effect subject to the provisions of the Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988<sup>9</sup>.

The following particular provisions apply to a friendly society if its rules make no provision for it to carry on life or endowment business consisting of the assurance of gross sums exceeding £2,000 or the granting of annuities of annual amounts exceeding £416<sup>10</sup>:

- 869 (i) where at any time such a society amends its rules so as to cease to be such a society, any part of its life or endowment business relating to contracts made before that time and which immediately before that time was exempt from tax, continues to be so exempt<sup>11</sup>; conversely, where a society amends its rules so that it becomes such a society, its previously effected non-exempt business remains non-exempt<sup>12</sup>;

- 870 (ii) similarly, where a society of such a kind acquires by way of transfer of engagements life or endowment business relating to contracts made before that time and which immediately before that time was exempt from tax or non-exempt, it remains exempt or non-exempt, as the case may be<sup>13</sup>.

Where at any time an insurance business transfer scheme has effect to transfer long term business to a friendly society, any life or endowment business which relates to contracts included in the transfer is not thereafter tax exempt life or endowment business<sup>14</sup>.

The tax exempt business of a friendly society which is converted into a company<sup>15</sup> continues to be exempt from corporation tax (whether on income or chargeable gains) on profits arising from it<sup>16</sup>.

1 In the Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988, 'friendly society' without further qualification means an incorporated friendly society or a registered friendly society; 'incorporated friendly society' means a society incorporated under the Friendly Societies Act 1992; and 'registered friendly society' has the same meaning as in that Act: Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 466(2) (definitions added by the Finance (No 2) Act 1992 Sch 9 paras 1, 14). As to the meanings of 'incorporated friendly society' and 'registered friendly society' under the Friendly Societies Act 1992 see PARA 2082.

2 Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 460(1) (amended by the Finance (No 2) Act 1992 Sch 9 para 5). Provision was made for a registered friendly society to elect, up until 31 July 1992, that the Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 460(1) should not apply in certain circumstances: see s 462A (added by the Finance Act 1991 Sch 9 para 2; and amended by the Finance (No 2) Act 1992 Sch 9 para 9).

'Life or endowment business' means any business of effecting or carrying out contracts of insurance which fall within the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 (Regulated Activities) Order 2001, SI 2001/544, art 3(1), Sch 1 Pt II para I, II or III (see PARA 90), any pension business, any other life assurance business and any business within Sch 1 Pt II para IV if the contract is made before 1 September 1996 or is made on or after that date and the effecting and carrying out of the contract also constitutes business within Sch 1 Pt II para I, II or III, but does not include: (1) the issue, in respect of a contract made before 1 September 1996, of a policy affording provision for sickness or other infirmity (bodily or mental) unless: (a) it also affords assurance for a gross sum independent of the sickness or infirmity; (b) not less than 60% of the premiums is attributable to the provision afforded during sickness or other infirmity; and (c) there is no bonus or addition which may be declared or accrue on the assurance of the gross sum; or (2) the assurance of any annuity the consideration for which consists of sums obtainable on the maturity or surrender of any other policy of assurance issued by the society which forms part of the tax exempt life or endowment business of the society: Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 466(1), (1A), (1B) (s 466(1) substituted, and s 466(1A), (1B) added, by the Finance Act 1996 s 171(1); and the Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 466(1) amended by SI 2001/3629). 'Pension business' means so much of a friendly society's life assurance business as is referable to contracts entered into for the purposes of a registered pension scheme, but where a pension scheme ceases to be a registered pension scheme by virtue of the withdrawal of registration of the pension scheme under the Finance Act 2004 s 157 (see SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS), any of the friendly society's life assurance business that was pension business when the pension scheme was a registered pension scheme is to be treated as ceasing to be pension business at the beginning of the period of account of the friendly society in which the pension scheme so ceases to be a registered pension scheme: Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 466(2A), (2B) (added by the Finance Act 2004 Sch 35 paras 2, 22). 'Life assurance business' means the issue of, or the undertaking of liability under, policies of assurance upon human life, or the granting of annuities upon human life, not being industrial assurance business: Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 466(2).

3 Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 460(2)(a) (amended by the Finance (No 2) Act 1992 Sch 9 para 5).

4 Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 460(2)(aa) (added by the Finance (No 2) Act 1992 Sch 9 para 5).

5 Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 460(2)(b) (amended by the Finance Act 2007 Sch 7 paras 2, 40(a)). 'Gross roll-up business' means business of any of the following kinds: (1) pension business; (2) child trust fund business; (3) individual savings account business; (4) life reinsurance business; and (5) overseas life assurance business: Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 ss 431(2), 431EA, 466(2) (definitions added by the Finance Act 2007 Sch 7 paras 2, 6, 10, 43). As to individual savings account business see INCOME TAXATION vol 23(1) (Reissue) PARA 1353.

6 The specified amounts are:

- 37 (1) for contracts made after the passing of the Finance Act 1995 (ie 1 May 1995), total annual premiums of £270 (Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 460(2)(c)(zai) (added by the Finance Act 1995 Sch 10 para 1(2)));
- 38 (2) for contracts made after the passing of the Finance Act 1991 (ie 25 July 1991) but before 1 May 1995, total annual premiums of £200 (Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 460(2)(c)(ai) (added by the Finance Act 1991 Sch 9 para 1; and amended by the Finance Act 1995 Sch 10 para 1(3)));
- 39 (3) for contracts made after 31 August 1990 but before 25 July 1991, total annual premiums of £150 (Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 460(2)(c)(i) (amended by the Finance Act 1991 Sch 9 para 1));
- 40 (4) for contracts made after 31 August 1987 but before 1 September 1990, total annual premiums of £100 (Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 460(2)(c)(ia) (added by the Finance Act 1990 Sch 9 para 6; and amended by the Finance Act 1991 Sch 9 para 1));
- 41 (5) for contracts made after 13 March 1984 but before 1 September 1987, a gross sum of £750 (Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 460(2)(c)(ii));
- 42 (6) for contracts made before 14 March 1984, a gross sum of £500 (s 460(2)(c)(iii)).

In determining the total premiums payable in any period of 12 months under heads (1)-(4) above, where the premiums are payable more frequently than annually, 10% must be disregarded, and so much of any premium as is charged for exceptional risk of death or disability is disregarded: s 460(3) (amended by the Finance Act 1990 Sch 9 para 6; the Finance Act 1991 Sch 9 para 1; the Finance Act 1995 Sch 10 para 1(4); and the Finance Act 2003 s 172(5)).

In applying the limits in heads (5) and (6) above, any bonus or addition declared upon a gross sum or annuity or accruing upon an assurance by reference to an increase in the value of any investments must be disregarded: Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 460(4).

Where the amount of premium payable, under a contract for the assurance of gross sums under tax exempt life or endowment business made after 31 August 1987 and before 1 May 1995, is increased by virtue of a variation made between 25 July 1991 and 31 July 1992, or between 1 May 1995 and 31 March 1996, the contract is treated as made at the time of the variation: s 460(4A), (4B) (added by the Finance Act 1991 Sch 9 para 1; and amended by the Finance Act 1995 Sch 10 para 1(5), (6)).

7 Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 460(2)(c). In applying that amount, any bonus or addition declared on an annuity must be disregarded: see s 460(3) (as amended: see note 6).

Where at any time an insurance company acquires by way of transfer of engagements from a friendly society any life or endowment business consisting of business which: (1) relates to contracts made before that time; and (2) immediately before that time was tax exempt life or endowment business, that business continues to be exempt from corporation tax (whether on income or chargeable gains) on profits arising from it: Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 460(12) (substituted by the Finance Act 2007 Sch 12 para 1(1), (4)). However, if any contracts constituting or forming part of the business of a company covered by the Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 460(11) or s 460(12) are varied during an accounting period of the company so as to increase the premiums payable under them, the business relating to those contracts is not exempt from corporation tax for that or any subsequent accounting period: s 460(13) (added by the Finance Act 2007 Sch 12 para 1(1), (4)). As to the meaning of 'insurance company' see the Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 431(2); and INCOME TAXATION vol 23(2) (Reissue) PARA 1352 (definition applied by s 466(2) (amended by the Finance Act 1996 s 171(2)(a))). For the purposes of the Corporation Tax Acts, any part of a company's business which is exempt from corporation tax by virtue of the Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 460(11) or s 460(12) is to be treated as a separate business from any other business carried on by the company: s 460(14) (added by the Finance Act 2007 Sch 12 para 1(1), (4)). The Treasury may by regulations provide that, where any part of the business of a company is exempt from corporation tax by virtue of the Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 460(11) or s 460(12), the Corporation Tax Acts have effect subject to such modifications (or exceptions) as the Treasury considers appropriate and such regulations may make different provision for different cases, may include any incidental, supplementary, consequential or transitional provisions which the Treasury considers appropriate, and may include retrospective provision: Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 460(15), (16) (added by the Finance Act 2007 Sch 12 para 1(1), (5)). ### 2367. Application of Corporation Tax Acts.

Generally<sup>1</sup>, the Corporation Tax Acts<sup>2</sup> apply to life or endowment business<sup>3</sup> carried on by friendly societies<sup>4</sup> as they apply to mutual life assurance business or other long term business<sup>5</sup> carried on by insurance companies<sup>6</sup>, except that the Treasury may by regulations<sup>7</sup> modify the Acts, in particular to provide that any part of a business is to be treated as a separate business<sup>8</sup>.

The provisions of those Acts which apply on the transfer of long term business by insurance companies<sup>9</sup> apply in the same way to the transfer of the whole or part of the business of a friendly society to another friendly society, or on the transfer of business from a friendly society to a company which is not a friendly society, and on the conversion of a friendly society into such a company, subject to a like power of the Treasury to make modifications<sup>10</sup>.

The Treasury may by regulations provide for modifications where the transferee is a friendly society<sup>11</sup>.

2368. Exemption in relation to other business: registered friendly societies.

A registered friendly society<sup>1</sup> may claim exemption from corporation tax (whether on income or chargeable gains) on profits other than those arising from life or endowment business<sup>2</sup>.

Where a society of a specified description<sup>3</sup> makes a payment after 26 March 1974 (or such later date as may be directed) to a member in respect of his interest in the society, otherwise than in the course of his life or endowment business, which exceeds the aggregate of sums paid to him by way of contribution or deposits (after deduction of payments and repayments made to him by the society), the excess is a qualifying distribution<sup>4</sup> for the purpose of corporation tax and income tax<sup>5</sup>.

Where a friendly society is converted into a company<sup>6</sup>, and immediately before the conversion was exempt from tax in respect of profits on business other than life or endowment business, the company is similarly exempt as long as there is no increase in the scale of benefits provided by the company on that business<sup>7</sup>.

Where: (1) at any time an insurance company<sup>8</sup> acquires by way of transfer of engagements from a registered friendly society any business other than life or endowment business; and (2) immediately before that time the society was exempt from corporation tax on profits arising from that business, the insurance company is exempt from corporation tax on its profits arising from any part of that business which relates to contracts made before that time<sup>9</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'registered friendly society' for these purposes see PARA 2366 note 1.

2 Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 461(1) (amended by the Income Tax Act 2007 Sch 1 paras 1, 81, Sch 3 Pt 1). The amendment made by the Income Tax Act 2007 removes the exemption from income tax as from the year 2007-2008. As to the meaning of 'life or endowment business' see PARA 2366 note 2.

3 Ie a society to which the Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 461(2) applies, namely any society registered after 31 May 1973, unless:

43 (1) its business is limited to the provision under its rules of benefits for or in respect of employees of a particular employer or such other group for the time being approved by Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs; or

or which was registered before 1 June 1973 and is subject to a direction that s 461(2) is to apply: s 461(2), (7) (s 461(2), (4), (6) amended, s 461(7)-(9) substituted, and s 461(11) added, by SI 2001/3629). For further provision relating to directions see the Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 461(6), (8), (9) (s 461(6) as so amended; s 461(8), (9) as so substituted). As to Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs see CUSTOMS AND EXCISE vol 12(3) (2007 Reissue) PARA 900 et seq; INCOME TAXATION vol 23(1) (Reissue) PARA 31.

For the purposes of s 461, s 461C (see PARA 2369): (a) any group of persons which was approved for the purposes of head (1) above immediately before 1 December 2001 is to be treated as having been approved on that date; (b) any greater amount which was authorised for the purposes of head (2) above immediately before 1 December 2001 is to be treated as having been authorised on that date; and (c) where a direction that s 461(2) is to apply to a society was in force immediately before 1 December 2001, a direction in relation to that society is to be treated as having been made on that date: s 461(11) (as so added).

A registered friendly society formed on the amalgamation of two or more societies is treated as registered before 1 June 1973 if at the time of the amalgamation s 461(2) did not apply to any of the societies amalgamated, but otherwise is treated as registered at that time: s 461(10).

7 Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 461(4) (as amended (see note 3); and further amended by the Finance Act 2007 Sch 1 paras 1, 81, Sch 3 Pt 1). A part of a company's business which is exempt by virtue of the Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 461(4) or s 461(4A) (see the text and note 9) is treated as a separate business for the purposes of the Corporation Tax Acts: Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 461(5) (amended by the Finance Act 2007 Sch 12 para 4(1), (3)). As to the meaning of 'Corporation Tax Acts' see PARA 2367 note 2. The Treasury may by regulations provide that, where any part of the business of a company is exempt from corporation tax by virtue of the Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 461(4) or s 461(4A), the Corporation Tax Acts have effect subject to such modifications (or exceptions) as the Treasury considers appropriate; and such regulations may make different provision for different cases, may include any incidental, supplementary, consequential or transitional provisions which the Treasury considers appropriate and may include retrospective provision: Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 461(12), (13) (added by the Finance Act 2007 Sch 12 para 4(1), (4)). As to the Treasury see PARA 3; and CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 512 et seq. See the Insurance Companies (Tax Exempt Business) Regulations 2007, SI 2007/2145.

8 As to the meaning of 'insurance company' see the Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 431(2); and INCOME TAXATION vol 23(2) (Reissue) PARA 1352 (definition applied by s 466(2) (amended by the Finance Act 1996 s 171(2)(a))).

9 Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 461(4A) (s 461(4A), (4B) added by the Finance Act 2007 Sch 12 para 6(3)). However, if during an accounting period of the insurance company there is an increase in the scale of benefits which it undertakes to provide in the course of carrying on any such part of that business, the company is not exempt from corporation tax by virtue of the Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 461(4A) for that or any subsequent accounting period: s 461(4B) (as so added).

Common to All Friendly Societies/J. EXEMPTION FROM TAX/2369. Exemption in relation to other business: incorporated friendly societies.

2369. Exemption in relation to other business: incorporated friendly societies.

A qualifying society<sup>1</sup> is entitled to claim exemption from corporation tax (whether on income or chargeable gains) on profits arising from business other than life or endowment business<sup>2</sup>.

Where an incorporated friendly society which is not a qualifying society makes a payment to a member in respect of his interest in the society, otherwise than in the course of life or endowment business, which exceeds the aggregate of sums paid to him in contribution or deposits (after deduction of payments and repayments made to him by the society), the excess is a qualifying distribution<sup>3</sup> for the purpose of corporation tax and income tax<sup>4</sup>.

Where at any time a qualifying society is converted into a company, the company is exempt from tax on its profits arising from any part of its business other than life or endowment business, which relates to contracts made before that time<sup>5</sup>, as long as there is no increase in the scale of benefits provided by the company on that business<sup>6</sup>.

Where: (1) at any time an insurance company<sup>7</sup> acquires by way of transfer of engagements from a qualifying society any business other than life or endowment business; and (2) immediately before that time the society was exempt from corporation tax on profits arising from that business, the insurance company is exempt from corporation tax on its profits arising from any part of that business which relates to contracts made before that time<sup>8</sup>.

1 'Qualifying society' means an incorporated friendly society:

- 45 (1) which immediately before incorporation was a registered friendly society to which the Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 461(2) did not apply (see PARA 2366) (s 461A(1)(a) (ss 461A-461C added by the Finance (No 2) Act 1992 Sch 9 paras 1, 7));
- 46 (2) which was formed otherwise than by the incorporation of a registered friendly society or the amalgamation of two or more friendly societies, and whose business is limited to the provision under its rules of benefits for or in respect of employees of a particular employer or such other group as is for the time being approved by Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs (Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 461A(1)(b), (2) (as so added; and amended by SI 2001/3629)); or
- 47 (3) which was formed by the amalgamation of two or more friendly societies provided that at the time of the amalgamation the Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 461(2) applied to none of the registered friendly societies, and all of the incorporated friendly societies being amalgamated (if any) were qualifying societies (s 461A(1)(c), (3) (as so added)), and no direction is in force to the effect that the society is to cease to be a qualifying society, made by Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs under s 461C (withdrawal of qualifying status) is in force (s 461A(1) (as so added)). Any group of persons which was approved for these purposes by the Friendly Societies Commission immediately before 1 December 2001 is to be treated as having been approved by Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs on that date: s 461A(4) (added by SI 2001/3629). As to the Friendly Societies Commission, which has ceased to exist, see PARA 2105. As to Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs see CUSTOMS AND EXCISE vol 12(3) (2007 Reissue) PARA 900 et seq; INCOME TAXATION vol 23(1) (Reissue) PARA 31.

As to the withdrawal of qualifying status see the Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 461C (as so added; and amended by SI 2001/3629).

As to the meanings of 'incorporated friendly society' and 'registered friendly society' for these purposes see PARA 2366 note 1.

2 Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 461B(1) (as added (see note 1); and amended by the Income Tax Act 2007 Sch 1 paras 1, 82(1), (2), Sch 3 Pt 1). The amendment made by the Income Tax Act 2007 removes the exemption from income tax as from the year 2007-2008. As to the meaning of 'life or endowment business' see PARA 2366 note 2.

This does not apply to profits arising by reason of the society's interest in a subsidiary or a body over which it exercises joint control: Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 461B(2) (as so added). As to the meanings of 'subsidiary' and 'jointly controlled body' see PARA 2134.

3 See INCOME TAXATION vol 23(1) (Reissue) PARA 912.

4 Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 461B(3) (as added: see note 1). Where an incorporated friendly society was a registered friendly society immediately before incorporation, this provision applies with appropriate modifications: see s 461B(4) (as so added; and amended by SI 2001/3629).

5 Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 461B(5) (as added (see note 1); and amended by the Income Tax Act 2007 Sch 1 paras 1, 82(1), (3), Sch 3 Pt 1). Any part of a company's business to which an exemption under the Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 461B(5) or s 461B(6A) (see the text and note 8) relates is treated as a separate business for the purposes of the Corporation Tax Acts: Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 461B(7) (as so added; and amended by the Finance Act 2007 Sch 12 para 5(1), (3)). As to the meaning of 'Corporation Tax Acts' see PARA 2367 note 2. The Treasury may by regulations provide that, where any part of the business of a company is exempt from corporation tax by virtue of the Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 461B(5) or s 461B(6A), the Corporation Tax Acts have effect subject to such modifications (or exceptions) as the Treasury considers appropriate; and such regulations may make different provision for different cases, may include any incidental, supplementary, consequential or transitional provisions which the Treasury considers appropriate and may include retrospective provision: Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 461B(8), (9) (s 461B as so added; and s 461B(8), (9) added by the Finance Act 2007 Sch 12 para 5(1), (4)). As to the Treasury see PARA 3; and CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 512 et seq. See the Insurance Companies (Tax Exempt Business) Regulations 2007, SI 2007/2145.

6 Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 461B(6) (as added (see note 1); and substituted by the Finance Act 2007 Sch 12 para 5(1), (2)).

7 As to the meaning of 'insurance company' see the Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 431(2); and INCOME TAXATION vol 23(2) (Reissue) PARA 1352 (definition applied by s 466(2) (amended by the Finance Act 1996 s 171(2)(a))).

8 Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 461B(6A) (s 461B as added (see note 1); and s 461B(6A), (6B) added by the Finance Act 2007 Sch 12 para 5(1), (2)). However, if during an accounting period of the insurance company there is an increase in the scale of benefits which it undertakes to provide in the course of carrying on any such part of that business, the company is not exempt from corporation tax by virtue of the Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 461B(6A) for that or any subsequent accounting period: s 461B(6B) (as so added).

The provision conferring entitlement to claim exemption from tax on life or endowment business<sup>1</sup> does not apply:

871 (1) to so much of the profits arising from any business as is attributable to a policy which is not a qualifying policy<sup>2</sup> and is not an excluded policy<sup>3</sup>, and would not be a qualifying policy if all excluded policies with other friendly societies were left out of account<sup>4</sup>;

872 (2) in relation to a policy issued in respect of certain contracts<sup>5</sup> for the assurance of a gross sum, where there has been an infringement of relevant statutory provisions<sup>6</sup>, to so much as is attributable to that policy of the profits of the friendly society or insurance company concerned<sup>7</sup>.

3     A policy is an excluded policy if: (1) it is a policy held otherwise than with the friendly society or insurance company; or (2) the person who has the contract effecting the policy acquired the rights under it on an assignment otherwise than for money or money's worth: Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 462(1A) (added by the Finance Act 2007 s 45(1), (2)). A person is not entitled to have at any time outstanding contracts with any one or more friendly societies<sup>1</sup>, registered branches<sup>2</sup> or insurance companies<sup>3</sup> which (taking them all together) are for the assurance of more than £750 by way of gross sum under business which is afforded exemption from corporation tax<sup>4</sup>, or more than £156 by way of annuity under such business<sup>5</sup>, but where all the contracts were made before 14 March 1984, the figures are £2,000 and £416 respectively<sup>6</sup>.

With respect to contracts for the assurance of gross sums, a member may not have outstanding contracts under which the total annual premiums exceed a specified amount<sup>7</sup> (unless all were made before 1 September 1987)<sup>8</sup>.

A friendly society, registered branch or insurance company may require a person to make a statutory declaration that the total amount assured under outstanding contracts entered into by that person, or the total premiums payable, do not exceed the applicable limits<sup>9</sup>.

1     As to the meaning of 'friendly society' for these purposes see PARA 2366 note 1.

2     As to the meaning of 'registered branch' see PARA 2091; definition applied by the Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 466(2) (amended by the Finance (No 2) Act 1992 Sch 9 para 14).

3     As to the meaning of 'insurance company' see the Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 431(2); and INCOME TAXATION vol 23(2) (Reissue) PARA 1352 (definition applied by s 466(2) (amended by the Finance Act 1996 s 171(2)(a))).

5 Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 464(2) (amended by the Finance Act 2007 Sch 12 para 2(1), (2)).

6 Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 464(1). In applying the limits, any bonus or addition declared upon a gross sum or annuity or accruing upon an assurance by reference to an increase in the value of any investments must be disregarded: s 464(5)(a).

Where the amount of premium payable, under a contract for the assurance of gross sums under business which is afforded exemption from corporation tax by s 460 (see PARA 2366) if the contract is made after 31 August 1987 and before 1 May 1995, is increased by virtue of a variation made between 25 July 1991 and 31 July 1992 or made between 1 May 1995 and 31 March 1996, the contract is treated as made at the time of the variation: s 464(4A), (4B) (added by the Finance Act 1991 Sch 9 para 3; and amended by the Finance Act 1995 Sch 10 para 2; and the Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 464(4A) further amended by the Finance Act 2007 Sch 12 para 2(1), (4)).

For further matters to be taken into account or disregarded in applying the limits described in these provisions see the Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 464(4) (amended by the Finance Act 1990 s 49(4)); the Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 464(5) (amended by the Finance (No 2) Act 1992 Sch 9 para 11); and the Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 464(6) (amended by the Finance Act 2007 Sch 12 para 2(1), (5)).

7 In the case of contracts under which the total premiums payable in any period of 12 months exceed £270; or in the case of contracts made before 1 May 1995, £200; or in the case of contracts made before 25 July 1991 (ie the passing of the Finance Act 1991), £150; or in the case of contracts made before 1 September 1990, £100: Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 464(3) (amended by the Finance Act 1990 s 49(3); the Finance Act 1991 Sch 9 para 3; the Finance (No 2) Act 1992 Sch 9 para 11; and the Finance Act 1995 s 54, Sch 10 para 2).

In determining the total premiums payable in any period of 12 months, there must be disregarded: (1) where the premiums are payable more frequently than annually, 10%; (2) so much of any premium as is charged for exceptional risk of death; and (3) £10 of the premiums payable under a contract made before 1 September 1987 by a society other than a new society: Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 464(5)(d) (amended by the Finance (No 2) Act 1992 Sch 9 para 11).

2372. Further provisions as to old societies.

If an old society<sup>1</sup> begins to carry out tax exempt life or endowment business or to carry it out on an enlarged scale or of a new character, and it appears to Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs<sup>2</sup> expedient for the protection of the revenue, Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs may direct that the society is to be treated as a new society<sup>3</sup>. An old society may appeal to the Special Commissioners against the direction within 30 days on the ground that it has not begun to carry out business as mentioned or that the direction is not necessary for the protection of the revenue<sup>4</sup>.

A direction continues to have effect where the old society is a registered society which becomes an incorporated society, so that the incorporated society is treated as a new society<sup>5</sup>.

1 An 'old society' is a friendly society which is not a new society: Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 465(1). A 'new society' is: (1) a registered friendly society registered after 3 May 1966 or during the period of three months ending with that date but which did not before that date carry on any life or endowment business; or (2) an incorporated friendly society other than one which, before its incorporation, was a registered friendly society not within head (1) above: s 466(2) (definition added by the Finance (No 2) Act 1992 Sch 9 paras 1, 14). As to the meanings of 'friendly society', 'registered friendly society' and 'incorporated friendly society' for these purposes see PARA 2366 note 1. As to the meaning of 'life or endowment business' see PARA 2366 note 2.

Where any assets of a branch<sup>1</sup> of a registered friendly society<sup>2</sup> have been identified in a scheme regarding the exclusion from the transfer of property and rights of a society on its incorporation<sup>3</sup>, the assets are treated, in relation to any time after the incorporation, as assets of the society, and tax liabilities arising from them are liabilities of the society rather than of the branch<sup>4</sup>. The society may, however, recover the amount of any tax paid from the trustees in whom the assets are vested<sup>5</sup>.

The Financial Services Authority has established the Financial Services Compensation Scheme<sup>1</sup> to compensate persons in cases where relevant persons<sup>2</sup> are unable, or are likely to be unable, to satisfy claims against them<sup>3</sup>.

1     le under the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 Pt XV (ss 212-224): see PARA 584. As to the Financial Services Authority see PARA 2105, and also PARAS 4, 6 et seq.

2     A 'relevant person' is a person who is an authorised person at the time the act or omission giving rise to the claim against him took place, or an appointed representative at that time: Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 s 213(9), (10). Claims against a friendly society or registered branch will accordingly fall within the scope of the scheme where the society or branch was a relevant person at that time.

2375. Protection of persons serving in reserve and auxiliary forces.

In the case of persons performing relevant service, relief is afforded against the forfeiture of life assurance policies effected with friendly societies<sup>1</sup> for the non-payment of premiums and against the consequences of non-payment of contributions to friendly societies<sup>2</sup>. Relevant service for this purpose is, generally, service in the naval, military or air forces of the Crown otherwise than on a normal regular engagement, and is considered elsewhere in this work<sup>3</sup>.

1     As to the meaning of 'friendly society' for this purpose see PARA 2376 note 2.

2     See the Reserve and Auxiliary Forces (Protection of Civil Interests) Act 1951 Pt VI (ss 54-59). As to the protection of life assurance policies against forfeiture see PARAS 2376-2378; and as to relief in respect of the consequences of non-payment of contributions see PARA 2379. As to power to extend Pt VI to the Isle of Man and the Channel Islands by Order in Council, subject to any exceptions, adaptations and modifications see s 59(3); and as to the exercise of this power see the Reserve and Auxiliary Forces (Industrial Assurance and Friendly Societies) (Channel Islands) Order 1952, SI 1952/165; and the Reserve and Auxiliary Forces (Industrial Assurance and Friendly Societies) (Isle of Man) Order 1952, SI 1952/166.

MUTUAL SOCIETIES/(2) FRIENDLY SOCIETIES/(iv) Matters Common to All Friendly Societies/L. PERSONS SERVING IN RESERVE AND AUXILIARY FORCES/2376. Protection of life policy.

2376. Protection of life policy.

Where a policy<sup>1</sup> of assurance upon human life in respect of which there are separate premiums, effected before 1 December 2001 with a friendly society<sup>2</sup> (whether registered or not<sup>3</sup>) other than a collecting society<sup>4</sup>, or after that date with a friendly society, has been forfeited<sup>5</sup> for non-payment of a premium or premiums, the owner<sup>6</sup> of the policy, whether or not he is himself a serviceman, may obtain relief provided that certain conditions are fulfilled<sup>7</sup>. These are that: (1) the forfeiture must have been for non-payment of a relevant premium or premiums (namely a premium or premiums which fell due during a serviceman's period of relevant service<sup>8</sup> or within a specified period from its ending<sup>9</sup> or before the beginning of the period of service on a policy which was in force immediately before the beginning of the service<sup>10</sup>); (2) at the beginning of the period of service one year's premiums or more must have been paid on the policy<sup>11</sup>; and (3) it must appear on the application for reinstatement of the policy that at the time of the forfeiture the owner was unable to pay by reason of circumstances directly or indirectly attributable to the serviceman's<sup>12</sup> performing the period of relevant service or, if it had ended, to his having performed it<sup>13</sup>.

If these conditions are fulfilled and the owner of the policy or any other person on his behalf at any time before the expiration of six months from the date of the ending of the period of relevant service in question<sup>14</sup> duly makes an application to the society for reinstatement of the policy<sup>15</sup>, the society must grant the application<sup>16</sup> and indorse the policy or serve upon the applicant a notice to that effect<sup>17</sup>. If, however, at the time when the forfeiture took place, the society was entitled to forfeit the policy by reason of non-payment of any premium not being a relevant premium as well as by reason of non-payment of the relevant premium or premiums, then it is not under any obligation to reinstate the policy unless the premium or premiums other than relevant premiums are paid within 28 days from the time when the granting of the application is notified<sup>18</sup>. If the society refuses to reinstate the policy it must serve upon the applicant a notice in a prescribed form, which includes a statement of the applicant's right of appeal<sup>19</sup>.

A complaint may be made to the ombudsman scheme<sup>20</sup> in relation to any refusal by a company or society to grant an application for reinstatement, and from any termination or shortening by it of a period of protection and from any decision of it as to the length of time for which a period of protection is to be fixed or extended; and, where an ombudsman determines a complaint in favour of the complainant in circumstances in which a period of protection is required to be fixed or extended, the length of it is to be determined by him instead of by the company or society<sup>21</sup>.

1 'Policy' includes a contract of assurance in respect of which no specific document constituting the contract is issued: Reserve and Auxiliary Forces (Protection of Civil Interests) Act 1951 s 59(2). A policy of assurance upon human life for this purpose includes an endowment policy: cf s 56(3), (6); and see PARA 2377.

2 As to the meaning of 'friendly society' see PARA 2082; definition applied by the Reserve and Auxiliary Forces (Protection of Civil Interests) Act 1951 s 59(2) (definition added by SI 2001/3647).

3 It is submitted that the phrase 'whether registered or not' operates to apply the provisions described in this paragraph and PARAS 2377-2379 not only to unregistered societies, but also to incorporated societies, particularly since the permitted purposes of a registered friendly society and those of an incorporated friendly society are the same: see the Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 7(1)(a); the Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 2; and PARA 2096. References to a 'registered friendly society' include references to a branch of such a society: Reserve and Auxiliary Forces (Protection of Civil Interests) Act 1951 s 59(2).

4 For this purpose, 'collecting society' means a friendly society which, at the time when the policy in question was effected, carried on industrial assurance business within the meaning of the Industrial Assurance Act 1923 s 1 (now repealed): Reserve and Auxiliary Forces (Protection of Civil Interests) Act 1951 s 55(1A) (added by SI 2001/3647). As to collecting societies see PARA 2088.

5 References to 'forfeiture of a policy' are to be construed, in a case where the policy provides that on a default in the payment of premiums the policy is to be converted into a free policy for a reduced amount, as including references to such a conversion: Reserve and Auxiliary Forces (Protection of Civil Interests) Act 1951 s 59(2).

6 'Owner' means, in relation to a policy effected with a friendly society other than a collecting society, the person who is for the time being the person entitled to receive the sums payable under the policy on maturity, and means, in relation to a policy which has been forfeited, the person who would be so entitled if the policy were still in force: Reserve and Auxiliary Forces (Protection of Civil Interests) Act 1951 s 59(2).

A complaint to the ombudsman scheme made under s 54(9) is to be treated as if it were a complaint to which the voluntary jurisdiction of the scheme applies; and the scheme operator may make such adaptations of the voluntary jurisdiction rules as appear to it to be necessary in the circumstances for the determination of such a complaint: s 54(9) (as so amended). As to the meanings of 'voluntary jurisdiction of the scheme' and 'voluntary jurisdiction rules' see the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 s 227(3), (12); and PARA 578 (definition applied by the Reserve and Auxiliary Forces (Protection of Civil Interests) Act 1951 s 54(9A) (as so added)).

2377. Adjustment of rights under policies protected.

Where a policy is reinstated<sup>1</sup>, the amount or aggregate amount of any relevant premium or premiums<sup>2</sup> remaining unpaid is, where no claim on the policy has arisen, written off by varying the terms of the policy and, where a claim has arisen, set off against the claim<sup>3</sup>. The time for writing off is at the expiration of 28 days from the date of the ending of a specified period<sup>4</sup> from the termination of the relevant service or, if the policy was reinstated after the ending of that period, from the date on which the decision for reinstatement was notified<sup>5</sup>. Where at the time for writing off there are relevant arrears on the policy and the policy is then in force and no claim has arisen under it, the terms of the policy are varied as follows<sup>6</sup>. If the policy is a whole life policy, the relevant arrears are extinguished by a reduction of the sum assured under the policy, the amount of the reduction being the amount of the arrears multiplied by a factor based on the age next birthday of the person whose life is assured<sup>7</sup>. If the policy is an endowment policy<sup>8</sup>, the date of maturity of the policy is postponed by a period equal to that in respect of which the premium or premiums comprised in the relevant arrears were payable, and the period during which premiums under the policy remain payable after that time is correspondingly extended<sup>9</sup>.

Where a claim arises or is deemed to have arisen<sup>10</sup> under a policy before the time for writing off, the amount payable in respect of the claim is reduced by the amount of the relevant arrears at the time when the claim arises or is deemed to have arisen together with compound interest at the rate of three per cent per annum with half-yearly rests, any sums paid or tendered in respect of any premiums being treated as satisfying them in the order in which they fall due<sup>11</sup>.

Where the amount of a free policy or of a surrender value is required to be ascertained and at the date when the ascertainment is made there is or are remaining unpaid any premium or premiums on the policy which, if the time for writing off has come, have been dealt with or are to be dealt with as relevant arrears under the above provisions<sup>12</sup>, or, if that time has not come, will fall to be so dealt with if not paid before that time, the provisions of the policy, of any guarantee given in relation to it, and of the Industrial Assurance Acts 1923 to 1968<sup>13</sup> relating to free policies and surrender values have effect subject to such modifications as appear to the actuary<sup>14</sup> necessary having regard to the non-payment of the premium or premiums and the actual or prospective variation of the terms of the policy<sup>15</sup>.

Subject to the above provisions, a reinstated policy has effect, and is deemed always to have had effect, as if the forfeiture had not taken place<sup>16</sup>.

8 'Endowment policy' means a policy insuring money to be paid on the duration for a specified period of the life of the person assured, either with or without provision for the payment of money in the event of that person's death before the expiration of that period and either with or without provision for the payment of money before the expiration of that period and during that person's life in the event of his marriage or otherwise: Reserve and Auxiliary Forces (Protection of Civil Interests) Act 1951 s 56(6) (amended by the Friendly Societies Act 1955 s 3(3)).

Regulations may be made by statutory instrument for giving effect to the statutory provisions<sup>1</sup> relating to the protection of life assurance policies<sup>2</sup>. Any contravention by an industrial assurance company, a collecting society, or a friendly society<sup>3</sup> of those provisions or of regulations made under those provisions is to be treated as if it were a contravention of a requirement imposed under the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 (with the effect that the disciplinary measures in Part XIV of that Act apply)<sup>4</sup>.

2 See the Reserve and Auxiliary Forces (Protection of Civil Interests) Act 1951 s 57(4), which still refers to regulations made by the Commissioner with the consent of the Treasury. The definition of 'Commissioner' in s 59(2) has been repealed but s 57(4) has not been amended accordingly. As to the Treasury see PARA 3; and CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 512 et seq.

The Statutory Instruments Act 1946 (see STATUTES) applies to a statutory instrument containing regulations under this power as if it had been made by a Minister of the Crown: Reserve and Auxiliary Forces (Protection of Civil Interests) Act 1951 s 57(6); and see PARA 2107. No regulations may be made unless a draft has been approved by resolution of each House of Parliament, although this did not apply to regulations made within three months from 1 August 1951: s 57(7). The Reserve and Auxiliary Forces (Protection of Friendly Society Life Policies) Regulations 1951, SI 1951/1408 were made under this power: see PARA 2376.

2379. Relief against non-payment of contributions other than life policy premiums.

Where any person performing a period of relevant service<sup>1</sup> was at the beginning of that period a member of a friendly society<sup>2</sup> and has paid contributions<sup>3</sup> to the society for a period up to that time of one year or longer, and he then ceases to pay them, he does not for that reason cease to be a member of the society<sup>4</sup>. No further contributions may be paid by him until the ending of his period of service, and his rights to any benefits (other than benefits under life assurance policies)<sup>5</sup> are suspended until he subsequently resumes payment of contributions; but, on resuming payment, he is, as respects any benefits accruing in the future, in the same position as he would have been if he had not ceased to pay contributions<sup>6</sup>. If, however, he fails to resume payment before the expiration of three months from the ending of his period of service, he ceases to be a member of the society and ceases to be protected<sup>7</sup>. A friendly society may by its rules provide for the continuance of membership of persons performing relevant service upon terms more favourable than the above terms<sup>8</sup>.

M. MISCELLANEOUS MATTERS

2380. Insurance of lives of children under ten years of age.

As from 1 February 1993<sup>1</sup>, if a friendly society<sup>2</sup> or registered branch<sup>3</sup>, or an industrial assurance company<sup>4</sup>, enters into a contract of insurance<sup>5</sup> under which benefit in excess of £800 is payable on the death of any person and that person dies under the age of ten, the obligation of the society, branch or company as to payment of benefit is only to pay £800, but without prejudice to any person's right to recover part of the premiums paid<sup>6</sup>. The limit of £800 does not, however, apply where the benefit is payable to a person who has an interest in the life of the person on whose death it is payable<sup>7</sup>.

1 The provisions, formerly in the Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 71, prohibiting the payment of money, other than repayment of premiums, on the death of a child under ten years of age, were repealed by the Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 16 paras 1, 24, Sch 22 Pt I with effect from 1 February 1993 and replaced by s 99: Friendly Societies Act 1992 (Commencement No 3 and Transitional Provisions) Order 1993, SI 1993/16.

2 As to the meaning of 'friendly society' see PARA 2082.

3 As to branches and registered branches of societies see PARA 2091.

4 'Industrial assurance company' means a person, other than a friendly society, who immediately before the repeal of the Industrial Assurance Act 1923, carried on industrial assurance business, and after that repeal is subject to an existing liability or a liability which may accrue under any policy effected in the course of that business; and 'industrial assurance business' means business which, immediately before the repeal of the Industrial Assurance Act 1923, fell within s 1(2) (see PARA 2088 note 8): Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 99(5) (added by SI 2001/3647).

5 As to the meaning of 'contract of insurance' see PARA 2147 note 6.

6 Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 99(1). This does not appear to prohibit the payment of more than £800, but any payment in excess of that amount would presumably be discretionary only. The Treasury may by order substitute some other sum for the sum for the time being specified in s 99(1): s 99(3) (amended by SI 2001/2617). As to the Treasury see PARA 3; and CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 512 et seq; and as to the transfer of functions to the Treasury see PARA 2105. At the date at which this volume states the law, no such order had been made.

Powers of Treasury and Financial Services Authority to modify provisions of the Friendly Societies Act 1992.

If on any modification<sup>1</sup> of the statutory provisions relating to companies or to persons or bodies (other than friendly societies<sup>2</sup>) carrying on insurance business<sup>3</sup>, including reinsurance business<sup>4</sup>, it appears to the Treasury expedient to modify the relevant provisions of the Friendly Societies Act 1992<sup>5</sup> for the purpose of assimilating the law relating to friendly societies to the law as so modified, the Treasury may, by order, make such modifications of the relevant provisions of the Act as it thinks appropriate for the purpose<sup>6</sup>. These modifications may include the conferring of power to make subordinate legislation, the creation of criminal offences, and provision for the charging of fees (but not any charge in the nature of taxation)<sup>7</sup>.

The Financial Services Authority<sup>8</sup>, on the application or with the consent of a friendly society, may direct that all or any of the provisions relating to accounts and audit in the Friendly Societies Act 1992<sup>9</sup> are not to apply to the society, or are to apply with such modifications as may be specified in the direction<sup>10</sup>. A direction may be subject to conditions, may be revoked by the Authority at any time, and may on the application or with the consent of the society concerned be varied at any time by the Authority<sup>11</sup>.

Where the Authority makes such a direction, or revokes or varies such a direction, it must cause the direction, variation or revocation to be entered on a register kept by it for these purposes<sup>12</sup>. The register must be available for inspection on reasonable notice by members of the public<sup>13</sup>. The Authority must keep a copy of any direction made by it, and any revocation or variation of any such direction, in the public file of the society to which it relates<sup>14</sup>.

2382. Public file of a friendly society.

The Financial Services Authority<sup>1</sup> is under a duty to prepare and maintain a file relating to each friendly society<sup>2</sup>, known as the public file<sup>3</sup>. The file is required to contain the documents or copy documents and the records of the matters directed to be kept in the public file, by or under provisions of the Friendly Societies Act 1992<sup>4</sup>. The file must be available for inspection on reasonable notice by members of the public on payment of a reasonable fee<sup>5</sup>. Any member of the public is entitled, on payment of a reasonable fee, to be furnished with a copy of all or any of the documents or records kept in the public file of a friendly society<sup>6</sup>.

2383. Exemptions from stamp duty and stamp duty land tax.

Stamp duty is not chargeable upon any document required or authorised by the Friendly Societies Act 1974 and the Friendly Societies Act 1992, or by the constitution of an incorporated friendly society<sup>1</sup>, a registered friendly society<sup>2</sup> or a registered branch<sup>3</sup>; nor is stamp duty chargeable on a policy of insurance or appointment or revocation of appointment of an agent, or other document required or authorised by the Friendly Societies Act 1974 or by the rules of a registered friendly society or branch<sup>4</sup>.

A land transaction<sup>5</sup> effected by or in consequence of an amalgamation of two or more friendly societies<sup>6</sup> or registered societies<sup>7</sup>, a transfer of the engagements of a friendly society<sup>8</sup> or a transfer of the engagements of a friendly society pursuant to a direction given by the Financial Services Authority<sup>9</sup>, is exempt from charge for the purposes of stamp duty land tax<sup>10</sup>. Relief must be claimed in a land transaction return<sup>11</sup> or an amendment of such a return<sup>12</sup>.

2384. Officers and auditors not to be exempted from liability.

Any of the following provisions, whether contained in the constitution of a friendly society<sup>1</sup> or in any contract with a friendly society or otherwise, is void<sup>2</sup>: (1) any provision for exempting any member of the committee of management<sup>3</sup>, other officer<sup>4</sup>, or person employed as auditor<sup>5</sup> of a friendly society, from any liability which, by virtue of any rule of law, would otherwise attach to him in respect of the negligence, default, breach of duty or breach of trust, of which he may be guilty in relation to the society; or (2) any provision for indemnifying any such person against any such liability<sup>6</sup>.

This does not prevent a friendly society: (a) from purchasing and maintaining insurance against any such liability for such a person; or (b) from indemnifying him against any liability incurred by him in defending any proceedings, whether criminal or civil, in which judgment is given in his favour or in which he is acquitted<sup>7</sup>.

2385. Time limit for commencing proceedings.

Summary proceedings for any offence under the Friendly Societies Act 1992 may be commenced by the Financial Services Authority<sup>1</sup> at any time within the period of one year<sup>2</sup> beginning with the date on which evidence comes to its knowledge<sup>3</sup> which is sufficient, in the opinion of the Authority, to justify a prosecution for the offence<sup>4</sup>. This does not, however, authorise the commencement of proceedings at a time more than three years after the date on which the offence was committed<sup>5</sup>.

1 As to the Financial Services Authority see PARA 2105, and also PARAS 4, 6 et seq.

2 This is so notwithstanding any limitation on the time for the taking of proceedings contained in any enactment: Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 107(1) (s 107(1), (3) amended by SI 2001/2617).

3 For this purpose a certificate, purporting to be signed on behalf of the Financial Services Authority, as to the date on which such evidence came to its knowledge, is conclusive evidence of that date: Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 107(3) (as amended: see note 2).

Where an offence under the Friendly Societies Act 1992 committed by a body corporate is proved to have been committed with the consent or connivance of, or to be attributable to any neglect on the part of any member of the committee of management<sup>1</sup>, director, manager, secretary<sup>2</sup> or other similar officer<sup>3</sup> of the body corporate, or any person who was purporting to act in that capacity, he, as well as the body corporate, is guilty of that offence and is liable to be proceeded against and punished accordingly<sup>4</sup>. Where the affairs of a body corporate are managed by the members, this applies in relation to the acts and defaults of a member in connection with his functions of management as if he were a director of the body corporate<sup>5</sup>.

Where a partnership is guilty of an offence under the Friendly Societies Act 1992, every partner, other than a partner who is proved to have been ignorant of, or to have attempted to prevent, the commission of the offence is also guilty of that offence and is liable to be proceeded against and punished accordingly<sup>6</sup>.

Where an unincorporated association, other than a partnership, is guilty of an offence under the Friendly Societies Act 1992: (1) every officer of the association who is bound to fulfil any duty of which the breach is the offence; or (2) if there is no such officer, every member of the governing body other than a member who is proved to have been ignorant of, or to have attempted to prevent, the commission of the offence, is also guilty of the offence and liable to be proceeded against and punished accordingly<sup>7</sup>.

2389. Records of friendly societies.

Unless the Friendly Societies Act 1992 or regulations made under it<sup>1</sup> provide otherwise, any record to be kept by a friendly society<sup>2</sup> may be kept in any manner<sup>3</sup>. Where any such record is not kept in a bound book, but by some other means, adequate precautions must be taken for guarding against falsification and facilitating its discovery<sup>4</sup>.

Any record kept by a friendly society may be kept by recording matters otherwise than in legible form, so long as the recording is capable of being reproduced in a legible form<sup>5</sup>. In such a case, any duty imposed by or under the Friendly Societies Act 1992 to allow inspection, or to furnish a copy, of the record or any part of it, is to be treated as a duty to allow inspection of, or to furnish, a reproduction of the recording or of the relevant part of it in legible form<sup>6</sup>.

2390. Service of notices.

The provisions referred to below relate to any notice, directions, or other document, required or authorised to be served on any person, other than the Financial Services Authority<sup>1</sup>, by or under any provision of the Friendly Societies Act 1992, or by the rules of a friendly society<sup>2</sup>. These provisions are, however, subject to any provision of a friendly society's rules, in the case of notices or other documents to be given or sent to the members of the society<sup>3</sup>.

Any such document may be served on the person concerned by delivering it to him, by leaving it at his proper address, or by sending it by post to him at his proper address<sup>4</sup>. In the case of a friendly society, any such document may be served on its secretary<sup>5</sup>. In the case of a body corporate, other than an incorporated friendly society<sup>6</sup>, it may be served on the secretary or clerk of that body<sup>7</sup>. In the case of a partnership, it may be served on any partner<sup>8</sup>. In the case of an unincorporated association, other than a partnership or a registered friendly society<sup>9</sup> or registered branch<sup>10</sup>, the document may be served on any member of its governing body<sup>11</sup>.

The proper address of any person for these purposes<sup>12</sup> is, in the case of a friendly society or its secretary, the address of its registered office<sup>13</sup>; in the case of a member of an incorporated friendly society, his registered address<sup>14</sup>; in the case of a member of the committee of management<sup>15</sup> or the chief executive<sup>16</sup> of a friendly society, his officially notified address; in the case of a body corporate (other than an incorporated friendly society), its secretary or clerk, the address of its registered or principal office in the United Kingdom<sup>17</sup>; in the case of an unincorporated association (other than a partnership, registered friendly society or registered branch) or a member of its governing body, its principal office in the United Kingdom; and, in any other case, his last known address (whether his residence or a place where he carries on business or is employed)<sup>18</sup>.

2394. Nature and early legislation.

Societies registered under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965<sup>1</sup> are bodies corporate with limited liability<sup>2</sup>, and are known as industrial and provident societies<sup>3</sup>. That name does not necessarily describe their functions, as their rules may authorise them to carry on any industry, business or trade<sup>4</sup>. The name was originally applied to societies the purposes of which were to make profits by the personal exertions of their members and to distribute the profits by way of provident provision for their members' future. These trading societies were first established under an Act of 1834<sup>5</sup> which enabled friendly societies to be established for any purpose which was not illegal<sup>6</sup>. An Act of 1846<sup>7</sup> expressly permitted friendly societies to be established for the frugal investment of the savings of members<sup>8</sup>.

Until 1852, industrial and provident societies continued to be established under the Acts relating to friendly societies and were of the nature of partnerships, the liability of their members being unlimited. In that year the first Industrial and Provident Societies Act<sup>9</sup> was passed, which defined the purpose of those societies as the carrying on or exercising in common of any labour, trade or handicraft, with certain exceptions<sup>10</sup>. Members and others were paid for work and services performed<sup>11</sup>, and members were permitted to receive interest on their subscriptions up to a limit of five per cent per annum<sup>12</sup>. Up to one-third of the profits made by the society could be divided among the members by way of a return to them of the profits arising from purchases of goods by them from the society and by way of payment to them for work and services performed by them for the society<sup>13</sup>. The remaining profits had to be retained in the society or applied for the provident purposes authorised in respect of friendly societies<sup>14</sup>. The co-operative principle was thus first given statutory recognition, and the benefit of the Act was restricted to co-operative societies. Although it is now possible for certain societies which are not co-operative to be registered<sup>15</sup>, the most usual qualification for registration continues to be the co-operative nature of the society. An Act of 1862<sup>16</sup> conferred incorporation on societies registered under it and limited the liability of their members<sup>17</sup>.

In 1893 the law relating to industrial and provident societies was consolidated in the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1893, which was amended by a number of Acts passed between 1894 and 1961<sup>18</sup>. The law was again consolidated in the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965, which has been further amended since but remains the principal statute governing industrial and provident societies<sup>19</sup>. Credit unions are a particular kind of industrial and provident society and have their own statute, the Credit Unions Act 1979<sup>20</sup>.

2395. Registered societies.

'Registered society' means a society registered or deemed to be registered under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965<sup>1</sup>.

1 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 74(1) (renumbered by SI 2001/2617). As to societies which are deemed to be registered under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 see PARA 2396. 'Registered society' may also include a society which is registered under the corresponding law in force in Northern Ireland: see ss 74(1), 76; and PARA 2397 note 2. Unlike the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1893 (see s 4 (repealed)), the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 does not define 'industrial and provident society', but it is clear from the long title of the Act that the term means a society registered under the Act, and this meaning is given statutory force by the Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 s 21(1), which

Act is to be read as one with the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965: see PARA 2397. As to the societies which may be registered under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 see PARA 2402. As to credit unions see PARA 2402.

INDUSTRIAL AND PROVIDENT SOCIETIES/(1) CONSTITUTION/(i) Introduction/A. BACKGROUND TO THE PRESENT LAW/2396. Continuity of registration under previous Acts.

2396. Continuity of registration under previous Acts.

Every incorporated society in existence on 1 January 1894 which had been registered or certified under any Act relating to industrial and provident societies<sup>1</sup> was deemed to be a society registered under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1893, and, so far as its rules were not contrary to any express provision of that Act, they were to continue in force until altered or rescinded<sup>2</sup>.

Any society which immediately before 1 January 1966 was registered or deemed to be registered under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1893<sup>3</sup>, being a society having at that date its registered office<sup>4</sup> in Great Britain<sup>5</sup> or the Channel Islands, is deemed to be registered under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965<sup>6</sup>.

1 As to the legislation prior to 1893 see PARA 2394.

2 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1893 s 3 (repealed).

3 As to societies which were deemed to be registered under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1893 see the text to notes 1, 2.

4 As to a society's registered office see generally PARAS 2443-2444.

5 As to the meaning of 'Great Britain' see PARA 2 note 3.

6 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 4. Any acknowledgment of registry of such a society issued by virtue of the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1893 s 5(4), s 6 or s 7(2) (all repealed) is deemed to be an acknowledgment of the registration under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 of that society (see PARA 2415) and, by virtue of s 9 (see PARA 2415), of its rules in force at the date of the acknowledgment: s 4(a). Any acknowledgment of registry of an amendment of the society's rules issued by virtue of the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1893 s 7(2) (repealed) or s 10(3) (repealed) is deemed to be an acknowledgment of the registration of that amendment under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 (see PARA 2437): s 4(b). Any change of the society's name (see PARA 2440) duly made before 1 January 1966 in accordance with the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1893 s 52 (repealed) as in force at the time of the change, and any change in the situation of the society's registered office (see PARA 2443) of which notice was duly given before that date under s 11 (repealed), is deemed for the purposes of the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 to be a duly registered amendment of the society's rules: s 4(c). Any rules of that society which, having been made before 1 January 1894, continued in force immediately before 1 January 1966 by virtue of the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1893 s 3 (repealed) (see the text to note 2) are deemed to be registered under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965: s 4(d). For a limitation on the effect of rules registered before 12 September 1893 see PARA 2429.

B. MODERN LEGISLATION

2397. The Industrial and Provident Societies Acts 1965 to 2003.

The main statutes which at present govern registered societies<sup>1</sup> are the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965<sup>2</sup>, the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1967<sup>3</sup>, the Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968<sup>4</sup>, the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1975<sup>5</sup> and the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1978<sup>6</sup>. These statutes may be cited together as the Industrial and Provident Societies Acts 1965 to 1978<sup>7</sup>, and in their application to registered societies the Acts of 1965, 1968, 1975 and 1978 are to be construed as one<sup>8</sup>. Two more recent Acts provide, inter alia, for bringing the law relating to registered societies into conformity with certain aspects of the law relating to companies: these are the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 2002<sup>9</sup> (which may be cited together with the Industrial and Provident Societies Acts 1965 to 1978 as the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 to 2002<sup>10</sup>) and the Co-operatives and Community Benefit Societies Act 2003<sup>11</sup> (which may be cited together with the Industrial and Provident Societies Acts 1965 to 2002 as the Industrial and Provident Societies Acts 1965 to 2003<sup>12</sup>).

The Credit Unions Act 1979 provides for registration of societies under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 as credit unions<sup>13</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2395.

2 The Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965, which consolidates the previous legislation (see PARA 2394) with certain corrections and improvements, is the Act under which societies are registered and is their principal governing statute. The Act extends to Great Britain and to the Channel Islands (s 78(2)), but has effect in the Channel Islands subject to such adaptations and modifications as may be specified by Order in Council (s 75(1)), any such order being variable or revocable by a subsequent order (s 75(2)). As to such adaptations and modifications see the Industrial and Provident Societies (Channel Islands) Order 1965, SI 1965/2165.

The Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 does not extend to Northern Ireland (s 78(2)), but provision is made for societies registered under the corresponding law for the time being in force for Northern Ireland to have their rules recorded by the Financial Services Authority, in which event the society, its rules and any amendment of the rules are deemed to be duly registered under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 for the purpose of specified sections of that Act, and references to a registered society in those sections are to be construed accordingly: see s 76(1), (2) (s 76(1) amended by SI 2001/2617; and the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 76(2) amended by the Co-operatives and Community Benefit Societies Act 2003 s 5(6)). As to the Financial Services Authority in regard to registered societies see PARA 2410. As to the Authority generally see PARAS 4, 6 et seq. A similar procedure applies in relation to credit unions which are excluded from the general provisions of the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 76: see the Credit Unions Act 1979 s 32 (amended by SI 2001/2617; and SI 2002/1555). These provisions do not confer any power or impose any obligation or liability with respect to the taking or refraining from taking of, or failure to take, any action outside Great Britain and the Channel Islands: Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 76(3) (as extended, in relation to credit unions, by the Credit Unions Act 1979 s 32 (as so amended)). In relation to societies which have recorded their rules as above, appropriate modification is made to the Government of Ireland (Companies, Societies, & c) Order 1922, SR & O 1922/184, art 22, by the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 76(4). In the application to such societies of s 45(1) (see PARA 2526), the reference to the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 is to be construed as a reference to the law for the time being in force in Northern Ireland for purposes corresponding to those of that Act: s 76(3).

The validity of things done under earlier Industrial and Provident Societies Acts is preserved by the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 77(2) and documentary references to those earlier Acts are, if and so far as the context permits, to be construed as referring to the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965: see s 77(3). Nothing in s 4 (see PARA 2396) affects the general application of the Interpretation Act 1889 s 38 (repealed, and replaced by the Interpretation Act 1978 ss 16(1), 17(2)(a), Sch 2 para 3), with regard to the effect of repeals: Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 77(4); and see STATUTES.

3 The Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1967 contains provisions for facilitating the borrowing of money by registered societies: see PARA 2454. It does not extend to Northern Ireland: s 8(3).

4 The Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 contains provisions governing the accounts and audit of registered societies: see PARAS 2512-2524. The Act may be extended to the Channel Islands by Order in Council with such exceptions, adaptations and modifications, if any, as may be specified in the order (s 22(1)); the order may be varied or revoked by a subsequent order (s 22(2)), and a revoking order may contain such transitional, incidental or supplemental provisions as appear necessary or expedient in consequence of the revocation (s 22(3)). See the Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies (Channel Islands) Order 1968, SI 1968/2031. The Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 may be similarly extended to the Isle of Man, in so far as its provisions relate to societies registered under the Friendly Societies Act 1992. The Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 does not extend to Northern Ireland: s 23(5).

5 The Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1975 raises the maximum limit of shareholding in registered societies and makes certain supplemental provisions: see PARAS 2417, 2447. The Act extends to the Channel Islands but not to Northern Ireland: s 3(5).

6 The Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1978 raises the amount of deposits which an industrial and provident society may take without thereby carrying on the business of banking and authorises the further alteration of those amounts from time to time: see eg PARA 2406. It extends to the Channel Islands but does not extend to Northern Ireland: s 3(4).

8 Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 s 23(4)(c); Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1975 s 3(1); Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1978 s 3(1). As to the effect of enacting that statutes are to be construed as one see Phillips v Parnaby [1934] 2 KB 299, DC; and STATUTES. Although there is no provision that the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1967 is to be construed as one with the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965, certain relevant provisions and the meaning of relevant terms in the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 are applied for the purposes of the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1967: see the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1967 s 7(1), (2) (amended by SI 2001/2617; and SI 2001/3649).

9 The Industrial and Provident Societies Act 2002 amends the provisions in the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 setting out the procedure by which a society registered under that Act may convert itself into, or amalgamate with or transfer its engagements to, a company (see PARA 2563) and enables the law relating to registered societies to be amended so as to bring it into conformity with certain aspects of the law relating to companies (see PARA 2398). Any provisions of the Act or any instrument made under it may be extended by Order in Council, with modifications (if any) and with such transitional, incidental or supplementary provision as appear to Her Majesty to be necessary or expedient, to any of the Channel Islands: see the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 2002 s 3. At the date at which this volume states the law no such order had been made.

10 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 2002 s 4(1).

11 The Co-operatives and Community Benefit Societies Act 2003 permits a registered society whose business is conducted for the benefit of the community to provide that its assets are dedicated permanently for that purpose: see PARA 2402. It also amends provisions of the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 for the purpose of bringing the law relating to industrial and provident societies into conformity with certain aspects of the law relating to companies. Any provisions of the Co-operatives and Community Benefit Societies Act 2003, or any instrument made under it, may be extended by Order in Council, with modifications (if any), and with such transitional, incidental or supplementary provisions as appear to Her Majesty to be necessary or expedient, to any of the Channel Islands: s 8. INDUSTRIAL AND PROVIDENT SOCIETIES/(1) CONSTITUTION/(i) Introduction/B. MODERN LEGISLATION/2398. Power to modify legislation to assimilate to company law.

2398. Power to modify legislation to assimilate to company law.

If, on any modification<sup>1</sup> of the statutory provisions<sup>2</sup> in force in Great Britain<sup>3</sup> relating to companies, it appears to the Treasury<sup>4</sup> to be expedient to modify the relevant statutory provisions<sup>5</sup> for the purpose of assimilating the law relating to companies and the law relating to industrial and provident societies, the Treasury may, by order, make such modifications<sup>6</sup> of the relevant statutory provisions as it thinks appropriate for that purpose<sup>7</sup>.

1 'Modification' includes any additions and, as regards modifications of the statutory provisions relating to companies, any modification whether effected by any future Act or by an instrument made after the passing of the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 2002 under an Act whenever passed: s 2(6). As to company law see generally COMPANIES; COMPANY AND PARTNERSHIP INSOLVENCY.

2 'Statutory provisions', except in the expression 'relevant statutory provision' (see note 5), includes the provisions of any instrument made under an Act: Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 2(6).

3 As to the meaning of 'Great Britain' see PARA 2 note 3.

4 As to the Treasury see PARA 3; and CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 512 et seq.

5 'Relevant statutory provisions' are the provisions of the Industrial and Provident Societies Acts 1965 to 1978 (see PARA 2397) as for the time being in force except the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 1 (societies which may be registered) (see PARA 2402), s 10(1) (amendments of registered rules) (see PARAS 2436-2437), ss 16-18 (cancellation, suspension or refusal of registration of society or rules) (see PARA 2579 et seq), ss 23-27 (nominations, provision for intestacy, payment in respect of mentally incapable persons and validity of payments) (see PARA 2503 et seq), ss 50-54 (amalgamations, transfers of engagements and conversions) (see PARA 2559 et seq), s 55(b) (dissolution of registered society by instrument) (see PARA 2566), s 56 (power of Financial Services Authority to petition for winding up) (see PARA 2574), s 58 (instrument of dissolution) (see PARA 2568 et seq), s 59 (restriction on dissolution or cancellation of registration of society) (see PARA 2562 et seq): Industrial and Provident Societies Act 2002 s 2(2).

6 The power to modify the relevant statutory provisions includes the power to modify so as to confer power to make orders, regulations, rules or other subordinate legislation, create criminal offences or provide for the charging of fees but not any charge in the nature of taxation: Industrial and Provident Societies Act 2002 s 2(3). Any such order may make consequential amendments of or repeals in the provisions in s 2(2) (see note 5) or make such transitional or saving provisions as appear to the Treasury to be necessary or expedient: s 2(4). The power to make an order is exercisable by statutory instrument and no such order may be made unless a draft of it has been laid before and approved by a resolution of each House of Parliament: s 2(5). See the Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 (Audit Exemption) (Amendment) Order 2006, SI 2006/265; and PARA 2514.

Before the Financial Services Authority<sup>1</sup> allows any person to inspect any document<sup>2</sup> held by it in connection with the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965<sup>3</sup>, or provides any person with a copy of any such document (or part of such document), it may charge that person a reasonable fee<sup>4</sup>. These provisions also apply for the purposes of the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1967<sup>5</sup> and the Credit Unions Act 1979<sup>6</sup>.

The Treasury<sup>7</sup> has power to make regulations prescribing certain matters under the Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968<sup>8</sup> and to make orders under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1978<sup>9</sup>. The Treasury also has power to make orders and regulations under the Credit Unions Act 1979<sup>10</sup>.

1 As to the Financial Services Authority in regard to registered societies see PARA 2410. As to the Authority generally see PARAS 4, 6 et seq. As to the Authority's rule-making powers see PARA 21 et seq.

2 As to the registration of documents generally see PARA 2411.

3 As to the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 see PARA 2397.

4 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 70A (added by SI 2001/2617).

5 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 70A (as added: see note 4); applied for the purposes of the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1967 by s 7(2) (amended by SI 2001/2617; and SI 2001/3649). As to the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1967 generally see PARA 2397.

6 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 70A (as added: see note 4); applied by the Credit Unions Act 1979 s 31(2) (amended by SI 2001/2617; and SI 2002/1555). As to the Credit Unions Act 1979 generally see PARA 2397.

7 As to the Treasury see PARA 3; and CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 512 et seq.

8 See the Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 s 4(8) (see PARA 2514), s 10(1) (see PARA 2515) and s 13(3) (see PARA 2520). The power to make regulations under this Act may be exercised so as to make different provision in relation to different cases or different circumstances to which the power is applicable: s 19(1). The power is exercisable by statutory instrument, and any statutory instrument containing regulations made under s 4 or s 10 is subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament: s 19(2). See further STATUTES. See also PARAS 2514-2515, 2520.

9 See the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1978 s 2 (s 2(1), (2), (4) amended by SI 2001/2617). An order made under the power conferred by this section altering deposit-taking limits may make such provisions in connection therewith and may contain such other transitional, consequential, incidental or supplemental provisions as appear to the Treasury to be necessary or appropriate in that connection: Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1978 s 2(1), (2) (as so amended). An order may vary or revoke any previous order: s 2(3). The power is exercisable by statutory instrument, which is subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament s 2(4) (as so amended). See the Industrial and Provident Societies (Increase in Deposit-taking Limits) Order 1981, SI 1981/394; and PARA 2406.

10 See the Credit Unions Act 1979 s 29 (substituted by SI 2001/2617). Any power to make an order or regulations conferred on the Treasury by any provision of the Credit Unions Act 1979 is exercisable by statutory instrument: s 29(1) (as so substituted). A statutory instrument made under the Credit Unions Act 1979 is subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament: s 29(2) (as so substituted). At the date at which this volume states the law no such orders or regulations had been made.

INDUSTRIAL AND PROVIDENT SOCIETIES/(1) CONSTITUTION/(i) Introduction/B. MODERN LEGISLATION/2400. Taxation.

2400. Taxation.

A registered society<sup>1</sup> is taxed on all sources of income, including any profit or surplus arising from transactions with its members which would be included in chargeable profits or gains if those transactions were with non-members<sup>2</sup>. If, however, a registered society<sup>3</sup> does not sell to non-members, or if the number of its shares is not limited by its rules or practice, it may deduct as expenses any discounts, rebates, dividends or bonuses granted to members or other persons in respect of amounts paid or payable by or to them on account of their transactions with the society, being discounts, rebates, dividends or bonuses calculated by reference to such amounts or to the magnitude of such transactions<sup>4</sup>.

Share or loan interest<sup>5</sup> paid by a registered society<sup>6</sup> is not treated as a distribution for the purposes of corporation tax but interest payable by such a society (whether as share interest or loan interest) is treated for those purposes as interest under a loan relationship of the society<sup>7</sup>.

If in the course of, or as part of, a union or amalgamation of two or more registered societies<sup>8</sup>, or a transfer of engagements from one registered society to another<sup>9</sup>, there is a disposal of an asset by one society to another, both are treated for the purposes of corporation tax in respect of chargeable gains as if the asset were acquired from the society making the disposal for a consideration of such amount as would secure that neither a gain nor a loss would accrue to that society on the disposal<sup>10</sup>. The same rules apply where the relevant authority<sup>11</sup> acquires under an approved scheme<sup>12</sup> from a registered society which is a housing association<sup>13</sup> its interest in all the land held by it for carrying out its objects, or where, after the authority has made such an acquisition, the authority disposes to a single housing association the whole of that land (except any part previously disposed of or agreed to be disposed of otherwise than to a housing association) together with all related assets<sup>14</sup>.

A registered society which is a housing association, and which satisfies certain conditions<sup>15</sup>, may, if duly approved for this purpose<sup>16</sup>, qualify for exemption from tax in respect of rent due from members and profits from the sale of property occupied by tenants of the association<sup>17</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2395.

2 See the Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 486; and INCOME TAXATION vol 23(2) (Reissue) PARA 1410. In that Act 'company' generally means any body corporate or unincorporated association: see s 832(1). See further INCOME TAXATION vol 23(1) (Reissue) PARA 1.

As to the liability of registered societies to capital gains tax see generally the Taxation of Chargeable Gains Act 1992; and CAPITAL GAINS TAXATION. As to the liability of societies to value added tax in respect of goods and services supplied by them see generally VALUE ADDED TAX.

3 The Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 486 refers to a 'registered industrial and provident society'; which means a society registered (see PARA 2395) or deemed to be registered (see PARA 2396) under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 or under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act (Northern Ireland) 1969: see the Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 486(12). As to computation for corporation tax purposes of the income of a credit union see s 487; and INCOME TAXATION vol 23(2) (Reissue) PARA 1411.

4 See the Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 486(10); and INCOME TAXATION vol 23(1) (Reissue) PARA 122.

5 'Share interest' means any interest, dividend, bonus or other sum payable to a shareholder of the society by reference to the amount of his holding in the share capital of the society; 'loan interest' means any interest payable by the society in respect of any mortgage, loan, loan stock or deposit: Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 486(12). References to the payment of interest include references to the crediting of interest: s 486(12).

6 See note 3.

7 See the Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 486(1); and INCOME TAXATION vol 23(1) (Reissue) PARA 232; INCOME TAXATION vol 23(2) (Reissue) PARA 1410. As to charges on income see s 338; and INCOME TAXATION vol 23(1) (Reissue) PARA 863.

Previously, except where the recipient's usual place of abode was not within the United Kingdom, share or loan interest had to be paid without deduction of income tax (see s 486(2), (3); and INCOME TAXATION vol 23(1) (Reissue) PARA 232; INCOME TAXATION vol 23(2) (Reissue) PARA 1410), the recipient being chargeable to tax in accordance with his individual liability (ie under Schedule D, Case III: see s 486(4); and INCOME TAXATION vol 23(1) (Reissue) PARA 232; INCOME TAXATION vol 23(2) (Reissue) PARA 1410). Every registered society, within three months after the end of any accounting period of the society, had to deliver to the inspector of taxes a return showing (1) the name and place of residence of every person to whom the society paid without deduction of income tax sums amounting to more than £15 in that period (see s 486(6)(a)); and (2) the amount so paid in that period to each of those persons (see s 486(6)(b)). If the return under s 486(6) was not duly made, share and loan interest paid by the society in the period was not brought into account for the purposes of provisions on loan relationships: see s 486(7) (amended by the Finance Act 1996 Sch 14 para 30(b)). For the purposes of income tax for the year 2007-2008 and subsequent tax years, and for the purposes of corporation tax for accounting periods after 5 April 2007, the provisions of the Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 486(2), (3), (6) are repealed and s 486(7) is further amended so as to refer to the Income Tax Act 2007 s 887(2) (see INCOME TAXATION) instead of the Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 486(6): see the Income Tax Act 2007 ss 1027, 1031, 1034(1), Sch 1 Pt 1 paras 1, 90, Sch 3 Pt 1. For transitional provisions and savings see s 1030(1), Sch 2.

14 See the Taxation of Chargeable Gains Act 1992 s 218; and CAPITAL GAINS TAXATION vol 5(1) (2004 Reissue) PARA 284.

15 No claim for exemption has effect unless it is proved that during the year or accounting period, or part of it, to which the claim relates: (1) no property belonging to the association was let otherwise than to a member of the association (Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 488(10)(a)); (2) no property let by the association, and no part of such property, was occupied, whether solely or as joint occupier, by a person not being a member of the association (subject, however, to an exception allowing occupation under the will or intestacy of a deceased member for a period of six months after the death) (s 488(10)(b)); (3) the association is, or is deemed to be, a registered society (see PARAS 2395-2396), and is a housing association within the meaning of the Housing Associations Act 1985 (see PARA 2408) (Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 488(10)(c)); (4) the rules of the association restrict membership to persons who are tenants or prospective tenants of the association, and preclude the granting or assignment of tenancies to persons other than members (s 488(6), (10)(c)); (5) the association has complied with such other conditions as may be prescribed (s 488(6), (10)(c)); and (6) any covenants required by those conditions to be included in grants of tenancies have been observed (s 488(10)(d)). Substantial compliance with these requirements may be sufficient: see s 488(11); and INCOME TAXATION vol 23(2) (Reissue) PARA 1412.

INDUSTRIAL AND PROVIDENT SOCIETIES/(1) CONSTITUTION/(i) Introduction/B. MODERN LEGISLATION/2401. Other legislation relating to registered societies.

2401. Other legislation relating to registered societies.

In so far as a registered society is a charity<sup>1</sup>, it is not required to be registered under the Charities Act 1993<sup>2</sup>.

In so far as any registered society provides credit to members or others, it will be subject to the provisions of the Consumer Credit Act 1974<sup>3</sup>.

If a registered society carrying on the business of a social club wishes to supply alcohol<sup>4</sup> on club premises to members or guests, then it must abide by the rules contained in the Licensing Act 2003<sup>5</sup>. The main authorisation relating to a club in these circumstances is the club premises certificate<sup>6</sup> allowing a club to supply alcohol to members and sell it to guests without the need for any member or employee to hold a personal licence or for a designated supervisor to be appointed. More limited rights of entry are also given to the police and other authorised persons over club premises, and the premises are not subject to police powers of instant closure on grounds of disorder and noise nuisance<sup>7</sup>. However, a club may also choose to obtain a full premises licence or temporary event notice depending on the relevant activities<sup>8</sup>. A qualifying club activity may be carried on under and in accordance with a club premises certificate under Part 4 of the Licensing Act 2003<sup>9</sup>. A club is a qualifying club in relation to the supply of alcohol to members or guests if it satisfies both the general conditions<sup>10</sup> and the additional conditions<sup>11</sup>. A club is a qualifying club in relation to the provision of regulated entertainment if it satisfies the general conditions<sup>12</sup>.

Other legislation affecting the conduct of the affairs of registered societies is mentioned where relevant in this title<sup>13</sup>.

1 As to the type of society which may qualify as a charity see PARA 2402; and see generally CHARITIES. As to permission to omit the word 'limited' from the name of a society having objects which are wholly charitable or benevolent see PARA 2439. As to the requirement that a registered society which is a charity must state that fact on its correspondence see PARA 2442. As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2395.

2 It is an 'exempt charity' within the meaning of the Charities Act 1993: see s 3(5), s 96, Sch 2 para (y); and CHARITIES vol 8 (2010) PARA 315.

3 See generally CONSUMER CREDIT.

4 As to the meaning of 'alcohol' see LICENSING AND GAMBLING vol 67 (2008) PARA 30.

5 See generally LICENSING AND GAMBLING. These rules are generally less stringent than the rules covering a commercial enterprise selling direct to the public. As to the licensing system under the Licensing Act 2003 generally see LICENSING AND GAMBLING vol 67 (2008) PARA 26 et seq.

6 See LICENSING AND GAMBLING vol 67 (2008) PARA 85 et seq.

7 See the Licensing Act 2003 Pt 8 (ss 160-171).

8 Eg a qualifying club wishing to provide entertainment to members of the public on certain days must hold a club premises certificate to cover its normal activities and a premises licence to authorise the provision of entertainment to the public. In these circumstances the club would need to ensure that a personal licence is held by a member or employee under the Licensing Act 2003 Pt 6 (ss 111-135). On special occasions of exceptional international, national or local significance, the opening hours of a club may be relaxed by the making of a licensing hours order.

9 It is under the Licensing Act 2003 Pt 4 (ss 60-97). See LICENSING AND GAMBLING vol 67 (2008) PARA 85 et seq.

The following are licensable activities (see s 1(1); and LICENSING AND GAMBLING vol 67 (2008) PARA 28) that are also qualifying club activities: (1) the supply of alcohol by or on behalf of a club to, or to the order of, a member of the club; (2) the sale by retail of alcohol by or on behalf of a club to a guest of a member of the club for consumption on the premises where the sale takes place; and (3) the provision of regulated entertainment (see LICENSING AND GAMBLING) where that provision is by or on behalf of a club for members of the club or members of the club and their guests: see s 1(2); and LICENSING AND GAMBLING vol 67 (2008) PARA 29.

10 The following are the general conditions which a club must satisfy if it is to be a qualifying club in relation to a qualifying club activity: (1) under the rules of the club, persons may not be admitted to membership or be admitted, as candidates for membership, to any of the privileges of membership, without an interval of at least two days between their nomination or application for membership and their admission; (2) under the rules of the club, persons becoming members without prior nomination or application may not be admitted to the privileges of membership without an interval of at least two days between their becoming members and their admission; (3) the club is established and conducted in good faith as a club; (4) the club has at least 25 members; (5) alcohol is not supplied, or intended to be supplied, to members on the premises otherwise than by or on behalf of the club: see the Licensing Act 2003 s 62; and LICENSING AND GAMBLING vol 67 (2008) PARA 86.

11 See the Licensing Act 2003 s 61(1), (2); and LICENSING AND GAMBLING vol 67 (2008) PARA 86. The following are the additional conditions which a club must satisfy if it is to be a qualifying club in relation to the supply of alcohol to members or guests: (1) so far as not managed by the club in general meeting or otherwise by the general body of members, the purchase of alcohol for the club, and the supply of alcohol by the club, are managed by a committee whose members: (a) are members of the club; (b) have attained the age of 18 years; and (c) are elected by the members of the club; (2) no arrangements are, or are intended to be, made for any person to receive at the expense of the club any commission, percentage or similar payment on, or with reference to, purchases of alcohol by the club; (3) no arrangements are, or are intended to be, made for any person directly or indirectly to derive any pecuniary benefit from the supply of alcohol by or on behalf of the club to members or guests, apart from: (a) any benefit accruing to the club as a whole; or (b) any benefit which a person derives indirectly by reason of the supply giving rise or contributing to a general gain from the carrying on of the club: see s 64; and LICENSING AND GAMBLING vol 67 (2008) PARA 86. A club which is an industrial and provident society is taken to satisfy the additional condition in head (1) above if, and to the extent that, the purchase of alcohol for the club, and the supply of alcohol by the club, are under the control of the members or of a committee appointed by the members: see s 65(1)-(3); and LICENSING AND GAMBLING vol 67 (2008) PARA 87.

12 See the Licensing Act 2003 s 61(3); and LICENSING AND GAMBLING vol 67 (2008) PARA 86.

13 In particular, as to housing legislation see PARA 2408; and as to credit unions see PARA 2402.

C. OBJECTS OF SOCIETIES; SPECIAL ACTIVITIES

2402. Purposes for which a society may be registered.

A society may be registered<sup>1</sup> under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 for the purpose of carrying on any industry, business<sup>2</sup> or trade (including dealings of any description with land<sup>3</sup>), whether wholesale or retail<sup>4</sup>, if either (1) the society is a bona fide co-operative society<sup>5</sup>; or (2) in view of the fact that the business of the society is being, or is intended to be, conducted for the benefit of the community, there are special reasons why the society should be registered under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 rather than as a company under the Companies Act 1985<sup>6</sup>. 'Co-operative society' does not include a society which carries on, or intends to carry on, business with the object of making profits mainly for the payment of interest, dividends or bonuses on money invested or deposited with, or lent to, the society or any other person<sup>7</sup>.

Special provisions apply if a society is to carry on certain classes of business<sup>8</sup>.

A society may also be registered under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 as a credit union<sup>9</sup> if the following conditions are met: (a) its objects are those, and only those, of a credit union<sup>10</sup>; and (b) as a result of any provision of the rules, admission to membership of the society meets certain specific requirements<sup>11</sup> (whether or not any other qualifications for admission to membership are also required by the rules) and in consequence a common bond exists between members of the society<sup>12</sup>. A society whose objects are wholly or substantially those of a credit union may not be registered otherwise than as a credit union<sup>13</sup>.

A society which at the commencement of the Credit Unions Act 1979 was registered under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965, but whose objects were wholly or substantially those of a credit union, had to take all reasonable steps to have its existing registration cancelled and become registered as a credit union<sup>14</sup>. Such a society remains for all purposes the same body corporate before and after the change of registration<sup>15</sup>.

1 As to the procedure on registration see PARA 2413 et seq. As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2395.

2 'Business' is not defined in the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965. As to use of the word in the Companies Acts see Smith v Anderson (1880) 15 ChD 247 at 258, CA, per Jessel MR; Re Bristol Athenaeum (1889) 43 ChD 236; and COMPANIES vol 14 (2009) PARA 1. Although they are bodies corporate (see PARA 2416), registered societies may carry on the business of dentistry, and may carry on business as opticians: see the Dentists Act 1984 s 43; the Opticians Act 1989 s 9; and MEDICAL PROFESSIONS vol 30(1) (Reissue) PARAS 385 et seq, 803 et seq.

3 'Land' includes hereditaments and chattels real: Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 74(1) (renumbered by SI 2001/2617). See also note 4.

4 The words 'including dealings of any description with land' and 'whether wholesale or retail' do not appear to have any enlarging or limiting effect on the expression 'any industry, business or trade'. A society has power to do all acts directly incidental to the business which it is incorporated to carry on, eg the taking on of apprentices: Burnley Equitable Co-operative and Industrial Society v Casson [1891] 1 QB 75, DC. As to the limitation on a member's shareholding see PARA 2447.

5 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 1(1)(a), (2)(a). See further the text to note 7.

In the annual report of the Chief Registrar for 1989-90 (see paras 4.4, 4.5), 'bona fide co-operative society', not defined in the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965, was described in terms which are essentially the same as the criteria set out in note 7. The report also notes that a bona fide co-operative society registered under these provisions should cease to be registered if subsequently it fails to meet the criteria (see para 4.9). Note that the functions of the Chief Registrar are now carried out by the Financial Services Authority: see PARA 2410.

6 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 1(1)(a), (2)(b) (s 1(2)(b) amended by the Companies Consolidation (Consequential Provisions) Act 1985 Sch 2). As to registration under the Companies Act 1985 see generally COMPANIES. The notes of guidance for the registration of societies (Form F617) issued by the Registry of Friendly Societies (now the Financial Services Authority: see PARA 2410) indicate that a society claiming that it will be conducted for the benefit of the community must be able to show, among other matters, that it will benefit persons other than its own members and that its business will be in the interests of the community; and that factors relevant to suitability for registration are whether the society is non-profit making and is prohibited by its rules from distributing its assets among members, and the factors referred to in note 7 heads (2), (3), (5). Typical societies which qualify for registration under head (2) in the text are those which provide housing for various groups within the community (see PARA 2408). Some of these are charitable or philanthropic in character. As to the application of the Charities Act 1993 see PARA 2401. As to the name of a society the objects of which are wholly charitable or benevolent see PARA 2439. As to model rules see PARA 2428.

The Treasury may by regulations make provision for enabling any community benefit society, or any community benefit society of a prescribed kind, to ensure that: (1) assets of the society of a prescribed kind; (2) assets of the society specified by it in accordance with the regulations; or (3) all of the society's assets, cannot be used or dealt with except in a case mentioned under the Co-operatives and Community Benefit Societies Act 2003 s 1(2): s 1(1). In s 1 'community benefit society' means a society registered, or deemed to be registered, under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 which fulfils the condition specified in s 1(2)(b) (see head (2) in the text); and 'prescribed' means prescribed by regulations under the Co-operatives and Community Benefit Societies Act 2003 s 1: s 1(9). The exceptional cases referred to in head (3) above are: (a) where the use or dealing is, directly or indirectly, for a purpose that is for the benefit of the community and is of a prescribed kind or, if no kinds of purpose are prescribed, for any purpose that is for the benefit of the community; or (b) where the circumstances are such as may be prescribed: s 1(2). Where under the regulations a society has ensured that relevant assets cannot be used or dealt with except in a specified case, any such assets are 'dedicated assets' for the purposes of s 1: s 1(3). Regulations under s 1 may, in particular: (i) provide for the procedure by which a society may ensure that relevant assets cannot be used or dealt with except in a case falling within s 1(2); (ii) provide for such of a society's rules as are of a prescribed kind to be unalterable, or for them to be alterable only in prescribed circumstances or in circumstances specified in rules of a prescribed kind; (iii) provide that, in any circumstances prescribed under head (b) above, dedicated assets must be dealt with in a prescribed way; (iv) make provision for ensuring that any society, company or other person to whom any dedicated assets are transferred in prescribed circumstances cannot use or deal with those assets except in a case mentioned in s 1(2); (v) provide for members of a society who lose property rights as a result of the society's ensuring that relevant assets cannot be used or dealt with except in such a case to be compensated for that loss, whether by payment of a prescribed amount or of an amount determined in a prescribed way or otherwise, subject to such exceptions as may be prescribed; (vi) provide for the enforcement of provisions designed to ensure that relevant assets cannot be used or dealt with except in a case falling within s 1(2); (vii) make provision for the carrying out of investigations by persons appointed by a prescribed person; (viii) confer power on a prescribed person to require persons of a prescribed description to provide him with information in order to enable or assist him to perform any of his functions under the regulations; (ix) provide for restrictions on the use and disclosure of information obtained by any person in the performance of any function under the regulations: s 1(4). Regulations under s 1 may also: (A) impose criminal liability; (B) confer functions on a prescribed person; (C) confer jurisdiction on any court; (D) authorise a prescribed person to make rules, binding on persons of a prescribed description, for the purpose of enabling or assisting him to perform any of his functions under the regulations; (E) make provision as to the making, publication and enforcement of such rules; (F) provide for a prescribed person to charge fees sufficient to meet the costs of performing any of his functions under the regulations; (G) modify, exclude or apply, with or without modifications, any enactment or rule of law; (H) contain such incidental, consequential and supplemental provision as the Treasury considers appropriate; (I) make different provision for different cases: s 1(5). Regulations under s 1 may not create any new criminal offence punishable with imprisonment for more than seven years: s 1(6). The power to make regulations under s 1 is exercisable by statutory instrument: s 1(7). No regulations may be made under s 1 unless a draft of the regulations has been laid before Parliament and approved by a resolution of each House: s 1(8). As to the Treasury see PARA 3; and CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 512 et seq. As to the regulations made under s 1, see the Community Benefit Societies (Restriction on Use of Assets) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/264. Provision is made by those regulations in relation to restriction on the use of assets (regs 2-4, Sch 1); prescribed societies, circumstances and rules (regs 5-7); enforcement measures (regs 8-15); miscellaneous and supplemental matters (reg 16); and modification of the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 (reg 17, Sch 2).

7 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 1(3). The notes of guidance for the registration of societies issued by the Registry of Friendly Societies (now the Financial Services Authority: see PARA 2410) indicate that to qualify as a bona fide co-operative society a society will normally be expected to satisfy the following conditions: (1) the business of the society will be conducted for the mutual benefit of its members in such a way that the benefit which they obtain will in the main stem from their participation in its business; (2) control of the society will under its rules be vested in the members equally and not in accordance with their financial interests in the society; (3) interest payable on share and loan capital (see PARA 2446 et seq) will under the rules not exceed a rate necessary to obtain and retain the capital required to carry out the objects of the society; (4) the profits of the society's business after payment of interest on share capital, if distributable among the members, will under its rules be distributable among them in relation to the extent to which they have traded with or taken part in the business of the society; (5) there should be no artificial restriction of membership with the object of increasing the value of proprietary rights and interests. As to model rules see PARA 2428.

8 See PARA 2403 et seq.

9 The Industrial and Provident Societies Acts 1965 to 1978 (see PARA 2397) apply to credit unions, unless the Credit Unions Act 1979 provides otherwise: s 31(3). The following provisions of the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 do not apply to credit unions: s 1, Sch 1 (see the Credit Unions Act 1979 s 2(1), Sch 1; see also PARA 2425); the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 6 (see the Credit Unions Act 1979 s 31(3); and PARA 2447); the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 11 (see the Credit Unions Act 1979 s 4(5); and PARA 2403); the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 12 (see the Credit Unions Act 1979 s 31(3); and PARA 2409); the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 19 (see the Credit Unions Act 1979 ss 5(1), 31(3); and PARA 2468); the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 7(3) (see the Credit Unions Act 1979 s 2(1); the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 21 (see the Credit Unions Act 1979 s 11, s 31(3); and PARA 2404); the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 30 (see the Credit Unions Act 1979 s 12, s 31(3); and PARA 2494); the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 31 (see the Credit Unions Act 1979 s 31(3); and PARA 2498); the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 52 (see the Credit Unions Act 1979 s 22; and PARAS 2564-2565); the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 76 (see the Credit Unions Act 1979 s 32(1); and PARA 2397). The following provisions of the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 are modified in their application to credit unions: s 2(1) (see the Credit Unions Act 1979 s 6(1)(a); and PARA 2413); the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 2(3) (see the Credit Unions Act 1979 s 2(2); and PARA 2415); the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 10(3) (see the Credit Unions Act 1979 s 4(3); and PARA 2437); the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 16(1)(a)(i) (see the Credit Unions Act 1979 s 6(1)(b); and PARA 2579); the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 16(1)(c)(i), (ii) (see the Credit Unions Act 1979 s 20(1)(a), (b); and PARA 2579); the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 48(1) (see the Credit Unions Act 1979 s 17(1); and PARA 2583); the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 53(1) (see the Credit Unions Act 1979 s 23(2); and PARA 2417); the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 53(2) (see the Credit Unions Act 1979 s 6(1)(c); and PARA 2417); the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 ss 61-66, 68 (see the Credit Unions Act 1979 s 28(1)-(4); and PARAS 2547-2548).

10 See the Credit Unions Act 1979 s 1(2)(a). The objects of a credit union are: (1) the promotion of thrift among the members of the society by the accumulation of their savings; (2) the creation of sources of credit for the benefit of the members of the society at a fair and reasonable rate of interest; (3) the use and control of the members' savings for their mutual benefit; and (4) the training and education of the members in the wise use of money and in the management of their financial affairs: s 1(3).

11 See the requirements specified in the Credit Unions Act 1979 s 1(3A) or (3B) (s 1(3A), (3B) added by SI 2003/256). The requirement specified in the Credit Unions Act 1979 s 1(3A) is that admission to membership of the society is restricted to persons all of whom fulfil the same specific qualification for admission to membership, being a qualification specified in, or approved under, s 1(4) (see heads (a)-(f) below) as being appropriate to a credit union: s 1(3A) (as so added). The requirement specified in s 1(3B) is that admission to membership of the society is restricted to persons each of whom fulfils either: (1) the qualification for admission to membership specified by head (e) below as being appropriate to a credit union; or (2) the same specific qualification for admission to membership, being a qualification which is so specified in head (a), (b), (c), (d) or (f) below: s 1(3B) (as so added).

The qualifications for admission to membership which are appropriate to a credit union are: (a) following a particular occupation; (b) residing in a particular locality; (c) being employed in a particular locality; (d) being employed by a particular employer; (e) being a member of a bona fide organisation or being otherwise associated with other members of the society for a purpose other than that of forming a society to be registered as a credit union; (f) residing in or being employed in a particular locality; and such other qualifications as are for the time being approved by the Financial Services Authority: s 1(4) (amended by SI 1996/1189; and SI 2001/2617). As to the Financial Services Authority in regard to registered societies see PARA 2410. As to the Authority generally see PARAS 4, 6 et seq.

INDUSTRIAL AND PROVIDENT SOCIETIES/(1) CONSTITUTION/(i) Introduction/C. OBJECTS OF SOCIETIES; SPECIAL ACTIVITIES/2403. Purchase of government securities.

2403. Purchase of government securities.

The rules of a society, other than a credit union, registered or to be registered under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965<sup>1</sup> may provide for the setting up and administration by the society of a fund for the purchase, on behalf of the members contributing to the fund, of defence bonds or national savings certificates or such other government securities as may for the time being be prescribed by the Treasury<sup>2</sup>. Any such rules may make provision for enabling persons to become members of the society for the purpose only of contributing to that fund and without being entitled to any rights as members other than rights as contributors to the fund<sup>3</sup>.

<sup>1</sup> As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2395. As to the rules generally see PARA 2423 et seq. These provisions do not apply to credit unions: Credit Union Act 1979 s 4(5). As to credit unions see PARA 2402.

<sup>2</sup> Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 11(1) (amended by SI 2001/2617). As to the Treasury see PARA 3; and CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 512 et seq.

The power of registered societies to make such provision in their rules was originally conferred by the Societies (Miscellaneous Provisions) Act 1940, which gave the Chief Registrar power to prescribe forms of rules for this purpose, and, if requested to do so by the committee of management or other directing body of a registered society in existence on 25 April 1940 (ie the date of the passing of the Act), to register a rule of the society in such of the prescribed forms as was indicated in the request: ss 8(3), 10(1) (repealed). Any rule which by virtue of this provision was immediately before 1 January 1966 (ie the date of commencement of the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965) included among the registered rules of a registered society has effect as if it had been duly passed by the society: s 11(2) (amended by the Friendly Societies Act 1974 Sch 9 para 18(b)). The Treasury's power to prescribe further classes of government security for societies registered under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 is exercised under the Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 47(1) (see PARA 2103): see the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 11(1) (amended by the Friendly Societies Act 1974 Sch 9 para 18(a)).

2404. Advances to members.

The rules of a registered society<sup>1</sup>, other than a credit union, may provide for advances of money to members<sup>2</sup>. Except in the case of societies registered to carry on banking business<sup>3</sup> and agricultural, horticultural or forestry societies<sup>4</sup>, the rules may provide for such advances only on the security of real or personal property<sup>5</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2395. As to the rules generally see PARA 2423 et seq.

2 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 21. This is a power which a registered society may include in its rules, whatever may be its purposes. As to the power of local authorities to guarantee the repayment of advances made to members for housing purposes see PARA 2408; and HOUSING. This provision, being inconsistent with the provisions of the Credit Unions Act 1979, is omitted in the application of the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 to credit unions: Credit Unions Act 1979 s 31(3).

3 As to advances of money by societies carrying on banking business see PARA 2405.

INDUSTRIAL AND PROVIDENT SOCIETIES/(1) CONSTITUTION/(i) Introduction/C. OBJECTS OF SOCIETIES; SPECIAL ACTIVITIES/2405. Societies carrying on the business of banking.

2405. Societies carrying on the business of banking.

A society, other than a credit union, which has any withdrawable share capital (1) may not be registered with the object of carrying on the business of banking; and (2) if already registered, may not carry on such business<sup>1</sup>. On the first Monday in February and August in each year, every registered society which carries on the business of banking must make out a statement of its capital, and of its liabilities and assets as at the first day<sup>2</sup> of the preceding month<sup>3</sup>. This statement must be kept hung up in a conspicuous position in the society's registered office, and in every other office or place of business belonging to the society where the business of banking is carried on, until the next such Monday<sup>4</sup>. Failure to observe any of the above provisions is an offence<sup>5</sup>. The rules of a society registered to carry on banking business may provide for advances of money to members in any manner customary in the conduct of such business<sup>6</sup>.

1 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 7(1). Head (2) in the text, being a provision replaced by or inconsistent with provisions of the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000, does not apply to credit unions: see the Credit Unions Act 1979 s 31(4) (added by SI 2002/1501). Societies not carrying on the business of banking may have withdrawable share capital (see PARAS 2448-2449) if this is provided for in the rules: see PARA 2425. As to share capital generally see PARA 2446 et seq. As to the business of banking see PARA 791 et seq. A registered society would carry on the business of banking within the meaning of the prohibition if it carried on the principal business of a banker by receiving deposits repayable on demand or on notice and paying interest on them, even though it did not also carry on other parts of a banker's business: Re Bottomgate Industrial Co-operative Society (1891) 65 LT 712 at 714, DC. See also Re Birkbeck Permanent Benefit Building Society [1912] 2 Ch 183, CA; affd on this point sub nom Sinclair v Brougham [1914] AC 398, HL.

2 ie 1 January or 1 July.

3 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 7(2), Sch 2. The statement must be in the form set out in Sch 2, or in a form as near to that form as the circumstances admit: s 7(2).

4 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 7(2). This provision places registered societies carrying on banking business under an obligation similar to that imposed on registered companies carrying on banking business: see generally PARA 791 et seq.

5 See the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 7(6)(a), (b); and PARA 2549. It would seem that an offence is not committed if a society authorised under its rules to carry on banking business does not in fact do so by opening accounts, receiving deposits etc: Re Builders Bank Ltd (1906) (an unreported Divisional Court case referred to in CR Rep Pt A, pp 10, 35 (Parliamentary Papers (1907) vol 78)).

6 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 21. This provision, being inconsistent with the provisions of the Credit Unions Act 1979, is omitted in the application of the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 to credit unions: Credit Unions Act 1979 s 31(3). As to the rules generally see PARA 2423 et seq.

Halsbury's Laws of England/FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS (VOLUME 48 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-589; VOLUME 49 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 590-1619; VOLUME 50 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1620-2586)/9. INDUSTRIAL AND PROVIDENT SOCIETIES/(1) CONSTITUTION/(i) Introduction/C. OBJECTS OF SOCIETIES; SPECIAL ACTIVITIES/2406. Business not deemed to be banking.

2406. Business not deemed to be banking.

The taking of deposits of not more than £400 in any one payment and not more than £400 for any one depositor, payable on not less than two clear days' notice, is not treated as carrying on the business of banking for the purposes of the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965<sup>1</sup>, but no society which takes such deposits may make any payment of withdrawable capital while any payment due on account of any such deposit is unsatisfied<sup>2</sup>. This is a limited form of savings bank business which any registered society, whatever its business, may transact if it takes power in its rules to do so. The rules may provide for deposits being made by other persons as well as members<sup>3</sup>.

1 ie for the purposes of the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 7(1), (2); see PARA 2405.

2 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 7(3) (amended by the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1978 s 1(1)). The Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1978 s 2(2) (amended by SI 2001/2617) authorises the further alteration of the amounts in the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 7(3) from time to time by order made by statutory instruments; the limits set by the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1978 were each further raised to £400 by the Industrial and Provident Societies (Increase in Deposit-taking Limits) Order 1981, SI 1981/394.

A registered society which makes any payment of withdrawable capital in contravention of this provision commits an offence: see the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 7(6)(c); and PARA 2549. Special provisions apply to a society where: (1) the society is one which was registered under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1893 before 27 April 1952, and to which the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 4 (see PARA 2396) applies (s 7(4)); (2) no amendment of the society's registered rules has been registered since 27 April 1952 (s 7(4)(a)); (3) those rules permit the taking of deposits up to, but not in excess of, 50p in any one payment and £20 for any one depositor (s 7(4)(b)); Decimal Currency Act 1969 s 10(1)); and (4) the society's committee has, since 27 April 1952, passed a written resolution to replace those limits by the higher limits of £400 (Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 7(4)(c) (amended by the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1978 s 1(1); and SI 1981/394)). In such a case the society's registered rules have effect subject to that resolution: Industrial and Provident Societies (Increase in Deposit-taking Limits) Order 1981, SI 1981/394, art 4(1), (2). When such a resolution has been passed, the committee has no power to vary or revoke it: art 4(4). On the registration after 22 September 1982 of an amendment of the society's rules, if the committee has not already passed any such resolution, its power to do so determines; or, if the committee has passed such a resolution, the registered rules have effect as if the resolution had not been passed, but without prejudice to any sums standing deposited with the society immediately before the date of registration of the amendment: art 4(3), (5). Similar provisions are contained in the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 7(4), (5) and in the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1974 s 1(2)-(6) in relation to a society the committee of which resolved, when the permitted limits were lower, to substitute those lower limits for the limits contained in the society's rules. As to amendment of the rules see PARA 2434 et seq.

3 See PARA 2453. As to offences in connection with inviting deposits see PARA 2552. As to the rules generally see PARA 2423 et seq.

2407. Insurance business.

Registered societies may carry on insurance business<sup>1</sup>, in which case they are now subject to the provisions of the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000<sup>2</sup>.

A credit union<sup>3</sup>, or any two or more credit unions, may enter into arrangements with a person carrying on the business of insurance for the purpose of making funds available to meet losses incurred by members of a credit union which is a party to the arrangements; and any two or more credit unions may enter into any other kind of arrangements for that purpose<sup>4</sup>.

1 As to the classification of insurers as legal entities (including industrial and provident societies and friendly societies) see INSURANCE vol 25 (2003 Reissue) PARA 11. As to the fact that registered societies are bodies corporate see PARA 2416. As to the meaning of 'registered society' generally see PARA 2395. Registered societies used to be covered by the regulating provisions of the Insurance Companies Act 1982, in which 'registered society' was defined as a society registered or deemed to be registered under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 or any corresponding enactment or Measure in force in Northern Ireland: Insurance Companies Act 1982 s 96(1) (repealed). Since the legislation's repeal the appropriate statute is the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000.

2 As to the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 and the regulation of insurance by the Financial Services Authority see generally INSURANCE. As to the Financial Services Authority in regard to registered societies see PARA 2410. As to the Authority generally see PARAS 4, 6 et seq.

3 As to credit unions see PARA 2402.

4 Credit Unions Act 1979 s 16(1). A credit union has power to make contributions under arrangements made in accordance with s 16(1), and such arrangements may in particular provide for the vesting of a fund in trustees appointed under the arrangements: s 16(2). Arrangements under s 16(1) will not come into force and no contribution may be made thereunder by a credit union, until they have been approved by the Authority; and the Authority must not approve any such arrangements unless they provide that any variation of their terms also require its approval: s 16(3) (amended by SI 2001/2617).

INDUSTRIAL AND PROVIDENT SOCIETIES/(1) CONSTITUTION/(i) Introduction/C. OBJECTS OF SOCIETIES; SPECIAL ACTIVITIES/2408. Societies providing housing.

2408. Societies providing housing.

A registered society established for the purpose of, or having among its objects or powers those of, providing, constructing, improving or managing, or facilitating or encouraging the construction or improvement of, housing accommodation<sup>1</sup> may be a housing association within the meaning of the Housing Act 1985 and the Housing Associations Act 1985 if it does not trade for profit, or if its constitution or rules prohibit the issue of any capital with interest or dividend exceeding the rate for the time being prescribed by the Treasury<sup>2</sup>, whether with or without differentiation as between share and loan capital<sup>3</sup>. Housing associations which are registered with the relevant authority<sup>4</sup> are known as 'registered social landlords'<sup>5</sup>.

A registered society is eligible to be registered and so become a registered social landlord if: (1) it is non-profit-making; (2) it is established for the purpose of, or has among its objects or powers those of, providing, constructing, improving or managing houses to be kept available for letting, or (where the rules of the body restrict membership to persons entitled or prospectively entitled, as tenants or otherwise, to occupy a house provided or managed by the body) houses for occupation by members, or hostels; and (3) any additional purposes or objects of the association are limited to those specified<sup>6</sup>. As soon as may be after placing a registered society on the register as a social landlord or removing it from the register<sup>7</sup>, the relevant authority must give notice of the registration or removal to the Financial Services Authority<sup>8</sup>, and must also give the Authority notice of any appeal by the society against removal<sup>9</sup>.

A registered society which is also a registered housing association is, in the conduct of its affairs, subject to a number of statutory provisions in addition to those of the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 to 1978<sup>10</sup>.

1 I.e. including flats, lodging houses and hostels: see the Housing Act 1985 s 56; and HOUSING vol 22 (2006 Reissue) PARA 11. As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2395.

2409. Agricultural, horticultural or forestry societies.

Where a society, other than a credit union, registered or to be registered under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965, consists mainly of members who are producers of agricultural or horticultural produce or persons engaged in forestry, or organisations of such producers or persons so engaged, and the object or principal object of the society is the making to its members of advances of money for agricultural, horticultural or forestry purposes, registration of the rules of the society or of any amendment of them may not be refused on the ground that the rules provide, or would as amended provide, for the making of such advances without security<sup>1</sup>.

A registered society carrying on the business of agriculture or horticulture<sup>2</sup> may qualify for grants made under the Agriculture Act 1967 in respect of expenditure incurred by the society in fulfilling a guarantee given by it as security for a bank loan required by a person for the purpose of his agricultural or horticultural business<sup>3</sup>.

A registered society may be an allotment society for the purposes of the statutory provisions governing the promotion and extension of such societies<sup>4</sup>.

Special provisions apply where registered societies create certain charges on property which is farming stock<sup>5</sup>.

1 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 12. Cf the general requirement that the rules must provide for security to be given for advances: see PARA 2404. As to registration of rules and amendments see PARAS 2415, 2437; and as to cancellation of registration see PARA 2579. This provision, being inconsistent with the provisions of the Credit Unions Act 1979, is omitted in the application of the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 to credit unions: Credit Unions Act 1979 s 31(3). ##### 2411. Deposit, registering and recording of documents.

Under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965<sup>1</sup>, registered societies, including credit unions<sup>2</sup>, are required to deposit or register with, or have recorded by, the Financial Services Authority<sup>3</sup> the following documents: (1) applications to register a society or an amendment of rules<sup>4</sup>; (2) annual returns<sup>5</sup>; (3) applications for approval of a change of name<sup>6</sup>; (4) notices of change of registered office<sup>7</sup>; (5) special resolutions for amalgamations, transfers of engagements or conversions<sup>8</sup>; (6) notices of appointment of receivers, and receivers' returns<sup>9</sup>; (7) instruments of dissolution<sup>10</sup>; (8) winding-up resolutions and other documents required to be registered under the winding-up provisions of the Insolvency Act 1986<sup>11</sup>. Provision is made for the recording of the rules of Northern Irish societies wishing to carry on business in Great Britain<sup>12</sup>.

Every return and other document required for the purposes of the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 must be made in such form and contain such particulars, and must be deposited in such manner, as the Authority may direct; and the Authority must register and record those documents with such observations thereon (if any) as it considers appropriate<sup>13</sup>. These provisions apply also for the purposes of the Credit Unions Act 1979<sup>14</sup>.

1 As to the deposit of documents under the Agricultural Credits Act 1928, the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1967, the Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 and the Insurance Companies Act 1982 see PARAS 2407, 2454, 2522.

2412. Evidence of documents.

Any document<sup>1</sup> bearing the seal or stamp of the Financial Services Authority must be received in evidence without further proof<sup>2</sup>. Any document purporting to have been signed by a person authorised to do so on behalf of the Authority, and every document purporting to be signed by any inspector under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965, in the absence of any evidence to the contrary, is to be received in evidence without proof of the signature<sup>3</sup>. These provisions apply also for the purposes of the Credit Unions Act 1979<sup>4</sup>.

1 For these purposes, 'document' means any document issued, received or created by the Financial Services Authority (or, as the case may be, by any inspector under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965) for the purposes of or in connection with that Act, the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1967 or the Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968: Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 72(4) (s 72(2) substituted, and s 72(3)-(4) added, by SI 2001/2617). ## B. REGISTRATION PROCEDURE

2413. Application to register.

An application to register a society, other than a credit union<sup>1</sup>, must be signed by three members and the secretary, and must be sent with two printed copies of the society's rules to the Financial Services Authority<sup>2</sup>. An application to register a society consisting solely of two or more registered societies must be signed by the secretary of each (or, if more than two, of each of any two) of the constituent societies, and be accompanied by two printed copies of the rules of the society sought to be registered<sup>3</sup>. In the case of credit unions, an application to register a society must be signed by 21 members and the secretary and must be sent with two printed copies of the credit union's rules to the Authority<sup>4</sup>.

1 See the Credit Unions Act 1979 s 6(1); and the text and note 4. As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2395. As to credit unions see PARA 2402.

2 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 2(1)(b) (amended by SI 1996/1738; and SI 2001/2617). As to the Financial Services Authority in regard to registered societies see PARA 2410. 3 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 2(2) (amended by SI 1996/1738).

4 The minimum number of members of a credit union is 21; and the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 2(1) (see the text and notes 1-2), as it applies to registration as a credit union or an application for registration, is amended so as to refer to 21 members instead of three: Credit Unions Act 1979 s 6(1) (amended by SI 1996/1738).

INDUSTRIAL AND PROVIDENT SOCIETIES/(1) CONSTITUTION/ (ii) Registration and Incorporation/B. REGISTRATION PROCEDURE/2414. Restrictions on registration.

2414. Restrictions on registration.

A society, other than a credit union, may not be registered unless (1) it is shown to the satisfaction of the Financial Services Authority<sup>1</sup> to be within either of the two classes of society<sup>2</sup> permitted to be registered<sup>3</sup>; (2) its rules contain provision in respect of certain matters<sup>4</sup>; (3) the place which under those rules is to be the society's registered office<sup>5</sup> is situated in Great Britain or the Channel Islands<sup>6</sup>; and (4) the number of members is not less than three<sup>7</sup>.

Different restrictions apply to the registration of a credit union<sup>8</sup>. A credit union may not be registered under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 unless: (a) it is shown to the satisfaction of the Authority that specified conditions are fulfilled; (b) the rules of the credit union comply with certain provisions; (c) the society's registered office is situated in Great Britain; (d) the society has made an application to the Authority for permission under the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000<sup>9</sup> to accept deposits<sup>10</sup>; and (e) the Authority is satisfied that, once registered under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965, the society will satisfy and continue to satisfy the threshold conditions set out in the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000<sup>11</sup> in relation to the regulated activity of accepting deposits<sup>12</sup>. The conditions which must be fulfilled are: (i) that the objects of the society are those, and only those, of a credit union<sup>13</sup>; and (ii) that as a result of any provision of the rules admission to membership of the credit union meets certain specific requirements<sup>14</sup> (whether or not any other qualifications for admission to membership are also required by the rules) and that, in consequence, a common bond exists between the members of the credit union<sup>15</sup>. The minimum number of members of a credit union is 21<sup>16</sup>.

There are restrictions on the use of names and the use of the word 'limited' in the names of societies, including credit unions, registered under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965<sup>17</sup>.

A society to be registered for the purpose of carrying on the business of banking may not have any withdrawable share capital<sup>18</sup>.

12 Credit Unions Act 1979 s 1(1) (amended by SI 2001/2617; and SI 2002/1501).

The Authority must not issue an acknowledgement of registration under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 2(3) (see PARA 2415) to a credit union unless it also proposes to give that society permission under the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 Pt IV (ss 40-55) (see PARA 348 et seq) to accept deposits: Credit Unions Act 1979 s 1(1A), (1B) added by SI 2002/1501). If the Authority issues an acknowledgement of registration to a credit union under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act s 2(3), it must determine any outstanding application of that credit union for permission under the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 Pt IV (see PARA 348) to accept deposits as soon as reasonably possible thereafter: Credit Unions Act 1979 s 1(1B) (as so added).

13 As to the objects of a credit union see PARA 2402 note 10.

14 As to those requirements see PARA 2402 note 11.

15 Credit Unions Act 1979 s 1(2) (amended by SI 2003/256). See also PARA 2402. In ascertaining whether a common bond exists between the members of a society, the Authority may, if it considers it proper in the circumstances of the case, treat as sufficient evidence of the existence of a common bond a statutory declaration which is given by three members and the secretary of the society, and is to the effect that a common bond exists; and may, if it considers it proper in the circumstances of the case, treat the fact that admission to membership is restricted as mentioned in head (ii) in the text, as sufficient evidence of the existence of a common bond: Credit Unions Act 1979 s 1(5) (amended by SI 1996/1189; and SI 2001/2617).

On being satisfied that a society, including a credit union, has complied with the statutory provisions as to registration<sup>1</sup>, the Financial Services Authority<sup>2</sup> must issue to the society an acknowledgment of registration bearing the Authority's seal<sup>3</sup>. The acknowledgment of registration also constitutes an acknowledgment, and is conclusive evidence, of the registration of the rules of the society in force at the date of the society's registration<sup>4</sup>.

2416. Effects of registration.

By virtue of its registration<sup>1</sup>, a society becomes a body corporate by its registered name<sup>2</sup>, by which it may sue and be sued, with perpetual succession and with limited liability<sup>3</sup>. Registration vests in the society all property for the time being vested in any person in trust for it, and all legal proceedings pending by or against the trustees of the society may be brought or continued by or against the society in its registered name<sup>4</sup>. The further privileges conferred on registered societies and their members include (1) the society's power to hold land and to invest funds<sup>5</sup>; (2) the rights of members to dispose on death of their property in the society by means of nomination, and provisions for the distribution of a member's property in the society on his death where there has been no nomination<sup>6</sup>; (3) a simple method for the decision of disputes<sup>7</sup>.

C. CONVERSION OF COMPANY INTO REGISTERED SOCIETY

2417. Resolution for conversion of company into society.

A company registered under the Companies Acts<sup>1</sup> may by special resolution determine to convert itself into a registered society including a credit union<sup>2</sup>. Except in the case of a credit union<sup>3</sup>, where the nominal value of the company's shares held by any member other than a registered society exceeds the maximum shareholding for the time being permitted in a registered society<sup>4</sup>, the resolution may provide for the conversion of the shares representing that excess into a transferable loan stock bearing such rate of interest as may be fixed, and repayable on such conditions only as are determined by the resolution<sup>5</sup>.

The resolution must be accompanied by a copy of the society's rules and must appoint three persons, or, in the case of a conversion into a credit union, 21 persons<sup>6</sup>, being members of the company, who, together with the secretary, must sign the rules<sup>7</sup>. Those persons may either be authorised to accept any alterations to the rules made by the Financial Services Authority<sup>8</sup> without further consulting the company<sup>9</sup>, or be required to lay any such alterations before the company in general meeting for acceptance as the resolution may direct<sup>10</sup>.

Unless regulations make provision to the contrary, a community interest company<sup>11</sup> may not convert itself<sup>12</sup> into a registered society under the above provisions<sup>13</sup>.

1 For this purpose 'Companies Acts' includes the Companies Act 1985, any earlier enactment for the like purposes which has been repealed, and any law for the like purposes which is or has been in force in Northern Ireland or any of the Channel Islands: Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 74(1) (renumbered by SI 2001/2617; and definition amended by the Companies Consolidation (Consequential Provisions) Act 1985 Sch 2). See generally COMPANIES.

As to the conversion of a registered society into a company see PARAS 2564-2565. As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2395. As to credit unions see PARA 2402.

3 In its application to the conversion of a company into a credit union, the reference to the limitations on shareholding in the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 53 is omitted: Credit Unions Act 1979 s 23(1), (2). That is because in the application of the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 to credit unions, s 6, which contains the limitations, is omitted: see the Credit Unions Act 1979 s 31(3).

4 The maximum shareholding in registered societies permitted to members (other than registered societies or certain other bodies or persons) is £20,000: see the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 6(1); and PARA 2447.

If regulations make provision allowing the conversion of community interest companies under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 53 (or its Northern Ireland equivalent) they may include provision modifying s 53 (or its Northern Ireland equivalent) in its application by virtue of the regulations: Companies (Audit, Investigations and Community Enterprise) Act 2004 s 56(2). At the date at which this volume states the law no such regulations had been made.

INDUSTRIAL AND PROVIDENT SOCIETIES/(1) CONSTITUTION/ (ii) Registration and Incorporation/C. CONVERSION OF COMPANY INTO REGISTERED SOCIETY/2418. Registration of society on conversion.

2418. Registration of society on conversion.

A copy of the resolution for conversion of a company into a registered society must be sent with a copy of the proposed rules<sup>1</sup> to the Financial Services Authority<sup>2</sup> which, upon the registration of the society, must give to it, in addition to an acknowledgment of registration<sup>3</sup>, a certificate similarly sealed or signed that the rules of the society referred to in the resolution have been registered<sup>4</sup>. The name under which the converted company is registered as a society must not include the word 'company'<sup>5</sup>.

A company is not to be registered as a credit union<sup>6</sup> unless the Authority is satisfied that: (1) either there are no outstanding deposits by members with the company or that, in the case of every such outstanding deposit, the member concerned has consented in writing to the deposit being converted into an equivalent amount of shares in the credit union immediately upon the company being registered as a credit union; and (2) in no case does the nominal value of the company's shares held by any member, together with the amount of any deposit of his which is to be converted as mentioned in head (1) above, exceed the maximum shareholding for the time being permitted by any applicable rules made by the Authority<sup>7</sup> in the case of a member of a credit union<sup>8</sup>.

A copy of the resolution for the conversion of a company into a registered society<sup>1</sup>, together with the certificate issued by the Financial Services Authority<sup>2</sup>, must be sent for registration to the office of the registrar of companies<sup>3</sup> and, on his registering that resolution and certificate, the conversion takes effect<sup>4</sup>. On the conversion of a company into a registered society, the company's registration under the Companies Acts becomes void and must be cancelled by the registrar of companies<sup>5</sup>.

The registration of a company as a registered society, including a credit union, does not affect any right or claim for the time being subsisting against the company or any penalty for the time being incurred by it<sup>1</sup>. For the purpose of enforcing any such right, penalty or claim the company may be sued and proceeded against in the same manner as if it had not been registered as a society<sup>2</sup>. Every such right or claim, and the liability to any such penalty, has priority as against the property of the society over all other rights or claims against or liabilities of the society<sup>3</sup>.

2421. Right of appeal.

A society, including a credit union, may appeal from any decision of the Financial Services Authority<sup>1</sup> to refuse registration of the society (including a refusal by reason only of anything contained in or omitted from the society's rules<sup>2</sup>) on any ground other than that the Authority is not satisfied that the society falls within either of the two classes of society permitted to be registered<sup>3</sup>. An appeal lies to the High Court<sup>4</sup>. If the decision is overruled on appeal, the Authority must thereupon issue to the society an acknowledgment of its registration<sup>5</sup>.

1 As to the Financial Services Authority in regard to registered societies see PARA 2410. As to the Authority generally see PARAS 4, 6 et seq.

INDUSTRIAL AND PROVIDENT SOCIETIES/(1) CONSTITUTION/ (ii) Registration and Incorporation/D. APPEALS FROM REFUSAL TO REGISTER/2422. Procedure on appeal.

2422. Procedure on appeal.

Where any decision made by the Financial Services Authority<sup>1</sup> is one against which appeal lies to the High Court<sup>2</sup>, any such appeal must be heard in the Chancery Division<sup>3</sup>. The appellant must file notice<sup>4</sup> at the court within 28 days after the date of the decision against which he wishes to appeal<sup>5</sup>. Where a statement of the reasons for a decision is given later than the notice of that decision, the period for filing the appellant's notice is calculated from the date on which the statement is received by the appellant<sup>6</sup>. In addition to any respondents to the appeal, the appellant must serve notice on the Authority<sup>7</sup>. The Authority is entitled to attend the hearing and make representations to the court<sup>8</sup>.

At any stage of the appeal, the court may direct that the appellant's notice be served on any person<sup>9</sup>. It may direct that notice be given by advertisement or otherwise of the bringing of the appeal, the nature of the appeal and the time when the appeal will or is likely to be heard<sup>10</sup>. The court may also give such other directions as it thinks proper to enable any person interested in the society or the subject matter of the appeal to appear and be heard at the appeal hearing<sup>11</sup>.

Generally appeals are limited to a review of the earlier decision; the court (unless it orders otherwise) will not receive oral evidence or evidence which was not before the Authority earlier, it may draw any inference of fact it considers justified on the evidence, no party can rely on a matter not contained in its appeal notice (unless the court gives permission), and the court will allow an appeal where the Authority's decision was wrong or unjust due to a serious procedural or other irregularity<sup>12</sup>.

2423. Provisions in rules.

Every registered society, including a credit union, is required to have registered rules<sup>1</sup> which provide for certain matters<sup>2</sup>. Other matters must be set out in the rules if the society wishes to adopt, or to exclude the application of, certain statutory provisions<sup>3</sup>. Special provisions apply to the rules of societies carrying on the business of banking<sup>4</sup> and of agricultural and related societies<sup>5</sup>. Societies carrying on business affected by legislation other than the Industrial and Provident Societies Acts 1965 to 2003 may be required by that legislation to make some special provisions in their rules<sup>6</sup>.

1 As to the obligation to send copies of the rules with the application to register a society see PARA 2413. The acknowledgment of registration of a society is also an acknowledgment of the registration of the rules in force on that date: see PARA 2415. As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2395. As to credit unions see PARA 2402.

Rules may be made for the protection of the society and will not be illegal as being in restraint of trade unless they impose a greater restraint than is reasonably necessary for that purpose<sup>1</sup>. An acknowledgment of registration of a society or of an amendment of its rules does not make lawful any of the provisions in the rules which are unlawful<sup>2</sup>, but the fact that some rules are illegal does not make the society an illegal society<sup>3</sup>.

INDUSTRIAL AND PROVIDENT SOCIETIES/(1) CONSTITUTION/(iii) The Rules/A. STATUTORY REQUIREMENTS AND VALIDITY/2425. Necessary provisions.

2425. Necessary provisions.

The rules of a registered society, other than a credit union, must make provision for the following matters<sup>1</sup>:

- 873 (1) the name of the society<sup>2</sup>;
- 874 (2) the objects of the society<sup>3</sup>;
- 875 (3) the place which is to be the society's registered office to which all communications and notices to the society may be addressed<sup>4</sup>;
- 876 (4) the terms of admission of the members, including any society or company investing<sup>5</sup> funds in the society<sup>6</sup>;
- 877 (5) the mode of holding meetings, the scale and right of voting, and the mode of making, altering or rescinding rules<sup>7</sup>;
- 878 (6) the appointment and removal of a committee (by whatever name), and of managers or other officers and their respective powers and remuneration<sup>8</sup>;
- 879 (7) determination of the maximum amount of the interest in the shares of the society which may be held by any member (other than members exempted from the statutory limit on shareholding)<sup>9</sup>;
- 880 (8) determination whether the society may contract loans or receive money on deposit from members or others<sup>10</sup>, and, if so, under what conditions, under what security and to what limits of amount<sup>11</sup>;
- 881 (9) determination whether the shares or any of them are to be transferable, and provision for the form of transfer and registration of the shares and for the consent of the committee thereto; determination whether the shares or any of them are to be withdrawable, and provision for the mode of withdrawal and for payment of the balance due on them on their withdrawal from the society<sup>12</sup>;
- 882 (10) provision for the audit of accounts by one or more auditors appointed<sup>13</sup> by the society<sup>14</sup>;
- 883 (11) determination whether and, if so, how members may withdraw from the society, and provision for the claims of the representatives of deceased members, or the trustees of the property of bankrupt members, and for the payment of nominees<sup>15</sup>;
- 884 (12) the mode of application of the profits of the society<sup>16</sup>;
- 885 (13) if the society is to have a common seal, provision for its custody and use<sup>17</sup>;
- 886 (14) determination whether and, if so, by what authority, and in what manner, any part of the society's funds may be invested<sup>18</sup>.

The rules of a credit union must make provision for the following matters<sup>19</sup>:

- 887 (a) the name of the society<sup>20</sup>;
- 888 (b) the objects of the society<sup>21</sup>;
- 889 (c) the place which is to be the registered office to which all communications and notices to the society may be addressed<sup>22</sup>;
- 890 (d) the qualifications for and the terms of admission to membership of the society, including any special provision for the insurance of members in relation to their shares<sup>23</sup>;
- 891 (e) the mode of holding meetings, including provisions as to the quorum necessary for the transaction of any description of business and the mode of making, altering or rescinding rules<sup>24</sup>;
- 892 (f) the appointment and removal of a committee, by whatever name, and of managers or other officers and their respective powers and remuneration<sup>25</sup>;
- 893 (g) determination (subject to any applicable rules made by the Financial Services Authority<sup>26</sup> under the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000<sup>27</sup>) of the maximum amount of the interest in the shares of the society which may be held by any member<sup>28</sup>;
- 894 (h) provision for the mode of withdrawal of shares and for payment of the balance due thereon on withdrawing from the society<sup>29</sup>;
- 895 (i) the mode and circumstances in which loans to members are to be made and repaid, including any special provision for the insurance of members in relation to loans made to them<sup>30</sup>;
- 896 (j) provision for the custody and use of the society's seal<sup>31</sup>;
- 897 (k) provision for the audit of accounts by one or more auditors appointed by the society in accordance with the requirements of the Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 and any applicable rules made by the Authority under the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000<sup>32</sup>;
- 898 (l) provision for the withdrawal of members from the society and for the claims of representatives of deceased members or the trustees of the property of bankrupt members and for the payment of nominees<sup>33</sup>;
- 899 (m) provision for terminating the membership of members<sup>34</sup> and for the repayment of shares held by and loans made to a member whose membership is terminated<sup>35</sup>;
- 900 (n) provision for dissolution of the society, including provision requiring any assets remaining after payment of debts, repayment of share capital and discharge of other liabilities to be transferred to another credit union or, if not so transferred, to be applied for charitable purposes<sup>36</sup>.

2426. Social clubs.

The rules of a registered society<sup>1</sup> carrying on the business of a social club and supplying alcohol on its premises to members or guests must, for this purpose, contain provisions which satisfy both general conditions and additional conditions as to membership and the supply of such alcohol<sup>2</sup>.

INDUSTRIAL AND PROVIDENT SOCIETIES/(1) CONSTITUTION/(iii) The Rules/A. STATUTORY REQUIREMENTS AND VALIDITY/2427. Optional provisions.

2427. Optional provisions.

Registered societies, including credit unions, are authorised<sup>1</sup> to set out in their rules provisions as to: (1) the form of any instrument necessary for carrying the purposes of the society into effect<sup>2</sup>; (2) the imposition of reasonable fines on persons who contravene or fail to comply with any of the rules<sup>3</sup>; (3) rights of inspection of the society's books in addition to the statutory rights<sup>4</sup>; (4) the advancing of money to members<sup>5</sup>; (5) the indorsing of a special form of receipt on discharge of mortgages<sup>6</sup>; (6) the giving of security by officers<sup>7</sup>; (7) the manner of deciding disputes<sup>8</sup>; (8) the exclusion from membership of persons under 18 years of age<sup>9</sup>; (9) the exclusion of power to hold and deal with land<sup>10</sup>.

In addition, registered societies have power to make rules with respect to any other matter, provided that those rules are not inconsistent with any statutory provision<sup>11</sup> and not otherwise unlawful<sup>12</sup>.

Credit unions are able to make the following additional provisions in their rules if they so choose: provision to extend membership to relatives in the same household as a member<sup>13</sup>; provision to disentitle a member who ceases to fulfil the qualifications for admission to membership from retaining his membership<sup>14</sup>; provision to disentitle a non-qualifying member from purchasing shares and receiving loans<sup>15</sup>; provision in relation to voting by a chairman who has a casting vote<sup>16</sup>; and provision in relation to subscriptions for shares<sup>17</sup>.

1 As to the matters which must be provided for in a society's rules see PARA 2425. As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2395. As to credit unions see PARA 2402.

2 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 13(1). The form of any such instrument may be specified either in the rules or in any schedule to them: s 13(1). This provision needs to be read having regard to the provisions of the Unfair Terms in Consumer Contracts Regulations 1999, SI 1999/2083. It is thought that unless the rule provided for a fine to be reasonable in the sense of being proportionate to the loss suffered by the society from the member's default, it would be vulnerable to challenge as being an unfair term within the meaning of the Regulations.

3 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 13(2). As to recovery of fines see PARA 2557.

4 See the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 46(2); and PARA 2527. These additional provisions may be made only in rules made on or after 12 September 1983: s 46(2).

10 See the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 30(1); and PARA 2494.

11 It is not inconsistent with any provision of, or any instrument made under, the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 or any other Act requiring or authorising the rules to deal with particular matters, and not inconsistent with any other provision of the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 or of any other Act: s 13(4).

INDUSTRIAL AND PROVIDENT SOCIETIES/(1) CONSTITUTION/(iii) The Rules/A. STATUTORY REQUIREMENTS AND VALIDITY/2428. Model rules.

2428. Model rules.

Forms of model rules are obtainable from certain sponsoring organisations<sup>1</sup>. The fees payable to the Financial Services Authority on an application to register a new society vary very considerably depending upon whether or not a form of model rules is adopted and, if so, with what number of changes, if any. The cheapest option is, of course, to make no changes to the model rules at all. Thereafter bands covering one to six amendments, seven to ten amendments and 11 or more amendments apply (the fee in the latter case being the same as the fee for rules not based on a model set at all). The cost of an application to register a change to a society's rules is covered by the annual fee payable to the Authority.

1 No set of model rules has been drawn up by the Financial Services Authority or its predecessor for the use of all societies, as their constitutions and purposes differ too widely, and because the models provided by the sponsoring organisations satisfy the needs of most applicants for registration. As to the Financial Services Authority in regard to registered societies see PARA 2410. As to the Authority generally see PARAS 4, 6 et seq. As to the matters for which the rules must provide see PARA 2425. A full list of sponsoring bodies and their addresses is supplied by the Financial Services Authority on application.

B. RELATIONSHIP BETWEEN MEMBERS AND THE SOCIETY

(A) GENERAL EFFECT OF RULES AND SUPPLY OF COPIES

2429. Binding effect of rules generally.

In general, the registered rules<sup>1</sup> of a registered society, including a credit union, bind the society and all its members and all persons claiming through them<sup>2</sup> respectively to the same extent as if each member had subscribed his name and affixed his seal to them, and there were contained in those rules a covenant on the part of each member and any person claiming through him to conform to them subject to the provisions of the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965<sup>3</sup>. However, without his consent in writing having been first obtained, a member is not bound by any amendment of rules registered after he became a member and after 27 March 1928 if and so far as that amendment requires him to take or subscribe for more shares than the number held by him at the date of registration of the amendment, or to pay upon the shares so held any sum exceeding the amount unpaid upon them at that date, or in any other way increases his liability to contribute to the share or loan capital of the society<sup>4</sup>.

In the case of a society which was registered under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1893 on 1 January 1894, and which is now deemed to be registered under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965<sup>5</sup>, no provision in any rule registered before 12 September 1893 prevents the society or its members from exercising any power given by the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 which is not made to depend on the provisions of the society's rules<sup>6</sup>.

1 'Registered rules' means the rules of a society (including a credit union) registered or deemed to be registered under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 as for the time being in force after any amendment of them so registered: s 74(1) (renumbered by 2001/2617). 'Amendment' includes a new rule, and a resolution rescinding a rule: Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 74(1) (as so renumbered). As to pre-existing societies which, and the rules of which, are deemed to be registered under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 see PARA 2396. As to the amendment of rules see PARA 2434 et seq. As to the limitation of the capacity of a registered society by its rules and the power of a committee to bind a society see PARAS 2431-2433. As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2395. As to credit unions see PARA 2402.

2 'Persons claiming through a member' includes the heirs, executors or administrators and assignees of a member and, where nomination is allowed, his nominee: Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 74(1) (as renumbered: see note 1). As to nomination see PARA 2503 et seq.

3 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 14(1). See also the Credit Unions Act 1979 s 31(3). Cf the effect of the memorandum and articles of a company: see COMPANIES vol 14 (2009) PARA 243 et seq. A mortgage given to a society by a member to secure all money due from him under the rules and other money becoming due from him was held not to entitle the society against an assignee seeking to redeem to tack on money embezzled by the member, as it was not money due under the rules: Bailes v Sunderland Equitable Industrial Society Ltd (1886) 55 LT 808. As to the abolition of tacking see MORTGAGE vol 77 (2010) PARA 264.

4 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 14(2). This provision is derived from the Industrial and Provident Societies (Amendment) Act 1928 s 1 (repealed), which applied only to amendments made on or after 28 March 1928, the date when it came into operation. As to the position before that Act see Biddulph and District Agricultural Society Ltd v Agricultural Wholesale Society Ltd [1927] AC 76, HL (member assented to altered rule by taking up additional shares on basis of rule; member bound to take up further shares when required by rule); Hole v Garnsey [1930] AC 472, HL (member not having assented to amendment not bound by it; in this case the decision in Dibble v Wilts and Somerset Farmers Ltd [1923] 1 Ch 342, though not the grounds on which that decision was based, was in effect upheld by the House of Lords); and see further PARA 2434 note 3. In Re Foreglen Co-operative Agricultural Society Ltd [1930] NI 114, CA, the liability of members to subscribe to loan capital was an original liability from the time of joining the society. These cases are still law, but only in respect of amendments registered before 28 March 1928.

5 Is a society to which the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 4 applies: see PARA 2396.

6 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 14(3). This provision re-enacts that of the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1893 s 22 (repealed). See further PARAS 2526 note 1, 2527.

A copy of its registered rules<sup>1</sup> must be delivered by a registered society to any person who demands it, subject to payment by that person of such sum not exceeding ten pence as the society may see fit to charge<sup>2</sup>. Refusal or neglect to supply a copy, or the supply, with intent to mislead or defraud, of a copy of incorrect rules, is an offence<sup>3</sup>.

INDUSTRIAL AND PROVIDENT SOCIETIES/(1) CONSTITUTION/(iii) The Rules/B. RELATIONSHIP BETWEEN MEMBERS AND THE SOCIETY/(B) Capacity of Society and Power of Committee to Bind It/2431. Limitation of capacity of society by its rules.

(B) CAPACITY OF SOCIETY AND POWER OF COMMITTEE TO BIND IT

2431. Limitation of capacity of society by its rules.

The validity of an act done by a registered society must not be called into question on the ground of lack of capacity by reason of anything in the society's registered rules<sup>1</sup>. A member<sup>2</sup> of a registered society may bring proceedings to restrain the doing of an act which would otherwise<sup>3</sup> be beyond the society's capacity, but no such proceedings lie in respect of an act to be done in fulfilment of a legal obligation arising from a previous act of the society<sup>4</sup>. It remains the duty of the members of the committee<sup>5</sup> of a registered society to observe any limitations on their powers flowing from the society's registered rules, and action by the members of the committee which would otherwise<sup>6</sup> be beyond the society's capacity may only be ratified by the society by special resolution<sup>7</sup>. A resolution ratifying such action does not affect any liability incurred by a member of the committee or any other person; relief from any such liability must be agreed to separately by special resolution<sup>8</sup>. A party to a transaction with a registered society is not bound to inquire as to whether it is permitted by the society's registered rules<sup>9</sup>.

The above provisions<sup>10</sup> do not apply to acts of a registered society which is a charity<sup>11</sup> except in favour of a person who (1) gives full consideration in money or money's worth in relation to the act in question; and (2) does not know that the act is not permitted by the society's registered rules, or who does not know at the time the act is done that the society is a charity<sup>12</sup>. Where such a society purports to transfer or grant an interest in property, the fact that the act was not permitted by the society's registered rules does not affect the title of a person who subsequently acquires the property or any interest in it for full consideration without actual notice of any such circumstances affecting the validity of the society's act<sup>13</sup>. In any proceedings arising out of this provision<sup>14</sup>, the burden of proving (a) that a person knew that an act was not permitted by the society's registered rules; or (b) that a person knew that the society was a charity, lies on the person making the allegation<sup>15</sup>.

1 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 7A(1) (ss 7A-7D added by the Co-operatives and Community Benefit Societies Act 2003 s 3). As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2395. As to credit unions see PARA 2402. As to the meaning of 'registered rules' see PARA 2429 note 1. The operation of the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 7A is restricted by s 7D (see the text to notes 10-15); and s 7E (see PARA 2433) has effect notwithstanding s 7A: s 7A(5) (as so added). See also the Credit Unions Act 1979 s 31(3). The provisions of the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 ss 7A-7E are very similar in concept to the provisions which apply in respect of the capacity of companies and building societies, the powers of their respective boards and dealings with persons associated with the company or the society, although each set of provisions is tailored to the particular type of body corporate. Decisions on the construction of the provisions applicable to such bodies may therefore be of assistance in the construction of these provisions. See further PARA 2035 et seq.

6 Ie but for Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 7A(1): see the text to note 1.

7 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 7A(3) (as added: see note 1). 'Special resolution' means a resolution passed by not less than 75% of such members of the society as (being entitled to do so) vote in person, or, where the society's rules allow proxies, by proxy, at a general meeting of which not less than 21 days' notice, specifying the intention to propose the resolution, has been duly given according to those rules: s 7A(6) (as so added). A copy of every such special resolution, signed by the chairman of the meeting at which the resolution was passed and countersigned by the secretary of the society, is to be sent to the Financial Services Authority and registered by it; and until that copy is so registered the special resolution does not take effect: s 7A(7) (as so added). As to the Financial Services Authority in regard to registered societies see PARA 2410. As to the Authority generally see PARAS 4, 6 et seq.

9 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 7C (as added: see note 1).

10 Ie the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 7A: see the text to notes 1-8.

11 'Charity', in relation to a society whose registered office is situated (1) in England or Wales, has the same meaning as in the Charities Act 1993 (see CHARITIES vol 8 (2010) PARA 1); (2) in Scotland, means a body established for charitable purposes only, where 'charitable purposes' has the same meaning as in the Income Tax Acts (see CHARITIES vol 8 (2010) PARA 2); and (3) in one of the Channel Islands, means a society established for charitable purposes only, where 'charitable purposes' has the meaning given by the law of the Island in question: Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 7D(5) (as added: see note 1).

Where a registered society is a charity with its registered office situated in England or Wales, the ratification of an act under s 7A(3), or the ratification of a transaction to which s 7E (see PARA 2433) applies, is ineffective without the prior written consent of the Charity Commission for England and Wales: s 7D(4) (as so added; and amended by the Charities Act 2006 Sch 8 para 47). As to the Charity Commission see CHARITIES vol 8 (2010) PARA 538 et seq.

INDUSTRIAL AND PROVIDENT SOCIETIES/(1) CONSTITUTION/(iii) The Rules/B. RELATIONSHIP BETWEEN MEMBERS AND THE SOCIETY/(B) Capacity of Society and Power of Committee to Bind It/2432. Absence of duty to inquire as to capacity of society or authority of committee.

2432. Absence of duty to inquire as to capacity of society or authority of committee.

In favour of a person dealing with<sup>1</sup> a registered society in good faith<sup>2</sup>, the power of the committee<sup>3</sup> to bind the society, or authorise others to do so, is deemed to be free of any limitation<sup>4</sup> under the society's registered rules<sup>5</sup>. This does not affect any right of a member of the society to bring proceedings to restrain the doing of an act which is beyond the powers of the committee, but no such proceedings lie in respect of an act to be done in fulfilment of a legal obligation arising from a previous act of the society<sup>6</sup>. Nor does it affect any liability incurred by a member of the committee, or any other person, by reason of the committee's exceeding its powers<sup>7</sup>. A party to a transaction with a registered society is not bound to inquire as to any limitation on the powers of the committee to bind the society or authorise others to do so<sup>8</sup>.

The above provisions<sup>9</sup> do not apply to the acts of a registered society which is a charity<sup>10</sup> except in favour of a person who (1) gives full consideration in money or money's worth in relation to the act in question; and (2) does not know that the act is beyond the powers of the committee, or who does not know at the time the act is done that the society is a charity<sup>11</sup>. Where such a society purports to transfer or grant an interest in property, the fact that the committee in connection with the act exceeded any limitation on its powers under its rules does not affect the title of a person who subsequently acquires the property or any interest in it for full consideration without actual notice of any such circumstances affecting the validity of the society's act<sup>12</sup>. In any proceedings arising out of this provision<sup>13</sup>, the burden of proving (a) that a person knew that an act was beyond the powers of the committee; or (b) that a person knew that the society was a charity, lies on the person making the allegation<sup>14</sup>.

- 1 A person deals with a society if he is a party to any transaction or other act to which the society is a party: Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 7B(2)(a) (ss 7B-7D added by the Co-operatives and Community Benefit Societies Act 2003 s 3). See also the Credit Unions Act 1979 s 31(3); and PARA 2431 note 1.

INDUSTRIAL AND PROVIDENT SOCIETIES/(1) CONSTITUTION/(iii) The Rules/B. RELATIONSHIP BETWEEN MEMBERS AND THE SOCIETY/(B) Capacity of Society and Power of Committee to Bind It/2433. Transactions with committee members and other persons in excess of powers.

2433. Transactions with committee members and other persons in excess of powers.

Where a registered society enters into a transaction<sup>1</sup> to which the parties include (1) a member of the committee<sup>2</sup> of the society; or (2) a person connected with such a member or a company<sup>3</sup> with whom such a member is associated<sup>4</sup>, and the committee of the society, in connection with the transaction, exceeds any limitation<sup>5</sup> on its powers under the society's registered rules<sup>6</sup>, the transaction is voidable at the instance of the society<sup>7</sup>. Whether or not it is avoided, any such party to the transaction, and any member of the committee who authorised the transaction, is liable (a) to account to the society for any gain which he has made directly or indirectly by the transaction; and (b) to indemnify the society for any loss or damage resulting from the transaction<sup>8</sup>. The transaction ceases to be voidable if (i) restitution of any money or other asset which was the subject-matter of the transaction is no longer possible; (ii) the society is indemnified for any loss or damage resulting from the transaction; (iii) rights acquired bona fide for value and without actual notice of the committee's exceeding its powers by a person who is not party to the transaction would be affected by the avoidance; or (iv) the transaction is ratified by the society in general meeting in such a way as the case may require<sup>9</sup>. A person other than a member of the committee is not liable<sup>10</sup> if he shows that at the time the transaction was entered into he did not know that the committee was exceeding its powers<sup>11</sup>. Where a transaction is so voidable<sup>12</sup>, but is valid<sup>13</sup> in favour of such a person, the court<sup>14</sup> may, on the application of that person or of the society, make such order confirming, severing or setting aside the transaction, on such terms as appear to the court to be just<sup>15</sup>.

1 'Transaction' includes any act deriving (1) from a resolution of the society in general meeting or a meeting of any class of its members; or (2) from any agreement between the members of the society or of any class of its members: Industrial and Provident Societies Act ss 7E(1), 7F(1) (ss 7E, 7F added by the Co-operatives and Community Benefit Societies Act 2003 s 3). See also the Credit Unions Act 1979 s 31(3). As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2395. As to credit unions see PARA 2402.

2 As to the meaning of 'committee' see PARA 2458 note 1.

3 'Company' has the same meaning as in the Companies Act 1985 (see COMPANIES vol 14 (2009) PARA 1): Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 7F(2) (as added: see note 1).

4 The Companies Act 2006 ss 252-255 (formerly the Companies Act 1985 s 346(2)-(8)) (see COMPANIES vol 14 (2009) PARAS 481, 482) applies for the purposes of references in the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 7E(1) (see the text to note 7) to a person's being connected with a committee member, or to a committee member's being associated with a company, but those provisions apply (1) as if any reference to a director of a company were a reference to a member of a committee of a registered society; and (2) subject to such other adaptations and modifications as may be specified by regulations made by the Treasury under s 7F: see s 7F(3) (as added: see note 1). Any such regulations are to be made by statutory instrument which is subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament: s 7F(4) (as so added). As to the Treasury see PARA 3; and CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 512 et seq. At the date at which this volume states the law no such regulations had been made.

5 Reference to 'limitations' includes limitations deriving (1) from a resolution of the society in general meeting or a meeting of any class of its members; or (2) from any agreement between the members of the society or of any class of its members: Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 7F(1) (as added: see note 1).

6 As to the meaning of 'registered rules' see PARA 2429 note 1.

7 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 7E(1), (2) (as added: see note 1). See PARA 2431 note 1.

8 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 7E(3) (as added: see note 1). Nothing in s 7E(1)-(3) is to be construed as excluding the operation of any other enactment or rule of law by virtue of which the transaction may be called in question or any liability to the society may arise: s 7E(4) (as so added). 'Enactment' includes an enactment contained in an Act of the Scottish Parliament and subordinate legislation whether made under an Act or an Act of the Scottish Parliament: s 7F(5) (as so added).

9 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 7E(5) (as added: see note 1).

10 Ie under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 7E(3): see the text to note 8.

11 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 7E(6) (as added: see note 1). Section 7E does not affect the operation of s 7B (see PARA 2432) in relation to any party to the transaction not within head (i) or head (ii) in the text: s 7E(7) (as so added).

12 Ie under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 7E.

13 Ie by virtue of the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 7B: see PARA 2432.

14 'Court', in relation to a registered society, means the court having jurisdiction to wind up the society under the Insolvency Act 1986, as applied by the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 55 (see PARA 2566 et seq): s 7F(6) (as added: see note 1).

INDUSTRIAL AND PROVIDENT SOCIETIES/(1) CONSTITUTION/(iii) The Rules/C. AMENDMENT OF RULES/2434. Power to amend rules.

C. AMENDMENT OF RULES*2434. Power to amend rules.

There is no statutory mode of amending the rules of a registered society<sup>1</sup> other than a credit union. The rules of a credit union may not be amended except by a resolution passed by not less than two-thirds of the members present at a general meeting called for the purpose, after the giving of such notice as is required by the rules for such a resolution<sup>2</sup>. The rules themselves must provide for the mode of their alteration or rescission and of making new rules<sup>3</sup>. Registered societies are not under the same statutory regulations as registered companies with regard to amendments of rules, but on general principles it seems that the power should be restricted to such amendments as could reasonably be considered to have been within the contemplation of the members when the society was established, and that, for example, an amendment to change the purposes of a society so as to make it a new enterprise with an increased financial obligation on the members would not be within the power<sup>4</sup>.

It appears that a registered society cannot alter rights of membership merely by passing a resolution at a general meeting<sup>5</sup>.

It would seem that an amendment of rules may concern only the internal rights of members, must be made in good faith and not aimed at an individual member or members, and must not be inconsistent with the nature of the society<sup>6</sup>.

1 For specified purposes and subject to certain limitations, the committee of a society has power to effect amendments: see the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 6(2)-(4) (see PARA 2447), s 7(4), (5) (see PARA 2406 note 2), s 11(2) (see PARA 2403 note 2); the Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 s 12 (see PARA 2512); and the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1975 s 1(2)-(5) (see PARA 2447). As to the limitation of the capacity of a registered society by its rules and the power of a committee to bind a society see PARAS 2431-2433. As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2395. As to credit unions see PARA 2402.

2 Credit Unions Act 1979 s 4(2).

3 See the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 1(1)(b), Sch 1 para 5; the Credit Unions Act 1979 s 4(1), Sch 1 para 5; and PARA 2425. The rule should provide for any conditions as to the nature of the meeting at which amendments may be passed, the notice to be given of such meeting, or of the amendments or the majority by which amendments may be passed.

4 Hole v Garnsey [1930] AC 472 at 500, HL, per Lord Tomlin. In that case it was held that an amendment increasing a member's liability to subscribe to share capital was not binding on him; for the statutory provision now in force as to this point see PARA 2429. Another amendment to reduce share capital was not questioned as being within the power to amend. As to that point, Romer J, in the same case at first instance, sub nom Re Wilts and Somerset Farmers Ltd [1928] Ch 809 at 815 said: 'There is nothing in the Industrial and Provident Societies Act [1893] which expressly prohibits such a reduction, and I know of nothing in that Act or elsewhere that can be considered as prohibiting it by implication. No one has suggested before me that the reduction was made in bad faith or for any improper purpose and I must treat it as being valid'.

INDUSTRIAL AND PROVIDENT SOCIETIES/(1) CONSTITUTION/(iii) The Rules/C. AMENDMENT OF RULES/2435. Complete or partial amendment.

2435. Complete or partial amendment.

An amendment of a society's rules may be complete or partial. A complete amendment consists of the substitution of an entire set of rules for the existing set of rules, and any other amendment is a partial amendment<sup>1</sup>.

1 As to what is included in 'amendment' see PARA 2429 note 1. A partial amendment was formerly defined as the addition of a new rule or rules, or part of a rule or rules, to the existing rules; or the substitution of a new rule or rules or part of a rule or rules for any of the existing rules, or any part thereof; or a rescission of any of the existing rules, or any part thereof, without any substitution; or more than one or all of these modes: Industrial and Provident Society Regulations dated 1 January 1894, SR & O 1894/731, reg 2(a). The Financial Services Authority in its information notes on registering partial and complete amendments defines a partial amendment as what occurs when some rules are altered, added or deleted and a complete amendment as the replacement of the existing book of rules by a new book of rules. For practical purposes, the significance is that different forms are required for the registration of partial and complete amendments. In the case of a partial amendment the existing rule book will remain registered and the amendments will appear at the end, whereas in the case of a complete amendment, the new book will be registered. As to the Financial Services Authority in regard to registered societies see PARA 2410. As to the Authority generally see PARAS 4, 6 et seq.

As to the limitation of the capacity of a registered society by its rules and the power of a committee to bind a society see PARAS 2431-2433. As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2395. As to credit unions see PARA 2402.

INDUSTRIAL AND PROVIDENT SOCIETIES/(1) CONSTITUTION/(iii) The Rules/C. AMENDMENT OF RULES/2436. Application to register an amendment.

2436. Application to register an amendment.

An application to register an amendment of rules must be sent to the Financial Services Authority<sup>1</sup> with two printed copies of the amendment signed by three members and the secretary of the society, or in the case of a society for the time being consisting solely of registered societies, by the secretary of the society and by the secretary of each (or, if more than two, by each of any two) of the constituent societies<sup>2</sup>.

1 As to the Financial Services Authority in regard to registered societies see PARA 2410. As to the Authority generally see PARAS 4, 6 et seq. As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2395. As to credit unions see PARA 2402.

As to changes of name of a registered society and changes in the situation of its registered office see PARAS 2440, 2443. As to the limitation of the capacity of a registered society by its rules and the power of a committee to bind a society see PARAS 2431-2433.

INDUSTRIAL AND PROVIDENT SOCIETIES/(1) CONSTITUTION/(iii) The Rules/C. AMENDMENT OF RULES/2437. Acknowledgment of registration.

2437. Acknowledgment of registration.

No amendment of rules is valid until it has been registered<sup>1</sup>. On being satisfied that any amendment is not contrary to the provisions of the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965, the Financial Services Authority<sup>2</sup> must issue to the society in respect of that amendment an acknowledgment of registration bearing the Authority's seal<sup>3</sup>. The acknowledgment is not conclusive as to the legality of alterations made by an amendment<sup>4</sup>.

1 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 10(1). See Re Londonderry Equitable Co-operative Society [1910] 1 IR 69, where a society carrying on the businesses of general dealers, manufacturers and agents formed a building department, with rules which were not registered; on the liquidation of the society it was held that the society and the building department were separate societies, and that the winding up of the building department was a matter for administration by the Chancery Division, and the liquidator of the society had no power to deal with its assets. As to the special provisions governing change of name and change in the situation of the registered office see PARAS 2440, 2443. As to the limitation of the capacity of a registered society by its rules and the power of a committee to bind a society see PARAS 2431-2433.

2 As to the Financial Services Authority in regard to registered societies see PARA 2410. As to the Authority generally see PARAS 4, 6 et seq. As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2395. As to credit unions see PARA 2402.

3 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 10(3) (amended by SI 2001/2617; and SI 2001/3649). In the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 10(3), as it applies to credit unions, the reference to the statutory provisions is to be construed as including a reference to the Credit Unions Act 1979: s 4(3). As to model rules see PARA 2428. As to the Authority's seal see PARA 2412.

The Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 10(3) used further to provide that the acknowledgment was conclusive evidence that the amendment had been duly registered. In relation to such a provision it was held that the effect was that, after the acknowledgment had been given, it was not competent for any person to raise objections of procedure or details with reference to matters antecedent to the registration: Re Quinn and National Catholic Benefit and Thrift Society's Arbitration [1921] 2 Ch 318 ad 324 per Eve J (following Butler v Springmount Dairy Society [1906] 2 IR 193; Dewhurst v Clarkson (1854) 23 LJQB 247; Rosenberg v Northumberland Building Society (1889) 22 QBD 373, CA). The decision in Re Quinn and National Catholic Benefit and Thrift Society's Arbitration itself can no longer apply. The decision in Rosenberg v Northumberland Building Society was based on the provisions of the Building Societies Act 1874, which was much closer in wording to the relevant provisions of the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965, but was subject to criticism by the Court of Appeal in Osborne v Amalgamated Society of Railway Servants [1909] 1 Ch 163, 179, per Fletcher Moulton LJ. The effect of an acknowledgment is therefore now uncertain. The duty of the Authority (formerly the Registrar) is confined to considering whether an amendment complies with the provisions of the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 (see R v Brabrook (1893) 69 LT 718, DC).

4 Cullerne v London and Suburban General Permanent Building Society (1890) 25 QBD 485 at 488, CA, per Lindley LJ; and see the cases cited in PARA 2164.

INDUSTRIAL AND PROVIDENT SOCIETIES/(1) CONSTITUTION/(iii) The Rules/C. AMENDMENT OF RULES/2438. Appeal from refusal to register an amendment.

2438. Appeal from refusal to register an amendment.

A registered society, including a credit union, may appeal from a decision of the Financial Services Authority<sup>1</sup> to refuse registration of any amendment of the society's rules<sup>2</sup>. The procedure is the same as in the case of a refusal to register a society<sup>3</sup>. If the decision of the Authority is overruled on appeal, it must thereupon issue to the society an acknowledgment of registration of the amendment<sup>4</sup>.

1 As to the Financial Services Authority in regard to registered societies see PARA 2410. As to the Authority generally see PARAS 4, 6 et seq. As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2395. As to credit unions see PARA 2402.

(iv) Name; Office; Seal

2439. Use of word 'limited' and approval of name.

The last word in the name of a registered society must be the word 'limited' or (in some cases) its Welsh equivalent<sup>1</sup>, except that if the Financial Services Authority<sup>2</sup> is satisfied that the objects of the society are wholly charitable or benevolent the Authority may register the society by, or permit a change of name to, a name which does not contain that word or its Welsh equivalent<sup>3</sup>. If it subsequently appears to the Authority that a society which does not have the word 'limited' or its Welsh equivalent in its name is not being conducted wholly for charitable or benevolent objects, whether in consequence of a change in its rules or otherwise, it may direct that that word be added as the last word in its name, and must notify the society accordingly<sup>4</sup>.

A society must not be registered under a name which in the Authority's opinion is undesirable<sup>5</sup>. On conversion to a registered society, a company may not use the word 'company' in its name<sup>6</sup>, nor, in practice, will any registered society be permitted to use that word in its name.

The name of every society registered as a credit union must contain the words 'credit union' or its Welsh equivalent<sup>7</sup>.

1 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 5(2) (amended by the Welsh Language Act 1993 s 28(2)). If the rules of the society state that its registered office is to be in Wales, the last word must be 'limited' or the word 'cyfyngedig': see the Industrial and Provident Societies Act s 5(2) (as so amended). As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2395. As to credit unions see PARA 2402.

As to the requirement that any registered society which is a charity must state that fact on its correspondence see PARA 2442.

2 As to the Financial Services Authority in regard to registered societies see PARA 2410. As to the Authority generally see PARAS 4, 6 et seq.

3 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 5(5) (amended by the Welsh Language Act 1993 s 28(1), (3); and SI 2001/2617). For the purposes of the Industrial and Provident Societies Act s 5(5), the objects of a credit union are not to be regarded as wholly charitable or benevolent: Credit Unions Act 1979 s 3(4).

4 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 5(5) (as amended: see note 3).

5 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 5(1) (amended by SI 2001/2617). Proposed names should be sent to the Authority for approval before the application for registration is made. Names including such words as 'Royal' or 'Imperial', or calculated to suggest the patronage of Her Majesty the Queen or any member of the royal family, or any connection with Her Majesty's government or any government department, are not accepted without the consent of the proper authority.

6 See the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 53(5); and PARA 2418.

7 Credit Unions Act 1979 s 3(1) (amended by the Welsh Language Act 1993 s 29(2)). If the rules of the society state that its registered office is to be in Wales, the name must contain the words 'credit union' or 'undeb credyd': see the Credit Unions Act 1979 s 3(1) (as so amended). In other respects, the name of such a society must comply with the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 5(1) (see the text to note 5) and s 5(2) (see the text to note 1): Credit Unions Act 1979 s 4(1), Sch 1 para 1 (s 4(1) amended by SI 2001/2617).

INDUSTRIAL AND PROVIDENT SOCIETIES/(1) CONSTITUTION/(iv) Name; Office; Seal/2440. Change of name.

2440. Change of name.

The name of a registered society, including a credit union, must be set out in its rules<sup>1</sup>. That name may be changed only by a resolution for the purpose passed at a general meeting of the society after the giving of such notice of the resolution as is required by the society's rules, or, if the rules do not make special provision as to notice of such a resolution, after the giving of such notice as is required by the rules of a resolution to amend the rules<sup>2</sup>. The name may not be changed without the approval in writing of the Financial Services Authority<sup>3</sup>. If the change is approved, it must be registered by the Authority as an amendment of the society's rules<sup>4</sup>. The change does not affect any right or obligation of the society, or of any member of it, and any pending legal proceedings may be continued by or against the society notwithstanding its new name<sup>5</sup>.

1 See the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 1(1)(b), Sch 1 para 1; the Credit Unions Act 1979 s 4(1), Sch 1 para 1; and PARA 2425. As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2395. As to credit unions see PARA 2402.

2 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 5(3)(a).

3 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 5(3)(b) (amended by SI 2001/2617). As to the Financial Services Authority in regard to registered societies see PARA 2410. As to the Authority generally see PARAS 4, 6 et seq. Approval is discretionary, and the Authority will wish to be satisfied that, amongst other things, the change is necessary and will not confuse those dealing with the society, or be prejudicial to persons having claims on the society. The application form in use as at the date this volume states the law, which is signed on behalf of the society by the secretary, states that the change of name has been resolved upon by a resolution passed at a general meeting held on a specified date, of which notice of the intention to propose the resolution was duly given in accordance with the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 5 and provides for the reasons for the change of name to be stated.

4 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 10(2)(b) (amended by SI 2001/2617). The prescribed procedure for application for registration of an amendment of rules (see PARAS 2436-2437) does not apply to a change of name: see the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 10(2).

2441. Use of name.

Every registered society, including a credit union, must cause its registered name to be painted or affixed, and to be kept painted or affixed, in a conspicuous position and in letters easily legible, on the outside of its registered office and every other office or place in which its business is carried on; and must also have the name mentioned in legible characters<sup>1</sup> in all its notices, advertisements and other official publications<sup>2</sup>; in all its business letters<sup>3</sup>; in all bills of exchange<sup>4</sup>, promissory notes, indorsements, cheques, and orders for money or goods purporting to be signed by or on behalf of the society<sup>5</sup>; and in all bills, invoices, receipts and letters of credit of the society<sup>6</sup>.

A registered society which fails to comply with these requirements is guilty of an offence<sup>7</sup>. Moreover, any officer<sup>8</sup> of a society, or any other person acting on its behalf, is liable on summary conviction to a fine<sup>9</sup> if he (1) issues or authorises the issue of any notice, advertisement or other official publication, or any bill, invoice, receipt or letter of credit of the society in which the society's registered name is not mentioned in legible characters<sup>10</sup>; or (2) signs or authorises to be signed on its behalf any bill of exchange, promissory note, indorsement, cheque or order for money or goods, in which the registered name is not so mentioned<sup>11</sup>. In the case of a conviction in respect of a bill of exchange, promissory note, indorsement, cheque or order for money or goods, the officer or other person concerned is personally liable to the holder of the document for the amount specified in it unless that amount is duly paid by the society<sup>12</sup>.

A person must not, unless registered as a credit union, use in reference to himself a name, title or description containing the words 'credit union' (or its Welsh equivalent, 'undeb credyd') or any cognate term or derivative of those words, or represent himself as being a credit union<sup>13</sup>. The penalty on summary conviction is a fine<sup>14</sup>. This provision does not apply to (a) the use of a name, title or descriptive expression by certain bodies corporate<sup>15</sup>; (b) the use by any person or unincorporated association of a name which has been approved in writing by the Financial Services Authority<sup>16</sup>; or (c) the use by an officer or employee of a credit union, certain bodies corporate<sup>17</sup>, or a person or association which has obtained approval under head (b) above, of a title or descriptive expression indicating his office or post with the credit union, body, person or association<sup>18</sup>.

14 Credit Unions Act 1979 s 3(2) (amended by virtue of the Criminal Justice Act 1982 s 46). The fine must not exceed level 4 on the standard scale: see the Credit Unions Act 1979 s 3(2) (as so amended).

15 Credit Unions Act 1979 s 3(3)(a) (s 3(3) substituted, and s 3(3A)-(3D) added, by SI 2003/256). The text refers to any body corporate which falls within the Credit Unions Act 1979 s 3(3A).

A body corporate falls within s 3(3A) if its head office is not in England, Wales or Scotland and it (1) has Part IV permission under the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 (see PARA 348) to accept deposits; (2) is exempt from the prohibition imposed by s 19 (see PARA 80) in respect of accepting deposits; (3) has permission under the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 to accept deposits by virtue of qualifying for authorisation under Sch 3 (see PARA 315 et seq) or Sch 4 (see PARA 319); or (4) is subject to legal provisions that are similar to the relevant provisions: Credit Unions Act 1979 s 3(3A) (as so added). For these purposes, 'legal provisions' includes laws, regulations and administrative provisions; and 'relevant provisions' means the provisions of the Credit Unions Act 1979; and any provision of or made under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 or the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 so far as it relates to credit unions: Credit Unions Act 1979 s 3(3D) (as so added). References to a deposit or accepting deposits must be read with the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 s 22, any relevant order under that provision and Sch 2 (see PARAS 84-85): Credit Unions Act 1979 s 31(1A) (substituted by SI 2002/1501).

For the purposes of head (4) above, a body corporate is to be treated as being subject to legal provisions that are similar to the relevant provisions if it is subject to legal provisions which (a) provide that the main activities carried on by the body are accepting deposits from, and lending money to, persons who are members or shareholders of the body; (b) require the body to obtain authorisation or approval before it commences business; (c) require the members and shareholders of the body to be linked by reference to some common characteristic or circumstance; and (d) provide that those from whom the body accepts deposits must be shareholders or members of the body (although the legal provisions may allow for some exceptions to this proposition): Credit Unions Act 1979 s 3(3B) (as so added).

In determining, for the purposes of head (4) above, whether a body corporate is subject to legal provisions that are similar to the relevant provisions, regard must be had as to whether the legal provisions to which it is subject require the body to obtain authorisation or approval before it commences business and whether those provisions (i) impose limits on the objects which the body may or must have; (ii) impose limits on the membership of the body; (iii) impose restrictions on the kind of activities which the body may carry on; (iv) impose limits or conditions on the body's ability to accept deposits; (v) impose limits on the value of the shares which any one shareholder may have in the body; (vi) impose limits on the body's ability to lend money, which (in each case) are similar to those imposed by the relevant provisions: s 3(3C) (as so added).

INDUSTRIAL AND PROVIDENT SOCIETIES/(1) CONSTITUTION/(iv) Name; Office; Seal/2442. Statement of status as charity on correspondence etc.

2442. Statement of status as charity on correspondence etc.

Where a registered society is a charity<sup>1</sup> and its registered name<sup>2</sup> does not include the word 'charity' or the word 'charitable', the society must state the fact that it is a charity in legible characters (1) in all notices, advertisements and other official publications of the society; (2) in all business letters of the society; (3) in all bills of exchange, promissory notes, indorsements, cheques and orders for money or goods, purporting to be signed by or on behalf of the society; (4) in all bills, invoices, receipts and letters of credit of the society; and (5) in all conveyances<sup>3</sup> purporting to be executed<sup>4</sup> by or on behalf of the society<sup>5</sup>.

Any officer<sup>6</sup> of a registered society, or any other person acting on such a society's behalf, who (a) issues or authorises the issue of a document in head (1), (2) or (4) above; (b) signs or authorises to be signed any document in head (3) above; or (c) executes or authorises to be executed on behalf of the society any document in head (5) above, in which such a statement is required but is not made in the required manner<sup>7</sup>, is liable on summary conviction to a fine<sup>8</sup>.

1 'Charity' (1) in relation to a society whose registered office is situated in England or Wales, has the same meaning as in the Charities Act 1993 (see CHARITIES vol 8 (2010) PARA 1); (2) in relation to a society whose registered office is situated in Scotland, means a body established for charitable purposes only, where 'charitable purposes' has the same meaning as in the Income Tax Acts (see CHARITIES vol 8 (2010) PARA 2); and (3) in relation to a society whose registered office is situated on one of the Channel Islands, means a society established for charitable purposes only ('charitable purposes' having the meaning given by the law of the Island in question): Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 5A(7) (s 5A added by the Co-operatives and Community Benefit Societies Act 2003 s 2). As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2395. As to credit unions see PARA 2402.

2 As to the registered name of a registered society see PARAS 2439-2441.

3 'Conveyance' means any document for the creation, transfer, variation or extinction of an interest in land: Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 5A(8) (as added: see note 1).

4 For these purposes, execution includes purported execution and the doing of any act which, though not by itself execution, when combined with other acts constitutes execution or purported execution: Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 5A(9) (as added: see note 1).

5 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 5A(1) (as added: see note 1). Where a society's registered name includes the word 'elusen' or 'elusennol', s 5A(1) does not apply in relation to any document which is wholly in Welsh: s 5A(2) (as so added). The statement must be in English, except that, in the case of a document which is otherwise wholly in Welsh, the statement may be in Welsh if it consists of or includes the word 'elusen' or 'elusennol': s 5A(3) (as so added).

6 As to the meaning of 'officer' see PARA 2458 note 1.

7 le under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 5A(1): see the text to notes 1-5.

8 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 5A(5) (as added: see note 1). The fine must not exceed level 3 on the standard scale: see s 5A(5) (as so added). As to the standard scale see PARA 27 note 21. In the case of a conviction by virtue of head (b) in the text, the officer or other person is also personally liable to the holder of any such document for the amount specified in the document unless that amount is duly paid by the society: s 5A(6) (as so added). Section 62 (see PARA 2548) does not apply in respect of an offence committed by a registered society under s 61 (see PARA 2547) where the offence consists of a failure to comply with s 5A: s 5A(4) (as so added).

2443. Situation of registered office; change of registered office.

Every registered society, including a credit union, must have a registered office and must set out the address of that office in its rules<sup>1</sup>. Notice of any change in the situation of the registered office must be sent to the Financial Services Authority<sup>2</sup>, who thereupon must register the change as an amendment of the society's rules<sup>3</sup>.

2444. Purposes of registered office.

The registered office of a registered society, including a credit union, is the place to which all communications and notices to the society may be addressed<sup>1</sup>. A copy of the last balance sheet with the auditors' report must be kept hung up there<sup>2</sup>, as well as the half-yearly statements of societies carrying on the business of banking<sup>3</sup>. A register of members and officers must also be kept there<sup>4</sup>. The situation of the registered office determines, in the case of cancellation or suspension of registration, or of dissolution by instrument, the locality of the newspaper in which notice of that event is published<sup>5</sup>. Summonses against a registered society for offences against the Industrial and Provident Societies Acts are also served at the registered office<sup>6</sup>.

2445. Use and custody of seal.

The rules of a registered society, if the society is to have a common seal, must make provision for its custody and use<sup>1</sup>. There is no statutory provision for the affixing of a seal to be attested by the signatures of witnesses; this is a matter which should therefore be provided for in the rules<sup>2</sup>.

1 See the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 1(1)(b), Sch 1 para 13; the Credit Unions Act 1979 s 4(1), Sch 1 para 10; and PARA 2425. Note that it appears that a credit union must have a common seal whereas a registered society generally need not have a common seal: see also PARA 2490 et seq. As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2395. As to credit unions see PARA 2402.

2 As to the affixing of a seal where no particular formality is prescribed by statute or by the constitution of a body corporate see CORPORATIONS vol 9(2) (2006 Reissue) PARAS 1261-1262. INDUSTRIAL AND PROVIDENT SOCIETIES/(1) CONSTITUTION/(v) Capital/A. SHARE CAPITAL/2446. Nature of shares.

(v) Capital

A. SHARE CAPITAL

2446. Nature of shares.

A registered society, including a credit union, is not required to provide in its rules for the number or value of the shares<sup>1</sup> which it may issue, and such limitations are not generally made. However, all shares in a credit union must be of £1 denomination and may, subject to the rules of the credit union, be subscribed for either in full or by periodical or other subscriptions, but no share is to be allotted to a member until it has been fully paid in cash<sup>2</sup>. The rules must determine whether the shares or any of them are to be withdrawable or transferable<sup>3</sup>. Unless under its rules or in practice a society restricts the number of its members or limits the issue of shares, the share capital will vary from time to time according to the shares issued, and, in the case of a society with withdrawable share capital, it may decrease if the value of shares withdrawn exceeds that of shares issued<sup>4</sup>.

The rules of a registered society may provide for shares to be paid for in full when they are issued, or by instalments, or at call; and where they are to be paid for at call a member is liable to pay up any balance remaining unpaid on his shares when required under the rules or on the liquidation of the society<sup>5</sup>. However, a member cannot be required by an amendment of rules registered after 27 March 1928 to pay upon shares held by him a sum exceeding the amount unpaid upon them at the date of registration of the amendment or to subscribe for further shares unless his written consent is first obtained<sup>6</sup>.

1 As to the register of members and shareholdings and registration of shares of a society under its rules see PARAS 2449, 2471-2472. As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2395. As to credit unions see PARA 2402. As to the rules generally see PARA 2423 et seq.

3 See PARAS 2448-2449.

4 Cf the reduction of capital of a company: see COMPANIES vol 15 (2009) PARA 1173. See also PARA 2434 note 4.

5 As to the liability of members in a winding up see PARA 2576. Sums unpaid on shares may be recovered from the member as a debt: see PARA 2543. As to a society's lien on shares see PARA 2544. As to an application for shares made before registration of a society see PARA 2416 note 4. It would seem that shares may be issued for a consideration other than cash: see PARA 2471. Shares may not be issued at a discount: Ooregum Gold Mining Co of India v Roper [1892] AC 125, HL. There is no statutory provision with regard to the issue of shares at a premium or the underwriting of shares and commissions. If it is within the powers of a registered society to do this, it would seem that the rules must contain the necessary authority. Registered companies are under statutory regulation in respect of these matters: see generally COMPANIES.

INDUSTRIAL AND PROVIDENT SOCIETIES/(1) CONSTITUTION/(v) Capital/A. SHARE CAPITAL/2447. Limit of shareholding.

2447. Limit of shareholding.

No member of a registered society, other than another registered society, or an authority which acquired the holding by virtue of certain provisions of the Housing Acts<sup>1</sup>, or a member who acquired the holding by virtue of certain provisions of the Agricultural Credits Act 1923<sup>2</sup>, may have or claim any interest in the shares of the society exceeding £20,000<sup>3</sup>. The rules of a registered society must provide for determination<sup>4</sup> of the maximum amount of the interest in the shares of the society which may be held by any member other than those exempted from the limit<sup>5</sup>. The Treasury<sup>6</sup> may make orders from time to time varying the limit<sup>7</sup>.

1 Ie by virtue of the Housing Associations Act 1985 s 58 or s 59(2) (repealed) or the Housing Act 1996 s 22 (see HOUSING vol 22 (2006 Reissue) PARAS 43, 66): Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 6(1)(b) (amended by the Housing (Consequential Provisions) Act 1985 Sch 2 para 8; and SI 1997/627). As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2395.

2 le by virtue of the Agricultural Credits Act 1923 s 2, Schedule Pt 1 para 2 (repealed), at a time when s 2 applied to the society: Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 6(1)(c). The Agricultural Credits Act 1923 s 2 provided for the formation and extension of approved registered societies as agricultural credit societies, and Schedule Pt 1 para 2 provided that shareholdings in such societies should be exempt from the then limit of shareholding in registered societies.

3 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 6(1) (amended by SI 1994/341). The prohibition in the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 6(1) is in terms addressed to the member rather than to the society or to any officer of the society. It seems clear that the member would be committing an offence under s 61(b) and it is thought likely that the society or any officer involved in the issue of shares in excess of the shareholding limit would also commit an offence: see PARA 2547. If the society were to persist in so acting after having been given a warning, its registration might be liable to be cancelled: see PARA 2579.

The corresponding provisions on limits for having or claiming interest in the shares of a credit union were repealed in 2002: Credit Unions Act 1979 s 5(3), (4), (4A), (10) (repealed SI 2002/1501). As to credit unions see PARA 2402.

4 le the determination in accordance with the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 6: see the text to notes 1-3; and see note 5. As to the rules generally see PARA 2423 et seq.

5 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 1(1)(b), Sch 1 para 7. The limit of shareholding for members (other than those exempt from the limits provided by the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1893) was £200; this figure was increased to £500 by the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1952, and to £1,000 by the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1961; and that amount was originally specified in the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965. The amount was increased to £5,000 by the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1975 s 1(1), and to £10,000 by the Industrial and Provident Societies (Increase in Shareholding Limit) Order 1981, SI 1981/395, and at the date at which this volume states the law is £20,000, having been increased by the Industrial and Provident Societies (Increase in Shareholding Limit) Order 1994, SI 1994/341. Where, immediately before 27 April 1952, or 22 July 1961, or 3 August 1975, or 13 April 1981, the rules of a registered society permitted members (other than those exempt from the limit) to hold shares up to the then statutory maximum (ie £200, £500, £1,000 or £5,000, as the case might be), and, within a specified period after each of those dates, no amendment of the rules was registered, but the society's committee, by resolution recorded in writing, resolved that those members should be permitted to hold an amount greater than the old limit but not exceeding the new limit, then the registered rules took effect accordingly: Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 6(2), (3); Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1975 s 1(2); Industrial and Provident Societies (Increase in Shareholding Limit) Order 1981, SI 1981/395. The periods referred to for the exercise of these powers by the committee were respectively: (1) in respect of the increase from £200 up to an amount not exceeding £500, the period up to 22 July 1961 (Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 6(2)(c)); (2) in respect of the increase from £500 to an amount not exceeding £1,000, the period up to 22 January 1963 (s 6(3)(c)); (3) in respect of the increase from £1,000 to an amount not exceeding £5,000, the period up to 3 February 1977 (Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1975 s 1(3)); and (4) in respect of the increase from £5,000 to £10,000, the period up to 13 October 1982 (Industrial and Provident Societies (Increase in Shareholding Limit) Order 1981, SI 1981/395). Once any such resolution had been passed, the committee had no power to vary or revoke it (except, in the case of a resolution increasing the limit from £1,000 to an amount not exceeding £5,000, so far as may be authorised by an order making a further alteration of the limit: see the text to note 7): Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 6(4); Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1975 s 1(4); Industrial and Provident Societies (Increase in Shareholding Limit) Order 1981, SI 1981/395, art 4(3). Where any such resolution has been passed by the committee, and subsequently, at any time on or after 1 January 1966, an amendment of the society's rules is or has been registered, the registered rules then have effect as if such resolution had not been passed; this does not, however, affect any interest in the shares of the society held by any member immediately before the date of registration of the amendment: Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 6(4); Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1975 s 1(5); Industrial and Provident Societies (Increase in Shareholding Limit) Order 1981, SI 1981/395, art 4(4).

Where registered rules of a society provide for a fixed maximum shareholding limit in accordance with the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 6(1) (see the text and notes 1-3), the committee may, by a resolution recorded in writing, resolve that the maximum shareholding limit may be increased to such amount up to £20,000 as may be specified in the resolution, and subject to notice having been given the registered rules have effect thereafter accordingly until such time as any subsequent amendment to the rules is registered whereupon the rules so registered have effect as if the earlier resolution had not been passed; this does not affect any interest in the shares of the society held by any member immediately before the date of registration of the amendment: Industrial and Provident Societies (Increase in Shareholding Limit) Order 1994, SI 1994/341, art 4(1). This power to increase the maximum shareholding limit up to an amount not exceeding £20,000 could have been exercised up to 15 September 1995: see art 4(2). The committee of a society cannot vary or revoke such a resolution: art 4(3). Notice in writing of any change in the rules of a society made by the committee of a society in exercise of the power to increase the maximum shareholding limit must be given within 60 days of the making of the necessary resolution: see art 4(4), Schedule.

6 As to the Treasury see PARA 3; and CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 512 et seq.

7 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1975 s 2(1) (s 2(1), (2), (4) amended by SI 2001/2617). The limit specified in any such order may not be less than £5,000: see the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1975 s 2(1) (as so amended). Any such order may make provision in connection with altering the limit for the time being applicable under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 6(1) (see the text and notes 1-3) as is made by the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1975 s 1 (see note 5) and may contain such other transitional, consequential, incidental or supplementary provisions as appear to the Treasury to be necessary or appropriate: s 2(2) (as so amended). An order may vary or revoke any previous order: s 2(3). The power to make an order is exercisable by statutory instrument which is subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament: s 2(4) (as so amended). The most recent order made was the Industrial and Provident Societies (Increase in Shareholding Limit) Order 1994, SI 1994/341, increasing the limit to £20,000: see notes 3, 5.

2448. Withdrawable shares.

A withdrawable share is a share which, by the rules of the society, a member has the right to withdraw, and for the value of which he has the right under those rules to receive payment from the society<sup>1</sup>. A society having any withdrawable share capital must not be registered with the object of carrying on, and if already a registered society must not carry on, the business of banking<sup>2</sup>.

Shares in a credit union must be withdrawable but a credit union must not issue shares except on terms enabling it to require not less than 60 days' notice of withdrawal<sup>3</sup>. However, if a withdrawal of shares would reduce a member's paid-up shareholding in the credit union to less than his total liability (including any contingent liability) to the credit union, whether as borrower, guarantor or otherwise, then, in the case of a member to whom there is a loan by the credit union which is treated a secured loan<sup>4</sup>, the withdrawal is not to be permitted and, in any other case, the withdrawal is to be permitted only at the discretion of the committee of the credit union<sup>5</sup>.

INDUSTRIAL AND PROVIDENT SOCIETIES/(1) CONSTITUTION/(v) Capital/A. SHARE CAPITAL/2449. Provisions in rules.

2449. Provisions in rules.

The rules of a registered society, other than a credit union, must determine whether the shares or any of them are to be withdrawable and, if so, must provide for the mode of withdrawal and for payment of the balance due on withdrawal from the society<sup>1</sup>. The rules should provide whether withdrawable shares may be withdrawn by a member on demand or on notice, and, if on notice, the manner in which the notice must be given to the society and the length of the notice. If there is to be power to suspend the right of withdrawing shares, the rules should provide on whose authority the right may be suspended and under what circumstances, and also whether a suspension may be continued<sup>2</sup>. The rules must also determine whether the shares or any of them are to be transferable, and, if so, provide for the form of transfer and registration of the shares, and for the consent of the committee thereto<sup>3</sup>.

The rules of a credit union must make provision for the mode of withdrawal of shares and for payment of the balance due thereon when a member leaves the society<sup>4</sup>. Shares in a credit union may not be transferable, save in the case of transfers pursuant to a nomination on the death of a nominator<sup>5</sup>.

1 See the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 1(1)(b), Sch 1 para 9; and PARA 2425. As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2395. As to credit unions see PARA 2402. As to the rules generally see PARA 2423 et seq.

2 It would seem that if a rule gives the committee power to suspend the right of withdrawal for a stated period it can renew the suspension from time to time for such periods: Jedburgh Co-operative Store Co v Fox reported in (1916) Scotsman, 1 December; and see the Report of the Chief Registrar of Friendly Societies, Pt A Appendix F, p 136 (Parliamentary Papers (1917-18) vol 27). See further PARA 2578.

3 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 Sch 1 para 9. The Forged Transfers Act 1891 (see COMPANIES vol 14 (2009) PARAS 430, 433) applies to registered societies as though they were companies: s 3 (amended by the Statute Law (Repeals) Act 2004).

4 See the Credit Unions Act 1979 s 4(1), Sch 1 para 8; and PARA 2425. As to notice of withdrawal and restrictions on the right of withdrawal of shares in a credit union see s 7(4), (5); and PARA 2448.

INDUSTRIAL AND PROVIDENT SOCIETIES/(1) CONSTITUTION/(v) Capital/A. SHARE CAPITAL/2450. Classes of shares.

2450. Classes of shares.

There is no statutory mention of any classes of shares other than withdrawable and transferable shares<sup>1</sup>. In the absence of statutory provision to the contrary, it would seem that rules may make provision for classes of shares, such as preference and deferred shares; if such provision is made, the rights of those shares in respect of capital, profits and other matters must be determined by the rules.

1 Shares in a credit union must be withdrawable but must not be transferable save in pursuance of nomination, on the death of a nominator: see the Credit Unions Act 1979 s 7(2)-(5); and PARAS 2448-2449.

INDUSTRIAL AND PROVIDENT SOCIETIES/(1) CONSTITUTION/(v) Capital/A. SHARE CAPITAL/2451. Share certificates.

2451. Share certificates.

There is no statutory requirement that a registered society must issue share certificates, and rules do not generally so provide. It would seem that, if share certificates are issued, the rules should provide for their authentication on behalf of the society, and for lost certificates<sup>1</sup>. A credit union must not issue to a member a certificate denoting ownership of a share<sup>2</sup>.

2452. Losses.

A registered society, including a credit union, is not required to make any provision in its rules for any loss which it may have suffered to be borne by shares which are withdrawn. If a member gives notice to withdraw withdrawable shares, and before the expiration of the notice the society ceases to function as a going concern, either by the actual cessation of normal business or the recognition by those responsible for its management that it must stop, the unexpired notice becomes cancelled and the member gains no priority over other members who have not given notice to withdraw<sup>1</sup>.

B. LOAN CAPITAL

2453. Authority for borrowing.

The borrowing power of a registered society, other than a credit union, depends upon the provisions in its rules, which must provide whether the society may contract loans or receive money on deposit from members or others, and, if so, under what conditions, under what security, and to what limits of amount<sup>1</sup>.

Separate provisions apply to credit unions. A credit union has a general power to borrow<sup>2</sup>. It may not accept a deposit<sup>3</sup> from any person except by way of subscription for its shares<sup>4</sup>, save in the case of deposits by persons who are too young to be members<sup>5</sup> and in relation to its borrowing powers<sup>6</sup>. A credit union which provides certain ancillary services<sup>7</sup> to a member or any other person from whom the credit union has accepted a deposit may charge a fee to cover the cost of providing the service<sup>8</sup>.

INDUSTRIAL AND PROVIDENT SOCIETIES/(1) CONSTITUTION/(v) Capital/B. LOAN CAPITAL/2454. Charges on property of registered societies.

2454. Charges on property of registered societies.

There is no general provision for mortgages or other charges on the property of a registered society, including a credit union, to be registered with the Financial Services Authority<sup>1</sup>. However, where a debenture issued by a registered society and creating in favour of a bank a floating charge on property of the society which is farming stock<sup>2</sup> has been registered under the Agricultural Credits Act 1928<sup>3</sup>, notice of the charge, signed by the secretary of the society, must be sent to the Authority<sup>4</sup> and registered<sup>5</sup>. In addition, provision is made for application to the Authority for the recording of a fixed or floating charge on the assets of a registered society having its registered office in England or Wales, in which case an instrument which creates or is evidence of that charge is not a bill of sale for the purposes of the Bills of Sale Acts 1878 and 1882 and is not invalidated by those Acts<sup>6</sup>.

Such an application must normally be delivered by post or otherwise to the Authority within 21 days from the date of execution of the instrument which creates or is evidence of the charge<sup>7</sup>. If, however, on the application of the society or of any other person claiming the benefit of the instrument, it appears to the Authority that by reason of inadvertence or other sufficient cause the application was not made within the prescribed period of 21 days, or any matters were omitted from or misstated in the application, the Authority may direct that the period for making the application be extended on such terms as it thinks fit, or, as the case may be, direct that the omission or misstatement be rectified<sup>8</sup>. The Authority must secure<sup>9</sup> that an acknowledgment (bearing the Authority's seal) of the application is issued to the person by whom it was made<sup>10</sup>; a copy of the instrument included in the application<sup>11</sup>, a note of any particulars so included and a copy of the acknowledgment of the application are placed on a file maintained by the Authority in respect of the society by whom the instrument was executed<sup>12</sup>; and that the file is available for inspection during office hours by members of the public on payment of such fee as may be required<sup>13</sup>. Provision is made for notice to be given to the Authority of any release, discharge or other transaction relating to any charge in respect of which an application has been made and for the inclusion in the file of any such notice appearing to the Authority to relate to the charge<sup>14</sup>.

1 Subject to the exceptions referred to in the text and in notes 2-6, a security given by a registered society charging its personal chattels will be invalid unless registered as a bill of sale. As to bills of sale generally see PARA 1620 et seq. If, however, a floating charge not so registered is given on all the society's property, and the property, although described in general terms, is severable, the charge will be valid as to the assets of the society which do not consist of personal chattels: Re North Wales Produce and Supply Society [1922] 2 Ch 340. As to the validity and priority of charges on real property see generally MORTGAGE vol 77 (2010) PARA 101 et seq. As to the provisions (which have no counterpart in the law relating to registered societies) for registration of charges on the property of companies see COMPANIES vol 15 (2009) PARA 1295 et seq. As to the Financial Services Authority in regard to registered societies see PARA 2410. As to the Authority generally see PARAS 4, 6 et seq. As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2395. As to credit unions see PARA 2402.

2 As to the meaning of 'farming stock' see AGRICULTURAL PRODUCTION AND MARKETING vol 1 (2008) PARA 1328.

3 Such a charge may be registered in like manner as an agricultural charge and, if so registered, is valid as respects the property in question notwithstanding anything in the Bills of Sale Acts 1878 and 1882, and is not deemed to be a bill of sale within the meaning of those Acts: Agricultural Credits Act 1928 s 14(1). As to the registration of agricultural charges see AGRICULTURAL PRODUCTION AND MARKETING vol 1 (2008) PARA 1331.

It does not apply to a debenture registered under the Agricultural Credits Act 1928 s 14 (see the text to notes 2-5): Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1967 s 2(2).

7 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1967 s 1(2) (amended by SI 1996/1738; and SI 2001/2617). As to the extended period allowed under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1967 s 1(5) see the text to note 8. With the application there must be a copy of the instrument which creates or is evidence of the charge, authenticated in the manner directed by the Authority and such additional particulars relating to the charge and so authenticated as may be required by the Authority: s 1(2)(a) (amended by SI 2001/3649). The application must be accompanied by such fee as may be required by rules made in accordance with the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 Sch 1 para 17 (see PARA 16): Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1967 s 1(2)(b) (substituted by SI 2001/2617).

2455. Ultra vires borrowing.

In the case of an ultra vires borrowing by a society, other than a credit union<sup>1</sup>, the lender cannot recover the amount advanced as money had and received<sup>2</sup>, and cannot set it off against any amount due from him to the society<sup>3</sup>. To the extent, however, to which the money advanced can be proved to have been applied to the discharge of the society's just debts (whether accruing before or after the date of the loan<sup>4</sup>), he is entitled to rank as creditor of the society in respect of the amount so applied<sup>5</sup>, and has a lien on any security given to him<sup>6</sup> although he is not subrogated to any securities of any creditor paid off with his money<sup>7</sup>. In addition, in the case of an ultra vires borrowing, the lender is entitled to a tracing order or a declaration of charge if the money lent can be traced into any investments or other property held by the society or by a volunteer having no better equity than the lender, in the same way as if the money lent were trust money<sup>8</sup>.

2 Sinclair v Brougham [1914] AC 398, HL. The reasoning of the House of Lords was based upon the principle that the remedy for money had and received rested upon a notional or imputed promise of repayment and that it would be contrary to public policy to grant such a remedy to enable a party to escape the consequences of having lent money on an actual promise of repayment. The remedy has been recognised to be available in cases of ultra vires contracts which are not borrowing contracts: see Westdeutsche Landesbank Girozentrale v Islington London Borough Council [1996] AC 669, [1996] 2 All ER 961, HL (a case concerning interest rate swap contracts), in which the majority of their Lordships also rejected the implied contract theory as the foundation for liability to such a claim, preferring the view that it was a personal action based on total failure of consideration. Following the later decision of the House of Lords in Kleinwort Benson Ltd v Lincoln City Council [1999] 2 AC 349, [1998] 4 All ER 513, HL, that a restitutionary claim will lie for recovery of money paid under a mistake of law (contrary to the prevailing understanding at the time of the Westdeutsche decision), such a claim appears to be an alternative to a claim for money had and received where a contract is void because of a mistake as to capacity. The proposition in the text thus rests now on very uncertain foundations. As to the effect of a provision in the rules that the signature of a contract by certain officers is to be conclusive that it is an authorised contract see PARA 2488 note 3.

(vi) Management and Officers

A. IN GENERAL

2458. Appointment and removal of officers.

The rules of a registered society, including a credit union, must make provision for the appointment and removal of a committee, by whatever name, and of managers or other officers<sup>1</sup>, and their respective powers and remuneration<sup>2</sup>. Every society must have a committee and a secretary, but provision may be made in the rules for other officers if desired<sup>3</sup>. A member under the age of 18 may not be a member of the committee, trustee, manager or treasurer of the society<sup>4</sup>. No notice of appointment or change of officers need be given to the Financial Services Authority<sup>5</sup>, but particulars relating to officers must be entered in the register kept at the registered office<sup>6</sup>, and the annual return requires the names and addresses of committee members and of officers in receipt or charge of money to be given in the return<sup>7</sup>.

1 'Officer' includes any treasurer, secretary, committee member, manager or servant of the society other than a servant appointed by the committee, but does not include an auditor appointed by the society in accordance with the requirements of the Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 (see PARA 2514); Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 74(1) (definition amended by the Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 Sch 1 para 11; and the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 74(1) renumbered by SI 2001/2617). 'Committee' means the committee of management or other directing body of the society: Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 74(1) (as so renumbered). As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2395. As to credit unions see PARA 2402. As to the rules generally see PARA 2423 et seq.

2 See the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 1(1)(b), Sch 1 para 6; the Credit Unions Act 1979 s 4(1), Sch 1 para 6; and PARA 2425. Where, following an election to an office for which two candidates had stood, the candidate with the greater number of votes was found to have been ineligible for election, the other candidate, in the absence of a rule to the contrary, was not deemed to have been elected, and the election was void: Sedgley and Leeds Industrial Co-operative Society Ltd (1953) CR Rep Pt 3, p 3. An agreement between the promoter of a society and a person whom he induced the society to appoint as officer, providing for payment of money as a consideration for the appointment is corrupt and will not be enforced: Starr v Wall (1889) 6 TLR 108, DC.

3 This requirement is implicit in statutory provisions giving functions to the secretary: see eg the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 2(1)(b) (registration application to be signed by the secretary); and PARA 2413.

INDUSTRIAL AND PROVIDENT SOCIETIES/(1) CONSTITUTION/(vi) Management and Officers/A. IN GENERAL/2459. Trustees.

2459. Trustees.

As a registered society, including a credit union, is a corporate body<sup>1</sup>, its property is vested in the corporation, and trustees are not generally necessary. If they are required for any special purposes, it is desirable that the rules should determine by whom their appointment may be made<sup>2</sup>. A minor may not be a trustee<sup>3</sup>.

<sup>1</sup> See PARAS 2394, 2416. As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2395. As to credit unions see PARA 2402.

<sup>2</sup> The Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 and the Credit Unions Act 1979 make no provision for the appointment or functions of trustees. It would seem that the general law relating to trustees applies: see TRUSTS. As to the rules generally see PARA 2423 et seq.

INDUSTRIAL AND PROVIDENT SOCIETIES/(1) CONSTITUTION/(vi) Management and Officers/A. IN GENERAL/2460. Registered housing associations.

2460. Registered housing associations.

Registered societies which are registered housing associations<sup>1</sup> are subject to a number of additional provisions as to the making of payments or granting of benefits to officers or employees of the society<sup>2</sup>, and as to the powers of the relevant authority<sup>3</sup> to remove and appoint members of the committee<sup>4</sup>.

<sup>1</sup> I.e. registered housing associations known as 'registered social landlords': see PARA 2408. As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2395.

<sup>3</sup> I.e. the Housing Corporation or the Welsh Ministers: see PARA 2408; and HOUSING vol 22 (2006 Reissue) PARA 18 et seq.

<sup>4</sup> As to the relevant authority's power to remove committee members or other officers following an inquiry or audit see PARA 2533. The relevant authority may also remove a committee member who is bankrupt, who has made an arrangement with his creditors who is disqualified from being a company director, or who is subject to a disqualification undertaking, under the Company Directors Disqualification Act 1986 or the equivalent legislation in Northern Ireland, who is subject to an order for failure to pay under a county court administration order, who is disqualified under the Charities Act 1993 from being a charity trustee, who is incapable of acting by reason of mental disorder, who has not acted, or who cannot be found or who does not act and whose absence or failure to act impedes the committee's proper management of the society's affairs: see the Housing Act 1996 Sch 1 para 4; and HOUSING vol 22 (2006 Reissue) PARA 75. The relevant authority may by order appoint a person to be a committee member (whether or not he is a member of the society, and, if he is not, notwithstanding that the rules restrict membership of the committee to members of the society) (1) in place of a committee member removed by the relevant authority; (2) where there are no members of the committee; or (3) where the relevant authority is of the opinion that it is necessary for the proper management of the society's affairs to have an additional member of its committee (notwithstanding that it will cause the maximum number of committee members permissible under the society's constitution to be exceeded): see Sch 1 para 8; and HOUSING vol 22 (2006 Reissue) PARA 78. As to the duration of such an appointment, appeals and notice of removal see HOUSING vol 22 (2006 Reissue) PARAS 75, 78.

2461. Committee's statutory functions and powers.

The committee of management of a registered society has certain statutory functions and powers in connection with: the transfer of property of a member under a nomination<sup>1</sup>; the determination of persons entitled by law to receive a member's interest if he dies without a nomination subsisting; the payment of a member's interest in certain cases as the Treasury may direct if a deceased member was illegitimate<sup>2</sup>; the making of payments to persons on behalf of those who are mentally incapable<sup>3</sup>; the authorisation of a member to prosecute in cases of fraud and misapplication<sup>4</sup>; ensuring that a rule requiring an officer to give security is properly observed<sup>5</sup>; making a demand on an officer to give in his account or pay over money or deliver up property<sup>6</sup>; and signing receipts indorsed on discharges of mortgages<sup>7</sup>.

2462. Committee's responsibility for statutory offences.

An offence by a registered society against any of the provisions of the Industrial and Provident Societies Acts<sup>1</sup> may, under certain circumstances, be deemed to have been committed by every member of its committee<sup>2</sup>.

1 In the general provisions in the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 ss 61-66 and s 68 (see PARA 2547 et seq) as to offences by registered societies, their officers and others, as they apply to credit unions, references to the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 include references to the Credit Unions Act 1979: s 28(1). INDUSTRIAL AND PROVIDENT SOCIETIES/(1) CONSTITUTION/(vi) Management and Officers/B. COMMITTEE OF MANAGEMENT/2463. Committee's responsibility for management.

2463. Committee's responsibility for management.

Where, under the rules of a registered society, including a credit union, the control of its business is vested in the committee of management, the members of the society in general meeting cannot exercise that control<sup>1</sup>. There are no judicial decisions with regard to the responsibility of members of the committee of a registered society in connection with their management of its affairs, or their liability for acts done by them ultra vires their powers under the rules of the society, or for their negligence in carrying out their duties. Although they are not affected by any statutory provisions which may apply to directors of registered companies on these matters, it would seem that, being persons appointed to manage the business and affairs of the society, they are accountable in the same manner as such directors under the general law of agency<sup>2</sup>.

The provisions of the Supply of Goods and Services Act 1982 that in certain contracts for the supply of a service there is an implied term that the service will be carried out with reasonable care and skill<sup>3</sup>, do not apply to the services rendered to an industrial and provident society by any member of the committee of management or other directing body of such a society in his capacity as such<sup>4</sup>.

C. OFFICERS

2464. Security by officers.

If the rules of a registered society, including a credit union, so require, every officer<sup>1</sup> of the society having receipt or charge of money must before entering upon the execution of his office give security in such sum as the society's committee may direct, conditioned for his rendering a just and true account of all money received and paid by him on account of the society at such times as its rules appoint or as the society or its committee require him so to do, and for the payment by him of all sums due from him to the society<sup>2</sup>. The officer is to give this security either (1) by becoming bound, either with or without a surety as the society's committee may require, in a bond in one of the prescribed forms<sup>3</sup> or such other form as the committee may approve<sup>4</sup>; or (2) by giving the security of a guarantee society<sup>5</sup>.

2465. Officers' accounts.

Every officer<sup>1</sup> of a registered society, including a credit union, having receipt or charge of money, and every servant of the society in receipt or charge of money who is not engaged under a special agreement to account, must, at such times as he is required so to do by the rules, or on demand, or on notice in writing given or left at his last or usual place of residence, render an account as may be required by the society or its committee to be examined and allowed or disallowed by it; and must, on demand or on such notice, pay over all money and deliver all property for the time being in his hands or custody to such person as the society or committee may appoint<sup>2</sup>. After the death of the officer or servant, this duty is taken to be imposed on his personal representatives<sup>3</sup>. INDUSTRIAL AND PROVIDENT SOCIETIES/(2) MEMBERSHIP AND MEETINGS/(i) Membership/2468. Registered societies and other bodies corporate as members.

2468. Registered societies and other bodies corporate as members.

Registered societies the rules of which do not provide otherwise, and other bodies corporate the regulations of which so permit, may be members of a registered society other than a credit union<sup>1</sup>. Where one registered society is a member of another, then, for the purposes of any enactment with respect to the making or signing of any application, instrument or document by members of a registered society, any reference to such a member is to be construed, in relation to the first-mentioned society as a member of the second-mentioned, as a reference to two committee members and the society's secretary<sup>2</sup>.

1 See the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 19(1), which provides that shares in a registered society may be held by any other body corporate, if its regulations so permit, by its corporate name. As to one registered society being a member of another see PARAS 2413, 2447, 2498, 2579. Members which are registered societies are exempt from the normal limit of shareholding: see PARA 2447. As to voting by society members see PARA 2500. Only individuals may be members of a credit union (see the Credit Unions Act 1979 s 5(1); and PARA 2467); hence the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 19 is omitted in the application of the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 to credit unions (Credit Unions Act 1979 s 31(3)). A person under the age of 18 but above the age of 16 may be a member of a registered society unless provision to the contrary is made by the society's registered rules and, subject to those rules and to the provisions of the Industrial and Provident Societies Acts 1965 to 1978<sup>1</sup>, may enjoy all the rights of a member and execute all instruments and give all receipts necessary to be executed or given under the rules, but may not be a committee member, trustee, manager or treasurer of the society<sup>2</sup>.

A credit union may take deposits from a person who is under the age at which he may become<sup>3</sup> a member of the credit union<sup>4</sup>.

INDUSTRIAL AND PROVIDENT SOCIETIES/(2) MEMBERSHIP AND MEETINGS/(i) Membership/2470. Terms of admission.

2470. Terms of admission.

The rules of a registered society must set out the terms of admission of members, including any society or company investing funds in the society. In the case of a credit union, its rules must set out the qualifications for, and the terms of, admission to membership of the society, including any special provision for the insurance of members in relation to their shares<sup>1</sup>. A member becomes a shareholder of the society, and therefore provision should be made for the number of shares he may be required to hold; in the case of societies other than credit unions, provision must be made for the determination of the maximum holding within the limit of £20,000 permitted by statute which a member other than one exempted from this limit may hold<sup>2</sup>; and it may be desired to provide for other matters, such as entrance fees, age limits<sup>3</sup> and any qualifications or disqualifications by trade, employment or otherwise<sup>4</sup>. A person may not be a member of a credit union unless he holds at least one fully paid-up share in that credit union but the rules of the credit union must not require a person to hold more than £5 in fully paid-up shares as a condition of membership<sup>5</sup>. The qualifications for admission to membership of a credit union must be set out in its rules and must be appropriate to a credit union<sup>6</sup>. If the rules of a credit union so provide, a person is to be treated as fulfilling a qualification for admission to membership if he is a member of the same household as, and is a relative of, another person who is a member of the credit union and fulfils that qualification directly<sup>7</sup>.

A member of a credit union who ceases to fulfil the qualification for admission to membership is entitled to retain his membership unless the rules of the credit union provide otherwise. Such a person is known as a 'non-qualifying member'<sup>8</sup>. The number of non-qualifying members must not at any time exceed ten per cent of the total membership<sup>9</sup>. Non-qualifying members are to be left out of account in determining whether a common bond exists between the members of the credit union<sup>10</sup>. A non-qualifying member is entitled, except in so far as the rules of the credit union provide otherwise, to purchase shares and receive loans<sup>11</sup>.

A provision in the rules restricting the number of members with a view to preserving or increasing the value of proprietary rights and interests may prevent a society from being a bona fide co-operative: see PARA 2402 note 7. ## 2471. Register of members and officers.

Every registered society, including a credit union, must keep at its registered office<sup>1</sup> a register in which it must enter the following particulars: (1) the names and addresses of the members<sup>2</sup>; (2) a statement of the number of shares held by each member and of the amount paid or agreed to be considered as paid on the shares of each member<sup>3</sup>; (3) a statement of other property<sup>4</sup> in the society, whether in loans, deposits or otherwise, held by each member<sup>5</sup>; (4) the date at which each person was entered in the register as a member, and the date at which any person ceased to be a member<sup>6</sup>; (5) the names and addresses of the society's officers with the offices held by them respectively, and the dates on which they assumed office<sup>7</sup>.

The register may be kept either by making entries in bound books or by recording the matters in question in any other manner<sup>8</sup>, but in the latter case adequate precautions must be taken for guarding against falsification and for facilitating its discovery<sup>9</sup>. Every registered society must either keep at its registered office a duplicate register containing the particulars relating to names, addresses and dates of membership of members and the similar particulars relating to officers<sup>10</sup>, but not the particulars relating to shares and property<sup>11</sup>, or so construct the register that it is possible to open to inspection<sup>12</sup> the particulars in it other than those relating to shares and property without exposing those last-mentioned particulars<sup>13</sup>. Any person authorised for the purpose by the Financial Services Authority<sup>14</sup> may, on producing evidence of his authority, at all reasonable hours inspect any particulars in the register or duplicate register<sup>15</sup>.

A registered society's register or duplicate register of members and officers<sup>1</sup>, or any other register or list of members or shares kept by the society, is prima facie evidence<sup>2</sup> of any of the following particulars entered in it: (1) the names, addresses and occupations of the members<sup>3</sup>; (2) the number of shares respectively held by the members, the distinguishing numbers of those shares if they are distinguished by numbers, and the amount paid or agreed to be considered as paid on any of those shares<sup>4</sup>; (3) the date at which the name of any person, company or society was entered in that register or list as a member<sup>5</sup>; (4) the date at which any such person, company or society ceased to be a member<sup>6</sup>.

A member of a registered society, including a credit union, has the following statutory rights, which cannot be taken away by provisions in the rules: (1) to be supplied with a copy of the rules on demand on payment of a sum not exceeding ten pence<sup>1</sup>; (2) to inspect his own account and the duplicate register of members, or the original register where it is constructed so that only the particulars which he is entitled to inspect are exposed<sup>2</sup>; (3) to be supplied gratuitously on application with a copy of the last annual return<sup>3</sup>; (4) to have certain disputes between him and the society determined in the manner provided in the rules, or, if they contain no such provision, or if the society does not comply with that provision, to have the dispute determined by the courts<sup>4</sup>; (5) to nominate persons to whom his property in the society may be paid or transferred at death, and to revoke or vary those nominations<sup>5</sup>; (6) to institute proceedings for setting aside a dissolution of the society by instrument<sup>6</sup>; and (7) if duly authorised for this purpose, to institute proceedings for misapplication of the society's property<sup>7</sup>.

In addition, every member of a credit union has a right to vote on every matter determined by a vote of members<sup>8</sup>.

Certain proportions or numbers of members of a registered society, including a credit union, have the following statutory rights, which are exercisable irrespective of provisions in the rules: (1) to apply to the Financial Services Authority<sup>1</sup> to appoint an accountant or actuary to examine the society's books<sup>2</sup>; (2) to apply to the Authority to appoint an inspector to inquire into the affairs of the society<sup>3</sup>; (3) to apply to the Authority to call a special meeting of the society<sup>4</sup>; and (4) to execute an instrument of dissolution of the society and divide or appropriate the funds as they determine<sup>5</sup>.

In addition to these statutory rights, members, at duly convened meetings, can transact other statutory business<sup>6</sup>.

INDUSTRIAL AND PROVIDENT SOCIETIES/(2) MEMBERSHIP AND MEETINGS/(i) Membership/2475. Liability of members.

2475. Liability of members.

A member is personally liable for the liabilities and debts of a registered society, including a credit union, only to the extent of any sum unpaid on any shares in respect of which he is liable as a present member, or as a past member if his membership ceased less than one year before the commencement of a winding up of the society's affairs<sup>1</sup>; and his liability to subscribe to share or loan capital cannot be increased by an amendment of the rules unless his written consent has been first obtained<sup>2</sup>.

Subject as above, a member and all persons claiming through him are bound by the rules of the society, including any amendments, as if he had executed the rules under his seal and they contained a covenant by him, and by all persons claiming through him, to conform to them<sup>3</sup>. He can be sued by the society for any money payable to it by him, and the society has a lien on any shares for any debt due to it by him and may set off any sum credited on those shares in or towards payment of that debt<sup>4</sup>.

There are no special statutory provisions governing the liability of a member who is a minor<sup>5</sup>.

2 See PARA 2429. As to the rules generally see PARA 2423 et seq.

3 See PARA 2429.

4 See PARAS 2543-2544.

5 It would seem that the position of a minor member of a registered society is similar to that of a shareholder in a company who is a minor, and that he may repudiate his contract either during his minority or when he comes of age: cf COMPANIES vol 14 (2009) PARA 330.

INDUSTRIAL AND PROVIDENT SOCIETIES/(2) MEMBERSHIP AND MEETINGS/(i) Membership/2476. Withdrawal of membership.

2476. Withdrawal of membership.

The rules of a registered society, other than a credit union, must provide whether and, if so, how members may withdraw from it<sup>1</sup>. It would seem that the right of withdrawal may by rule be denied to members, but if it is not so denied the mode of withdrawal should be stated<sup>2</sup>. In the case of a credit union, the rules must provide for the withdrawal of members from the society and for the claims of representatives of deceased members or the trustees of the property of bankrupt members, and for the payment of nominees<sup>3</sup>. Membership must be taken to have ceased from the date of the notice or application for withdrawal of any withdrawable shares held by a member<sup>4</sup>. The death of a member operates as a withdrawal if there is no contrary provision in the rules, and the rules should determine whether his personal representatives can claim to be admitted themselves as members, and, if so, on what evidence and on what conditions, and, if they are not to be entitled to claim admission, how they can realise the value of the testator's or intestate's interest in the shares<sup>5</sup>.

INDUSTRIAL AND PROVIDENT SOCIETIES/(2) MEMBERSHIP AND MEETINGS/(i) Membership/2477. Cessation of membership on other happenings.

2477. Cessation of membership on other happenings.

If it is intended that membership of a registered society may cease for some reason other than the voluntary withdrawal of a member, the rules should provide for cessation upon, for example, failure to hold any minimum share qualification required by the rules, failure to pay an annual subscription, expulsion for misconduct and the like. In these cases provision should also be made for dealing with the shares of the member, providing whether they are to be forfeited or how otherwise dealt with. A member cannot be expelled on any charge brought against him unless he is first given an opportunity of appearing and giving his answer to the charge<sup>1</sup>. It is desirable, therefore, that the rules should set out this right, and also whether the expulsion may be directed by the committee or a general meeting. There must be provision in the rules for the claims of a bankrupt member's trustee<sup>2</sup>.

The rules of a credit union must make provision for terminating the membership of members, so as to comply with the limit on the number of non-qualifying members<sup>3</sup>. The rules must also make provision for the repayment of shares held by, and of any loans to, a member whose membership is terminated for such a purpose<sup>4</sup>.

A. DESCRIPTION AND CONVENING OF MEETINGS

2478. Provisions in rules for meetings.

The rules of a registered society, other than a credit union, must provide for the mode of holding general meetings<sup>1</sup>. The rules of a credit union must also provide for the mode of holding general meetings, but they must include provision as to the quorum necessary for the transaction of any description of business<sup>2</sup>. There is no statutory provision for the intervals at which general meetings should be held, nor are such meetings required to be held once a year, but any provision in the rules for holding meetings should be made in good faith, and a rule would not be registered which provided for holding them at such long intervals as to render their action practically nugatory. The accounts of a registered society, including a credit union, must be audited annually by one or more auditors appointed in accordance with the statutory requirements<sup>3</sup>, and there should therefore be at least provision for holding an ordinary annual meeting for the presentation of accounts and transacting other business under the rules, such as the appointment of officers<sup>4</sup>. The rules of a society may provide for general meetings to be constituted by delegates appointed by members<sup>5</sup>.

As to the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 s 4A see PARA 2514. See further generally PARAS 2514-2515.

4 As to the appointment and removal of officers see PARA 2458.

5 The Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 provides that, where the rules of a registered society so allow, 'meeting' includes a meeting of delegates appointed by members: s 74(1) (renumbered by SI 2001/2617). Branches of registered societies are not legally recognised under the Industrial and Provident Societies Acts as they are under friendly society legislation: cf the Friendly Societies Act 1974 s 111(1); and PARAS 2091, 2216. If the rules of a registered society provide for members being grouped into branches, provision may be made for those members to be represented by delegates at general meetings of the society: cf Wilkinson v City of Glasgow Friendly Society 1911 SC 476, where it was held that a delegate meeting of a registered friendly society could not pass a special resolution for the conversion of the society into a company. As to the conversion of a registered society into a company see PARAS 2564-2565. As to special resolutions see PARAS 2486-2487.

INDUSTRIAL AND PROVIDENT SOCIETIES/(2) MEMBERSHIP AND MEETINGS/(ii) Meetings/A. DESCRIPTION AND CONVENING OF MEETINGS/2479. General meetings for special purposes.

2479. General meetings for special purposes.

There should be provision in the rules of a registered society for the calling of general meetings, other than annual general meetings, as general meetings are necessary for the passing of certain statutory special resolutions<sup>1</sup>. Moreover, the rules of a credit union may not be amended except by a resolution passed by not less than two-thirds of the members present at a general meeting called for the purpose after giving of such notice as is by the rules required for such a resolution<sup>2</sup>. Generally there is a provision giving a specified number or proportion of members the right to requisition a general meeting on giving written notice to the secretary. A special general meeting may under certain circumstances be directed to be held by the Financial Services Authority<sup>3</sup>, and a meeting so held has all the powers of a meeting called according to the rules of the society<sup>4</sup>.

2480. Notice of meetings; quorum.

The rules of a registered society should make provision for giving members due notice of meetings, as failure to give due notice may invalidate the proceedings<sup>1</sup>. Except in the case of a credit union, the rules are not required to provide for a quorum. In the absence of such a provision, it would seem that two members form a quorum<sup>2</sup>. In the case of a credit union, the rules must make provision as to the quorum necessary for the transaction of any description of business<sup>3</sup>.

The Financial Services Authority<sup>1</sup> may call a special meeting of a registered society, including a credit union, on the application of one-tenth of the whole number of its members or, if the membership exceeds 1,000 members, of 100 members<sup>2</sup>. The application must be supported by such evidence as the Authority directs for the purpose of showing that the applicants have good reason for requiring the meeting and that they are not actuated by malicious motives; and such notice of the application must be given to the society as the Authority directs<sup>3</sup>. If it thinks fit, the Authority may also require the applicants to give security for the costs of the proposed meeting before calling it<sup>4</sup>.

2483. Expenses of special meeting.

The expenses of and incidental or preliminary to a special meeting of a registered society<sup>1</sup> must be defrayed by the members applying for it, or out of the society's funds, or by the society's members or officers, or former members or officers, in such proportions as the Financial Services Authority<sup>2</sup> may direct<sup>3</sup>. The expenses may be recovered as a civil debt<sup>4</sup>.

INDUSTRIAL AND PROVIDENT SOCIETIES/(2) MEMBERSHIP AND MEETINGS/(ii) Meetings/A. DESCRIPTION AND CONVENING OF MEETINGS/2484. Time and place of special meeting and its powers.

2484. Time and place of special meeting and its powers.

The Financial Services Authority<sup>1</sup> may direct at what time and place a special meeting of a registered society<sup>2</sup> is to be held and what matters are to be discussed and determined, and the meeting has all the powers of a meeting called according to the rules and power to appoint its own chairman notwithstanding any rule of the society to the contrary<sup>3</sup>. These provisions apply also to a special meeting of a credit union called at the instance of the Authority<sup>4</sup>.

1 As to the Financial Services Authority in regard to registered societies see PARA 2410. As to the Authority generally see PARAS 4, 6 et seq. As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2395. As to credit unions see PARA 2402.

INDUSTRIAL AND PROVIDENT SOCIETIES/(2) MEMBERSHIP AND MEETINGS/(ii) Meetings/B. VOTING AND RESOLUTIONS/2485. Right of voting.

B. VOTING AND RESOLUTIONS

2485. Right of voting.

The rules of a registered society, other than a credit union, must provide for the scale and right of voting<sup>1</sup>, and it seems that on both these matters the rules may make such provision as is desired<sup>2</sup>. In the case of credit unions, subject to any provision in the rules of a credit union as to voting by a chairman who has a casting vote, on every matter which is determined by a vote of members of a credit union, every member is entitled to vote and has only one vote<sup>3</sup>. There may be provision for voting by proxy, and, if such provision is made, it is desirable that a form of proxy should be given, and that provision should be made for the conditions under which and by whom it may be used<sup>4</sup>. It is also desirable to provide for the case of a tie in voting.

1 See the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 1(1)(b), Sch 1 para 5; and PARA 2425. As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2395. As to credit unions see PARA 2402. As to the rules generally see PARA 2423 et seq.

2 The freedom to make such provision in the rules as is desired is, of course, subject to the limitations arising from the conditions which a society must fulfil in order to be, or continue to be, registered: see PARAS 2402, 2579.

3 Credit Unions Act 1979 s 5(9).

4 That rules may provide for voting by proxies is recognised by the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 50: see PARA 2486. As to voting by society members see PARA 2500. The name of the proxy and date of meeting may be filled in after execution by an authorised person: Ernest v Loma Gold Mines Ltd [1897] 1 Ch 1, CA; Sadgrove v Bryden [1907] 1 Ch 318. If a proxy is required to be lodged before the date of the meeting, a proxy lodged after that date but before the date of an adjourned meeting cannot be used at that meeting: McLaren v Thomson [1917] 2 Ch 261, CA. There is no common law right to vote by proxy: Harben v Phillips (1883) 23 ChD 14 at 35, CA, per Bowen LJ.

INDUSTRIAL AND PROVIDENT SOCIETIES/(2) MEMBERSHIP AND MEETINGS/(ii) Meetings/B. VOTING AND RESOLUTIONS/2486. Special resolutions.

2486. Special resolutions.

A special resolution of a registered society, including a credit union, is required for it to amalgamate with, or to transfer engagements to, another registered society<sup>1</sup>; or, except in the case of credit unions, which may not do so<sup>2</sup>, to convert the society into a company<sup>3</sup>; or to amalgamate with, or transfer engagements to, a company<sup>4</sup>.

For the purposes of the amalgamation of societies and the transfer of engagements between societies<sup>5</sup> a special resolution is one (1) which is passed by not less than two-thirds of such members of the society for the time being entitled under the society's rules to vote as may have voted in person, or by proxy where the rules allow proxies, at any general meeting of which notice, specifying the intention to propose the resolution, has been duly given according to those rules; and (2) which is confirmed by a majority of such members for the time being entitled to vote as above as may have voted in person or by proxy as above at a subsequent general meeting of which notice has been duly given and held not less than 14 days<sup>6</sup> nor more than one month<sup>7</sup> from the day of the meeting at which the resolution was passed<sup>8</sup>.

For the purposes of conversion into a company or amalgamation with or transfer of engagements to a company<sup>9</sup> a special resolution is one (a) which is passed at a general meeting of which notice, specifying the intention to propose the resolution, has been duly given according to the rules of the society; (b) which is passed by not less than three-fourths of such of the qualifying members<sup>10</sup> of the society as may have voted in person or, where permitted, by proxy; (c) on which not less than half of the qualifying members of the society voted either in person or, where permitted, by proxy; and (d) which is confirmed by a majority of such of the qualifying members of the society as may have voted in person or, where permitted, by proxy at a subsequent general meeting of which notice has been duly given held not less than 14 days<sup>11</sup> nor more than one month<sup>12</sup> from the day of the meeting at which the resolution was passed in accordance with heads (a) to (c) above<sup>13</sup>.

4 See PARAS 2558, 2563.

5 Ie for the purposes of the Industrial and Provident Societies Act s 50 (see also PARA 2561) and s 51 (see also PARA 2562).

6 It should be noted that the requirement is not that there should be an interval of 14 clear days between the two meetings, but that the second meeting should be held not less than 14 days from the day of the first meeting. Contrast the Companies (Consolidation) Act 1908 s 69(2) (repealed); and Re Railway Sleepers Supply Co (1885) 29 ChD 204; and see COMPANIES vol 14 (2009) PARA 632.

8 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 ss 50(2), 51(2).

A special resolution for the purposes of the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 should not be confused with a special resolution as it may be defined in the rules of a society for other particular purposes, nor with an ordinary resolution passed at a special meeting, nor with a special resolution for the purposes of the Companies Acts (see COMPANIES vol 14 (2009) PARA 614) or of the Friendly Societies Act 1974 (see PARA 2219). As to the difficulty in amending a special resolution at a meeting (in a companies context) see Re Moorgate Mercantile Holdings Ltd [1980] 1 All ER 40, [1980] 1 WLR 227; and COMPANIES vol 14 (2009) PARAS 614, 622.

A special resolution may be compared with the resolution requiring a two-thirds majority of those present at a general meeting to pass a valid amendment to the rules of a credit union: see the Credit Unions Act 1979 s 4(2); and PARA 2434.

2487. Evidence of passing of special resolution; registration.

A declaration by the chairman at a general meeting held for the purpose of passing or confirming a special resolution<sup>1</sup> that the resolution has been carried is deemed conclusive evidence of that fact<sup>2</sup>. A copy of every special resolution, signed by the chairman of the meeting at which it was confirmed<sup>3</sup> and countersigned by the secretary of the society, must be sent to the Financial Services Authority<sup>4</sup> and registered by it<sup>5</sup>. Until that copy is registered, the resolution does not take effect<sup>6</sup>. It is the duty of a registered society which has passed a special resolution to send it for registration within 14 days from the day on which it is confirmed<sup>7</sup>, but this does not invalidate registration of the resolution after that time<sup>8</sup>.

2488. Form of contracts; bills and notes.

Any contract which, if made between private persons, would by law be required to be in writing and, if made according to English law, to be under seal, may be made, varied or discharged on behalf of a registered society, including a credit union<sup>1</sup>, in writing under the society's common seal and, so far as concerns its form, is then effectual in law and binding on all parties to it, their heirs, executors or administrators, as the case may be<sup>2</sup>. In addition, a contract which, if made between private persons, would by law be required to be in writing, signed by the parties to be charged with it, may be made, varied or discharged on behalf of a registered society in writing signed by any person acting under its authority, express or implied, and is effectual in law, and binds the society, its successors and all other parties to the contract<sup>3</sup>. A signature purporting to be made by a person holding any office in the society attached to a writing whereby any contract purports to be made, varied or discharged by or on behalf of the society is, until the contrary is proved, taken to be the signature of a person holding that office at the time when the signature was made<sup>4</sup>. In the case of a contract which, if made between private persons, would by law be valid although made by parol only and not reduced into writing, its making, variation or discharge by parol on behalf of the society by any person acting under its authority, express or implied, is effectual in law and binding on the society, its successors and all other parties to the contract<sup>5</sup>.

Promissory notes or bills of exchange are deemed to have been made, accepted or indorsed on behalf of any registered society, including a credit union, if made, accepted or indorsed in the society's name, or by or on behalf or account of the society, by any person acting under the society's authority<sup>6</sup>.

The following provisions apply to the making of a deed as they apply to the making of a contract<sup>1</sup>.

A contract which purports to be made by or on behalf of a registered society<sup>2</sup> at a time when the society has not been registered<sup>3</sup> has effect, subject to any agreement to the contrary, as one made with the person purporting to act for the society or as agent for it<sup>4</sup>. Accordingly, the contract is to be treated (1) as imposing on that person all the obligations it purports to impose on the society; and (2) as conferring on him all the rights it purports to confer on the society<sup>5</sup>.

Notwithstanding any enactment or rule of law, a registered society need not have a common seal<sup>1</sup>. If a registered society does have a common seal, the society must have its registered name<sup>2</sup> engraved on the seal in legible characters<sup>3</sup>. If a registered society decides to have a common seal, it must not cause such a seal to be made unless the registered rules<sup>4</sup> of the society contain provision for the custody and use of that seal<sup>5</sup>. An officer<sup>6</sup> of a registered society, or any other person acting on such a society's behalf, who uses or authorises the use of any seal purporting to be the common seal of the society which does not have the society's registered name engraved on it in legible characters is liable on summary conviction to a fine<sup>7</sup>.

The following provisions have effect with respect to the execution of documents by a registered society in England and Wales<sup>1</sup>.

A registered society may, if it has a common seal<sup>2</sup>, execute a document by affixing that seal to it<sup>3</sup>. A document (1) signed by a member of the committee<sup>4</sup> of a registered society and the secretary of the society, or by two members of the committee; and (2) expressed, in whatever form of words, to be executed by the society, has the same effect as if it were executed under the common seal of the society<sup>5</sup>. A document executed by a registered society which makes it clear on its face that it is intended by the person or persons making it to be a deed has effect, on delivery, as a deed, and it is presumed, unless a contrary intention is proved, to be delivered on its being so executed<sup>6</sup>. In favour of a purchaser<sup>7</sup> a document is deemed to have been duly executed by a registered society if it purports to be signed by a member of the committee of the society and the secretary of the society, or by two members of the committee, and, where it makes it clear on its face that it is intended by the person or persons making it to be a deed, to have been delivered on its being executed<sup>8</sup>.

The following provisions apply to a registered society if (1) it has a common seal<sup>1</sup>; and (2) its objects<sup>2</sup> require or comprise the transaction of business in foreign countries<sup>3</sup>.

The society may, if authorised by its registered rules<sup>4</sup>, have an official seal<sup>5</sup> for use in any territory, district or place elsewhere than in the United Kingdom<sup>6</sup>.

2493. Effect and authorisation of use of official seal.

The official seal<sup>1</sup> of a registered society, when duly affixed to a document, has the same effect as the society's common seal<sup>2</sup>. If a registered society has an official seal, it may authorise any person appointed for the purpose as respects any territory, district or place appearing on the face of the seal to affix it to any deed or other document to which the society is party there<sup>3</sup>. An authorisation must be given by writing under the society's common seal<sup>4</sup>. As between the society and a person dealing with such an agent, the agent's authority continues (1) if a period is mentioned in the authorisation, during that period; or (2) if no period is mentioned, until notice of the revocation or determination of the agent's authority has been given to the person dealing with him<sup>5</sup>. The person affixing the official seal must certify in writing on the deed or other instrument to which the seal is affixed the date on which and the place at which it is affixed<sup>6</sup>.

A. HOLDING OF LAND; DISCHARGE OF MORTGAGES

2494. Dealing with land.

Among the purposes for which a society, other than a credit union, may be registered are included dealings of any description with land<sup>1</sup>. Unless its registered rules direct otherwise, every registered society, other than a credit union, whatever its purposes are, may hold, purchase or take on lease in its own name any land, and may sell, exchange, mortgage or lease<sup>2</sup> any such land and erect, alter or pull down buildings on it<sup>3</sup>. A purchaser, assignee, mortgagee or tenant is not bound to inquire as to the authority for any such dealing with the land by the society<sup>4</sup>, and the society's receipt is a discharge for all money arising from or in connection with any such dealing<sup>5</sup>.

A credit union may hold, purchase or take on lease in its own name any land for the purpose of conducting its business thereon but for no other purpose (except so far as is necessary for the purpose of making loans to its members on the security of an interest in land and of enforcing any such security<sup>6</sup>), and may sell, exchange, mortgage or lease any such land and erect, alter or pull down buildings on it<sup>7</sup>. No person is bound to inquire as to the authority for any dealing with land by a credit union and the receipt of a credit union is a discharge for all moneys arising from or in connection with any dealing with land by it<sup>8</sup>.

A registered society which is a registered housing association<sup>1</sup> may not sell, lease, mortgage, charge or otherwise dispose of any land except with the consent of the relevant authority<sup>2</sup>, and such consent may be subject to conditions<sup>3</sup>. A similar prohibition applies to registered societies which are unregistered housing associations<sup>4</sup> in respect of grant-aided land<sup>5</sup>.

Where, in the case of a registered society which is a registered housing association, the relevant authority is satisfied, as the result of an inquiry or audit<sup>6</sup>, that there has been any misconduct or mismanagement in the society's administration, or that the management of the land belonging to the society would be improved if the land were transferred to another body, the relevant authority may<sup>7</sup> direct that transfer to be made<sup>8</sup>.

2496. Discharge of mortgages in the case of unregistered land.

Where a mortgage or other assurance of any property<sup>1</sup> in England or Wales has been made to a registered society, including a credit union, a receipt indorsed on or annexed to the mortgage or other assurance is deemed, on certain conditions, to be a receipt which fulfils the requirements of the Law of Property Act 1925<sup>2</sup> as to a receipt which will operate as a surrender or reconveyance and as a discharge of the mortgaged property<sup>3</sup>. The conditions are that the receipt must be (1) a receipt in full for all money secured on the property by the mortgage or other assurance<sup>4</sup>; (2) signed by two committee members and countersigned by the society's secretary, or, if the society is in liquidation, signed by the liquidator or liquidators for the time being, described as such<sup>5</sup>; and (3) in one of the statutory forms<sup>6</sup>, or in any other form specified in the society's rules or any schedule to the rules<sup>7</sup>.

On payment of all money intended to be secured to a registered society on the security of any property, the debtor or his successor or representatives is entitled to a receipt in the appropriate statutory form<sup>8</sup>.

2497. Discharge in the case of registered land.

An instrument of discharge of a charge made under the Land Registration Act 2002<sup>1</sup> in the required form<sup>2</sup> under the seal of a registered society and countersigned by the secretary has the same effect in vacating the mortgage and otherwise as a statutory receipt<sup>3</sup>.

1 As to charges generally see the Land Registration Act 2002 Pt 5 (ss 48-57); the Land Registration Rules 2003, SI 2003/1417, Pt 9 (rr 101-116); and LAND REGISTRATION vol 26 (2004 Reissue) PARA 943 et seq.

2 A discharge of a registered charge must be in the prescribed form, as must a release of part of the registered estate in a registered title from a registered charge; any discharge or release in the appropriate prescribed form must be executed as a deed or authenticated in such other manner as the Chief Land Registrar may approve; and an application to register such a discharge or release must be made in the prescribed form: see the Land Registration Rules 2003, SI 2003/1417, r 114(1), (2), (3), (5); and LAND REGISTRATION vol 26 (2004 Reissue) PARA 959. An application to register a discharge in Sch 1 Form DS1 must be made in Sch 1 Form AP1 or Sch 1 Form DS2 and an application to register a release in Sch 1 Form DS3 must be made in Sch 1 Form AP1: see r 114(5). However, during the currency of any notice under Sch 2 (see LAND REGISTRATION vol 26 (2004 Reissue) PARA 1077), and subject to and in accordance with the limitations contained in that notice, notification of the discharge of a registered charge, or of the release of part of a registered title in a registered title from a registered charge, may be delivered to the registrar in electronic form; and such notification so given is to be regarded as having the same effect as a discharge or a release of part in the appropriate prescribed form executed in accordance with the above requirements by or on behalf of the person who has delivered it to the registrar: see r 115(2). Notwithstanding these provisions, the registrar is entitled to accept and act upon any other proof of satisfaction of a charge that he may regard as sufficient: see r 114(4).

2499. Loans by credit unions.

A credit union may make a loan to a member<sup>1</sup>, upon such security (or without security) and on such terms as its rules may provide<sup>2</sup>. On the application of a member to a credit union, the loan is to be treated<sup>3</sup> as a secured loan where, at the time the loan is made, the member's paid-up shareholding in the credit union is equal to or greater than his total liability (including contingent liability) to the credit union, whether as borrower, guarantor or otherwise<sup>4</sup>.

The rules of a credit union must provide for the mode and circumstances in which loans to members are to be made and repaid, including any special provision for the insurance of members in relation to loans made to them<sup>5</sup>.

A credit union may charge interest on loans made by it but such interest must be at a rate not exceeding one per cent per month, or such other rate as may from time to time be specified<sup>6</sup>, on the amount of the loan outstanding; and such interest must be inclusive of all administrative and other expenses incurred in connection with the making of the loan<sup>7</sup>.

2500. Society's power to appoint proxy.

A registered society, including a credit union, which has invested any part of its funds in the shares or on the security of any other body corporate may appoint as proxy any one of its members notwithstanding that he is not personally a shareholder of that other body corporate<sup>1</sup>. During the continuance of his appointment, the member is taken by virtue thereof as holding the number of shares held by the society for all purposes other than the transfer of any such share or the giving of a receipt for any dividend<sup>2</sup>.

C. APPROPRIATION OF PROFITS

2501. Provision for appropriation of profits.

The rules of a registered society, other than a credit union, must provide for the mode of application of its profits<sup>1</sup>. Where a society seeks to be registered on the grounds that its business is being, or is intended to be, conducted for the benefit of the community<sup>2</sup>, the provisions in its rules as to profits must be consistent with this purpose<sup>3</sup>. The Financial Services Authority<sup>4</sup> requires that the rate of interest on share and loan capital be limited by the rules to a rate which approximates to the minimum necessary to obtain and retain the capital required to carry out the society's objects<sup>5</sup>. Where a society is registered on the grounds that it is a bona fide co-operative society<sup>6</sup>, the rules must similarly limit the amount of interest payable on share or loan capital, but in this case provision may be made for further distribution of profits among the members, provided that the further amount which each member is permitted to receive is related to the amount of profit made by the society in respect of his participation in its business<sup>7</sup>.

The dividends payable on any shares of a credit union must not exceed a rate of eight per cent per annum or such other rate as may from time to time be specified by order by the Treasury<sup>8</sup>.

INDUSTRIAL AND PROVIDENT SOCIETIES/(3) ADMINISTRATION, POWERS AND PROPERTY/(ii) Land and Investments/C. APPROPRIATION OF PROFITS/2502. Construction of provisions.

2502. Construction of provisions.

A registered society may appropriate profits to the furtherance of political ends, provided that those purposes are authorised by the rules<sup>1</sup>. A rule providing that profits may be applied to social or provident purposes, or any other purposes, whether within the objects for which the society is formed or not, limits the appropriation to purposes of a social and provident nature, and does not authorise expenditure for political purposes<sup>2</sup>. Where the object of a society is to carry on the trade of general dealers, manufacturers, farmers and workers of mines and minerals, a provision in the rules that profits may be applied either to increase the society's capital, reserve fund or business, or to any lawful purposes, does not authorise a payment out of profits to a workmen's strike fund, for such a payment is not an application of profits to a lawful purpose of the society consistent with its rules<sup>3</sup>.

The payment of an extra dividend to the surviving spouse of a member after the member's death as a matter of general practice and in accordance with rules passed for the purpose of authorising such payments does not constitute life assurance business so as to contravene the statutory restrictions upon the bodies which may carry on such a business<sup>4</sup>.

(iii) Nominations and Payments on Death

2503. Right of nomination.

Subject to certain restrictions<sup>1</sup>, a member of a registered society, including a credit union<sup>2</sup>, has the right to nominate a person or persons to become entitled at his death to his property in the society<sup>3</sup>. A registered society's rules must make provision for the payment of nominees<sup>4</sup>, and it is usual and desirable to set out in the rules the full statutory provisions relating to nomination. The nomination must be made by a written statement signed by the nominator<sup>5</sup> and delivered at or sent to the society's registered office during his lifetime or made in any book kept at that office<sup>6</sup>. The society must keep a book in which the names of all persons so nominated, and any revocation or variation of any nomination<sup>7</sup>, must be recorded<sup>8</sup>.

The nomination of a person who is at the date of the nomination an officer or servant of the society is not valid unless that person is the spouse, civil partner, father, mother, child, brother, sister, nephew or niece of the nominator<sup>9</sup>.

5 In Morton v French 1908 SC 171, decided under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1893 s 25(1) (repealed), which required 'a writing under his hand', it was held in Scotland that a nomination authenticated by a member's mark only and by the signatures of two witnesses was not a writing under his hand.

2504. Property to which nomination may be made; limits of amount.

Subject to limits as to the amount<sup>1</sup>, property the subject of a nomination may comprise the whole, or such part or respective parts as may be specified in the nomination, of any property in the society (whether in shares, loans or deposits or otherwise) which the nominator may have at the date of the nomination, in the case of a nomination made before 1 January 1914, or at the time of his death, in any other case<sup>2</sup>.

If the nomination was made before 1 January 1914 and at the date of the nomination the amount credited to the nominator in the society's books exceeded £100, the nomination is not valid<sup>3</sup>. If the nomination is made after 31 December 1913<sup>4</sup>, and at the date of the nominator's death occurring at any time thereafter the amount of his property in the society comprised in the nomination exceeds the relevant statutory limit<sup>5</sup> the nomination is valid to the extent of that limit, but not further or otherwise<sup>6</sup>.

1 See text to notes 3-5.

2 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 23(1). The Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1893 s 25(1) (repealed), as originally enacted, did not refer to property which the nominator might have at the time of his death; it was held that the property referred to in that Act was the property of the nominator at the date of the nomination and not at the date of death, and therefore a nomination was valid if at the date of the nomination the property did not exceed the current statutory limit, although it exceeded that limit at the date of death: Eccles Provident Industrial Co-operative Society Ltd v Griffiths [1912] AC 483, HL. The Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1893 s 25(1) (repealed) was replaced, in respect of all nominations made on or after 1 January 1914, by the Industrial and Provident Societies (Amendment) Act 1913 s 5(1) (repealed). The present statutory provisions re-enact the repealed provisions applying to nominations made before, and nominations made on or after, that date.

3 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 23(3)(a).

4 In the case of nominations made after 31 December 1913 and before 5 August 1954 it will be noted that, although the limit of the amount which may effectively be nominated depends upon the date of the nomination, this limit is applied to the value of the property comprised in the nomination at the date of death, and not at the date of nomination. In other cases the limit depends on the date of death. See the text to notes 5, 6.

5 The statutory limits are as follows: (1) where the nomination was made after 31 December 1913 and before 5 August 1954, £100 (Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 23(3)(b)); (2) where the death occurred after 4 August 1954 and before 5 September 1965, £200 (s 23(3)(c) (as originally enacted)); (3) where the death occurred after 4 September 1965 and before 10 August 1975, £500 (s 23(3)(c) (formerly amended to this effect by the Administration of Estates (Small Payments) Act 1965 Sch 2)); (4) where the death occurred after 9 August 1975 and before 11 April 1984, £1,500 (Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 23(3)(c)

(formerly amended to this effect by the Administration of Estates (Small Payments) Act 1965 Sch 2; and SI 1975/1137); (5) where the death occurred after 10 April 1984, £5,000 (Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 23(3)(c) (amended by virtue of SI 1984/539)). The Treasury may by order further increase the limit: see the Administration of Estates (Small Payments) Act 1965 s 6. As to the application of these limits see note 4. As to the Treasury see PARA 3; and CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 512 et seq.

INDUSTRIAL AND PROVIDENT SOCIETIES/(3) ADMINISTRATION, POWERS AND PROPERTY/(iii) Nominations and Payments on Death/2505. Revocation or variation of nomination.

2505. Revocation or variation of nomination.

A nomination by a member of a registered society, including a credit union, may be varied or revoked by a subsequent nomination made by him<sup>1</sup>, or by any similar document in the nature of a revocation or variation signed by him and delivered at or sent to the society's registered office during his lifetime, but a nomination is not revocable or variable by the will of the nominator or by any codicil to that will<sup>2</sup>.

The marriage of a member operates as a revocation of any nomination made by him before the marriage and after 31 December 1913<sup>3</sup>; but if any property of that member has been transferred by an officer of the society in pursuance of the nomination in ignorance of a marriage contracted by the nominator subsequent to the date of the nomination, the receipt of the nominee is a valid discharge to the society, and the society is under no liability to any other person claiming the property<sup>4</sup>.

The formation of a civil partnership by a member of a society revokes any nomination made by him before the formation of the civil partnership; but if any property of that member has been transferred by an officer of the society in pursuance of the nomination in ignorance of a civil partnership formed by the nominator after the date of the nomination, the receipt of the nominee is a valid discharge to the society, and the society is under no liability to any other person claiming the property<sup>5</sup>.

The death of the nominee in the nominator's lifetime has the effect of defeating the nomination, so that on the nominator's death his personal representative is entitled to the property<sup>6</sup>.

2506. Proceedings on death of nominator.

On receiving satisfactory proof<sup>1</sup> of the death of a member who has made a nomination, and if and to the extent that the nomination is valid<sup>2</sup>, the society's committee<sup>3</sup> must in the case of each person entitled under the nomination either transfer to him, or pay him the full value of, any property to which he is so entitled<sup>4</sup>. Where any of the property comprised in the nomination consists of shares in the society, this provision has effect notwithstanding that the society's rules declare that its shares are not to be transferable<sup>5</sup>; but if the transfer of any shares comprised in the nomination in the manner directed by the nominator would raise the share capital of any nominee beyond the maximum for the time being permitted in the case of that society<sup>6</sup>, the committee may not transfer to the nominee more of those shares than will raise his share capital to that maximum, and must pay him the value of any of those shares not transferred<sup>7</sup>. There is a presumption that the nominee is intended to take beneficially, but it is a question depending on evidence, and the nominator's personal representatives may in a proper case demand repayment from the nominee<sup>8</sup>, subject, it may be, to sums expended by the nominee for doctors' fees and funeral expenses in respect of the nominator<sup>9</sup>.

2507. Payment when nominee is a minor.

Where any sum falls to be paid under a valid nomination to a nominee who is under 16 years of age, the society may pay that sum to either parent, or to a guardian, of the nominee or to any other person of full age who will undertake to hold it in trust for the nominee or to apply it for his benefit and whom the society may think a fit and proper person for the purpose, and the receipt of that parent, guardian or other person is a sufficient discharge to the society for all money so paid<sup>1</sup>.

There is no statutory provision for dealing in a similar way with money the subject of a nomination where the nominee is a minor of 16 years or over, and no provision enabling such a minor to give the society a valid receipt<sup>2</sup>. It may be that a registered society in this case would be unable to pay the sum in question while the nominee remained a minor.

If a deceased member of a registered society does not leave a nomination subsisting at his death, his property in the society will pass, in accordance with the general law, to his personal representatives<sup>1</sup>.

If any member of a registered society dies and at his death his property in the society in respect of shares, loans or deposits does not exceed in the whole £5,000 and is not the subject of any nomination, the society's committee<sup>2</sup> may, without letters of administration or probate of any will, distribute that property among such persons as appear to the committee, on such evidence as it deems satisfactory, to be entitled by law to receive it<sup>3</sup>.

If, however, such a deceased member was illegitimate and leaves no widow, widower, surviving civil partner or issue (including any illegitimate child of the member) and neither of his parents survives him, the committee must deal with his property in the society as the Treasury directs<sup>4</sup>.

A. THE LEGISLATION

2512. Statutory requirements.

The obligations of registered societies<sup>1</sup> as to accounts, audit and annual returns are governed, for the most part, by the Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968<sup>2</sup>. Notwithstanding anything in the rules of any registered society, the society's committee<sup>3</sup> may, up to the date on which an amendment of the society's rules is first registered<sup>4</sup> after 26 July 1968, pass a resolution making such amendments of the rules as may be consequential on the provisions of that Act<sup>5</sup>. The Financial Services Authority<sup>6</sup> is not required to register any amendment of a society's rules unless the amendments consequential on the Act either have been made before the application for registration of that amendment or are to be effected by that amendment<sup>7</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2395. As to credit unions see PARA 2402.

2 The Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 either replaces or amends the requirements as to accounts, audit and returns contained in the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965. The Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 formerly applied also to the accounts, audit, returns and valuations of registered friendly societies, but in that respect it is now repealed and the relevant provisions are contained in the Friendly Societies Act 1974: see PARA 2113 et seq. The definition of 'society' in the Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 is now confined to societies registered, or deemed to be registered (see PARA 2396), under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965: see the Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 s 21(1), (4)(b) (definition amended by the Friendly Societies Act 1974 Sch 11). The Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 applies to credit unions except in so far as the Credit Unions Act 1979 provides otherwise: see the Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 s 23(2) (amended by SI 2001/3647); and see generally PARA 2402 note 9. As to the geographical extent of the Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 and the fact that it is to be construed as one with the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 see PARA 2397. As to offences under the Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 see PARA 2556.

B. ACCOUNTS AND AUDIT

2513. Obligation to keep accounts.

Every registered society, including a credit union, must cause to be kept such proper books of account with respect to its transactions, assets and liabilities as are necessary to give a true and fair view of the state of the affairs of the society and to explain its transactions<sup>1</sup>. It must also establish and maintain a satisfactory system of control of its books of account, cash holdings and all receipts and remittances<sup>2</sup>. Books of account may be kept either by making entries in bound books or by recording the matters in question in any other manner<sup>3</sup>.

In respect of each year of account<sup>4</sup>, every registered society must cause to be prepared either a revenue account dealing with the affairs of the society as a whole for that year<sup>5</sup>, or two or more revenue accounts for that year dealing separately with particular businesses conducted by the society<sup>6</sup>. Every balance sheet of a society must give a true and fair view as at the date of the balance sheet of the state of affairs of the society<sup>7</sup>.

Failure by a committee member of a registered society to take reasonable steps to secure compliance with any of these provisions may be an offence<sup>8</sup>.

1 Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 s 1(1)(a), (2). As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2395. As to credit unions see PARA 2402.

2 Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 s 1(1)(b).

3 Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 s 2(1). Where a book of account is not kept by making entries in a bound book but by some other means, the society must take adequate precautions for guarding against falsification and facilitating its discovery: s 2(2).

4 'Year of account' means any period required by statute to be included in an annual return of the society (see PARA 2523); Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 s 21(1). In relation to the appointment of an auditor or auditors (see PARA 2514), the 'current year of account' means the year of account in which the question of that appointment arises; and the 'preceding year of account' means the year of account immediately preceding the current year of account: s 21(3).

5 Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 s 3(2)(a). Every revenue account dealing with the affairs of the society as a whole must give a true and fair view of the income and expenditure of the society as a whole for the period to which the account relates: s 3(1)(a).

6 Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 s 3(2)(b). A revenue account dealing with a particular business conducted by the society must give a true and fair view of the society's income and expenditure in respect of that business for the period to which the account relates: s 3(1)(b). In a case concerning two or more revenue accounts, those accounts, when considered together, must give a true and fair view of the income and expenditure of the society as a whole for the year of account to which they relate: s 3(3).

2513 Obligation to keep accounts

TEXT AND NOTES 4-8--The Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 s 3 does not apply to industrial and provident societies that are insurance undertakings: see the Insurance Accounts Directive (Miscellaneous Insurance Undertakings) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/565, Sch 1 paras 1, 2. As to the definition of 'insurance undertaking' see COMPANIES vol 15 (2009) PARA 701.

INDUSTRIAL AND PROVIDENT SOCIETIES/(3) ADMINISTRATION, POWERS AND PROPERTY/(v) Accounts and Annual Returns/B. ACCOUNTS AND AUDIT/2514. Appointment and removal of auditors.

2514. Appointment and removal of auditors.

In each year of account<sup>1</sup> every registered society, other than a society which is exempt from or has disapplied this requirement<sup>2</sup>, must appoint one or more qualified auditors<sup>3</sup> to audit its accounts and balance sheet for that year<sup>4</sup>.

Subject to any direction given by the Financial Services Authority<sup>5</sup>, every registered society which is exempt in respect of the current year of account<sup>6</sup> may appoint either one or more qualified auditors or two or more persons who are not qualified auditors to audit its accounts and balance sheet for that year<sup>7</sup>.

No person is a qualified auditor for these purposes unless he is eligible for appointment as a statutory auditor<sup>8</sup>. A person who is an officer or servant<sup>9</sup> of a society, or a person who is a partner of, or in the employment of, or who employs, an officer or servant of a society, may not be appointed auditor of that society<sup>10</sup>.

A qualified auditor appointed for the preceding year of account<sup>11</sup> is automatically re-appointed for the current year of account<sup>12</sup> unless (1) a resolution is passed at a general meeting of the society appointing someone else or providing expressly that he is not to be re-appointed<sup>13</sup>; (2) he has given written notice to the society of his unwillingness to be re-appointed<sup>14</sup>; (3) he is ineligible for appointment as auditor of the society for the current year of account<sup>15</sup>; or (4) he has ceased to act as auditor of the society by reason of incapacity<sup>16</sup>. A resolution at a general meeting of a registered society appointing another person as auditor in place of a retiring qualified auditor, or providing expressly that a retiring qualified auditor is not to be re-appointed, is not effective unless notice of the intention to move the resolution has been given to the society at least 28 days before the meeting at which it is moved<sup>17</sup>. Where notice of the intention to move any such resolution has been given to a society which is required by its rules to give notice to members<sup>18</sup> of the meeting at which the resolution is to be moved, the society must, if it is practicable to do so, give them notice of the resolution at the same time and in the same manner as it gives notice of the meeting<sup>19</sup>. Where notice of the resolution is not so given, the society must give notice of it to members at least 14 days before the meeting at which the resolution is to be moved, either by advertisement in a newspaper having an appropriate circulation, or in any other way allowed by the rules<sup>20</sup>.

On receiving notice of intention to move a resolution at a general meeting appointing another person as auditor in place of a retiring qualified auditor, or providing expressly that a retiring qualified auditor is not to be re-appointed, a society must forthwith send a copy of the notice to the retiring auditor<sup>21</sup>. On receiving a copy of the notice, the retiring auditor may, at any time before the date of the general meeting, make written representations, not exceeding a reasonable length, to the society with respect to the intended resolution<sup>22</sup>, and may notify it that he intends to make such representations<sup>23</sup> and request that notice of his intention, or of any such representations made by him and received by it before notice of the intended resolution is given to members, be given to the members<sup>24</sup>. A society which receives such representations or notification of intended representations before the date when notice of the intended resolution is required to be given to members<sup>25</sup> must, in any notice of the resolution given to members, state that it has received the representations or notification<sup>26</sup> and that any member may receive, on demand made before the date of the general meeting, a copy of any representations which have been or may be received by the society before that date<sup>27</sup>. Unless the High Court is satisfied that the retiring auditor's rights are being abused to secure needless publicity for defamatory matter<sup>28</sup>, the society must, on demand by a member made before the date of the meeting, send him a copy of any representations received before that date<sup>29</sup>, and the retiring auditor may, in addition, require that they are to be read out at the meeting<sup>30</sup>. He also has a right to be heard orally<sup>31</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'year of account' see PARA 2513 note 4.

2 As to the exempt societies see note 4. As to societies which have disappplied the requirement under the Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 s 4A see note 4. As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2395. As to credit unions see PARA 2402.

3 As to the meaning of 'qualified auditor' see the text to notes 8-10.

4 Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 s 4(1) (amended by SI 1996/1738).

The Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 s 4(1) does not apply to any society if (1) its receipts and payments in respect of the preceding year of account did not in the aggregate exceed £5,000; (2) the number of members at the end of that year did not exceed 500; and (3) the value of its assets at the end of that year did not in the aggregate exceed £5,000: s 4(2) (amended by the Friendly Societies Act 1974 Sch 11). Regulations made by the Treasury may prescribe what receipts and payments of a society are to be taken into account for this purpose and may substitute a different sum or number for any of those mentioned: Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 s 4(8) (amended by the Friendly Societies Act 1974 Sch 11; and SI 2001/2617). As to the making of regulations under the Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 see PARA 2399. At the date at which this volume states the law, no regulations had been made under s 4. As to the Treasury see PARA 3; and CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 512 et seq.

A registered society may disapply s 4 in relation to any year of account beginning on or after 1 September 1996 if (a) the value of its assets at the end of the preceding year of account did not in the aggregate exceed £2,800,000; and (b) its turnover for that year did not exceed £5,600,000 (or in the case of a charity, its gross income did not exceed £250,000) (such sums proportionately adjusted in the case of a year of account which is not in fact a year): s 4A(1), (6), (7) (s 4A added by SI 1996/1738; Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 s 4A(1) amended by SI 2001/2617; and SI 2006/265). 'Turnover', in relation to a society, means the amounts derived from the provision of goods and services falling within the society's activities, after deduction of trade discounts, value added tax, and any other taxes based on the amounts so derived: Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 s 4A(8) (as so added). The power in s 4A(1) is exercisable by resolution passed at a general meeting at which less than 20% of the total votes cast are cast against the resolution, and less than 10% of the members of the society entitled under the society's rules to vote cast their votes against the resolution: s 4A(2) (as so added). The power does not apply to credit unions; societies which are, or have, subsidiaries; societies which prepare accounts under the Insurance Accounts Directive (Miscellaneous Insurance Undertakings) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3245; or societies which hold, or at any time since the end of the preceding year of account, have held, a deposit, other than a deposit in the form of withdrawable share capital: Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 s 4A(3) (as so added; and amended by the Housing Act 2004 Sch 16; and SI 2001/3649). In the Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 s 4A(3), the reference to a deposit must be read with the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 s 22, any relevant order under that provision and Sch 2 (see PARAS 84-85): Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 s 4A(9) (added by SI 2001/3649). See also PARA 2515.

The Financial Services Authority may by notice to a society disapply the Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 s 4A(1) in relation to the year of account of the society in which the notice is given: s 4A(4) (as so added; s 4A(4), (5) amended by SI 2001/2617). Where a society exercises the power conferred by the Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 s 4A(1), the disapplication ceases to have effect if, at any time before the end of the year of account to which it relates, the society becomes one to which s 4A(3) applies, or the Authority gives the society notice under s 4A(4): s 4A(5) (as so added and amended). As to the Financial Services Authority in regard to registered societies see PARA 2410. As to the Authority generally see PARAS 4, 6 et seq.

5 In the case of any particular society which is exempt in respect of the current year of account, the Authority may direct it to appoint a qualified auditor to audit its accounts and balance sheet for that year: Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 s 4(6) (s 4(6), (7) amended by SI 2001/2617). As to the meaning of 'current year of account' see PARA 2513 note 4. In the case of any particular society which was exempt in respect of any earlier year of account, and which did not appoint any qualified auditors to audit its accounts and balance sheet for that year, the Authority may direct it to appoint a qualified auditor to audit those accounts and that balance sheet: s 4(7)(a) (as so amended). Where that society has already sent an annual return to the Authority (see PARA 2523) for the year in question, it may direct that, after the accounts and balance sheet have been audited by a qualified auditor, a further annual return is to be sent within three months from the date of the receipt of the direction: s 4(7)(b) (as so amended; and further amended by the Friendly Societies Act 1974 Sch 11). As to the penalty for failure to comply see PARAS 2547, 2556.

6 A society to which, by virtue of the Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 s 4(2) (see note 4), s 4(1) (see the text and notes 1-4) does not apply in respect of any year of account is referred to as an exempt society in respect of that year of account: s 4(4) (amended by the Friendly Societies Act 1974 Sch 11). As to the exempt societies see note 4. See also the Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 s 4A; and note 4.

7 Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 s 4(5) (amended by SI 2001/2617).

8 Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 s 7(1) (amended by SI 1991/1997; SI 2001/2617; and SI 2008/948). As to eligibility for appointment as a statutory auditor see the Companies Act 2006 Pt 42 (ss 1209-1264); and COMPANIES vol 15 (2009) para 957 et seq.

9 For this purpose 'officer or servant' does not include an auditor: Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 s 8(5).

10 Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 s 8(1)(a), (b). A person may also not be appointed as auditor of a society if (1) by virtue of s 8(1) he is prohibited from being appointed as auditor of a society which is a subsidiary of that society, or of which that society is a subsidiary, or which is a subsidiary of the society of which that society is a subsidiary (s 8(2)(a)); or (2) he is prohibited by the Companies Act 2006 s 1214 (independence requirement) (see COMPANIES vol 15 (2009) para 971) from acting as a statutory auditor of a company which is a subsidiary of that society (Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 s 8(2)(b) (substituted by SI 1991/1997; and amended by SI 2008/948)). As to the meaning of 'subsidiary' see PARAS 2517-2518. 'Company' includes any body corporate other than a registered society: Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 ss 8(5), 15(9). Any appointment made in contravention of any of the provisions of s 8 is not an effective appointment for the purposes of the Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968: s 8(4).

11 As to the meaning of 'preceding year of account' see PARA 2513 note 4.

12 As to the meaning of 'current year of account' see PARA 2513 note 4.

13 Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 s 5(1)(a). Where notice is given of an intended resolution to appoint some person or persons in place of a retiring auditor, and the resolution cannot be proceeded with at the meeting because of the death or incapacity of that person or those persons, or because he or they are ineligible for appointment (see note 15) for the current year of account, the retiring auditor is not automatically re-appointed: s 5(1) proviso.

14 Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 s 5(1)(b).

15 Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 s 5(1)(c). For this purpose a person is ineligible for appointment as auditor for the current year of account if, but only if, his appointment is prohibited by s 8 (see the text to notes 9-10) (s 5(2)(a)), or, in the case of a society which is not an exempt society in respect of that year of account, he is not a qualified auditor at the time when the question of his appointment falls to be considered (s 5(2)(b)). As to exempt societies see note 4.

16 Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 s 5(1)(d).

17 Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 s 6(1) (amended by the Friendly Societies Act 1971 Schs 2, 3). Where, however, for any of the reasons referred to in note 13 an intended resolution to appoint some person or persons in place of a retiring qualified auditor cannot be proceeded with at the meeting, and the society's rules provide that an auditor can be appointed only by a resolution passed at a general meeting after notice of the intended resolution has been given to the society before the meeting, a resolution passed at that meeting re-appointing the retiring auditor or appointing another auditor in his place is effective notwithstanding that no notice of the resolution has been given to the society under its rules: Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 s 6(4).

18 Any reference in these provisions to requiring notice to be given to the members of a society, or conferring any right upon a member, is to be construed, in the case of a meeting of delegates appointed by members, as requiring the notice to be given to the delegates so appointed, or as conferring the right upon a delegate: see Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 s 6(10). As to meetings of delegates see PARA 2478. As to the rules generally see PARA 2423 et seq.

INDUSTRIAL AND PROVIDENT SOCIETIES/(3) ADMINISTRATION, POWERS AND PROPERTY/(v) Accounts and Annual Returns/B. ACCOUNTS AND AUDIT/2515. Conduct of audit; auditors' remuneration.

2515. Conduct of audit; auditors' remuneration.

The auditors of a registered society must make a report to the society on the accounts examined by them, and on the revenue account or accounts and the balance sheet for the year of account<sup>1</sup> in respect of which they are appointed<sup>2</sup>. The report must state whether the revenue account or accounts and the balance sheet for that year comply with the statutory requirements<sup>3</sup> as to keeping accounts<sup>4</sup>; and whether in the auditors' opinion: (1) the revenue account or accounts give a true and fair view, in accordance with those requirements, of the income and expenditure of the society as a whole for that year of account and, in the case of each such account which deals with a particular business conducted by the society, a true and fair view, in accordance with those requirements, of the society's income and expenditure in respect of that business for that year<sup>5</sup>; and (2) the balance sheet gives a true and fair view, in accordance with those requirements, of the state of the affairs of the society as at the end of that year of account<sup>6</sup>.

In preparing their report, the auditors have a duty to carry out such investigations as will enable them to form an opinion on whether the society has kept proper books of account<sup>7</sup> and maintained a satisfactory system of control over its transactions<sup>8</sup>, and whether the revenue account or accounts, the other accounts (if any) to which the report relates, and the balance sheet are in agreement with the books of account<sup>9</sup>. If the auditors are not satisfied on any of these matters, they must state that fact in their report<sup>10</sup>; and if they fail to obtain all the information and explanations which, to the best of their knowledge and belief, are necessary for the purposes of their audit, that fact also must be stated in their report<sup>11</sup>.

Every auditor of a registered society has a right of access at all times to the society's books, deeds and accounts and to all other documents relating to its affairs<sup>12</sup>, and is entitled to require from the officers such information and explanations as he thinks necessary for the performance of his duties<sup>13</sup>. The auditors are also entitled to attend any general meetings and to receive all notices of, and other communications relating to, general meetings which any member of the society is entitled to receive<sup>14</sup>; and at any meeting which they attend they are entitled to be heard on any part of the business of the meeting which concerns them as auditors<sup>15</sup>.

Where a society has disapplied the requirement to appoint an auditor<sup>16</sup> and its turnover<sup>17</sup> in the preceding year of account<sup>18</sup> exceeded a certain amount<sup>19</sup>, it must appoint an appropriate person<sup>20</sup> within 28 days from the end of the year of account to make: (a) a report<sup>21</sup> on the society's accounts and balance sheet for the year; and (b) a report<sup>22</sup> relating to the preceding year of account<sup>23</sup>. The Financial Services Authority<sup>24</sup> may give a direction to a society, in respect of any relevant year of account<sup>25</sup> of the society preceding that in which the direction is given, requiring it to appoint a qualified auditor or qualified auditors to audit its accounts and balance sheet for that year and, where an annual return was submitted before the direction was given, to send the Authority a further annual return within three months from receipt of the direction complying with statutory requirements<sup>26</sup>.

Maximum rates of remuneration to be paid by registered societies for the audit of their accounts and balance sheets by qualified auditors or for the making of certain reports<sup>27</sup> may be prescribed by regulations made by the Treasury<sup>28</sup>. No auditor or reporting accountant may ask for or receive or is entitled to receive remuneration in excess of the rate so prescribed in respect of his services<sup>29</sup>.

Provision must be made in the rules of every registered society for the audit of accounts by one or more auditors appointed in accordance with the statutory requirements<sup>30</sup>.

18 As to the meaning of 'preceding year of account' see PARA 2513 note 4.

19 Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 s 9A(1) (as added: see note 17). The amount referred to in the text is £90,000: see s 9A(1) (as so added).

As to the application of s 9A to registered social landlords which are industrial and provident societies (ie registered societies) see the Housing Act 1996 s 7, Sch 1 Pt III para 17, removing the turnover requirements; and HOUSING vol 22 (2006 Reissue) PARA 88.

20 The reference to an appropriate person is to a person who is a qualified auditor for the purposes of the Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968, and is not ineligible by virtue of s 8(1) (see PARA 2514): s 9A(5) (as added: see note 17). As to the rights of the person appointed see note 23.

21 This report must (1) state whether, in the opinion of the person making the report, the revenue account or accounts, the other accounts (if any) to which the report relates, and the balance sheet, are in agreement with the books of account kept by the society under the Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 s 1 (see PARA 2513); and (2) state whether, in that person's opinion, on the basis of the information contained in those books of account, the revenue account or accounts and the balance sheet comply with the requirements of the Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 and the appropriate registration Act: s 9A(3) (as added: see note 17).

22 This report must state whether in the opinion of the person making the report the financial criteria for the exercise of the power conferred by the Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 s 4A(1) (see PARA 2514 note 4) were met in relation to the year: s 9A(4) (as added: see note 17).

23 Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 s 9A(2) (as added: see note 17). For the purposes of his appointment, a person appointed under s 9A(2): (1) must have a right of access at all times to the books, deeds and accounts of the relevant society, and to all other documents relating to its affairs; and (2) is entitled to require from the officers of the relevant society such information and explanations as he thinks necessary: s 9B(1) (as so added). References to the relevant society, in relation to a person appointed under s 9A(2), are to the society responsible for his appointment under that provision: s 9B(5) (as so added).

If a person appointed under s 9A(2) fails to obtain all the information and explanations which, to the best of that person's knowledge and belief, are necessary for the purposes of doing what he has been appointed to do, that fact must be stated in his report: s 9B(2) (as so added).

A person appointed under s 9A(2) is entitled (a) to receive notice of, and attend, any general meeting of the relevant society at which any relevant matter is discussed; and (b) to be heard at any such general meeting which he attends on any part of the business of the meeting which relates to any relevant matter: s 9B(3) (as so added). For the above purposes, the following are relevant matters: (i) any report of the person appointed under s 9A(2); and (ii) any matter which is relevant to what that person has been appointed under that provision to do: s 9B(4) (as so added).

24 As to the Financial Services Authority in regard to registered societies see PARA 2410. As to the Authority generally see PARAS 4, 6 et seq.

25 For these purposes, a year of account of a society is a relevant year of account if it is one at the end of which there is in force in relation to it a disapplication under the Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 s 4A(1) (see PARA 2514 note 4): s 9C(2) (as added: see note 17).

26 Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 s 9C(1) (as added (see note 17); and amended by SI 2001/2617). ### 2516. Exhibiting and publication of accounts and balance sheet.

A registered society must not publish any revenue account or balance sheet unless it has been signed by the secretary of the society and by two members of the committee of the society acting on behalf of that committee<sup>1</sup>.

Where at the end of a society's year of account<sup>2</sup> no disapplication under the Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968<sup>3</sup> is in force in relation to the year, the society must not publish a year end revenue account or balance sheet<sup>4</sup> unless (1) it has been previously audited by the auditor or auditors last appointed to audit the accounts and balance sheet of the society; and (2) it incorporates a report by the auditor or auditors stating whether in his or their opinion it complies with the relevant statutory provision in regard to giving a true and fair view<sup>5</sup>. Where at the beginning of a year of account (the 'current year of account') a society is subject to the provision set out above<sup>6</sup> in relation to the publication of a year end revenue account or balance sheet for the preceding year of account, it must not publish any interim revenue account or balance sheet<sup>7</sup> for the current year of account (a) if a disapplication<sup>8</sup> is in force in relation to that year, unless it incorporates a report by an appropriate person<sup>9</sup> stating whether in his opinion it complies with the relevant statutory provision in regard to giving a true and fair view<sup>10</sup>; and (b) if no such disapplication is in force in relation to that year, unless heads (1) and (2) above are met in relation to it<sup>11</sup>.

Where at the end of a society's year of account a disapplication<sup>12</sup> is in force in relation to the year and the society's turnover<sup>13</sup> in the preceding year of account exceeded the relevant amount<sup>14</sup>, the society must not publish a year end revenue account or balance sheet unless (i) it is one on which the society has obtained from the appropriate person<sup>15</sup> a report which meets the relevant requirements<sup>16</sup>; and (ii) it incorporates so much of the report as relates to it<sup>17</sup>. Where at the beginning of a year of account (the 'current year of account') a society is subject to the provision set out above<sup>18</sup> in relation to the publication of a year end revenue account or balance sheet for the preceding year of account, it must not publish any interim revenue account or balance sheet for the current year of account unless it incorporates a report by an appropriate person<sup>19</sup> stating (A) whether, in his opinion, the revenue account or, as the case may be, the balance sheet, is in agreement with the books of account kept by the society<sup>20</sup>; and (B) whether, in his opinion, on the basis of the information contained in those books of account, the revenue account or, as the case may be, the balance sheet complies with the requirements of the Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 and the appropriate registration Act<sup>21</sup>.

Where a society's year of account is one in relation to which a direction by the Financial Services Authority<sup>22</sup> has effect, the society must not publish any year end or interim revenue account or balance sheet, unless it incorporates a report by the auditor or auditors appointed in pursuance of the direction stating whether in his or their opinion it complies with the relevant statutory provision in regard to giving a true and fair view<sup>23</sup>.

A credit union may display at its registered office, but only at that office, an unaudited interim revenue account or balance sheet, subject to compliance with certain conditions<sup>24</sup>.

Every registered society must keep a copy of the latest balance sheet of the society hung up at all times in a conspicuous position at its registered office<sup>25</sup>.

Failure to comply with these requirements is an offence<sup>26</sup>.

1 Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 s 3A(1) (s 3A added by SI 1996/1738). As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2395. As to credit unions see PARA 2402. As to the revenue account and the balance sheet see PARA 2513. As to the secretary and the committee see PARA 2458.

3 Ie under the Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 s 4A(1): see PARA 2514 note 4.

4 'Year end revenue account', in relation to a year of account, means a revenue account for the year or for any period falling within the year of account and ending at the end of the year; and 'year end balance sheet', in relation to a year of account, means a balance sheet relating to the position at the end of the year: Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 s 3A(12) (as added: see note 1).

5 Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 s 3A(2) (as added: see note 1). The reference is to whether it complies with either s 3(1) or, as the case may be, s 3(4): see PARA 2513.

6 Ie the Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 s 3A(2): see the text and notes 2-5.

7 'Interim revenue account', in relation to a year of account, means a revenue account for any period falling within the year of account, other than one ending at the end of the year; and 'interim balance sheet', in relation to a year of account, means a balance sheet relating to the position at a time in the year other than the end: Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 s 3A(12) (as added: see note 1).

8 Ie under the Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 s 4A(1): see PARA 2514 note 4. In s 3A(4), references to a disapplication under s 4A(1) being in force in relation to a year of account, where the year of account has ended, are to be construed as references to a disapplication under that provision being in force at the end of the year: s 3A(9) (as added: see note 1).

9 Subject to the Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 s 3A(11), in s 3A(4), (5) references to an appropriate person are to a person who is (1) a qualified auditor for the purposes of the Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968; and (2) not ineligible by virtue of s 8(1) (see PARA 2514) to be appointed as auditor of the society: s 3A(10) (as added: see note 1). In relation to the application of s 3A(4) to a society which was an exempt society (ie under s 4(4): see PARA 2514) in respect of the preceding year of account, and appointed persons who were not qualified auditors to audit its accounts and balance sheet for that year, s 3A(10), if the year is not one in relation to which the Financial Services Authority has given a direction under s 4(7)(a) (see PARA 2514 note 5), has effect with the omission of head (1) above: s 3A(11) (as so added; and amended by SI 2001/2617). As to the Financial Services Authority in regard to registered societies see PARA 2410. As to the Authority generally see PARAS 4, 6 et seq.

C. GROUP ACCOUNTS

2517. Subsidiary companies.

For the purposes of the statutory provisions as to a registered society's accounts<sup>1</sup>, a company<sup>2</sup> is deemed to be a subsidiary of a society if, but only if, the society either is a member of the company and controls the composition of its board of directors<sup>3</sup>, or holds more than half in nominal value of the company's equity share capital<sup>4</sup>.

A credit union is not permitted to have any subsidiary<sup>5</sup>.

1 In the Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968. As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2395.

2 For this purpose 'company' includes any body corporate other than a registered society: Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 s 15(9).

3 Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 s 15(1)(a). The composition of a company's board of directors is deemed to be controlled by a society if, but only if, by the exercise of some power exercisable by it without the consent or concurrence of any other person, the society can appoint or remove the holders of all or of a majority of the directorships: s 15(2). For this purpose a society is deemed to have power to appoint to a directorship if: (1) a person cannot be appointed to the directorship without the exercise in his favour by the society of a power exercisable by it without the consent or concurrence of any other person; or (2) a person's appointment to the directorship follows necessarily from his appointment as a committee member of the society; or (3) the directorship is held by the society itself: s 15(3).

4 Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 s 15(1)(b). In relation to a company, 'equity share capital' means its issued share capital excluding any part which, neither as respects dividends nor as respects capital, carries any right to participate beyond a specified amount in a distribution: s 15(9). In determining whether a company is a subsidiary of a society: (1) any shares held or power exercisable by the society in a fiduciary capacity are treated as not held or exercisable by it (s 15(4)(a)); (2) (subject to heads (3) and (4) below) any shares held or power exercisable by any person as a nominee for the society, except where the society is concerned only in a fiduciary capacity, are treated as held or exercisable by the society (s 15(4)(b)); (3) any shares held or power exercisable by any person by virtue of the provisions of any debentures of the company or of a trust deed for securing any issue of such debentures are disregarded (s 15(4)(c)); (4) any shares held or power exercisable by, or by a nominee for, the society (not being held or exercisable as mentioned in head (3) above) are treated as not held or exercisable by the society if its ordinary business includes the lending of money and the shares are held or power is exercisable as mentioned above by way of security only for the purposes of a transaction entered into in the ordinary course of that business (s 15(4)(d)).

INDUSTRIAL AND PROVIDENT SOCIETIES/(3) ADMINISTRATION, POWERS AND PROPERTY/(v) Accounts and Annual Returns/C. GROUP ACCOUNTS/2518. Subsidiary societies.

2518. Subsidiary societies.

For the purposes of the statutory provisions as to a registered society's accounts<sup>1</sup>, a registered society is deemed to be a subsidiary of another such society if, but only if, that other society either is a member of the first-mentioned society and controls the composition of its committee<sup>2</sup>, or can exercise a majority of the votes to which members of the first-mentioned society are entitled under its rules<sup>3</sup>.

1     Ie the Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968. As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2395.

2     Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 s 15(5)(a). The composition of a society's committee is deemed to be controlled by another society if, but only if: (1) by the exercise of some power exercisable by it without the consent or concurrence of any other person, that other society can appoint and remove the members or a majority of the members of that committee; or (2) that other society is itself a member of that committee and by the exercise of a power exercisable by it without the consent or concurrence of any other person can either appoint and remove the remaining committee members or appoint and remove such number of committee members as, together with itself, would constitute a majority of the committee members: s 15(6). For these purposes, a society is deemed to have power to appoint a person to membership of the committee of another society if (a) he cannot be appointed without the exercise in his favour by the first-mentioned society of a power exercisable by it without the consent or concurrence of any other person; or (b) his appointment follows necessarily from his appointment as a committee member of the first-mentioned society: s 15(7).

3     Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 s 15(5)(b). The provisions of s 15(4) (see PARA 2517 note 4) apply, with the necessary modifications, in determining whether one registered society is a subsidiary of another: s 15(8). A credit union may not have any subsidiary within the meaning of s 15: see the Credit Unions Act 1979 s 26; and PARA 2517. As to credit unions see PARA 2402. As to the rules generally see PARA 2423 et seq.

TEXT AND NOTES--The Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 s 15 does not apply to industrial and provident societies that are insurance undertakings: see the Insurance Accounts Directive (Miscellaneous Insurance undertakings) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/565, Sch 1 paras 1, 15. INDUSTRIAL AND PROVIDENT SOCIETIES/(3) ADMINISTRATION, POWERS AND PROPERTY/(v) Accounts and Annual Returns/C. GROUP ACCOUNTS/2519. Obligation to prepare group accounts.

2519. Obligation to prepare group accounts.

Where at the end of a year of account<sup>1</sup> a registered society has subsidiaries<sup>2</sup>, then, unless exempt from this requirement<sup>3</sup>, it must cause group accounts to be prepared for that year dealing with the state of affairs and income and expenditure of the society and its subsidiaries<sup>4</sup>.

This requirement does not apply to a registered society which, at the end of its year of account, is the wholly owned subsidiary of another body corporate incorporated in Great Britain<sup>5</sup>. The group accounts of any registered society need not deal with a subsidiary if in the opinion of the society's committee, approved by the Financial Services Authority<sup>6</sup>: (1) it is impracticable, or would be of no real value to members of the society, in view of the insignificant amounts involved, or would involve expense or delay out of proportion to the value to members<sup>7</sup>; or (2) the result would be misleading, or harmful to the business of the society or any of its subsidiaries<sup>8</sup>; or (3) the business of the society and that of the subsidiary are so different that they cannot reasonably be treated as a single undertaking<sup>9</sup>. If the society's committee is of any such opinion in respect of each of its subsidiaries, and that opinion is approved by the Authority, the society is not required to cause group accounts to be prepared<sup>10</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'year of account' see PARA 2513 note 4.

3 See the text to notes 5-10.

4 Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 s 13(1). Where the year of account of a subsidiary does not coincide with that of the society of which it is a subsidiary, then, unless the Financial Services Authority on the application or with the consent of the society's committee otherwise directs, the group accounts must deal with the subsidiary's state of affairs as at the end of its year of account ending with or last before that of the society, and with the subsidiary's income and expenditure for that year of account: s 13(4) (amended by SI 2001/2617). A credit union may not have any subsidiary within the meaning of the Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 s 15: see the Credit Unions Act 1979 s 26; and PARA 2517. As to credit unions generally see PARA 2402. As to the Financial Services Authority in regard to registered societies see PARA 2410. As to the Authority generally see PARAS 4, 6 et seq. 9 Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 s 14(2)(c). See note 10.

10 Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 s 14(3) (as amended: see note 6). In relation to any year of account of an industrial and provident society, a subsidiary of the society is disregarded for the purposes of s 13 (see the text and notes 1-4) if (1) the society's previous year of account was one in relation to which the subsidiary was not required to be dealt with in group accounts of the society for that year; (2) the reason for that was s 14(2) (see the text to notes 6-9) or s 14(3) or s 14(3A); and (3) the auditors of the society include in the appropriate report a certificate to the effect that they agree with the committee of the society that the reason given by the committee in its last opinion in respect of the subsidiary to have been approved by the Authority under s 14(2) or s 14(3), and the grounds so given by it for that reason, continued to apply throughout the year of account: s 14(3A) (s 14(3A)-(3C) added by SI 1996/1738, Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 s 14(3A) amended by SI 2001/2617). For the purposes of head (3) above, the appropriate report is (a) where the year of account is one in relation to which the society is subject to the obligation under the Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 s 13(1) (see the text to notes 1-4), the report required to be made under s 13(5) by the society's auditors (see PARA 2521); and (b) where it is not, the report required to be made by them under s 9(1) (see PARA 2515): s 14(3B) (as so added). A certificate is disregarded for the purposes of head (3) above if contained in a report made after the date which, in relation to the year to which the certificate relates, is the last date for making the return required by the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 39(1) (see PARA 2523): Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 s 14(3C) (as so added).

INDUSTRIAL AND PROVIDENT SOCIETIES/(3) ADMINISTRATION, POWERS AND PROPERTY/(v) Accounts and Annual Returns/C. GROUP ACCOUNTS/2520. Form and contents of group accounts.

2520. Form and contents of group accounts.

Where a registered society is required to cause group accounts to be prepared<sup>1</sup>, those accounts must give a true and fair view of the state of affairs and income and expenditure of the society and the subsidiaries<sup>2</sup> dealt with as a whole, so far as concerns members of the society<sup>3</sup>. The group accounts must normally comprise a consolidated balance sheet which deals with the state of affairs of the society and the subsidiaries to be dealt with in those accounts, and a consolidated revenue account which deals with the income and expenditure of the society and those subsidiaries<sup>4</sup>. If, however, the society's committee is of the opinion that some other form is better for the purpose of presenting the same or equivalent information, and of so presenting the information that it may be readily appreciated by the society's members, the group accounts may be prepared in that other form<sup>5</sup>. In particular, they may consist of (1) more than one set of consolidated accounts dealing respectively with the society and one group of subsidiaries, and with other groups of subsidiaries; or (2) separate accounts dealing with each of the subsidiaries to be dealt with in the group accounts; or (3) statements expanding the information about those subsidiaries in the society's own accounts; or (4) any combination of those forms<sup>6</sup>. The consolidated balance sheet and income and expenditure account must combine the information contained in the separate balance sheets and income and expenditure accounts of the society and of the subsidiaries dealt with by the consolidated accounts, but with such adjustments, if any, as the society's committee thinks necessary<sup>7</sup>. Where full consolidated accounts are prepared<sup>8</sup>, they are subject to detailed requirements as to the items to be dealt with and the form in which they are to be set out<sup>9</sup>; where consolidated accounts are prepared in some other form<sup>10</sup>, they must give the same or equivalent information<sup>11</sup>.

INDUSTRIAL AND PROVIDENT SOCIETIES/(3) ADMINISTRATION, POWERS AND PROPERTY/(v) Accounts and Annual Returns/D. ANNUAL RETURN/2523. Obligation to send return.

D. ANNUAL RETURN

2523. Obligation to send return.

Not later than a specified date in each year, every registered society must send to the Financial Services Authority<sup>1</sup> a return relating to its affairs for that period<sup>2</sup>. In general, the return must be sent within the period of seven months beginning immediately after the end of the period required to be included in the return<sup>3</sup>, and must be made up for the period beginning with the date of the society's registration, or with the date to which the society's last annual return was made up, whichever is the later, and ending either with the date of the last balance sheet published by the society before the appropriate date<sup>4</sup>, or, if the date of that balance sheet is earlier than 31 August immediately preceding the appropriate date or later than 31 January of the year in which the appropriate date falls, with 31 December immediately preceding the appropriate date<sup>5</sup>. If, however, the Authority is of opinion that special circumstances exist, it may allow a society to make a return up to a date other than those specified above<sup>6</sup>. The last return by a registered society which is being terminated by an instrument of dissolution<sup>7</sup> must be made up to the date of that instrument<sup>8</sup>.

The annual return is in a form prescribed by the Authority<sup>9</sup>, but must in any event<sup>10</sup> contain the society's revenue account or accounts<sup>11</sup> prepared<sup>12</sup> in respect of the year of account<sup>13</sup> to which the return relates, and a balance sheet as at the end of that year<sup>14</sup>; and it must not contain any accounts other than the revenue account or accounts for that year unless those other accounts have been examined<sup>15</sup> by the auditors or been subject<sup>16</sup> to an accountant's report<sup>17</sup>. The return must be accompanied by certain documents depending on the circumstances<sup>18</sup>. Where the period required to be included in the return is one at the end of which there is in force in relation to the period a disapplication<sup>19</sup> of the obligation to have accounts audited, the documents are (1) copies of the accountant's reports, if any, which the society is required<sup>20</sup>, because of the disapplication, to obtain; and (2) a copy of each balance sheet made during the period included in the return<sup>21</sup>. Where it is not such a period, the documents are (a) a copy of the report of the auditor or auditors on the society's accounts for the period included in the return; and (b) a copy of each balance sheet made during that period and of any report of the auditor or auditors on that balance sheet<sup>22</sup>.

In the case of a society required to prepare group accounts, the return must also be accompanied by those accounts and a copy of the auditors' report on them<sup>23</sup>.

Failure to comply with these requirements is an offence<sup>24</sup>.

INDUSTRIAL AND PROVIDENT SOCIETIES/(3) ADMINISTRATION, POWERS AND PROPERTY/(v) Accounts and Annual Returns/D. ANNUAL RETURN/2524. Supply of copy of return.

2524. Supply of copy of return.

Every registered society must supply, free of charge to every member or person interested<sup>1</sup> in the society's funds who applies for it, a copy of the latest return of the society<sup>2</sup>. The return so supplied must be accompanied by a copy of the auditors' report (or other report) on the accounts and balance sheet contained in the return<sup>3</sup>, and, in the case of a society required to prepare group accounts, by a copy (also free of charge) of the latest such accounts<sup>4</sup>.

Failure to comply with these requirements is an offence<sup>5</sup>.

1   There is no statutory definition of 'person interested': cf Mason v Schuppisser (1899) 81 LT 147, which is a decision on a corresponding expression. It is uncertain whether the expression covers creditors of the society: cf the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 58(6)(a) (see PARA 2571), where the expression used is 'person interested in or having any claim on the funds of the society'. As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2395.

2   Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 39(5). As to the non-application of s 39 to credit unions see PARA 2523 note 2. As to credit unions see PARA 2402.

3   See the Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 s 11(5) (amended by the Friendly Societies Act 1974 Sch 11). As to the 'other report' referred to in the text see the Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 s 11(5A) (added by SI 1996/1738), which provides that, where the year of account to which an annual return relates is one at the end of which there is in force in relation to the year a disapplication under the Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 s 4A(1) (see PARA 2514), s 11(5) is have effect as if for the reference to the report of the auditors on the accounts and balance sheet contained in the return there were substituted a reference to any report which the society is required, because of the disapplication, to obtain under s 9A(2)(a) (see PARA 2515 head (a)).

INDUSTRIAL AND PROVIDENT SOCIETIES/(3) ADMINISTRATION, POWERS AND PROPERTY/(vi) Inspection and Investigation/A. INSPECTION/2526. Inspection of books.

2526. Inspection of books.

Except as provided by the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965, no member or other person has any right to inspect the books of a registered society, including a credit union<sup>1</sup>. Subject to any regulations as to the time and manner of inspection which may be made from time to time by the general meetings of a registered society, any member, and any person having an interest<sup>2</sup> in the society's funds, must be allowed to inspect, at all reasonable hours, his own account and either all the particulars contained in the duplicate register of members and officers<sup>3</sup> or, if no duplicate register is kept, the particulars, other than those exempted from inspection<sup>4</sup>, in the original register of members and officers<sup>5</sup>. Failure to allow such inspection is an offence<sup>6</sup>. It would seem that a member or other person entitled to inspect the books may do so by an agent<sup>7</sup>, and may make copies of the books<sup>8</sup>.

1 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 45(1). In the case of a society to which s 4 applies (see PARA 2396), this provision has effect notwithstanding anything relating to such inspection in any rules of the society made before 12 September 1893: s 45(2). ### 2530. Appointment of inspectors.

Upon the application of one-tenth of the whole number of members of a registered society, including a credit union, or of 100 members if the membership exceeds 1,000, the Financial Services Authority<sup>1</sup> may appoint an inspector or inspectors to examine into and report on the society's affairs<sup>2</sup>. The application must be supported by such evidence as the Authority directs showing that the applicants have good reason for requiring the examination and that they are not actuated by malicious motives; and such notice of the application must be given to the society as the Authority directs<sup>3</sup>. The Authority may also, if it thinks fit, require the applicants to give security for the costs of the proposed examination before appointing an inspector<sup>4</sup>.

A member may circularise his fellow members for the purpose of getting sufficient signatures to such an application, but inaccurate statements as to the financial position of the society may be restrained by injunction<sup>5</sup>.

Without prejudice to the above provisions<sup>6</sup>, where the Authority is of the opinion that, for reasons connected with the exercise of its functions<sup>7</sup>, an investigation should be held into the affairs of a credit union or that the affairs of the credit union call for consideration by a meeting of the members, it may appoint an inspector to investigate and report on the affairs of the credit union or may call a special meeting of members of the credit union, or may (either on the same or on different occasions) both appoint such an inspector and call such a meeting<sup>8</sup>. The costs of any such investigation or meeting may be recovered from the credit union or from its present or former members or officers, in such proportions as the Authority directs<sup>9</sup>.

2 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 49(1)(a) (s 49(1), (2), (3) amended by SI 2001/2617). See also PARA 2482. The court will not interfere with the discretion of the Authority (formerly the Chief Registrar of Friendly Societies) in the appointment of an inspector: see Professional and Civil Service Supply Association Ltd v Dougal (1896) CR Rep (1897) Pt A, p 89. It is suggested, however, that, consistently with the court's general approach to the exercise of discretions, the court would intervene in the unlikely event that it was satisfied that no reasonable body exercising the functions of the Authority would have acted as the Authority had done.

2531. Inspector's powers.

An inspector appointed to investigate a registered society's affairs<sup>1</sup> may require the production of all or any of the society's books, accounts, securities and documents, and may examine on oath its officers<sup>2</sup>, members, agents and servants in relation to its business, and for that purpose may administer oaths<sup>3</sup>. The inspector makes his report to the Financial Services Authority<sup>4</sup>. Any document bearing the Authority's seal and stamp must be received in evidence without further proof, and any document purporting to have been signed by a person authorised to do so on behalf of the Authority and every document purporting to be signed by any inspector, in the absence of any evidence to the contrary, is to be received in evidence without proof of the signature<sup>5</sup>.

1 As to the appointment of inspectors see PARA 2530. As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2395. As to credit unions see PARA 2402.

2 As to the meaning of 'officer' see PARA 2458 note 1. An auditor is not an 'officer' but he may be the society's agent; it seems, however, that an auditor performing his statutory functions, while so acting, would not be an agent of the society, and, therefore, would not be liable to be examined under this power.

3 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 49(5). This provision applies also in relation to an inspector appointed in accordance with the Credit Unions Act 1979 s 18(1) (see PARA 2530): s 18(3).

4 As to the Financial Services Authority in regard to registered societies see PARA 2410. As to the Authority generally see PARAS 4, 6 et seq. There appears to be no particular form for this report. A copy of the report will as a rule be sent to both the society and the applicants, but the Authority appears to be under no obligation to send it. The proceedings should not be more public than is necessary for securing that their efficiency is not impaired: cf Hearts of Oak Assurance Co Ltd v A-G [1932] AC 392 at 402-403, HL, per Lord Macmillan.

5 See the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 ss 72(2), 72(3), the Credit Unions Act 1979 s 31(2); and PARA 2412. As to the Authority's seal see PARA 2412.

2532. Direction for payment of expenses.

The expenses of and incidental or preliminary to an examination of a registered society's affairs<sup>1</sup> must be defrayed by the members applying for it, or out of the society's funds, or by the members or officers, or former members or officers, of the society in such proportions as the Financial Services Authority<sup>2</sup> may direct<sup>3</sup>. The expenses may be recovered in a magistrates' court as a civil debt<sup>4</sup>.

2533. Registered housing associations.

In the case of a registered society which is a registered housing association<sup>1</sup>, the relevant authority<sup>2</sup> may appoint a person to conduct an inquiry into its affairs, and may require its accounts and balance sheet, or such of them as are specified, to be audited by an auditor appointed by the relevant authority<sup>3</sup>. Where it is satisfied, as the result of such an inquiry or audit, that there has been any misconduct or mismanagement in the administration of the society, the relevant authority may by order (1) remove any officer, employee or agent of the society who appears to have been responsible for or privy to the misconduct or mismanagement, or has by his conduct contributed to it or facilitated it<sup>4</sup>; (2) suspend any such person for up to six months, pending determination whether he should be removed; (3) direct any bank or other person who holds money or securities on behalf of the society not to part with the money or securities without the authority's approval; (4) by order restrict the transactions which may be entered into, or the nature or amount of the payments which may be made, without the relevant authority's approval<sup>5</sup>.

2534. Determination under rules.

A registered society, including a credit union, need not make provision in its rules for the settlement of disputes<sup>1</sup> but, if the rules give directions as to the manner in which certain classes of dispute are to be decided, they must normally<sup>2</sup> be decided in that manner<sup>3</sup>. The classes of dispute referred to above are disputes between the society or one of its officers<sup>4</sup> and

(1) a member of the society<sup>5</sup>; (2) any person aggrieved<sup>6</sup> who has ceased to be a member not more than six months previously<sup>7</sup>; (3) any person claiming through a member<sup>8</sup> or any such person aggrieved<sup>9</sup>; or (4) any person claiming under the society's rules<sup>10</sup>.

1 See the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 60(6); and PARA 2540. As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2395. As to credit unions see PARA 2402. As to the rules generally see PARA 2423 et seq. As to the determination of disputes where no provision is made in the rules see PARA 2540.

2 In certain circumstances, a dispute may be referred to the county court despite directions in the rules for reference to the Financial Services Authority (see PARA 2536) or to a court not specified in the rules (see PARA 2535).

3 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 60(1) (amended by SI 2001/2617). This is subject to the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 60(2) (see PARA 2536), s 60(2A) (see PARA 2536), s 60(4), (5) (see PARA 2535): see note 2. As to the effect and enforcement of the decision see PARAS 2538-2539.

Nothing in s 60(1) or in rules of a kind there mentioned prevents any person, in accordance with the scheme for which the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 Pt XVI (ss 225-234A) (the ombudsman scheme) (see PARA 575 et seq) provides, from having a complaint dealt with under such a scheme before, or instead of, determination in the manner directed in the rules: Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 60(1A) (added by SI 2001/2617).

4 As to the meaning of 'officer' see PARA 2458 note 1.

5 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 60(1)(a). See note 3. A dispute between a society and an officer in respect of his accounts is not a dispute between a society and a member in his capacity as member: Municipal Permanent Investment Building Society v Richards (1888) 39 ChD 372, CA. For further cases on this point see PARA 2081 et seq. As to disputes on the question of whether or not a person is a member see PARA 2538 note 7.

6 'Person aggrieved' is not defined by the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965. For the purposes of other legislation, one who has suffered legal loss by an act complained of is a person aggrieved (Robinson v Currey (1881) 7 QBD 465 at 475, CA) if the act tends to his legal injury (Re Rivière's Trade Mark) (1884) 26 ChD 48 at 54, CA). INDUSTRIAL AND PROVIDENT SOCIETIES/(4) DISPUTES AND LEGAL PROCEEDINGS/(i) Disputes/2535. Reference under rules to arbitrators or to the court.

2535. Reference under rules to arbitrators or to the court.

The rules of a registered society may provide that disputes are to be referred to an arbitrator or arbitrators, appointed or selected as mentioned in the rules, or to justices, or to a magistrates' court or to the county court<sup>1</sup>. If the rules direct any dispute to be referred to justices, it is to be determined by a magistrates' court<sup>2</sup>. Where, by virtue of that provision or otherwise, a dispute is cognisable under the rules by a magistrates' court, the parties to the dispute may refer it by agreement to the county court, which may hear and determine it<sup>3</sup>.

1 As to the effect of the court's decision in such cases see PARA 2538. As to other circumstances in which a dispute may be determined by the court see PARA 2540. ### 2538. Effect of decision; jurisdiction of courts.

Where a dispute is determined in the manner directed by the registered society's rules<sup>1</sup>, or determined by the county court<sup>2</sup>, the decision is binding and conclusive on all parties without appeal, and is not removable into any court of law or restrainable by injunction<sup>3</sup>. The ordinary jurisdiction of the court is not affected if the dispute has not been decided according to the rules<sup>4</sup>, or if the dispute concerns a matter which is ultra vires the society's constitution<sup>5</sup>, as for example where the question is whether certain rules are valid or ultra vires<sup>6</sup> or whether a person's membership has been duly terminated<sup>7</sup>.

3    Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 60(3)(a). As from a day to be appointed, s 60(3) is amended so as to remove the reference to s 60(2): s 60(3) (prospectively amended by the Friendly Societies Act 1992 Sch 22 Pt I). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

This provision applies even if the decision is erroneous on a point of law: Catt v Wood [1910] AC 404, HL. It will apply not only to ordinary arbitrators, but also to a magistrates' court or county court sitting as arbitrator under the rules: see the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 ss 60(1), 60(3)(a); and cf PARA 2165. As to the position where a magistrates' court or county court determines the dispute otherwise than under the rules see PARA 2540. A decision made in accordance with the rules may, however, be binding on a member only so long as he remains a member: see Bellshill and Mossend Co-operative Society Ltd v Dalziel Co-operative Society Ltd [1960] AC 832, [1960] 1 All ER 673, HL (overruling Birtley District Co-operative Society Ltd v Windy Nook and District Industrial Co-operative Society Ltd (No 2) [1960] 2 QB 1, [1959] 1 All ER 623). In the light of the fact that the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 60(3) re-enacts the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1893 s 49(1) (repealed), it is uncertain whether the present provision will have effect so as to prevent the removal of the proceedings into the High Court by a quashing order or to prejudice the power of the High Court to make a mandatory order: see the Tribunals and Inquiries Act 1992; and JUDICIAL REVIEW vol 61 (2010) 703.

4    Andrews v Mitchell [1905] AC 78 at 82-83, HL, per Lord Davey; and see the other cases cited in PARA 2149.

5    See the cases cited in PARA 2149. The decision in Cox v Hutchinson [1910] 1 Ch 513, where the fact that the question at issue was whether an act was ultra vires was said to be no answer to an application to stay proceedings, appears to be inconsistent with Heard v Pickthorne [1913] 3 KB 299, CA, and, in view of the approval of the latter decision in McEllistrim v Ballymacelligott Co-operative Agricultural and Dairy Society Ltd [1919] AC 548, HL, it seems that Cox v Hutchinson above must be considered to be overruled.

In relation to registered friendly societies (unlike industrial and provident societies) it is now provided by statute that a dispute whether a member is entitled to continue as a member is a dispute to be decided in the manner directed by the rules: see PARA 2081 et seq. For cases decided before the provision in question was enacted see PARA 2158.

Where a dispute is determined in the manner directed by the registered society's rules<sup>1</sup>, or determined by the county court<sup>2</sup>, an application for the enforcement of the decision may be made to the county court<sup>3</sup>. In proceedings for enforcing an award, the county court is the proper tribunal to determine, in the first instance, whether the dispute was one proper to be decided in accordance with the society's rules<sup>4</sup>. The High Court may overrule a decision of the county court if it is shown that there is an error on the face of the award or that it has been corruptly obtained<sup>5</sup>. The High Court will not grant a prohibiting order before the matter has come before the county court<sup>6</sup>.

The provisions of the Arbitration Act 1996 apply generally to arbitrations for the determining of disputes arising in registered societies<sup>1</sup>. The court to which any dispute is referred<sup>2</sup> may, at the request of either party, state a case on any question of law arising in the dispute for the opinion of the High Court<sup>3</sup>.

3 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 60(9) (substituted by the Arbitration Act 1996 Sch 3 para 20(3); and amended by SI 2001/2617). In Scotland, an opinion is given by the Court of Session; however, Scottish matters are generally beyond the scope of this work. The Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1893 s 49(6) (repealed), from which the earlier version of the present provision is derived, on this point nullified the decision in Tabernacle Permanent Building Society v Knight [1892] AC 298, HL. ### 2543. Recovery of debts and fines.

All money payable by a member to a registered society, including a credit union, is a debt due from him to the society and is recoverable as such in the county court within the jurisdiction of which the society's registered office is situate, or within the jurisdiction of which the member resides, at the society's option<sup>1</sup>. A debt due from a member may be recovered in the county court even where the amount of the debt is in excess of the court's ordinary jurisdiction, and also where, at the time of bringing the claim, the member has ceased to be a member of the society<sup>2</sup>. It seems that the High Court has concurrent jurisdiction<sup>3</sup>.

A fine imposed by a registered society's rules may be recovered by the society in a magistrates' court<sup>4</sup>.

2544. Lien on shares.

A registered society, including a credit union, has a lien<sup>1</sup> on the shares of any member for any debt due to it from him and may set off any sum credited to the member on those shares in or towards the payment of the debt<sup>2</sup>. The reduction of a member's share capital by virtue of such a set-off does not, however, relieve him of his liability in respect of his shares<sup>3</sup>. A registered society still carrying on its business and acting in good faith may exercise its lien even though the society is in difficulties which result shortly afterwards in a winding-up resolution<sup>4</sup>.

In civil claims, a registered society, including a credit union, may sue and be sued under its registered name<sup>1</sup>. There are no special provisions in the Industrial and Provident Societies Acts with regard to procedure and practice in claims by or against registered societies. High Court claims are governed by the ordinary rules of that court<sup>2</sup>, except for matters arising out of an appeal against a decision of the Financial Services Authority<sup>3</sup>, or an application for recording of a charge, which are governed by special rules of court<sup>4</sup>. County court claims by or against registered societies follow, as to procedure, the general practice of that court<sup>5</sup>.

Where proceedings are taken against a registered society, including a credit union, for the recovery of any fine under the Industrial and Provident Societies Acts<sup>1</sup> or the Credit Unions Act 1979, the summons or other process is sufficiently served by leaving a true copy of it at the registered office, or if that office is closed, by posting the copy on the outer door of that office<sup>2</sup>.

(iv) Statutory Offences

2547. Breaches of statutory provisions in general.

A registered society, including a credit union, or an officer<sup>1</sup> or member of the society, or any other person, commits an offence if the society or he (1) fails to give any notice, send any return or other document, or do anything or allow anything to be done which the society, officer, member or other person is, by the Industrial and Provident Societies Acts, required to give, send, do or allow to be done<sup>2</sup>; or (2) wilfully neglects<sup>3</sup> or refuses to do any act, or to furnish any information, required for the purposes of the Acts by the Financial Services Authority<sup>4</sup>, or by any other person duly authorised under the Acts, or does anything forbidden by the Acts<sup>5</sup>; or (3) makes a return required by the Acts, or wilfully furnishes information so required, which is in any respect false or insufficient<sup>6</sup>.

In any proceedings for an offence under the Credit Unions Act 1979, it is a defence for the person charged to prove that he took all reasonable precautions and exercised all due diligence to avoid the commission of such an offence by himself or any person under his control<sup>7</sup>.

On summary conviction for any of these offences, the society, officer, member or other person, as the case may be, is liable to a fine<sup>8</sup>. The procedure on appeal is governed by the general law<sup>9</sup>. Every act or default under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 constituting an offence constitutes a new offence in every week during which it continues<sup>10</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'officer' see PARA 2458 note 1. An officer who resigns his office before the period for doing an act expires (eg sending an annual return) is not liable if the act is not done: see Booth v Weightman (1904) 91 LT 532, DC. A de facto officer may be liable: see Gibson v Barton (1875) LR 10 QB 329, and see COMPANIES vol 14 (2009) PARA 607. As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2395. As to credit unions see PARA 2402.

2 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 61(a) (amended by SI 2001/2617). Although the statutory reference is to 'this Act', it is to be taken as a reference to the Industrial and Provident Societies Acts 1965 to 1978 (so far as each Act contains relevant material), since the later Acts are to be construed as one with the 1965 Act: see generally PARA 2397. In the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 ss 61-66, 68, as they apply to credit unions, references to the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 include references to the Credit Unions Act 1979: s 28(1).

Where an individual is convicted on indictment under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 62 of an offence under the Credit Unions Act 1979, he is liable not only to a fine but, in the alternative or in addition, to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years: s 28(4).

A registered society is guilty of an offence if it carries on the business of banking when it has any withdrawable share capital<sup>1</sup>, or, in carrying on that business, fails to make out the required statement or to keep it hung up in a conspicuous position in its offices<sup>2</sup>. A registered society which takes deposits within certain limits<sup>3</sup>, and is therefore not treated as carrying on the business of banking, is guilty of an offence if it makes any payment of withdrawable capital while any payment due on account of any such deposit remains unsatisfied<sup>4</sup>. The penalty on summary conviction for any such offence is a fine<sup>5</sup>.

2551. Unlawful possession and misapplication of funds.

If any person, by false representation or imposition, obtains possession of any property<sup>1</sup> of a registered society (including a credit union) or, having any such property in his possession, withholds or misapplies it, or wilfully applies any part of it to purposes which are not authorised by the society's rules or which are not in accordance with the Industrial and Provident Societies Acts<sup>2</sup> and, in relation to credit unions, the Credit Unions Act 1979<sup>3</sup>, he is liable on summary conviction to a fine with costs or expenses and to be ordered to deliver up the property or to repay all money improperly applied; in default of such delivery or repayment, or of the payment of any such fine, he is liable to be imprisoned<sup>4</sup>. This provision does not, however, prevent any such person from being proceeded against by way of indictment for any offence if he has not previously been convicted in respect of the same matters under this summary procedure<sup>5</sup>. If in the summary proceedings it is not proved that the person charged acted with a fraudulent intent, he may be ordered to deliver up any property belonging to the society or to repay any money improperly applied, with costs or expenses, but he is not liable to conviction<sup>6</sup>.

Summary proceedings for these offences may be instituted (1) by the society concerned; or (2) by any member authorised by the society itself or its committee or by the Financial Services Authority<sup>7</sup>; or (3) by the Authority<sup>8</sup>.

If any person, with intent to mislead or defraud, gives to any other person a copy of any rules other than rules for the time being registered under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965, on the pretence that they are the existing rules of a registered society<sup>1</sup>, or that there are no other rules of the society, or gives to any other person a copy of the rules of a society which is not registered under the Act on the pretence that they are the rules of a registered society, he is liable on summary conviction to a fine<sup>2</sup>.

2556. Contravention of provisions relating to accounts and audit.

Any contravention by a registered society of any provision of the Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968<sup>1</sup>, or any failure by a society to comply with any provision of that Act, or with any direction by the Financial Services Authority<sup>2</sup> as to audit by a qualified auditor of the accounts and balance sheet of an exempt society or a society to which the audit provisions have been disapplied<sup>3</sup>, is an offence under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965<sup>4</sup>. If in relation to any revenue account or balance sheet of a registered society a member of its committee fails to take all reasonable steps to secure compliance with the provisions requiring that those documents give a true and fair view<sup>5</sup>, he is guilty of an offence unless he proves that he had reasonable grounds to believe, and did believe, that a competent and reliable person was charged with the duty of seeing that the relevant provision was complied with and was in a position to discharge that duty<sup>6</sup>; and a person guilty of an offence under this provision is liable on summary conviction to a fine<sup>7</sup>.

INDUSTRIAL AND PROVIDENT SOCIETIES/(4) DISPUTES AND LEGAL PROCEEDINGS/ (v) Recovery of Fines and Costs/2557. Summary recovery of fines.

(v) Recovery of Fines and Costs

2557. Summary recovery of fines.

Any fine imposed by the Industrial and Provident Societies Acts<sup>1</sup>, or by regulations made under those Acts, or by the rules of a registered society, is recoverable summarily<sup>2</sup>. Proceedings to recover fines under the rules may be instituted only by the registered society concerned<sup>3</sup>. Except in the case of proceedings in respect of unlawful possession or misapplication of funds<sup>4</sup>, proceedings for recovery of fines imposed by the Acts or by regulations may be instituted only by the Financial Services Authority<sup>5</sup> or by any person aggrieved<sup>6</sup>. Notwithstanding any limitation on the time for the taking of proceedings contained in any Act<sup>7</sup>, proceedings instituted by the Authority may be brought at any time within one year of the first discovery of the offence by the Authority, but not in any case more than three years after the commission of the offence<sup>8</sup>.

A. SPECIAL RESOLUTIONS

2559. Special resolutions.

A registered society, including a credit union, may pass a statutory special resolution<sup>1</sup> for the following purposes: (1) amalgamation with one or more other registered societies<sup>2</sup>; (2) transfer of engagements to another registered society<sup>3</sup>; (3) amalgamation with a company<sup>4</sup>; (4) transfer of engagements to a company<sup>5</sup>; or (5) conversion into a company<sup>6</sup>. Special restrictions in these matters apply to registered societies which are registered housing associations<sup>7</sup>.

7    As to registered societies which are registered housing associations (or 'registered social landlords'), and the recording of their registration as such, see PARA 2408. Where the Financial Services Authority has recorded such registration of a society, it may not register a special resolution passed by that society for certain purposes relating to amalgamation, transfer or conversion of a society or amalgamation with or transfer of its engagements to a company registered under the Companies Acts unless, together with the copy of the special resolution sent to the Authority, there is also sent a copy of the consent of the Housing Corporation or the Welsh Ministers (as appropriate) (the 'relevant authority') (see PARA 2408) to the amalgamation, transfer or conversion: see the Housing Act 1996 s 7, Sch 1 para 12; and HOUSING vol 22 (2006 Reissue) PARA 80. INDUSTRIAL AND PROVIDENT SOCIETIES/(5) TERMINATION/(i) Amalgamation, Transfer of Engagements and Conversion/B. AMALGAMATION AND TRANSFER OF ENGAGEMENTS/2560. Meaning of 'amalgamation' and 'transfer of engagements'.

B. AMALGAMATION AND TRANSFER OF ENGAGEMENTS

2560. Meaning of 'amalgamation' and 'transfer of engagements'.

There is no statutory definition of an amalgamation or a transfer of engagements. An amalgamation of two or more registered societies would seem to mean a union forming a new society, and a transfer of engagements to mean the transfer of a society's rights and liabilities in respect of its creditors, shareholders or others to another society or registered company, the engagements being transferred without the necessity of any other act where the transferor society is discharged from the liabilities, which are assumed instead by the transferee society or company<sup>1</sup>.

There is, however, statutory provision that, on an amalgamation or transfer of engagements, the rights of a creditor of any registered society which is a party to the amalgamation or transfer are not to be prejudiced<sup>2</sup>. There has been no judicial decision on this provision. Its effect would seem to be that the creditor retains his rights against the amalgamating or transferor society, and it may be that he can exercise those rights against its assets, after the transaction, in priority to creditors of the amalgamated or transferee society, as the case may be<sup>3</sup>.

1 The effect of a transfer of engagements was considered in Co-operative Group (CWS) Ltd v Stansell Ltd [2006] EWCA Civ 538; [2006] 1 WLR 1704, in which the Court of Appeal accepted the appellant's society's contention that a transfer of engagements transferred not only obligations or liabilities to third parties as well as to members, without the necessity for novation (which would require the consent of any such third party), but also contractual rights and property, again without any requirement for third party consent. (Members might be taken to have consented through their agreement to become members of a society governed by the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965.) The court appears to have accepted the parties' agreed explanation of 'engagements' as 'business undertaking'. As to the novation of contracts see CONTRACT vol 9(1) (Reissue) PARA 1036 et seq. As to transfer of membership on a transfer of engagements see Sun Permanent Benefit Building Society v Western Suburban and Harrow Road Permanent Society [1921] 2 Ch 438 at 456, CA. As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2395. As to credit unions see PARA 2402.

2 See the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 54.

3 This sentence as it appeared in a previous edition of this paragraph was quoted in the judgment of Mummery LJ in Co-operative Group (CWS) Ltd v Stansell Ltd [2006] EWCA Civ 538; [2006] 1 WLR 1704 (see note 1), but no view was expressed on its subject matter, except that it would not prevent creditors of the transferring society from looking to the transferee society to satisfy their claims, even if they were still entitled to look to the transferor society. Questions of this nature have arisen in cases where the life assurance business of a company has been transferred to another: see CONTRACT vol 9(1) (Reissue) PARA 1042. Special provisions apply where the whole or part of the long term business carried on by an insurance company to which the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 applies is to be transferred to another body: see INSURANCE vol 25 (2003 Reissue) PARA 824.

2561. Amalgamation of registered societies.

By special resolution<sup>1</sup> of each of the societies, any two or more registered societies, including credit unions<sup>2</sup>, may become amalgamated together as one society, with or without any dissolution or division of the funds of the societies or any of them, and the property<sup>3</sup> of each society becomes vested in the amalgamated society without the necessity of any form of conveyance other than that contained in the special resolution<sup>4</sup>. A credit union may not, however, amalgamate with any other registered society which is not a credit union<sup>5</sup>. The Financial Services Authority<sup>6</sup> must not register a special resolution for an amalgamation<sup>7</sup>, if, in its opinion, the proposed amalgamation would result in a contravention of any of the provisions of the Industrial and Provident Societies Acts 1965 to 1978 or the Credit Unions Act 1979 or any requirement imposed under the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000, or there would be no common bond between the members of the proposed amalgamated credit union<sup>8</sup>.

INDUSTRIAL AND PROVIDENT SOCIETIES/(5) TERMINATION/(i) Amalgamation, Transfer of Engagements and Conversion/B. AMALGAMATION AND TRANSFER OF ENGAGEMENTS/2562. Transfer of engagements to a registered society.

2562. Transfer of engagements to a registered society.

By special resolution<sup>1</sup>, a registered society, including (subject to certain conditions<sup>2</sup>) a credit union, may transfer its engagements to any other registered society which may undertake to fulfil those engagements<sup>3</sup>. If that resolution approves the transfer of the whole or any part of the society's property to the transferee society, that whole or part vests in the transferee society without any conveyance or assignment<sup>4</sup>. The method by which a society may undertake to fulfil another society's engagements is not prescribed by statute, and would seem to be determined by the rules of the transferee society which might provide, expressly or otherwise, for acceptance to be made by resolution of a general meeting or by the committee or in some other way<sup>5</sup>.

Where a registered society has transferred its engagements, its registration must not be cancelled until a certificate, signed by the secretary or some other officer<sup>6</sup> of the society approved by the Financial Services Authority<sup>7</sup>, that all property vested in the society has been duly conveyed or transferred by the society to the persons entitled, has been lodged with the Authority<sup>8</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'special resolution' see PARA 2486.

2 A credit union may not transfer its engagements to, or accept a transfer of engagements from, any registered society which is not a credit union: Credit Unions Act 1979 s 21(1), (2). There are restrictions on the registration of a special resolution by a credit union under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 51, similar to those on a registration under s 50 (see PARA 2561): Credit Unions Act 1979 s 21(3) (amended by SI 2001/2617; and SI 2002/1501).

3 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 51(1). As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2395. As to credit unions see PARA 2402. As to the restrictions on registered societies which are registered housing associations see PARA 2559 note 7. As to the passing of, and the need to register, the special resolution see PARAS 2486-2487. The effect of a transfer of engagements was considered in Co-operative Group (CWS) Ltd v Stansell Ltd [2006] EWCA Civ 538; [2006] 1 WLR 1704, [2006] 2 BCLC 599, in which the Court of Appeal accepted the appellant's society's contention that a transfer of engagements transferred not only obligations or liabilities to third parties as well as members, without the necessity for novation (which would require the consent of any such third party), but also contractual rights and property, again without any requirement for third party consent. (Members might be taken to have consented through their agreement to become members of a society governed by the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965.) The court appears to have accepted the parties' agreed explanation of 'engagements' as 'business undertaking'. The case concerned a building contract made between the transferor society and Stansell Ltd, on which the transferee society sought to sue. The contract contained an express provision prohibiting assignment, which was found to be overridden by the wide words of s 51. The court's attention was drawn to the fact that the comparable provision in the Building Societies Act 1986 s 94(8) (see PARAS 1920, 1921), contains the words 'whether or not capable of being transferred or assigned' in respect of right to which that provision applies, but the court found no assistance in that provision or in the absence of any such words from the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 51.

In relation to the application of s 51, with modifications, for the purposes of the Community Benefit Societies (Restriction on Use of Assets) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/264, see reg 17, Sch 2 para 5. See also PARA 2402 note 6.

4 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 51(1).

5 Presumably the transferee society must have power under its rules to acquire the property and liabilities of the transferor society. Thus the transferred engagements must fall within the objects of the transferee society.

6 As to the meaning of 'officer' see PARA 2458 note 1.

7 As to the Financial Services Authority in regard to registered societies see PARA 2410. As to the Authority generally see PARAS 4, 6 et seq.

2562 Transfer of engagements to a registered society

NOTE 3--See Midlands Co-operative Society Ltd v Revenue and Customs Comrs [2008] EWCA Civ 305, [2008] STC 1803.

Halsbury's Laws of England/FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS (VOLUME 48 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-589; VOLUME 49 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 590-1619; VOLUME 50 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1620-2586)/9. INDUSTRIAL AND PROVIDENT SOCIETIES/(5) TERMINATION/(i) Amalgamation, Transfer of Engagements and Conversion/B. AMALGAMATION AND TRANSFER OF ENGAGEMENTS/2563. Amalgamation and transfer of engagements between society and company.

2563. Amalgamation and transfer of engagements between society and company.

By special resolution<sup>1</sup>, a registered society<sup>2</sup>, other than a credit union, may determine to amalgamate with a company under the Companies Acts<sup>3</sup>, or transfer its engagements to such a company<sup>4</sup>. If a registered society amalgamates with or transfers all its engagements to a company, the society's registration under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 becomes void, and must be cancelled by the Financial Services Authority<sup>5</sup>. There is no statutory provision for the vesting of property on an amalgamation with a company, or on the transfer of engagements to a company<sup>6</sup>. It would seem that a company may enter into an amalgamation or accept a transfer of engagements from a registered society only if it has power to do so under its memorandum of association. There is no statutory provision for the transfer of a registered company's engagements to a registered society<sup>7</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'special resolution' see PARA 2486.

2 This does not include a registered society which is also a registered housing association, where there are further requirements: see PARA 2559 note 7. As to the meaning of 'registered society' generally see PARA 2395.

3 As to the meaning of 'Companies Acts' see PARA 2417 note 1.

4 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 52(1). This provision does not apply to credit unions: Credit Unions Act 1979 s 22. As to credit unions see PARA 2402.

In relation to the application of the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 52, with modifications, for the purposes of the Community Benefit Societies (Restriction on Use of Assets) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/264, see reg 17, Sch 2 para 6. See also PARA 2402 note 6.

As from a day to be appointed, the Treasury has power to make by statutory instrument such modifications to the 'transfer provisions' (which in relation to industrial and provident societies, means the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 52 and any provision contained in subordinate legislation made under that provision: see below) as it thinks appropriate to facilitate, or in consequence of, the transfer of the whole of the business of a mutual society (including an industrial and provident society: see below) (the 'transferor') to a subsidiary of a mutual society (whether or not of the same type) (the 'transferee'): see the Building Societies (Funding) and Mutual Societies (Transfer) Act 2007 s 3(1) (ss 3-5 not yet in force). At the date at which this volume states the law, no such day had been appointed, and no orders had been made under ss 3, 4.

An order under s 3 may make provision as to the rights (including rights of and pertaining to membership) in relation to the mutual society of which the transferee is a subsidiary of the members of the transferor and of persons who, after the transfer, become customers of the transferee: s 3(2). Such an order may confer such functions on the Authority as the Treasury think appropriate: s 3(3). As to the Treasury see PARA 3; and CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 512 et seq.

An order under s 3 may make such consequential, saving, supplementary or transitional provision as the Treasury thinks appropriate; and may make different provision for different purposes: s 3(4). The power to make such an order is exercisable by statutory instrument: s 3(5). An order which makes modifications of a provision mentioned in s 3(11)(a)-(c) (which includes the provisions relating to industrial and provident societies mentioned in s 3(11)(c) (see below)), or amends s 3(13)(a) or (b) (see heads (1), (2) below), (whether or not it contains any other provision) must not be made unless a draft of it has been laid before and approved by resolution of each House of Parliament: s 3(6). Otherwise, an order is subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament: s 3(7). If a draft of an order mentioned in s 3(6) would, apart from this provision, be treated for the purposes of the Standing Orders of either House of Parliament as a hybrid instrument it must proceed in that House as if it were not such an instrument: s 3(8).

'Modifications' include omissions, additions and alterations: s 3(9). A 'mutual society' is a building society incorporated or deemed to be incorporated under the Building Societies Act 1986 (see PARA 1856 et seq); a friendly society within the meaning of the Friendly Societies Act 1992 (see PARA 2082); an industrial and provident society registered or deemed to be registered under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 (see PARA 2394 et seq); or an EEA mutual society: Building Societies (Funding) and Mutual Societies (Transfer) Act 2007 s 3(10). An 'EEA mutual society' is a body which is a European Cooperative Society for the purposes of EC Council Regulation 1435/2003 (OJ L207, 18.8.2003, p 1) on the Statute for a European Cooperative Society; a body which is established as a cooperative under the law of an EEA state as mentioned in that Regulation; or a body which is a cooperative or mutual undertaking of such description as the Treasury may specify by order and which is established or operates in accordance with the laws of an EEA state or any of the Channel Islands or the Isle of Man: Building Societies (Funding) and Mutual Societies (Transfer) Act 2007 s 3(12). 'Transfer provisions' means, in relation to industrial and provident societies, the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 52, and any provision contained in subordinate legislation under such provision: see the Building Societies (Funding) and Mutual Societies (Transfer) Act 2007 s 3(11)(b), (d). A 'subsidiary of a mutual society' is a relevant company (1) in which the society holds a majority of the voting rights or of which the society is a member and alone controls, pursuant to an agreement with other shareholders or members, a majority of the voting rights; and (2) in relation to which the society has the right to appoint or remove a majority of the company's board of directors, but the Treasury may, by order, amend heads (1) and (2) above to make the degree of control required more or less onerous: s 3(13). A 'relevant company' is a company within the meaning of the Companies Act 2006 (or, before the commencement of Pt 1 (ss 1-6), the Companies Act 1985) (see COMPANIES); a company within the meaning of the Companies (Northern Ireland) Order 1986 (SI 1986/1032 (NI 6)); a body corporate which is incorporated in an EEA state other than the United Kingdom: Building Societies (Funding) and Mutual Societies (Transfer) Act 2007 s 3(14). As to the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 2 note 3.

For the purposes of the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 Sch 1 para 17 (power to charge fees) (see PARA 16) a function conferred on the Financial Services Authority by an order under the Building Societies (Funding) and Mutual Societies (Transfer) Act 2007 s 3 is to be treated as a function conferred under or as a result of the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000: Building Societies (Funding) and Mutual Societies (Transfer) Act 2007 s 3(15).

An order under s 3 may provide for s 4 to have effect: s 4(1). Section 4(3) applies if the terms of a transfer to which the order applies include provision for part of the funds of the transferor or the mutual society of which the transferee is a subsidiary (the 'holding mutual') to be distributed in consideration of the transfer among the members of the transferor, the holding mutual, or both the transferor and the holding mutual: s 4(2). In such a case, the provision for the distribution must be authorised as follows: (a) it must not exceed the limits prescribed by order under s 4(4) (see below), and the distribution must be approved (in the case of the transferor) by the transfer resolution or (in the case of the holding mutual) by a resolution of such description as the Treasury specifies by order; (b) if the provision for a distribution exceeds the prescribed limits, it must be approved by each of the resolutions mentioned in head (a) above: s 4(3). 'Transfer resolution' means, in relation to an industrial and provident society, the resolution required by the Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 52 (see the text): see the Building Societies (Funding) and Mutual Societies (Transfer) Act 2007 s 4(5)(c). The Treasury must by order authorise distributions of funds to members by mutual societies participating (directly or through a subsidiary) in transfers to which an order mentioned in s 4(1) applies, subject to limits specified by or determined in accordance with the order: s 4(4). Expressions used in ss 3, 4 have the same meaning as in s 3: s 4(6). The provisions of s 3(4)-(7) apply to an order under s 4 as they apply to an order under s 3: s 4(7).

Her Majesty may by Order in Council provide for any of the provisions of the Building Societies (Funding) and Mutual Societies (Transfer) Act 2007 to extend with or without modifications, to any of the Channel Islands or to the Isle of Man: s 5.

5 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 52(4) (amended by SI 2001/2617). Cancellation of registration is subject to the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 59 (see PARA 2562): s 52(4) (as so amended). ## C. CONVERSION OF REGISTERED SOCIETY INTO COMPANY

2564. Resolution for conversion of society into company.

By special resolution<sup>1</sup>, a registered society<sup>2</sup> other than a credit union, may determine to convert itself into a company under the Companies Acts<sup>3</sup>. If the resolution contains the particulars which are required by the Companies Acts to be contained in the memorandum of association of a company<sup>4</sup> and a copy of the resolution has been registered by the Financial Services Authority<sup>5</sup>, a copy of that resolution under the seal or stamp of the Authority has the same effect as a memorandum of association duly signed and attested under the Companies Acts<sup>6</sup>. On the registration of the society as a company, its registration under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 becomes void and must be cancelled by the Authority<sup>7</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'special resolution' see PARA 2486.

2 This does not include a registered society which is also a registered housing association, where there are further requirements: see PARA 2559 note 7. As to the meaning of 'registered society' generally see PARA 2395.

3 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 52(1). As to the meaning of 'Companies Acts' see PARA 2417 note 1. As to the reverse conversion (ie of a company into a registered society) see PARAS 2417-2420. These provisions do not apply to credit unions: Credit Unions Act 1979 s 22. As to credit unions see PARA 2402.

2564 Resolution for conversion of society into company

TEXT AND NOTES 4-6--Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 52(2) amended: SI 2009/1941.

Halsbury's Laws of England/FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS (VOLUME 48 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-589; VOLUME 49 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 590-1619; VOLUME 50 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1620-2586)/9. INDUSTRIAL AND PROVIDENT SOCIETIES/(5) TERMINATION/(i) Amalgamation, Transfer of Engagements and Conversion/C. CONVERSION OF REGISTERED SOCIETY INTO COMPANY/2565. Priority of society's creditors on conversion.

2565. Priority of society's creditors on conversion.

The registration of a registered society as a company is in a true sense a conversion and not a dissolution<sup>1</sup>. The registration does not affect any right or claim for the time being subsisting against the society or any penalty for the time being incurred by it; and for the purpose of enforcing any such right, claim or penalty the society may be sued and proceeded against in the same manner as if it had not become registered as a company<sup>2</sup>. Every such right or claim, or the liability to any such penalty, has priority as against the company's property over all other rights or claims against or liabilities of the company<sup>3</sup>.

2 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 52(5)(a). The society and the company into which it has been converted are in substance the same thing with different machinery; thus trusts of a pension fund created for the benefit of employees of a registered society continue, after the society's conversion into a company, for the benefit of the same class of employees of the company: Re London Housing Society Ltd's Trust Deeds, Moreland v Woodward [1940] Ch 777, [1940] 3 All ER 665.

INDUSTRIAL AND PROVIDENT SOCIETIES/(5) TERMINATION/(ii) Dissolution and Winding Up/2566. Modes of terminating registered societies.

(ii) Dissolution and Winding Up

2566. Modes of terminating registered societies.

A registered society may be dissolved (1) by an order to wind up the society, or a resolution for its winding up, made as directed in regard to companies by the Insolvency Act 1986<sup>1</sup>; or (2) by the consent of three-fourths of its members testified by their signatures to an instrument of dissolution<sup>2</sup>. The method to follow in winding up a society is dependent on its financial position. If it is solvent, the usual procedure is by way of an instrument of dissolution or a members' voluntary winding up. If it is insolvent and possesses assets which can be realised for distribution to creditors, there can be a winding up by order of the court or a creditors' voluntary liquidation.

In the case of dissolution either under the Insolvency Act 1986 or by instrument, the society is not dissolved until there has been lodged with the Financial Services Authority<sup>3</sup> a certificate signed by the liquidator, or by the secretary or some other officer<sup>4</sup> approved by the Authority, that all property vested in the society has been duly conveyed or transferred by the society to the persons entitled<sup>5</sup>.

Where there are no existing assets, an application may be made to the Authority to cancel the society's registration and, if it thinks fit, the Authority may grant the application even though there has been no formal procedure for dissolution<sup>6</sup>.

Special provisions apply to the dissolution of a registered society which is a registered housing association<sup>7</sup>.

1 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 55(a) (amended by the Insolvency Act 1986 Sch 14). The provisions of the Insolvency Act 1986 apply to the order or resolution as if the society were a company, subject to the modification that any reference in those provisions to the registrar within the meaning of that Act is to be construed as a reference to the Financial Services Authority: Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 55(a) (i) (amended by SI 2001/2617). This is modified in relation to credit unions: Credit Unions Act 1979 s 6(1)(d) (amended by the Insolvency Act 1986 Sch 14). See also COMPANY AND PARTNERSHIP INSOLVENCY. As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2395. As to credit unions see PARA 2402. As to the Financial Services Authority in regard to registered societies see PARA 2410. As to the Authority generally see PARAS 4, 6 et seq. As to winding up see further PARA 2573 et seq; and see generally COMPANY AND PARTNERSHIP INSOLVENCY.

2 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 55(b). As to instruments of dissolution see PARAS 2568-2572. In addition to the two methods of dissolution referred to in the text, specific provision is made in two cases for winding up on petition to the court (see note 7; and PARA 2574) and a society may also terminate by amalgamation or transfer of engagements (see PARAS 2561-2563), by conversion into a company (see PARA 2563), or by the cancellation of its registration (see PARA 2579 et seq).

3 See note 1.

4 As to the meaning of 'officer' see PARA 2458 note 1.

5 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 59 (amended by SI 2001/2617). See also PARA 2572.

6 As to cancellation see PARA 2579 et seq.

7 As to registered societies which are registered housing associations (known as 'registered social landlords'), and the recording of their registration as such by the Authority, see PARA 2408. Where such registration has been so recorded, the society may not be wound up voluntarily under the Insolvency Act 1986, or dissolved by instrument, without the consent of the relevant authority (ie either the Housing Corporation or the Welsh Ministers: see PARA 2408); see the Housing Act 1996 s 7, Sch 1 para 12; and HOUSING vol 22 (2006 Reissue) PARA 80. If the society is dissolved by any method under the Insolvency Act 1986, or by instrument of dissolution, there must be transferred to the relevant authority or, if so directed, to another specified registered social landlord, so much of the society's property as remains after meeting the claims of creditors and other liabilities, subject to the relevant authority's power to discharge any such claims or liabilities itself: see the Housing Act 1996 Sch 1 para 15; and HOUSING vol 22 (2006 Reissue) PARA 83. See also PARA 2567 note 1. Further, the relevant authority has power to present a petition for the winding up of the society under the Insolvency Act 1986 on the ground that it is failing properly to carry out its purposes or objects (in such case, the modification referred to in note 1 applies) or on the ground that it is unable to pay its debts, within the meaning of the Insolvency Act 1986: see the Housing Act 1996 Sch 1 para 14; and HOUSING vol 22 (2006 Reissue) PARA 82.

INDUSTRIAL AND PROVIDENT SOCIETIES/(5) TERMINATION/(ii) Dissolution and Winding Up/2567. Instrument of dissolution and members' voluntary winding up.

2567. Instrument of dissolution and members' voluntary winding up.

An instrument of dissolution may have the advantage that, after discharge of liabilities and expenses, the remaining funds may be divided or appropriated in any manner decided upon by the signatories<sup>1</sup>; in a statutory winding up they would have to be distributed in accordance with the provisions of the Insolvency Act 1986<sup>2</sup>. A statutory winding up may have an advantage where, owing to the size of the membership and distribution of members, there may be difficulty in obtaining the signatures of three-fourths of the members, and also where there is a proposed scheme of reconstruction and it is desired to make it binding on creditors and members<sup>3</sup>.

1 The division or appropriation of the funds must be among persons who are entitled under the general law to those funds: Re Bucks Constabulary Widows' and Orphans' Fund Friendly Society (1976) CR Rep Pt 1, p 36, per Megarry V-C. As to the restrictions in the case of registered societies which are registered housing associations see PARA 2566 note 7. Where a registered society is a charity, its assets may not be applied on dissolution to other than charitable purposes: see CHARITIES. As to the dealing by the Housing Corporation or the Welsh Ministers (the 'relevant authority') (see PARA 2408) with the property of a dissolved society which was both a charity and a registered housing association (or 'registered social landlord') see the Housing Act 1996 s 7, Sch 1 para 15, Sch 1 para 15A (Sch 1 para 15A prospectively added); and HOUSING vol 22 (2006 Reissue) PARA 83. An instrument of dissolution of a registered society, including a credit union, must be signed<sup>1</sup> by not less than three-fourths of its members<sup>2</sup>. The instrument must set out (1) the liabilities and assets of the society in detail<sup>3</sup>; (2) the number of the members and the nature of their respective interests in the society<sup>4</sup>; (3) the claims of creditors, if any, and the provision to be made for their payment<sup>5</sup>; and (4) the intended appropriation or division of the society's funds and property, unless stated in the instrument to be left to the Financial Services Authority's award<sup>6</sup>. The instrument must also contain the name of some newspaper circulating in or about the locality of the society's registered office in which it is desired that notice of the dissolution be advertised<sup>7</sup>. Alterations in the instrument may be made by the consent of not less than three-fourths of the members testified by their signatures to the alteration<sup>8</sup>.

2570. Registration and advertisement of dissolution.

The instrument of dissolution of a registered society, including a credit union, must be sent to the Financial Services Authority<sup>1</sup> accompanied by a statutory declaration made by three members<sup>2</sup> and the society's secretary that all relevant statutory provisions have been complied with<sup>3</sup>, and possibly also by any sum of money requested by the Authority sufficient to defray any expenses of publishing notice of the dissolution in a newspaper and in the Gazette<sup>4</sup>. The Authority may not register the instrument until it has received the society's final return<sup>5</sup>. The instrument and any alterations to it<sup>6</sup> are then registered in the same way as an amendment of the society's rules<sup>7</sup>, and are binding upon all the members<sup>8</sup>.

The Authority must cause notice of the dissolution to be advertised at the society's expense in the Gazette and in some newspaper circulating in or about the locality in which the society's registered office is situated<sup>9</sup>.

1 As to the Financial Services Authority in regard to registered societies see PARA 2410. As to the Authority generally see PARAS 4, 6 et seq. As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2395. As to credit unions see PARA 2402.

4 As to the requirements as to publication of notice of dissolution see the text to note 9. In relation to a registered society where the society's registered office is situated, or the society carries on business, in England, Wales or the Channel Islands, 'Gazette' means the London Gazette; but if the society's registered office is situated, or the society carries on business, in Scotland, it means the Edinburgh Gazette; and if the society's rules are recorded in Northern Ireland (see PARA 2397), it means the Belfast Gazette: Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 74(1) (renumbered and definition amended by SI 2001/2617). Within three months from the date of the Gazette<sup>1</sup> in which the advertisement of dissolution<sup>2</sup> appears, a member or other person interested in or having any claim on the society's funds may commence proceedings in the county court<sup>3</sup> to set aside the dissolution<sup>4</sup>. A person taking such proceedings must send notice of them to the Financial Services Authority<sup>5</sup> not later than seven days after they are commenced, or not later than the expiration of the period of three months from the date of the advertisement of dissolution, whichever is the earlier<sup>6</sup>. Notice of any order setting the dissolution aside must be sent by the society to the Authority within seven days after the making of the order<sup>7</sup>.

Unless on proceedings brought within the statutory time limit<sup>1</sup> the dissolution of a registered society is set aside, the society is legally dissolved from the date of the advertisement of dissolution<sup>2</sup>, and the requisite consents<sup>3</sup> to the instrument of dissolution are deemed to have been duly obtained without proof of the signatures to it<sup>4</sup>. If, however, the required certificate as to conveyance or transfer of all the society's property<sup>5</sup> has not been lodged with the Financial Services Authority<sup>6</sup> by the date of the advertisement, the society is legally dissolved only from the date when that certificate is so lodged<sup>7</sup>. If it should happen that any property is not conveyed or transferred, and is not claimed by the Crown as bona vacantia, it may be that the court would make an order vesting the property in some person on trust to administer it under the terms of the instrument of dissolution<sup>8</sup>.

2574. Winding up on the Financial Services Authority's petition.

In the case of a society which was registered before 26 July 1938<sup>1</sup>, the Financial Services Authority<sup>2</sup> may present a petition for its winding up to the court if it appears to it that the society does not fulfil either of the purposes for which a society may be registered<sup>3</sup>, and that it would be in the interests of persons who have invested or deposited money with the society, or of any other person, that the society should be wound up<sup>4</sup>.

The Authority may present a petition to the court for the winding up of a credit union (1) if it appears to it that (a) the credit union is unable to pay sums due and payable to its members, or is able to pay such sums only by obtaining further subscriptions of shares, or by defaulting in its obligations to creditors; or (b) there has been, in relation to that credit union, a failure to comply with any provision of, or of any direction given under, the Credit Unions Act 1979 or the Industrial and Provident Societies Acts 1965 to 1978; or (c) there is no longer a common bond between the members of the credit union<sup>5</sup>; or (2) in any other case where it appears to the Authority that the winding up of the credit union is in the public interest or is just and equitable having regard to the interests of all the members of the credit union<sup>6</sup>.

2576. Limits of members' liability to contribute.

Where a registered society is wound up in pursuance of an order or resolution under the Insolvency Act 1986<sup>1</sup>, the provisions of that Act with regard to the liability of a present or past member to contribute for payment of the society's debts and liabilities, the expenses of winding up and the adjustment of the rights of contributories amongst themselves, are qualified as follows:

- 1 (1) no person<sup>2</sup> who ceased to be a member not less than one year before the beginning of the winding up is liable to contribute<sup>3</sup>;
- 2 (2) no person is liable to contribute in respect of any debt or liability contracted after he ceased to be a member<sup>4</sup>;
- 3 (3) no person who is not a member is liable to contribute unless it appears to the court that the contributions of the existing members are insufficient to satisfy the just demands on the society<sup>5</sup>;
- 4 (4) no contribution is to be required from any person exceeding the amount, if any, unpaid on the shares in respect of which he is liable as a past or present member<sup>6</sup>;
- 5 (5) where withdrawable shares have been withdrawn a person is taken to have ceased to be a member in respect of those shares as from the date of the notice or application for withdrawal<sup>7</sup>.

An assignment of book debts by a liquidator is an assignment subject to equities and thus to the rights of debtors under the society's rules<sup>8</sup>.

2576 Limits of members' liability to contribute

TEXT AND NOTES 1-7--Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 57 amended: SI 2009/1941.

Halsbury's Laws of England/FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS (VOLUME 48 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-589; VOLUME 49 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 590-1619; VOLUME 50 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1620-2586)/9. INDUSTRIAL AND PROVIDENT SOCIETIES/(5) TERMINATION/(ii) Dissolution and Winding Up/2577. Increase of member's liability.

2577. Increase of member's liability.

A member's liability to subscribe to share or loan capital may not be increased by an amendment of rules without his consent<sup>1</sup>, and therefore without that consent his name may not be placed on a list of contributories in a winding up for a larger sum than the original liability which he undertook when he became a member<sup>2</sup>.

1 See the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 14(2); and PARA 2429. As to the rules generally see PARA 2423 et seq.

2 Hole v Garnsey [1930] AC 472, HL. A member may be liable, under provisions in rules, to subscribe to loan capital: see Re Foreglen Co-operative Agricultural Society Ltd [1930] NI 114, CA.

INDUSTRIAL AND PROVIDENT SOCIETIES/(5) TERMINATION/(ii) Dissolution and Winding Up/2578. Withdrawal of shares on a winding up.

2578. Withdrawal of shares on a winding up.

Where a member of a registered society gives notice to withdraw shares, and during the currency of the notice the stoppage of the society's business becomes recognised as inevitable, the notice becomes void and repayment of the shares cannot be claimed<sup>1</sup>.

A withdrawal of subscriptions towards a share under a power given in the rules is not the same as a withdrawal of shares, and therefore in a winding up a member is liable as a contributory for the difference between the nominal capital of his shares and the net amount standing to his credit; the withdrawal of part of his subscription by a member merely increases his contingent liability in respect of his shares. In such case also the estate of a deceased member remains liable to contribute notwithstanding that he may have died more than a year prior to the commencement of the winding up, for he had not ceased to be a member for a year or upwards so as to escape liability to contribute. A member who pays a subscription towards a share in order to obtain an advance is liable as a contributory for the unpaid part of the share even if he has repaid the whole of the advance; in the case of a deceased member, his estate is liable<sup>2</sup>. Where no rule of a society requires payment out to the executors of a deceased shareholder, the personal representatives of a holder of withdrawable shares who died before the commencement of the liquidation are not entitled to any priority over other shareholders<sup>3</sup>. Where a society is solvent but is carrying on business at a loss, and has consequently suspended withdrawal of shares and is likely to continue to do so, this does not justify a petition for winding up by a minority of shareholders against the wishes of the majority of shareholders and creditors<sup>4</sup>.

INDUSTRIAL AND PROVIDENT SOCIETIES/(5) TERMINATION/(iii) Cancellation and Suspension of Registration/2579. Grounds for cancellation.

(iii) Cancellation and Suspension of Registration

2579. Grounds for cancellation.

A society's registration is cancelled on a transfer of its engagements to another society or company, or on amalgamation with a company, or on conversion into a company<sup>1</sup>. Registration may also be cancelled by the Financial Services Authority<sup>2</sup>, by writing, on any of the following grounds<sup>3</sup>:

- 6 (1) if at any time it is proved to the Authority's satisfaction that the number of the society's members has been reduced to less than three (or 21 in the case of a credit union) or, in the case of a society for the time being consisting solely of other registered societies, to less than two<sup>4</sup>, or that an acknowledgment of registration has been obtained by fraud or mistake<sup>5</sup>, or that the society has ceased to exist<sup>6</sup>;
- 7 (2) at the society's request, if the Authority thinks fit<sup>7</sup>;
- 8 (3) on proof to the Authority's satisfaction that the society exists for an illegal purpose<sup>8</sup>, or has wilfully and after notice from the Authority violated any of the provisions of the Industrial and Provident Societies Acts<sup>9</sup> or any enactment repealed by them<sup>10</sup>;
- 9 (4) if at any time it appears to the Authority that the society does not fulfil either of the purposes for which a society may be registered<sup>11</sup>;
- 10 (5) if it appears to the Authority that an agricultural, horticultural or forestry society, the rules of which contain a provision for the making of advances to members without security, is not qualified to make such advances<sup>12</sup>.

There are certain provisions applying specifically to credit unions<sup>13</sup>.

1 See the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 ss 52(4), 59; and PARAS 2562-2564. Although there is no provision in the Act that a society's registration is to be cancelled on amalgamation with another society, it would seem that in practice amalgamation will usually involve the cessation of the existence of the amalgamating societies (see PARAS 2560-2561), thus giving rise to the possibility of cancellation on that ground (see the text to note 6). On dissolution of a society by an order or resolution for winding up or an instrument of dissolution (see PARA 2566), although there may be no formal steps for cancellation of registration under s 16, registration will inevitably terminate. Section 52 (conversion of registered society into a company or amalgamation with, or transfer of engagements to, a company: see PARAS 2563-2564) does not apply to credit unions: see the Credit Unions Act 1979 s 22. See also note 3.

2 As to the Financial Services Authority in regard to registered societies see PARA 2410. As to the Authority generally see PARAS 4, 6 et seq. As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2395. As to credit unions see PARA 2402.

3 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 16(1) (amended by SI 2001/2617). The Authority's power to cancel registration is subject to the provisions of the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 16 (see also PARA 2581 et seq), s 18(1)(c) (right of appeal) (see PARA 2582) and s 59 (lodging of certificate as to transfer of society's property) (see PARAS 2562, 2566): see s 16(1) (as so amended).

The Authority may also exercise the power to cancel the registration of a credit union in accordance with s 16 where the credit union's permission given by the Authority under the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 Pt IV (ss 40-55) (see PARA 348 et seq) has been cancelled or where the Authority has given the credit union a warning notice under s 54(1) (see PARA 357): Credit Unions Act 1979 s 20(1A) (s 20(1A)-(1D) added by SI 2002/1501). Cancellation of registration under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act s 16 by virtue of the Credit Unions Act 1979 s 20(1A) may not take effect until the Authority has cancelled the credit union's permission under the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 Pt IV and there is no possibility (or no further possibility) of that determination of the Authority being reversed or varied: Credit Unions Act 1979 s 20(1B) (as so added). In the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 16(4) (see PARA 2583), in its application to credit unions, the reference to the ground referred to in s 16(1)(c)(ii) (see the text to note 11) includes a reference to the ground mentioned in the Credit Unions Act 1979 s 20(1A): s 20(1C) (as so added). The Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 18 (see also PARA 2582) does not apply in relation to a decision of the Authority to cancel the registration of a credit union by virtue of the Credit Unions Act 1979 s 20(1A) (and so a society may not appeal from a decision of the Authority to cancel its registration by virtue of s 20(1A)): s 20(1D) (as so added).

4 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 16(1)(a)(i) (s 16(1)(a)(i) amended by SI 1996/1738; and the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 16(1)(a), (b), (c) amended by SI 2001/2617); Credit Unions Act 1979 s 6(1)(b). See also note 3.

5 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 16(1)(a)(ii) (as amended: see note 4). As to acknowledgment of registration see PARA 2415. See note 3.

6 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 16(1)(a)(iii) (as amended: see note 4). The Authority retains a power to cancel the registration of a reconstituted society, which had ceased to exist, as it is a new and different society: Re Wimbledon and Merton Democratic Club Society Ltd (1999) Times, 7 January. From the date of cancellation of a society's registration it becomes an unincorporated association to which the principle of spontaneous dissolution can apply: Boyle v Collins [2004] EWHC 271 (Ch), [2004] 2 BCLC 471. These two decisions are not entirely easy to reconcile, since it appears to have been assumed in Re Wimbledon and Merton Democratic Club Society Ltd that a society might cease to exist if the circumstances were such that the principle of spontaneous dissolution would apply if it were an unincorporated association, whereas the reasoning in Boyle v Collins above is that the principle cannot apply while a society remains registered and is thus a body corporate. If that is correct, it appears that the words 'the society has ceased to exist' in the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 16(1)(a)(iii) must authorise the cancellation of a society's registration where, for example, it has ceased to exist by transferring its engagements or by dissolution: see further s 59 (and PARA 2562), prohibiting cancellation of a society's registration in such circumstances until the certificate of conveyance or transfer under that section has been lodged. Such an approach would be consistent with the description in the former case of the Authority's power as administrative, to keep the register in order. See note 3.

7 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 16(1)(b) (as amended: see note 4). This is to be evidenced in such manner as the Authority from time to time directs: see s 16(1)(b) (as so amended). See further PARA 2583. See note 3.

8 'Illegal' means unlawful, and not illegal as being ultra vires the society: Re Middle Age Pension Friendly Society [1915] 1 KB 432, DC. See also Wallingford v Mutual Society (1880) 5 App Cas 685, HL; and the cases cited in PARAS 2424 note 1, 2502 note 3, 2538 note 5.

9 I.e. the Industrial and Provident Societies Acts 1965 to 1978: see generally PARA 2397.

10 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 16(1)(c)(i) (as amended: see note 4). In this provision as it applies to credit unions, the reference to violation of any of the provisions of the Industrial and Provident Societies Acts 1965 to 1978 is to be construed as including a reference to violation of any of the provisions of the Credit Unions Act 1979: s 20(1)(a). As to the repealed enactments see PARA 2394. See also note 3.

11 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 16(1)(c)(ii) (as amended: see note 4). In this provision as it applies to credit unions, the reference to the fact that the society does not fulfil either of the purposes for which a society (other than a credit union) may be registered, is to be construed as a reference to the fact that there is no longer a common bond between the members of a credit union (see PARA 2414): Credit Unions Act 1979 s 20(1)(b). See also note 3. As to the two purposes for which a society may be registered see PARA 2402. As to the relevance of this provision in a petition for the winding up of a registered society under the Insolvency Act 1986 see Re Surrey Garden Village Trust Ltd, Re Addington Smallholders Ltd [1964] 3 All ER 962, [1965] 1 WLR 974 (decided under the Companies Act 1948). There is no power on this ground to cancel the registration of a society which before 26 July 1938 was registered or deemed to be registered under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1893, and which is now deemed to be registered under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 (see PARA 2396), if no invitation to subscribe for or to acquire or offer to acquire securities, or to lend or deposit money, has been made on or after that date by or on behalf of the society: s 16(2). See, however, PARA 2574.

12 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 16(1)(c)(iii) (as amended: see note 4). As to the general provision that the rules may provide for advances to members only on security see PARA 2404. As to the grounds on which an agricultural, horticultural or forestry society may qualify to make advances without security see PARA 2409. Cancellation may be effected if it appears to the Authority that the society no longer consists mainly of such members as are referred to in s 12 (see PARA 2409) or that the activities carried on by the society do not mainly consist of making advances for the purposes there mentioned: s 16(1)(c)(iii) (as so amended). See note 3.

TERMINATION/(iii) Cancellation and Suspension of Registration/2581. Notice of proposed cancellation or suspension.

2581. Notice of proposed cancellation or suspension.

In general, before cancelling or suspending a society's registration, the Financial Services Authority<sup>1</sup> must give the society not less than two months' notice in writing specifying briefly the ground of the proposed cancellation or suspension<sup>2</sup>. This notice need not be given, however, where a society's registration is to be cancelled at its own request, or by virtue of an amalgamation with, transfer of engagements to or conversion into, a company, or after the lodging with the Authority of a certificate<sup>3</sup> that its property has been duly conveyed or transferred<sup>4</sup>.

1 As to the Financial Services Authority in regard to registered societies see PARA 2410. As to the Authority generally see PARAS 4, 6 et seq. As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2395. As to credit unions see PARA 2402.

INDUSTRIAL AND PROVIDENT SOCIETIES/(5) TERMINATION/(iii) Cancellation and Suspension of Registration/2582. Appeal against cancellation or suspension.

2582. Appeal against cancellation or suspension.

Where the Financial Services Authority<sup>1</sup> proposes to cancel a society's registration, being a cancellation of which two months' notice is required<sup>2</sup> and not being a cancellation on the ground that the society does not fulfil one of the purposes for which a society, including a credit union, may be registered<sup>3</sup>, the society may appeal against the Authority's decision if the appeal is lodged before the expiration of the period of notice of the proposed cancellation<sup>4</sup>. If the appeal is duly lodged, the society's registration may not be cancelled before the date of the determination or abandonment of the appeal<sup>5</sup>, but the Authority by notice in writing may suspend the society's registration from the expiration of the period of notice until the date of the determination or abandonment of the appeal<sup>6</sup>.

A society may also appeal against a renewal of suspension of its registration<sup>7</sup>, so far as that renewal provides for the suspension to continue more than three months from the original date of suspension<sup>8</sup>.

1 As to the Financial Services Authority in regard to registered societies see PARA 2410. As to the Authority generally see PARAS 4, 6 et seq. As to the meaning of 'registered society' see PARA 2395. As to credit unions see PARA 2402.

The provisions of the Industrial and Provident Societies Act s 18, concerning appeals, apply in relation to credit unions: Credit Unions Act 1979 s 20(1). As to provisions in regard to credit unions see also s 20(1A)-(1D); and PARA 2579 note 3. An appeal from a decision of the Authority lies to the High Court: Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 18(2) (as so amended). Appeals in Scotland are made to the Court of Session; although Scottish matters are generally beyond the scope of this work. As to the procedure on appeal to the High Court see PARA 2422.

INDUSTRIAL AND PROVIDENT SOCIETIES/(5) TERMINATION/(iii) Cancellation and Suspension of Registration/2583. Cancellation on the ground that the statutory purposes are not fulfilled.

2583. Cancellation on the ground that the statutory purposes are not fulfilled.

Where the Financial Services Authority<sup>1</sup> proposes to cancel the registration of a society on the ground that it does not fulfil one of the purposes for which a society, including a credit union, may be registered<sup>2</sup>, it must consider any representations with respect to the proposed cancellation made to it by the society within the period of duration of the notice of proposed cancellation<sup>3</sup> and, if the society so requests, afford it an opportunity of being heard by it before its registration is cancelled<sup>4</sup>. If it appears to the Authority at any time after the expiration of one month from the date of the giving of the notice that the steps have not been taken which by that time could reasonably have been taken for the purpose either of converting the society into, or amalgamating it with, or transferring its engagements to, a company<sup>5</sup>, or of dissolving the society<sup>6</sup>, it may give such directions as it thinks fit for securing that the society's affairs are wound up before cancellation of the registration takes effect<sup>7</sup>. Any person who contravenes or fails to comply with these directions is guilty of an offence<sup>8</sup>.

If the Authority considers it necessary for the exercise of its power to cancel a society's registration on the ground that it does not fulfil one of the purposes for which a society may be registered<sup>9</sup>, or of its power to give directions<sup>10</sup>, or of its power to petition for winding up<sup>11</sup>, then, by notice in writing served on the society or on any person who is or has been an officer<sup>12</sup> of the society, the Authority may at any time require that society or person to produce to it such books, accounts and other documents relating to the society's business, and to furnish to it such other information relating to that business, as it considers necessary for the exercise of those powers; and the notice may require the information to be verified by a statutory declaration<sup>13</sup>. A society or other person failing to comply with the requirements of such a notice is guilty of an offence<sup>14</sup>. If it considers it just, the Authority may direct that all or any of the expenses incurred by it in exercising these powers of requiring information are to be defrayed, either wholly or to such extent as it may determine, out of the society's funds or by its officers or former officers or any of them<sup>15</sup>. Any sum which the society or other person is so required to pay is a debt due to the Authority from that society or person<sup>16</sup>.

2585. Advertisement of cancellation or suspension.

As soon as practicable after it takes place, notice of every cancellation or suspension of a society's registration<sup>1</sup> and of any renewal of suspension must be published in the Gazette<sup>2</sup> and in some local newspaper circulating in or about the locality in which the society's registered office is situated<sup>3</sup>.

1 This includes suspension pending determination or abandonment of an appeal against cancellation: see PARA 2582.

2 As to the meaning of 'Gazette' see PARA 2570 note 4.

INDUSTRIAL AND PROVIDENT SOCIETIES/(5) TERMINATION/(iii) Cancellation and Suspension of Registration/2586. Effect of cancellation or suspension.

2586. Effect of cancellation or suspension.

From the date of publication in the Gazette of notice of cancellation of a society's registration<sup>1</sup>, the society absolutely ceases to be entitled to any of the privileges of the Industrial and Provident Societies Acts<sup>2</sup> as a registered society<sup>3</sup>. Similarly, from the date of publication in the Gazette of notice of suspension of registration<sup>4</sup> until the period of suspension and of any renewal of suspension ends (whether ending on the expiration of that period or on a successful appeal), the society is not entitled to any of the privileges of those Acts as a registered society<sup>5</sup>. Both as regards cancellation and suspension, these provisions are without prejudice to any liability actually incurred by the society, which may be enforced against it as if the cancellation or suspension had not taken place<sup>6</sup>. There is no statutory provision that cancellation of registration effects a dissolution of the society<sup>7</sup>. It would seem that it becomes an unregistered and unincorporated voluntary association, and whether it could be continued and could legally carry out its objects would depend on its rules and whether or not its circumstances were such that it would be required by law to be registered<sup>8</sup>.

4 As to publication of this notice see PARA 2585.

5 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 17(5). This applies also in cases of suspension pending determination or abandonment of appeal against cancellation (see PARA 2582): s 17(5).

6 Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 ss 16(7), 17(5). The effects of these provisions would usually be set out in the published notice of cancellation or suspension (as to which see PARA 2585).

7 The Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 3 (see PARA 2416) provides that a society is a body corporate by virtue of its registration, so once the registration has been cancelled it seems that the society will again become an unincorporated association of members bound together by their mutual contractual obligations. This was the position contemplated by Lewison J in Boyle v Collins [2004] EWHC 271 (Ch), [2004] 2 BCLC 471. See also note 8.

8 Cf the Companies Act 1985 s 716(1) (repealed); and the observations in Hole v Garnsey [1930] AC 472 at 499, HL, per Lord Tomlin. In the circumstances postulated, it also seems likely that the substratum of the contract on which the association is based will have disappeared, leading to its termination.
